SEVERAL LIVES LOST IN A CHICAGO FIRE

Flames Break Out In Big Apartment House.

A Number Seriously Hurt and Two Missing.

Chicago, May 15.—Two lives were lost in a fire that destroyed the West Chester apartment building at 5017 Cottage Grove avenue early today. One man is missing and is supposed to have perished in the flames, while two persons were probably fatally and others seriously injured by jumping from the windows. The dead:

LOUISA PHAESA, 10 years old.

HARRY STRUBLEY, 50 years old.

Missing: Samuel Hall, 45 years old.

Injured: Theodore Whittle, arm broken; Patrick Bolger, hands cut; Nelson Lundberg, badly burned about head; Mrs. G. D. Hoffman, back broken and internally injured; Louis Herbert, back broken.

The dead girl was found in the hall on the second floor of the building, where she had apparently been overcome by smoke while groping her way to the stairs. The body of Strubley was recovered from the basement, where he was accustomed to sleep. It is thought he was rendered insensible by smoke. The fire started beneath a grocery store which occupied the ground floor of the building and spread rapidly through the air shafts until the entire building was ablaze. Twenty-seven families lived in the apartments on the three upper floors, and many persons narrowly escaped injury in the panic which followed the alarm of fire.

J. T. Hoffman, husband of the injured woman, saved his two children by throwing them from the second story window upon a mattress. His wife, however, fainted and fell to the ground. It is thought that she will die. Samuel Hall occupied a room in the basement with Strubley. His body was not recovered, but he is thought to have met the same fate as Strubley and the ruins are being searched for his remains.

Ambulances were hurried to the aid of injured while neighbors provided clothing in abundance for the unfortunates, many of whom were unable to save any portion of their effects from the flames.

DEADLOCK IN DENVER SHOWS NO INDICATIONS OF A BREAK

Judge Refuses Injunction Without a Hearing.

More Strikes Inaugurated Throughout Country.

Denver, May 15.—It is likely that many more unions will be called out on strike today owing to the rejection of the labor committees' proposition by the Citizens' Alliance yesterday. Already there is a total of over 3000 men on strike. Among those most likely to be called out today are the garment makers, brewery employes, bartenders, retail clerks, carriage and hack drivers, engineers and firemen, candy makers and ash haulers.

By the calling out of the engineers and firemen there is danger that $300,000 worth of meat in the refrigerators at the stock yards will be spoiled.

There has been some disorder but nothing of a serious nature. The police department has increased its force to handle the situation.

The situation between the contending factions is at a deadlock this morning. President Craig announces that the Citizens' Alliance will not accede to the unions' demands, and President Coates is equally sure the labor committee will not arbitrate with the alliance.

Labor leaders object to further negotiations with the alliance on the ground that in its membership are included not only employers of labor, but many non-union wage workers, whom they regard as "strike breakers."

At 10 o'clock today counsel for the transfer and van owners of the city applied in the federal court for an injunction against the Teamsters' National Union of America, the Transfer Drivers' local, No. 83, and Van Drivers' and Helpers' local, No. 62, and all members belonging to the organizations. The plaintiffs asked for an injunction restricting defendants and "their associates, confederates, co-conspirators, agents, servants and employes" from interfering with the business of complainants as common carriers of freight between states of the United States, or from hindering or obstructing wagons or vehicles engaged in carrying freight and articles of interstate commerce; from posting pickets about the places of business of complainants; from interfering with any of their employes by violence, threats or personal injury; from ordering, directing or inciting any other persons to threaten, assault, or by the use of profanity or vile epithets to intimidate any employes; from following thee mployes to their homes or other places for the purpose of intimidation, and from publishing any orders, statements, rules or directions by the officers of the unions, or any other similar organization, commanding and enjoining, under pain of personal violence or other persecution, any emplainants.

Judge Hallett refused to grant the injunction without a hearing. The attorneys for the defendants stated that they had not had time to examine the bill of complaint, and asked for further time. They promised in the meantime to do nothing in conflict with the terms of the injunction asked for. The judge then granted a continuance to next Wednesday.

The joint executive committee of organized labor, owing to the refusal of the Citizens' Alliance to agree to arbitration between employers and employes directly interested in questions at issue, called out 1000 additional union men during the forenoon today, increasing the total number of strikers in this city to more than 4000. The unions ordered out today are brewery workers, beer bottlers, beer wagon drivers, retail clerks, garment workers and horse shoers. The unions that had previously struck are teamsters, expressmen, butchers and meatcutters, cooks, waiters, restaurant helpers, bakers, grocery clerks, grocery saleswomen and egg candlers. The total number of union members in the city, exclusive of the railroad unions, is 17,123, and it is the intention of the labor committee to keep on tying up one branch of business after another, so far as lies in its power, until the employers agree to some method of arbitration that is satisfactory to the unions. So far no serious disturbance has occurred. The regular police force has been doubled and it will be further enlarged if necessary to cope with any outbreak of violence that may take place.

Omaha, May 15.—A hundred deputies and twenty-five bicycle patrolmen were distributed throughout the residence portion of the city today to aid the regular police force maintain order. No disturbances were reported this morning.

One restaurant signed the waiters' scale and opened for business today. At a meeting of the Waiters' union a resolution was adopted censuring yesterday's violence and declaring that any member of the union proven guilty of overt acts would be expelled.

New York, May 15.—Members of the Excavators' and Rockmen's unions held a joint meeting today and discussed their difficulties with the contractors, especially those concerned in the subway work. These strikers decided to maintain their position and keep away from work.

When the Italian subway strikers threatened a workman in the Bronx today he brandished a revolver. A policeman arrested him while the strikers escaped. The workman was subsequently released by the magistrate before whom he was arraigned.

THREATENED STRIKE ON THE GREAT NORTHERN AVERTED

An Amicable Agreement Was Reached Between the Officials of the Company and the Trainmen.

St. Paul, May 15.—All danger of a strike on the Great Northern railway system has passed, and an amicable agreement between the company and its trainmen has been reached, the schedules being signed late yesterday afternoon. Each side made concessions, although upon the face of the terms of compromise, as stated by A. B. Garretson, the assistant grand conductor of the Order of Railway Conductors, who with Mr. Newman, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, has conducted the negotiations, the men have somewhat the better of it. They are granted an increase in wages, which averages 15 per cent, the increase to date from March 1 last; the yardmen get the Chicago scale, which is 3 cents an hour higher than the St. Paul scale; new men are given increased wages after one year's service, instead of five, as proposed by the company, and upon the double header question, which was the cause of the deadlock in the negotiations, the men modified their demands to a slight degree. East of Minot, according to the agreement, the road may run one-half of 1 per cent of the gross mileage as double headers. On the mountain divisions, west of Minot, 2.3 per cent of the gross mileage is allowed to be double headed. But in computing the percentage of double headers, helper engines must be included.

Mr. Ward, the general manager of the road, in his offer to the men in reply to their demands for a complete abolition of the system of double heading, proposed to confine it to 3 per cent of the gross mileage, which is about the present precentage upon this road. He, however, reserved the right to double head on any part of the system. This offer the men rejected, and a complete deadlock in the negotiations ensued, and a strike seemed inevitable. The business men of the Twin Cities, however, undertook to bring the parties together again and succeeded so well, that as foreshadowed in yesterday's dispatches, an agreement was practically arranged at once and yesterday's conferences had only to do with considering the details.

Mr. Ward receded from his offer of 3 per cent double headers and agreed to district the road and confine the bulk of the two-engine trains to the mountain divisions. With this understanding the men receded from their demands for a complete abolition of the system, and the details of their wage schedule and ther matters at issue were then settled in a manner satisfactory to each side.

Mr. Garretson, on behalf of the men, expressed himself as extremely well pleased with the result of the negotiations, and as grateful to the business men's committee for their successful endeavor to bring about a peaceful settlement. He admitted that at one time the situation was of such a critical character that a strike seemed inevitable, but upheld his contention that the men had been willing at any time to make concessions should the company show a conciliatory spirit.

General Manager Ward refused to make any public statement, further than to say that everything had been settled in a manner satisfactory to the company.

President James J. Hill, who has been making a tour of the Mesaba range, arrived home shortly after the signing of the agreement with the men and said that he was very glad that an arrangement had been reached whereby so serious a calamity as a strike would have been, had been averted.

The general committee of the conductors and trainmen of the Great Northern have returned to their homes, and Messrs Garretson and Newman will proceed to Montreal, where they are to begin negotiations with the Canadian Pacific railway.

MISSING MAN IS LOCATED AFTER A TWO YEARS SEARCH

George Walls Evidently Did Not Want to Come Home, Although His Father Offered $20,000 For His Recovery Dead or Alive.

York, Pa., May 15.—After a mysterious disappearance of almost two years, George Walls, the son of Martin Walls, of Pittsburg, has been located in the village of Riverton, near Harrisburg. Although his father offered a reward of $20,000 for information concerning him, the young man, under an assumed name, has been working as a mechanical engineer within the same state and within a few hundred miles of his father's residence.

Young Walls left Spring Grove, where he was working, repairing a filtering plant, on Dec. 21, 1901, and was never seen again by his friends.

He went directly from Spring Grove to Riverton, where, under an assumed name, he procured employment. He knew of the search his father was making to find him, as it was published in all the Pennsylvania newspapers.

Martin Walls received information which took him to Philadelphia, and through it the father located his son at Riverton.

Only a week ago Mr. Walls had notices offering $20,000 reward for his son, dead or alive, spread broadcast through York county. He has received a letter from friends stating that his son was being held for ransom, and took this method of reaching the kidnapers.

So confident was he that his son had been murdered that on the 10th of this month, in an interview, he said he had practically solved the mystery, and was then searching for his son's body, and that the murderers would be arrested within a few days.

OPPOSED TO REMOVAL OF GRAIN TAX

Large Delegation Calls on Premier Balfour and Protests Against Remission of Duty.

London, May 15.—Premier Balfour, accompanied by the chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Ritchie, today received a large and influential deputation of Unionist members of the house of commons, headed by Mr. Chaselin, a former president of the board of agriculture; members of the house of lords and delegates from the chambers of commerce and from the chambers of agriculture, who protested against the remission of the grain duty.

Mr. Balfour made a long argument in reply to the representations of the deputation, but did not give the slightest indication of conceding the demands.

Without the slightest intention on the part of the government, he said, the tax had accidentally given some protection to the mills, thus indirectly and unexpectedly helping the farmers, but the government must not be blamed for remitting the tax. It was never intended to be a protective measure. Protection, he said, could not be introduced silently, as if by accident, and without a broad, public endorsement of such a change in the national policy. The premier contended that when it became clear the grain tax divided the two principal parties of this country, it also became clear that the tax could not be a permanent part of the fiscal system. He did not intend to say that the present system was necessarily permanent. New conditions had arisen since the old free trade policy was adopted and he could imagine circumstances under which Great Britain, by way of retaliation, would no longer consent to be made a passive target for other countries living under different conditions. He believed in universal free trade, but at present, every country, except Great Britain, was protected. Great Britain had gained greatly thereby in many ways.

Mr. Balfour concluded with saying he would welcome a closer fiscal union of the motherland and the colonies. The movement, however, would be extremely difficult to carry out and must come from the heart, conscience and intellect of the great masses of the people.

ASSEMBLY AT WINONA LAKE

Ninth Season Opens With Prospects of Excellent Success.

Warsaw, Ind., May 15.—The season at Winona lake opened today and the assembly's ninth season is full of promise. The Chautauqua program will commence July 6 and continue six weeks. Each week will have its general subject, as follows:

July 6 to 11—Literature.
July 13 to 18—Travel.
July 20 to 25—Pedagogy and science.
July 27 to Aug. 1—Miscellaneous subjects.
Aug. 3 to 8—Living questions.
Aug. 10 to 15—Music.

The annual meeting of the Western Association of Writers will be held during "literary week," commencing July 6. Among those on the program are Professor Henry Van Dyke, Princeton, N. J.; F. P. Dunne (Mr. Dooley), William E. Curtis and James Whitcomb Riley.

The ninth annual Winona Bible conference will commence its ten days' session Aug. 26. As usual the conference will be under the direction of its founder, Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, and many noted pastors of England, Scotland, Canada and this country will participate. William Phillips Hall will preside over a series of conferences for evangelists. Other special conferences on the diffeerrt branches of church work will be in charge of Thomas Kane, Chicago; Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, Brooklyn; Fred B. Smith, New York; Dr. W. G. Moorehead, Xenia, Ohio, and others.

A meeting of importance to Sunday school workers is that of the executive committee of the International Sunday School association, which will be held at Winona commencing Aug. 6.

The Indiana State Sunday School association will convene in a three days' session beginning June 22. The annual meeting of the American Microscopical society will be held at Winona during the summer, the date of which has not yet been decided.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER.

Seattle, May 15.—The body of James S. Mulvey, a member of a wealthy and influential Boston family, was found on the tide flats today when the tide went out. The coroner expresses the opinion that Mulvey could not have fallen into the water under ordinary circumstances.

IBSEN AGAIN ILL.

Copenhagen, May 15.—Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian dramatist, is again seriously ill. His friends are very anxious regarding the outcome of his illness.

BOARD OF ARBITRATION IN GAS MEN STRIKE MAKES ITS AWARD

Holds That Men Discharged Before Strike Have No Complaint, But Those Dropped After It Had Commenced Should Be Reinstated.

Chicago, May 15.—The Chicago board of arbitration last night made its award in the trouble of the People's Gas Light and Coke company and employes, who charged the company with dismissing them because they were members of a labor union.

The board held that the safety of the public is involved in the gas supply, and that it would be dangerous to have the gas plants in "the charge of a collection of men who are subjected to the absolute orders of some leader, who may not have the general good of the public at heart."

The board found that the men dropped from the pay roll of the company before the strike was threatened had no just ground for complaint, but that those discharged during the controversy should be given their former positions.

The board, however, bars from reinstatement those who conducted themselves improperly during the strike and those who left the employ of the company without orders from their union.

The company employs many union men in its different departments, and the board protected them by a decree that the company "shall not discriminate against members of any labor body." The strike began Feb. 3.

SAYS MOON CONTROLS THE RAIN

Chicago, May 15.—A dispatch to the Inter-Ocean from Vancouver, B. C., says: The following mail advices have been received from Australia by the steamship Aorangia, which brought over the largest number of passengers on record. In speaking of the terrible drought still prevailing in Australia, H. C. Russell, the government astronomer of Australia, claims to have made the discovery after long and careful search among astronomical records, that the moon regulates the rain. Astronomers of the different Australian colonies have endorsed Mr. Russell's theory. Mr. Russell says: "I speak positively when I say I have found the moon controls the rain. My researches extend for thirty-six years. Briefly, when the moon is moving south there is plenty of rain, when it is moving north there are years of drought, so there are alternate wet and dry periods, the wet lasting nine years and the dry ten. So that long beforehand preparations can be made for the coming drought." Astronomers the world over are invited to investigate Mr. Russell's assertion. A severe earthquake has been felt in Warranbool. It was the severest on record. School children became panic stricken and horses and cattle ran amuck. Many roofs were shaken off the houses. A tidal wave succeeded the earthquake.

EXPLOSION OF TANK KILLS WOMAN

New York, May 15.—Mrs. Kate Taylor is dead as the result of the explosion of a carbonated gas tank used for making soda water which wrecked the rear rooms of her store. A bed in one apartment was blown to splinters and the plaster ceilings were reduced to dust. Mrs. Taylor kept a small confectionery store. In the front was a soda fountain, the gas for which came from the tank, which stood about thirty feet in the rear. Mrs. Taylor went to attach a tube to the tank. Whether the tank contained too much gas or whether the woman did not handle it properly cannot be learned. She had been gone from the front part of the store less than a moment when the explosion occurred. The ceilings fell and parts of the woodwork were blown fully 100 feet across the street.

THE ATROCITIES AT KISHINEFF ARE ALMOST BEYOND BELIEF

The Leading Physician at the National Capital Furnishes an Authentic Report of Specific Instances of Hideous Cruelty to the Jews.

New York, May 15.—Dr. Doroschewskl, the head physician of the National hospital at Kishineff, after examining the dead and wounded, has given the following specific instances of hideous cruelty, says a dispatch from Kishineff to the World.

A Jewess named Sura Fonarchi was brought here with two nails, seven inches long, driven into her brain through her nose.

"One Jew was brought in with one hip, both ankles and wrists broken, his severed hands and feet dangling by the skin.

"A Jew named Charlfon had lost his upper and under lips, which had been cut away with a butcher knife, after which his tongue and windpipe had been pulled out through his mouth with pincers.

"The ears of a Jew named Selser had been cut away and his head battered. He was a raving maniac.

"A carpenter was surprised at work and both of his hands were sawed off with his own saws.

"A Jewish girl was assaulted by several brutes, who then cut her eyes out with a pocket knife.

"One woman, after trying to defend her children, was thrown upon the pavement, disemboweled, and feathers and horse hair from her bed were stuffed into her body.

"Small children were thrown out of windows and trampled upon by the mob.

"Thirty-seven were killed on the spot, eighty died of their injuries and 290 are under treatment. Many will be cripples for life.

"Four thousand Jews are without food or shelter and it is impossible for them to get away.

New York, May 15.—The central committee for the relief of the Kishineff sufferers upon the treasurer's report that there is on hand in the treasury the sum of $12,609, has decided to direct the treasurer to forward an additional $25,000 roubles by cable to Kishineff.

WIFE MURDERER CHEATS GALLOWS

Lexington, Ky., May 15.—William McCarty, wife murderer, who was to be hanged at 8 o'clock this morning, took morphine some time during the night and died at 8:15 o'clock this morning. The death watch, Alex. McKeever, sat within three feet of McCarthy all night, but says he is absolutely at a loss to know how or when he took the drug. At 1 o'clock McCarty became restless and turned over on his cot. Jailer Robert Wallace was in the cell at the time. He accused McCarty of doing something he ought not to do. McCarty called for whisky and Wallace brought him coffee instead. He drank the coffee and went into violent convulsions.

COURT FORBIDS A WOMAN TO TALK

Chicago, May 15.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Omaha, Neb., says: Judge Baxter, in the district court, has issued a restraining order enjoining a woman from talking. The complainant was L. Oliphant Dodge, the owner of an apartment house, and the defendant was Mrs. E. Berg, a tenant, who refuses to vacate until her lease expires. The allegations are that the defendant has upon numerous occasions, by talking to the other occupants, caused some of them to announce their intention of leaving the apartments; that she has interfered with the property in different ways, all to the injury of the plaintiff. The defendant is forbidden to enter the apartments of the other occupants, and from talking to any of the tenants about the plaintiff in any manner.

YALE STUDENTS AS TEAMSTERS

New Haven, Conn., May 15.—About thirty Yale under-graduates have joined the strike breakers employed by the local trucking companies to take the places of the teamsters who went on strike Tuesday. This is the first time that compulsory help has been found by the trucking companies and the under-graduates are deriving a good deal of fun out of driving the heavy trucks about the city. Yale men have been loading and unloading freight at the railroad yards for the wholesale companies and will continue the work in greater numbers. The students are doing this for a lark, but the trucking companies say they make most satisfactory drivers. The manager of one company, all of whose regular drivers are on strike, says that Yale strike breakers do more loading and unloading than twice as many regular truckmen.

SKELETON OF A PREHISTORIC MAN

Chicago, May 15.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from Bonsteel, S. D., says: Laborers digging an artisan well here have unearthed a human skeleton fifty feet below the surface. The skeleton was in an excellent state of preservation and is believed by scientists to be that of a prehistoric man. The bad lands of South Dakota, in which Bonesteel is situated, have been prolific in fossils.

ST. PAUL MAN TIRED OF LIVING

St. Paul, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tired of battling with ill health, A. E. Keller, 651 Wabasha street, suddenly decided this morning to end his troubles with a bullet and now lies fatally wounded at the city hospital. Keller was driving by his home in a wagon belonging to his employer, Matezniski Bros. Meat company, at 10 o'clock this morning. Suddenly he hauled his team to the curbing and tied the horses. Then he went into the house and into his bedroom. Taking a revolver from his bureau drawer, he placed the muzzle to his right temple and fired one shot, the bullet coming out back of the left ear. Keller's wife called a physician, who had the suicide removed to the city hospital.

SHARKEY HURT IN WRESTLING BOUT

New York, May 15.—Tom Sharkey, the pugilist, was badly injured in a wrestling match at Perth Amboy, N. J., last night, with Hanson, the Danish champion. Sharkey won the first fall and Hanson the second. Hanson got a leg hold on Sharkey and slamming him on the mat, pressed both shoulders to the floor. Sharkey was dazed when he got up and a physician, who examined him said a blood vessel in the shoulder had been ruptured and some of the tendons broken.

AMERICANS STORM MANILA STAGE

Manila, May 15.—A party of Americans stormed the stage of the Libertad theater last night and stopped a seditious play. The place which is historical, has a climax in which the heroine throws the American flag to the ground and raises the standard of Katipunan Secret society. When this scene was reached a score of Americans sprang on the stage, routed the actors, and smashed the furniture. The audience fled. Col. Tolentino, a former insurgent, who wrote the play will probably be prosecuted.

Burrows' 18th Anniversary Sale!

Commences Tomorrow and will continue one week.

IT WAS our original intention to launch this sale last week, but the unsettled state of the weather rendered it advisable to hold off till now. This is our eighteenth year in business—and—that the people may know how much we appreciate the support and confidence with which, from the very first, they have favored us—we propose to signalize the event by holding a one-week's Bargain Fete in which the grandest values and the greatest bargains in Men's and Boys' up-to-the-hour wearables of which the West has ever heard will be placed at their disposal. The high character of the merchandise proffered the people in this sale amply sustains the enviable reputation which—in our eighteen years of business—we have achieved—and maintained—for handling only the most reliable goods. Our constant aim has ever been to elevate the standard and lower the price of the various lines we trade in. And now that perfection's pole—in quality, style and variety—has been reached by us—we shall let down the bars of price for one week, and we invite all the people to enter and help themselves at our expense—with our compliments—as the prices named here wipe out all profits. It is our purpose to make this anniversary sale memorable as the greatest bargain event of any—of all—time. Read on.

RIPE FOR TROUT

Fishermen Say That Next Week Should Be Favorable Time.

Lake Fishing Reported to Be Very Good This Spring.

"Trout fishing will be ripe within a few days," said a man who knows yesterday afternoon, "unless there should be some more rain. The streams have been high ever since they broke up, and the rain that came early in the week made them higher, but it was rain and not snow water, and that made a good deal of difference. It will not hurt the fishing, but as soon as the water goes down so that it is possible to keep a line in the water, the fish will bite. I really believe that I would be willing to risk it the first of next week. The streams will still be a little high then, but the water will be clearer and the current will not be so swift, but that the trout can negotiate for the fly or bait, as the case may be."

Lake fishing this spring is reported to be good in the old fishing places. A number of parties have been out, and they report good success in most cases. Of course, one of the difficulties about fishing now is that one is likely to catch black bass without intending to do so, while fishing for pike and croppie, and this involves the painful necessity of throwing back the bass.

"And the funny part of it is," said one fisherman yesterday, "that I never caught so many black bass during the open season as I caught the last time I was out, a few days ago. Of course, I threw them all back, though it was hard to do it. What? Don't believe it? Well, I did, just the same. Oh, of course, there were a few that were injured so badly by the hook that it was a sin to put them back, and we ate them, but don't give it away."

The season is open now on everything but bass, and the protection of the law will be withdrawn from them after May 29.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Two street cars, the second and third in a series bearing officers and delegates of Royal Neighbors' convention, collided at Seventeenth avenue and Seventh streets, Indianapolis. Three women were more or less injured. They are Supreme Recorder Mrs. Minnie Fedder, of Peoria, Ill.; Deputy Organizer Miss Ada Lawson, of Anoka, Minn., and Mrs. J. Briggs, of Sheldon, Iowa.

Four men entered Rooney's saloon at Helper, Utah, Tuesday morning and at the point of revolvers, held up the proprietor and a number of men in the room. William Rooney was shot and slightly injured. The robbers then went through the till and the pockets of everyone present, rifled the slot machines and fled. The robbers secured between $200 and $300.

The case of the United States vs. The Federal Salt company was finally ended in the United States court by Judge De Haven, who, in rendering judgment on the case, sentenced the company to pay a fine of $100. It had pleaded guilty to a violation to a provision of the Sherman law.

Postmaster Hedges of Kossuth, Ia., was killed by an explosion of gunpowder said to be accidental, which blew up the post-office Thursday night. Hedges was alone in the building at the time. Hedges said that he was held up and robbed of post office funds several days ago. Officers of the post-office department are investigating the case.

The Freight Handlers' union of Chicago, with a membership of about 900 has made demands on every road in the city for a 25 per cent increase in wages, effective June 15. Copies of the demands were placed before the proper officers, with the request that the demands be granted or a conference arranged by June 1. Ten hours' work is to constitute a day under the new arrangement, time and a half to be paid for overtime and double pay for work done on Sundays or holidays.

There was a violent eruption of Colima volcano Wednesday night, accompanied by deafening subterranean noises, an abundant flow of lava and a heavy rain of ashes. The eruption continued all night. People in the neighborhood of the volcano are panic-stricken and are abandoning their homes.

Harry Warner, of North Yakima, Wash., shot and killed his 6-year-old stepson Thursday and then committed suicide. He shot the boy while he was asleep and then pulled the trigger of the shotgun with his toe, blowing the top of his head off. It is supposed the man was insane.

The stage running from Wallace to Boise, Idaho, was held up Thursday near the Half Way house. The passengers were relieved of all their valuables and the baggage and registered mail rifled open and rifled. It is not known how much the lone highwayman secured.

Miss Sarah Cowell, youngest daughter of Henry Cowell, the millionaire lime manufacturer of Santa Cruz, Cal., was killed Thursday by being thrown from a carriage in which she was driving, accompanied by Mrs. Frank George. Mrs. George received such injuries that she has not yet been restored to consciousness.

Governor Yates, of Illinois, vetoed the bill to increase the salaries of the judges of circuit and superior courts of Illinois from $5,000 to $8,000 per annum. The governor states that he vetoed the measure solely for economy.

Chief of Police Corbin swore out a warrant charging Lizzie McCormick with murder in the first degree and a detective left for Memphis with a warrant to bring back the woman to Cincinnati. A telegram from Chief of Police Mason, of Memphis, says Mrs. McCormick will come to Cincinnati without a warrant. At the hospital it was reported the four men were resting easily and probably will recover.

MAJ. BEACH HERE

Takes Temporary Charge of Government Engineer's Office.

Maj. Lansing R. Beach, of Detroit, Mich., who is to have temporary charge of the United States engineering offices for the Lake Superior district, arrived on the Omaha train this morning and has entered into the duties of his office.

Maj. Beach is more or less familiar with the conditions in the district, having made the trip about the lake and harbor with Capt. D. D. Gaillard when he was here on the lighthouse inspection last summer. Maj. Beach is permanently in charge of the lighthouse district which includes the lights on Lake Superior, Lake Huron and St. Mary's river.

Relative to the new work which will begin in this harbor, Maj. Beach says the largest part of it will be at the Superior entry, where a new south pier will be constructed. The work will be done by the day under the direction of the local engineer's office. At the present time all the necessary materials and equipment and the buildings are being placed at the old entry and actual labor will begin shortly.

The government has not yet obtained the small locomotive that will be necessary to the work in connection with the new pier, but Mr. Dever, United States assistant engineer, who was transferred from the Duluth to the Marquette office, has found an engine in Chicago which will answer the purpose for the new work to be done at Marquette this season.

Maj. Beach has received a letter from Capt. Potter, who will be the permanent engineer in charge of this district, stating that he expects to be in Duluth by May 31. Capt. Potter recently underwent a severe surgical operation to remove a small bone which he swallowed inadvertently and which lacerated his intestines. He has been quite sick, but is now well on the road to recovery.

Bloomer Girl Sold.

The popular little steamer Bloomer Girl is said to have been sold to a Lake Michigan navigation company to be operated in the summer excursion business on Lake Michigan.

The name of the Bloomer Girl has been recently changed to Silver Spray and it is claimed that this change of name was incidental with the change of owners.

The Silver Spray is enrolled at Milwaukee and the bill of sale will be placed on file there.

The Silver Spray was owned by Mrs. Thomas Richardson. She is a propeller of 95 gross tons, 106 feet in length, 22 feet beam and 8 feet in depth. It is said that she is to be taken to Petoskey, a summer resort on Lake Michigan where she will be used as an excursion steamer by the summer pleasure seekers.

Two Governors Meet Without the Famous Remark.

Governor S. R. Van Sant of Minnesota met ex-Governor Edward Scofield of Wisconsin in the Spalding lobby last night, when the former Wisconsin executive was over to confer about the Hines lumber cutting contract.

The governor and ex-governor chatted awhile in the center of the lobby, but it is not recorded that the famous remark, which is said to be common upon such meetings, was passed.

They shook hands and parted without an adjournment to the place that was the subject of the discussion variously ascribed to the governor of North Carolina to the governor of South Carolina or to the governor of North Dakota in speaking of the governor of South Dakota.

Lieutenant Governor Maitland of Michigan reached here this morning, but was too late to be in the gathering, as the two others had left the city.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Northern Pacific Tax Matter Not Before the County Board.

Subject Informally Discussed and a Slight Jangle Occurs.

Tax assessments matters occupied most of the attention of the board of county commissioners at the session yesterday afternoon and several resolutions were passed recommending to the state auditor that abatement be made in the assessment and taxes on local realty in several cases where the taxes exceed the assessed valuation of the property.

The resolutions were passed according to the terms of a measure which the county board adopted several weeks ago the relief of certain property in the city, where the delinquent taxes amount to much more than the real value of the property, and intending improvements are held up because of the delinquency.

Some discussion was had over the Northern Pacific Railway company's petition for abatement of taxes on certain of its city property, but the matter really did not come before the board.

At the regular meeting of the board the petition was referred to the tax committee, and it was not reported back to the board yesterday, although the members of the committee had considered the matter and were ready to make some concessions.

David Sang, alderman of the Eighth ward, and Attorney H. H. Phelps appeared before the board in behalf of the West Duluth Commercial club to protest against any abatement of the railway company's taxes, and the informal discussion which followed was quite heated at times.

Commissioner Kugler told the West Duluth representatives that the Commercial club was in small business coming to the board to protest against anybody else getting an abatement of taxes when that part of the city had recently petitioned and had been granted important concessions in the way of tax and assessment abatements.

Mr. Phelps claimed that as an American citizen who always pays his taxes when they become due he had the right to protest against the abatement of any other taxes which he deemed unjust to other taxpayers, and he intended to do so.

Commissioner Patterson closed the incident by reminding the rest that the discussion was out of order as the committee report was not before the board.

In the report, which is signed by the committee, and which is now in the hands of the city assessor to go over and make such recommendations as he sees fit, a cut is made of about 15 per cent on the railway company's assessment on property in Bay Front division. A cut of 10 per cent is made on property in blocks 7 and 8, Rice's Point, a cut of 25 per cent on property in blocks 11 and 17, Rice's Point. In the matter of the assessed valuation of the five acres which belongs to the company, near Chester creek, and which was fixed in 1900 at $10,800, and raised by the assessor to $18,000 in 1902, the committee recommended a cut to $15,000. The Northwestern Fuel dock property, on which the county board cut the assessed valuation from $112,750 to $82,000 in 1900, and on which the valuation was fixed at $136,000 in 1902, was subject to a cut by the committee, who recommended that the valuation for 1902 be $112,750, the figure the assessor fixed for 1900.

No cut was made in the assessment on property in Portland division, some of the Rice's Point property in blocks 27, 30, 32, 33, 48 and 65.

Commissioner Kugler, who is on the tax committee, claimed that some of the valuations had been raised by the city assessor over 50 per cent, instead of 25 per cent, as that official had stated.

The board ordered contracts entered into with the Kelly Hardware company and the Northern Hardware company to furnish tools and equipment needed for road work.

The commissioners appropriated $150 out of the county road fund to corduroy some of the Thompson road.

An adjournment was taken until Friday morning, 9 o'clock, May 22.

JOHN WAIT DEAD.

Former Todd County Legislator Suddenly Passes Away.

Long Prairie, Minn., May 15.—John Wait, one of the best known citizens of this place, died yesterday, aged 61. His death was a sudden blow to the community, as he was taken sick with pneumonia only two days before. Mr. Wait came here thirty-eight years ago, and was favorably known throughout the country and district and was considered one of its strongest and most honorable Republicans. He represented the district in the state legislature and served his county as register of deeds for six years.

WAR ON ENGINEERS.

National Board of Steam Navigation to Prosecute.

New York, May 15.—The national board of steam navigation has declared war on the marine engineers who have gone on a strike, and has taken steps to prosecute them for violations of the law and to secure the revocation of their licenses in every port affected by the strike.

Treasurer C. H. Boyer of the national board last night made public a resolution adopted by the board, in which the board directs its attorney to employ special counsel in every port in the United States where strike conditions prevail among the engineers, "such special counsel to prosecute every illegal action on the part of such engineers brought to the attention of this board, and take such action as may be deemed necessary for the protection of life, property and the commerce of the ports of the United States."

The board also instructed its secretary to request the members of the boards in any port where the marine engineers are now on strike to bring charges before the local inspectors of steam vessels, where the law has been violated, with a view to revoking their licenses.

Treasurer Boyer says the branches have been notified and are ready to begin the conflict.

DEERING STRIKE ENDED.

Men Return to Work In Harvester Plant.

Chicago, May 15.—The Deering plant of the International Harvester company, which has been closed for ten days on account of a strike, resumed operations today. An agreement between the employes and the company was reached last night, the officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor being largely responsible in bringing about this result. After a big open air meeting yesterday afternoon a secret vote on a proposition made by the company was taken. The vote resulted 525 in favor of resumption and 395 against. According to the agreement all striking employes are to be reinstated, but the non-union men who have been employed by the company are to be retained. With the exception of the right to organize, which is agreed to by the company, all the demands of the men, including a nine-hour day and a new wage scale, are left to arbitration by a committee consisting of representatives of the strikers of the company and of the Chicago board of arbitration.

FLEES FROM ARREST.

Reginald Vanderbilt Sails From Boston For Liverpool.

Boston, Mass., May 15.—Fearing arrest or at least detention in New York on the old Canfield gambling house charges Reginald C. Vanderbilt and his bride sailed from this city yesterday on the steamer New England for Liverpool. District Attorney Jerome has been watching for a chance to arrest Vanderbilt and force him to testify against Canfield. It was because of this that the young millionaire was married at Newport. The couple made the journey from Newport in Mr. Vanderbilts' racing automobile.

VICTIMS AT MONASTIR.

Constantinople, May 15.—Official reports place the number of Christian victims at Monastir and in the surrounding country at seventy-two.

KILLS THE JAILER.

Guthrie, O. T., May 15.—In escaping from the county jail here, W. Montgomery, an alleged bigamist, shot and killed the jailer, Jerry Emerson, and was in turn shot by Emerson's wife. He got away, the extent of his injuries not being known. Montgomery had confessed to having three wives, one married at Beatrice, Neb., one at Seward, Oklahoma, and the third in Iowa. Two of the wives appeared against him and he was in jail under indictment in awaiting trial. He had just completed his bath when he grabbed the jailer's gun and killed him. He also took Mrs. Emerson's revolver and is therefore well armed. A posse is in pursuit.

MACCABEE RALLY

Second Annual Reunion Is Held at the McKay Hotel.

Gov. Van Sant Is Present —Fine Program of Toasts.

The Maccabees at the head of the lakes celebrated their second annual reunion with a delightful banquet at the McKay hotel last night. Maccabees were present from the Duluth tents, from West Duluth, West Superior and from the neighboring range towns. It was a happy event in Maccabeedom, and the festivities did not come to a close until after 12 o'clock. The arrangements for the banquet were in the hands of a committee comprised of F. C. Prest, W. A. Putnam, Theodore King, J. B. Gellineau and M. Stem, and the details were complete in every way. The McKay hotel management outdid itself in the splendid eight course spread for the Maccabees and their guests.

Governor S. R. Van Sant, one of the late recruits of the organization, was the honored guest of the occasion, and it was a matter of general regret when he had to leave at 11 o'clock to catch the train back to the Twin Cities.

The governor came up from St. Paul on the evening train and was met at the depot by Sir Knight Commander Harry Milnes of Duluth tent, No. 1, Col. M. M. Gasser and W. W. Eutchart, at the head of a detachment of the Knights of the Uniformed Rank.

The banquet began shortly after 9 o'clock, when the doors of the prettily decorated dining room were thrown open and the sir knights marched to their places during the inspiring strains from Flaaten's orchestra.

Hon. George R. Laybourn was toastmaster and the office was in good hands. Mr. Laybourn's preliminary remarks and his introductions were along a happy vein, and he kept things moving every minute of the time. Owing to the fact that so many of the guests had to catch late trains and cars to get home, the toastmaster inaugurated the English custom at banquets, that of having the toasts between courses. The plan worked excellently.

After the invocation by Rev. D. W. Michael, Mayor T. W. Hugo extended to the visiting Maccabees a fraternal welcome. The mayor surprised the Maccabees by stating that he is one of the oldest members of the order in the state, though not now connected with it. He was a charter member of one of the Michigan tents when the order was first started in that state years ago.

Mayor Hugo spoke at some length on the benefits of fraternal organization, and declared that the better man knew his fellowman the better the world would be one. He said that while we hear so much these days of the "yellow streak" in mankind, not enough attention is paid to the "blue streak," that the condition most needed in this country is that men know each other better. He predicted that the solution of the labor problem lies in the coming of a time when there will be a better understanding and more of a feeling of fellowship between employer and employe.

C. H. Crownhart, one of the prominent West Superior Maccabees, was to have been present, but he was called away from his home city on business and did not get back in time for the event last evening. Sir Knight Albert Courtney of the West Superior Uniformed Rank of Maccabees, was deleated to respond for the visitors from across the bay, and he did so in a happy manner. Mr. Courtney expressed the friendly feeling existing between all head of the lakes Maccabees, and promised a royal welcome to the Duluth Maccabees any time they visit West Superior.

Governor Van Sant was greeted with enthusiasm as he rose to speak. His toast was "Minnesota's Fraternalities and Future," but owing to the lateness of the hour he confined his remarks largely to the fraternities. The governor said:

"I believe in fraternities. I believe that the order of the Maccabees means better citizens for this state and country. Fraternities are the greatest factors for good in this country. If there was more of the fraternal feeling between employers and employes the results would be wonderful for the good of our commonwealth.

"This order is doing a good work. I am glad that I am a member. I honor the Maccabees because their order is a patriotic one. I bid you Godspeed and trust that you may have the greatest success in the years to come.

"I can carry you your invigorating climate. You could not be idle if you wanted to for if one gets idle here he cannot keep warm.

"You have iron ore, lumber and many other great resources and industries, but better than all you have men and I am proud to be one of your number."

Just as the governor was finishing his speech he was handed a dispatch sent to The Herald stating that an amicable agreement had been reached between the Great Northern trainmen and the management and that the threatened strike had been averted. Governor Van Sant then said:

"I wish to make an announcement. I have just received news that makes me the happiest man in Minnesota tonight. The trouble between the Great Northern management and its employes has been amicably settled and there will be no strike. I am sure that you will all agree with me in the belief that a calamity has barely been averted and that the better feeling which has been brought about between the conflicting interests, resulting in concessions and the averting of a great strike is something we are heartily thankful for. If all the future trouble that may arise in this state can be brought about to so peaceable a settlement, the great future of Minnesota is assured."

The governor's announcement was received with cheers and applause as some of the Maccabees present were railroad men and it was the first information that they had of the settlement of the threatened strike.

George S. Raper, record keeper for Vermilion tent, at Two Harbors, responded to the toast "Why and How We Grow." Mr. Raper's remarks were interesting and interspersed with amusing passages for the benefit of some of his brother sir knights. Frank Beaupre gave two pleasing character sketches.

Judge J. B. Middlecoff responded to the toast, "Our Estates." His experience in the office of probate judge of the county has given him an opportunity of witnessing many interesting things in connection with the settling up of estates and some of the incidents he related last evening. He said that people think too little about their estates and the number of persons that die and leave little behind to give them heirs an idea of the amount of property they had, is surprisingly large. He remarked that the average American woman knows little about her husband's estate and oftentimes when the husband dies she has to go to his friends to find out the extent of his holdings. The judge declared that this is a wrong state of affairs and urged that every man should have a list of his property, no matter how large or how small, that his wife should know where this list is kept or it should be entrusted to his nearest friend. The judge held that by following out this plan a great deal of the trouble and litigation in settling up estates could be done away with.

County Attorney John McClintock was assigned the toast "Star of the Inland Seas," Lake Superior was the subject of his theme and he handled it eloquently. He touched on the early history of the great body of water and of succeeding epochs in its history, the early people, evidence of whom are found along the shores, of the French missionaries whose names are intimately connected with the northern country history, of the fur traders whose posts formerly lined the lake, of the cession of the Northwest to the white people by the Indians and the subsequent development.

State Commander I. N. Chellew needed no introduction to the head of the lakes Maccabees. He was among friends. Mr. Chellew responded to the toast "Our Order in Minnesota," and related many interesting statistics showing the wonderful and substantial growth of Maccabeeism in Minnesota. He said that the first tent in this state was started in Duluth with thirty-five members. This was afterward reorganized and is the present Duluth Tent No. 1, the largest in the state, with over 800 members. There are 140 Maccabee organizations in the state with a membership of over 10,000 in good standing. St. Louis county has more Maccabees than any other county in the state. The order has been increased by 11,000 new members during the last month.

REPUBLICANS DO NOT LIKE IT

Object to S. F. Fullerton's Appointment Being Credited to Duluth.

It annoys Duluth Republicans to see in all the papers announcing the appointment of Sam F. Fullerton on the game and fish commission a line crediting the appointment to Duluth.

They claim he does not live here, and that even if he did live here once upon a time, he now makes his home in St. Paul, and became he lived here once is no reason his appointment should always be credited to this city.

"Duluth has not a great deal to be grateful to the present state administration for," said a Republican politician this morning, "but there is no necessity of adding Sam Fullerton's appointment to the small list of favors, so as to pad it out and make it look larger. Mr. Fullerton's appointment is all right. I have no objection to make to it at all, except those words "of Duluth," which followed it in all the newspapers.

"He does not live in Duluth, and his appointment should not be credited to this city. Not that we expect much of anything more than we have got from the administration, but just for the looks of things I do not want to see Duluth get credit for things she does not really get. It might have the result of preventing us from getting something we really ought to have some time."

The expressions along this line have been quite general since the appointment was announced, and there can be no doubt that the Republicans of this city are not at all pleased that Mr. Fullerton's selection should have been credited to Duluth.

REFORM WAVE HITS MANKATO

Seventy-Five Saloonmen Are Cited Before the Grand Jury.

Mankato, Minn., May 15.—The saloonkeepers of this city are fighting mad over the action of County Attorney T. B. Wilson, who handed a bunch of seventy-five subpoenas to the sheriff yesterday afternoon "inviting" every bartender of the city and some of the proprietors to appear before the grand jury June 4.

The matter was kept quiet until yesterday. The saloonkeepers knew that their men had been cited to appear before the grand jury, but nothing was thought of it, as each bartender thought he was the only one called. This morning several saloonkeepers chanced to meet and upon comparing notes and calling at other places, where the amber fluid is dished out, the true condition of things was discovered.

A call at the office of the county attorney revealed nothing, as that gentleman was whistling the tune of "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," and preparing for a fishing trip to Lake Washington.

No one knows to a certainty where the county attorney intends to land in his fight against the saloon, but it is suspected that he is after bigger game than the saloonkeepers themselves. It is thought that he is after the mayor and chief of police, for allowing the saloons to violate the liquor law. When the present mayor stepped into office he called a meeting of the saloon men and brewers and it is understood that he made known to them that they could run on Sundays, excepting between the hours of 10 and 12 in the forenoon. That these instructions were given is evident from the fact that the saloons have observed the hurs mentioned and have kept side and rear doors open the balance of the day and a good part of the night, without any effort being made by the authorities to close them up.

On top of this the present chief of police, Daniel T. Bowen, handed his resignation to Mayor Taylor, which was accepted instanter. The mayor has given it out that he will appoint John W. Donohue at the meeting of the council Friday night.

The present mayor has been in office only about a month and it may be that the grand jury investigation is instigated at the instance of some of the followers of his late opponent, who are still sore over their defeat.

IN JAIL FOR MONTHS

Albert Swenson Must Lie There Until Next September.

No Calling of a Grand Jury Until the Fall.

Idleness in the county jail until next September with three eleven cent meals a day, is the lot of Albert Swenson.

He was bound over to the next grand jury this morning and the next grand jury does not convene for four months. When it does convene he may be indicted and he may not. If he is he will be tried, if he is not he will be discharged, but at any rate Swenson has a long wait in jail before justice takes the next step in his case.

He will not be allowed to work for the reason that the grand jury prisoners are not eligible to a membership in that exclusive athletic organization known as the "chain-gang."

The man was charged with stealing $155 from two roommates—John Brennan and Edward Anderson. The trio were lodging in a Lake avenue house and Swenson disappeared mysteriously with $125 belonging to Anderson and $50 belonging to Brennan.

He informed the police when arrested that he simply took the money for safe keeping, but he could only produce $25.50 and the supposition is that he spent the remainder adding to the gaiety of the Bowery.

Friends of the Laybourn bill which passed at the last session of the legislature, say that guilty or not guilty of the charge, Swenson's case presents a strong argument in favor of the abolition of the grand jury system. They hold that if he is guilty he should not be an expense to the county until September, but without the grand jury system he could be tried and sentenced without further delay. If not guilty, they argue it is not right to keep an innocent man in jail all that time.

The Laybourn bill provides for a constitutional amendment giving the legislature authority to abolish the grand jury system. This amendment will not be voted on till a year from next November, and if adopted, it will be up to the next regular session of the legislature to either retain or abolish it.

Over in West Superior the judgment of the judge of the municipal court is deemed better than that of a grand jury of private citizens in determining whether or not there is reason to believe a person guilty of a crime, and in Wisconsin persons have been arrested for a crime in the morning and, entering pleas of guilty, were sentenced by the superior court and on their way to prison within twenty-four hours after committing the crime, but even if Albert Swenson should plead guilty today his case could not be acted on till next September.

This evening the formal opening of the Young Women's Christian association will take place at their rooms in the Bradley building, at the corner of First avenue west and Superior street. All interested in the work of the association are invited to call this evening and inspect the rooms, which are beautifully furnished and are now in excellent running order. An informal musical program will be given and dainty refreshments will be served by the members of the association. The board of directors, together with the secretary and physical director, have worked long and faithfully to bring the association to the present splendid condition and the opportunity of seeing the work in such a successful way will no doubt be appreciated by many.

Changes His Plea.

Charles C. Harris, who was indicted on the charge of forgery in the second degree, and who pleaded not guilty the other day, has withdrawn his former plea and entered a plea of guilty. He will be sentenced later. Harris attempted to pass a bogus check on David Franktort, a Bowery merchant. His only excuse was that he needed the money. Harris is a mere boy and claims to have come here from the Pacific coast searching for work on one of the passenger boats.

TIMBER SALE IN DECEMBER

Lists of Chippewa Reservation Lands Practically Made Up.

Washington, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Richards, commissioner of the land office, returned to Washington from Cass Lake last night. It was said at the department today that the lists of lands from which the timber is to be sold in the Chippewa country are practically now made up and will be advertised June 1, and the sale will take place Dec. 1.

THE MEDICAL SOCIETY.

Dr. Allen of Cloquet Discusses County Practitioner.

The St. Louis County Medical society met last evening and eighteen members were present. Dr. Allen of Cloquet, read a paper entitled "The Country Practitioner." It was a comparison of the advantages under which the city physician works as compared with the country physician. The former has access to all of the finest of appliances, large drug stores from which to get his medicines and finely equipped hospitals, while the country man has only a small drug store, such appliances as he may afford to buy himself and travels miles to his patients, often using only a rough table for an operating table. He thought, however, that generally speaking the country physician has a wider experience than that of a man in a city of any great size.

DOING FAST WORK

Duluth Ball Team Shows Up Well In Its Practice.

After tomorrow the Duluth ball team will not be seen here again until June 1.

The players went through their last home practice today and are putting up a sensationally fast game.

Sunday at Stillwater the men will be up against an undefeated independent professional aggregation that will give them a thorough try-out.

From Stillwater the team goes direct to Fargo where it will open the Northern league season next Wednesday and play a series of four games.

From Fargo to Winnipeg is the next jump and after a three game series with the champions, Duluth will go to Grand Forks for four games, including the Decoration day's event.

On June 1 the team will open the season in Duluth with Winnipeg and then play all the teams of the circuit on the home grounds before another invasion of the Red River valley and Canada. During the season the team will play more than fifty games on the home grounds.

Capt. Lambert will take a large and lively bunch to Stillwater. The team, upon leaving will look something like this:

Catcher	Kline
Catcher	Leonard
Pitcher	Mueller
Pitcher	Gehring
First base	Lambert
Second base	Whalen or Specht
Short stop	Shepard
Third base	Olmstead
Center field	Clark

Mueller arrived from Milwaukee this morning and in reporting for duty said he was ready to begin work any time. The big pitcher is in fine condition.

Whalen, the new second baseman will report here some time this evening. He has been playing down in Indiana and is reported to be doing better than last year. His batting average in the Northern league last season was .276.

Specht, the infielder recommended by Wilmot has been showing up well in practice out at Oneota Park.

Looks as if Duluth got away the best of it in that Mueller-Deller trade. Deller pitched for Lidgerwood Wednesday and Fargo landed on him for eighteen hits winning the game 13 to 1.

Volz will probably pitch the opening game at Fargo for Duluth and it is reported that either Foulkes or Julian will twirl for Fargo.

One of the most enthusiastic baseball fans in the city has made a bet of $25 that Duluth wins from Fargo next Saturday.

Grand Forks defeated York by a score of 9 to 2 in a practice game.

The game between Superior's league team and Duluth high school will take quite a gathering of fans across the bay tomorrow afternoon. Tim Keefe is said to be on the verge of nervous prostration for fear the high school boys will trim up his hard-hitting bunch like they did the Duluth candidates last Saturday.

Kennelly, the Duluth first baseman, is playing a great game for Rockford, but the local management would appreciate his playing more if he would report here for duty.

The first game of the City Wholesale league will be played tomorrow between the F. A. Patrick and Gowan-Peyton-Twohy teams.

It adds spice to dreary life, encourages the human heart, lifts one out of despair, breathes new life and confidence. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. S. F. BOYCE.

DISTURBED MARKET

Cars of Strawberries In Heated Condition Unsettled Things.

Eggs Firm In Price and Butter Is Somewhat Weaker.

Three carloads of strawberries arriving in Duluth in a heated condition, due to the ice in the refrigerator cars having been exhausted, caused considerable fluctuation in the market. It was necessary to get rid of the berries for whatever the dealers would offer, and the consequence was that the market during the past few days has been very irregular. Large shipments of fresh berries are being received each day and the season promises to be an excellent one.

The manner in which eggs remain at the rather high figure to which they jumped after Easter has been a surprise to many of the dealers. A drop has been expected and predicted for some weeks past, but they remain very firm at 15 cents per dozen.

Butter is weaker this week and a slight drop in the price of creamery prints is reported. They are now selling at 23 and 24 cents per pound. The shipments of grass butter are still very small, but it will be coming freely after the first of June. A further drop in price is predicted by the dealers for the coming week. Butter is rather low for this season of the year, the price being somewhat below what was asked at this season last year.

The week has been an exceptionally busy one among the fruit and produce dealers. The fine weather has had a good effect on the trade and the ranges and the city retailers are buying very freely.

Among the poultry dealers the week has been a rather dull one on account of the small shipments of poultry which are being received. Prices remain unchanged from last week. There has been a good demand from retailers on the range for fresh poultry, but the supply has not been equal to it. The majority of the poultry dealers, however, also handle eggs and butter and the free manner in which these commodities are moving was a redeeming feature in the week's trade.

No change in ment prices has been noted during the past week. The prices are very high and very firm. Mutton is quoted at 10 cents, lamb at 12, dressed beef at 7 and 8 and pork loins at 12. The demand for meats during the past week has been exceptional and every packing house in the city reports an excellent week's trade. The demand from the range towns has been very heavy and the city retailers are also buying freely.

ONE-SIXTH OF ALL

Amount of Railroad Property In City Exempt From Taxation.

In Two Years $18,434 Paid For Railroad Property Improvements.

Taxpayers of Duluth have paid out $18,434 paving streets and building sidewalks for the benefit of railroad property in less than two years.

Such improvements benefiting the property of an individual are assessed and paid for by the property owners, but under the gross earnings law the property of railroad corporations is exempt from local taxation, and the local property owners not only pay for their own improvements but help pay for improvements which enhance the value of the big transportation corporations.

During the year of 1901 citizens paid for improvements benefiting railroads the sum of $8517 and during the year of 1902 the sum of $9917 was expended in like manner.

At present there are twenty-two and a half miles of street within the city fronting on railroad property, and therefore non-assessable for street paving or sidewalk building.

There are 487 acres of land within the city limits that could not be assessed for sewer purposes for the reason that it is owned and used for railroad purposes.

Briefly, railroad property within the corporate limits, exempt from all local taxation, is valued at $3,500,000 as against $21,800,000, the value of all real estate taxable, one-sixth of the whole.

These figures were prepared by city officers for the benefit of a committee from the West Duluth Commercial club, which is fighting a proposed reduction on taxes on railroad property not now used exclusively for railroad purposes and therefore subject to taxation the same as other property.

While there has been a great deal of talk as to the injustice of the gross earnings law in its effect on municipal assessments, this is the first time that the real figures have been made public. It is claimed in the next two years that the citizens will spend about $20,000 paying for improvements to railroad property.

THE STAGE.

"The Fatal Wedding" is a melodrama of the soul-rending, heart-gripping type from which the audience emerges in an exhausted, bedraggled condition with emotions worn to a frazzle.

The company is worthy of a better play. Little Lillian Rosewood as Jessie made a distinct hit with the audience. She had an exceedingly long and difficult part and played in a manner that would do credit to the older member of the company. Miss Mary Conden as Cora Williams was a very villainous villain and Miss Rosalie De Vaux a most heroic heroine. The male members of the troupe were good and the minor roles were all in competent hands. The audience was very generous in its applause and the company was compelled to answer twelfth curtain calls at the end of the fourth act.

"The Fatal Wedding" will be repeated this evening.

The Ferris Comedians at the Metropolitan last evening offered in "His Society Wife" one of the prettiest, if not the most artistic plays they have as yet presented. Its story is of the mistakes of husband and wife, one seeking the business world for all of his enjoyment, thinking that his money could supply his absence at home, the other trying to bury her disappointment and sorrow in the whirl of society; until the strongest tie that held them together, was broken—the death of their child, but this brought together at the last moment by her memories and those of bygone days of happiness.

As the husband, Douglas Winthrope, Gus Forbes did very good work; Harry Langdon as that good-hearted old bachelor, Buxton Scott, was exceedingly clever, Albert Perrie gave a good portrayal of Herbert; Fred Clarke was good in the character of Dr. Millbank; and William Lang made most of James. Miss Carrington was warmly received in the character of Constance, the poor, lonesome wife and jealous; Miss O'Neil made the character of Mrs. Dick an ideal one of a society woman; Miss Batlo was sweet blind sister Edith, and Miss Haines was a true mother.

The vaudeville contingent presented some clever specialties which will be repeated the remainder of the week.

A performance tonight, a matinee tomorrow afternoon and performance tomorrow night will conclude this bill.

There are said to be more laughs to the minute in "Are You a Mason?" which comes to the Lyceum Saturday evening, than in any comedy that has been seen on the stage in a long time. Certain it is that wherever presented its success as a mirth-producer has been quick and emphatic. The major portion of the fun is created by two pseudo Masons, John C. Hlee and Thomas A. Wise; and there will be no straight faces in the audience after these two comedians get to work deceiving the others, and themselves most of all. So great is the fun created by this merry comedy that it is said to convulse with merriment even the most captious and stolid playgoers.

The famous hypnotists, the Flints, will again visit Duluth appearing at the Lyceum al lof next week. Mr. Flint is the leading hypnotist in the world. Mrs. Flint, the only successful lady hypnotist, is a charming young lady who has made hypnotism a study. Her work is delicate, and she simply suggests to the volunteers. A subject will sell newspapers or black boots in the audience, or peddle fish or hunt, using a broomstick as a gun. In short every vagary that can be conceived by the human brain, these hypnotised subjects accept and gravely act upon. The whole entertainment is uproariously funny and very entertaining.

WOULD ADVANCE HEARING

Of Northern Securities Company Before Supreme Court.

Washington, May 15.—Authoritative announcement was made yesterday of the intention of the attorney general to enter a motion in the Northern Securities case, the appeal in which was docketed recently in that court. It is probable the court will grant the motion, but it is not likely the court will take action on the motion before the sitting in June, when the court will be in session for the last time during the present term. Hence there is no possibility for the argument of the case before the court convenes on Oct. 1.

As unassigned cases are never heard during the first week of a term, the earliest probable date for the hearing is Oct. 19.

TERRIBLE FALL ENDS HIS LIFE

William Wilson Drops From a High Point on Coal Docks.

William Wilson, of 18 Thirty-first avenue west, was killed last evening, falling from the end hatchway rigging of the Hecla coal dock and striking on his head. He bounded off into the water, but the body was recovered shortly after the accident.

Mr. Wilson was working up in the coal hoisting apparatus many feet above the dock. He apparently lost his footing and fell head first, striking the dock with such force that the body rebounded several feet before spashing into the water.

Mr. Wilson was a man of family and is survived by a wife and four children.

The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of C. O. Nelson, in the West End.

OLDEST ODD FELLOW.

Has Been Member For Over Sixty Years.

Bethel, Conn., May 15.—The oldest Odd Fellow in the United States lives here. He is John McDowell, 96 years of age on Feb. 15. He is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Ashley Spring of Geneva, O., a well-known Rebekah.

Mr. McDowell joined Samaritan Lodge No. 7, I. O. O. F., at Danbury, Conn., in June, 1838, and he is still a member of that lodge. He held the office of Noble Grand the highest in the order, in 1846, only three years after he became an Odd Fellow.

He is rather deaf, but his sight is good for a man of his years. He has been treasurer of the Hat Makers' society for many years and not long since they presented him with five twenty-dollar gold pieces.

SIXTEEN YEARS OF CATARRH

Well Known Massachusetts Woman Cured By Hyomei.

How to cure catarrh has been a problem in medicine for many years that was not solved until the discovery of Hyomei. This remarkable treatment makes it possible for any one to breathe an air at home which is almost identical with that of the Adirondacks, the Carolinas or other health resorts where the air is impregnated with healing balsams from health giving trees and plants.

Simply place a little Hyomei in the inhaler, which comes with every outfit, breathe it occasionally during the day and benefit will be seen after its use for only two or three times, while perseverance for a few days or weeks will effect a complete cure of even the worst case of catarrh.

Mrs. Elvira E. A. Gibson, who holds a responsible position in the great dry goods store of Jordan, Marsh & Co., of Boston, wrote in April: "I had catarrh for twenty years, and the last ten years (all of which time has been passed in this great establishment) I suffered fearfully. One half dozen handkerchiefs per day would be used. It extended to my throat; the use of my tongue was badly affected. I constantly kept in my mouth cardamom seeds, or some such breath purifier. I could not sleep with my mouth closed. I began using Hyomei in December and in two weeks I was entirely—and now, after four months and no return of the disease, I can say, permanently—cured. The head of this firm, Mr. Jordan, endorses this statement."

S. F. Boyce has sold hundreds of Hyomei outfits, consisting of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei, and with every purchase has given his personal guarantee to refund the money if Hyomei did not cure. He will sell the treatment on that plan and every catarrh sufferer ought to take advantage of his fair proposition.

ATHLETIC CARNIVAL

High School Men Appear Tonight—Senior Boys Give Dance.

High school athletes will give their long-expected athletic carnival at the High School Assembly hall this evening. About fifty athletes from the High School Athletic association, which will receive the benefit of the entertainment, have been in training for the last month.

Many interesting evolutions have been planned and prepared by Professor Alletzhauser. Some of these have never been seen in Duluth. There will be living pyramids, ladder pyramids, buck vaulting, long horse and other apparatus work.

Every effort has been made to perfect the students in these maneuvers. Members of several of the city grade schools will take part in the entertainment with illuminated club-swinging, wand drills and other exercises.

The entertainment is the first of its kind that has ever been given by the high school men, and a large attendance is expected. The High School Athletic association, which will receive the benefit of the performance, has been in debt since last fall's football season, and it is hoped that this entertainment will lift it out of its financial difficulty.

Strife between the young men and young women of the high school senior class, on account of a senior ball which the boys desired and the girls did not, has been peaceably settled. Instead of giving their stag party, as they at first declared an intention of doing, the young men will give a dance at Harmonie hall Saturday evening, and all of the girls are invited.

Joy over this amicable settlement and the first-class entertainment which the young men declare that they will give is felt by all concerned.

The dance is not a regular class affair but is given by the young men of the class to the girls as an honor. It is appreciated.

A little early riser—DeWitt's Little Early Risers are famous little pills that cure, giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach and liver that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. Sold by Max Wirth.

MURDERS DONE WITH LARIAT

In the Mojave Desert Attributed to "The Strangler."

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—There is a mysterious murderer in the Mojave desert. He is known as "The Strangler," for his victims all bear the mark of a rope or cord about the neck. Who or what he is no man can say, for none have seen him and lived to tell the tale. Within forty days eleven of his victims have been found.

Jack Doyle, the latest, was known to have considerable money. This was missing, as was also his watch, when his body was found. A man named Harmon started across the desert three weeks ago to examine some mineral claims. He had several hundred dollars with him to buy the claims if they proved to be satisfactory. He was found with the marks of the cord about his neck, and his money was missing. One or two others of the victims were known to carry sums of money when they rode out into the desert, but upon their bodies when found nothing of value was discovered. Robbery is the plain object of the strangler. The method is much like that of the now extinct Thug Castle in India.

In all instances but one, the victims have gone out alone. A little more than five weeks ago John Carmen and Andrew Frotham rode away from San Bernardino together. They were starting on a prospecting tour and were therefore not expected back at any definite time. Three men returning from the mines last week found their bodies side by side twenty-five miles from Dagget. The peculiar atmosphere—dry and hot—preserves the bodies of men who meet death in the desert. The two bodies were dried up like mummies.

MORMON PERMITS REVOKED.

New York, May 15.—Mayor Low has stopped the preaching of Mormonism in the streets of the city. All permits formerly issued to Mormon elders to preach in the streets have been revoked, and no more will be issued. Several months ago a number of Mormons came to the city and obtained such permits. The elders were not known as Mormons when they obtained the permits, but a short time ago some one complained to the mayor against the preaching of Mormonism in the streets. An investigation was made and the permits revoked.

EDUCATING WORKERS.

The education of children who work presents a problem that interests every educator, especially those in the factory cities. Numerous laws have been enacted by various states to provide a certain amount of school attendance for the young worker, but they have not always proved effective. An experiment has been tried in Columbus, Ga., that has proved successful and which might well be tried in other cities. The project was evolved by Professor Gibson, the superintendent of schools of that city. In September, 1901, Mr. Gibson was ready to open his school. An old tenement-house in the heart of the most thickly populated factory district of the town, had been rented, and much quiet emptying, cleaning, and refilling done within; but very slight changes were made in its exterior, as the emphasizing of differences was to be avoided at first. Teachers of the highest qualifications in mind, heart, and specialized training, had been obtained, and were on the ground weeks before the actual opening. Nearly 150 children have been enrolled as pupils since that unpropitious-seeming autumn morning, and they are as regular in attendance as their circumstances will allow. It is not probable that ten of these could have been induced to attend the ordinary city schools. Of both sexes, they range in years from 5 to 14; but very few exceed 11 or 12, as the factory absorbs most of them beyond this limit. Fortunately, there are night classes where all up to the age of 20 find free admission and welcome.

The kindergarten is admirably equipped, and has a very full attendance. All girls over 6 years take cooking, sewing, laundry and general house-cleaning lessons. Each department is equipped simply, but in perfect taste, with nothing lacking for complete training. The teachers live in the school, and their own immaculate and well-fitted kitchen is used for the cooking classes; their tasteful chambers afford opportunity for lessons in house-cleaning, arranging, and ordering, and their artistic little dining-room is at the disposal of a class when the serving of a meal is to be taught. All the boys work at times in the shop, where simple carpentering is taught to each, and work demanding advancing degrees of skill is given to those who show proficiency. The pupils of both sexes are taught gardening, the beginnings of pottery, basketry, hat-making, weaving, and other forms of manual training. You can see at once how much easier life will be for them, even the plainest industrial life, than it was for their fathers and mothers.

The success of this school has been wonderful. The children like it, and that is all that is necessary to secure their attendance. The subject should be given attention in every factory town where similar conditions exist.

NAVY YARD TROUBLES.

The chances of the Brooklyn navy yard making a better showing on the construction of the battleship Connecticut than the private yards on the building of the sister ship, are fast disappearing. The fights with the labor unions are what are knocking out the yards. Organized labor has balked at the piece work scheme of the department, by which it was hoped to decrease the net cost of the battleship. Admiral Bowles proposed some months ago to pay certain of the men engaged on the Connecticut according to the amount of work they performed. He looked thoroughly into the matter, adjusted a scale of wages, conferred with the treasury department and found that accounting officers there would approve the plan, and finally submitted the completed project to the department for adoption. The matter was widely advertised in the newspapers at the time and Acting Secretary Dowling purposely waited a couple of weeks to see if the men at the yard or the labor unions would object to it. Nothing was heard, however, to indicate that the piece-work plan was objectionable to either the navy yard men or to the outside organizations and it was approved and put in effect.

Then the hitch occurred. Sixteen employes were put to work at riveting on a basis of pay that would enable the industrious ones to earn considerably more than the former per diem pay. The sixteen men promptly quit work and served notice on Constructor Capps that they would not remain in the shops if they were kept on piece-work. Mr. Capps appealed to Admiral Bowles for instructions. The latter foresaw trouble, and decided that the only thing to do was to take a firm stand and not allow the unions to run his department. He directed Mr. Capps to inform all men who objected to work on the piece plan that they would be discharged and their places filled with others. The sixteen riveters held out and were thereupon discharged. The same trouble cropped out in other parts of the yard, the result being that there have been a great many dismissals for refusal to go on piece work. Admiral Bowles has now been notified that the labor unions of Brooklyn have adopted a rule that any member of their organizations who accepts piece work at the navy yard will be fined $50.

Admiral Bowles is not alarmed over the situation, but says that he will find plenty of men who will work on the terms offered by the government. As fast as men are dismissed for declining piece work he applies to the eligible register for more candidates, and so far has secured all the men he required. After this source is exhausted he will advertise for men if necessary. It was the intention of the department to have practically all the riveting and caulking on the Connecticut done by piece work. The rejection of this scheme has caused some little embarrassment, but Admiral Bowles says that it has not delayed work on the Connecticut and it will not seriously interfere with progress on that ship.

It would seem as though these troubles ought to be ended. Working for Uncle Sam is considered the best of all positions and it does not seem as though there should be any controversy. However, the men may come to their senses later, perhaps when it is too late.

A PEACEABLE OUTCOME.

The threatened strike of the trainmen employed on the Great Northern railway system has been averted. This is pleasing news to the people of the whole Northwest, and especially so to the communities along the line of the Great Northern road, as a strike of the magnitude threatened would have had a very serious effect on the general public, even to a greater degree than upon the railroad and its employes. Until about twenty-four hours previous to the signing of the agreement which terminated the controversy between the road and the trainmen, the outlook for a peaceable settlement of the trouble was very dark. Negotiations had actually been broken off and both sides were getting ready for the expected strike, when a number of the business men of the Twin Cities, including some of the largest shippers in the Northwest, fearful of the effect of a prolonged and bitter strike on their business interests, decided to intervene and endeavor to secure a peaceable ending of the trouble. Their overtures wre favorably received by both sides. While sticking firmly to their own views of the disputed point of "double-headers"—the chief, and in fact, the only bone of contention—both the railroad company and the representatives of the trainmen were ready to discuss the matter with the business men in preference to fighting out the question by a strike. The result was that each side was induced to make some concessions and a compromise was effected that is now regarded as satisfactory by all concerned.

The trainmen will receive an increase of wages averaging 15 per cent and dating from March 1 last, and the yardmen will get the Chicago scale, which is 3 cents an hour higher than the St. Paul scale. These increases were granted by the Great Northern when first presented, and they were never in dispute. The company conceded that new men be given increased wages after one year's service instead of five, as originally proposed. The trainmen modified their demands on the double-header question. They had insisted that all double-headers be abolished, or the train crews working on them be given double pay. The road had offered to confine double-heading to 3 per cent of the gross mileage, but this was rejected by the men. The agreement provides that east of Minot, the road may run one-half of 1 per cent of gross mileage as double headers, while on the mountain divisions, west of Minot, 2,3 per cent of the gross mileage can be double-headed, but helper engines must be included when computing the percentage. The trainmen agree never to raise any question as to the number of cars on double-headers.

This seems to be an eminently fair settlement and will probably cause a lasting peace between the railroad and its employes, while the people of the Northwest will rejoice because the calamity of a strike has been avoided.

ALASKA GOLD MINES.

The officials of the geological survey at Washington are confident from what explorations have been made in Alaska, that there are many unknown fields which contain gold, copper, coal and petroleum, and they propose to locate them as they say for the benefit of the people. These officials believe that the richest gold mines that have been worked in Alaska have reached their maximum output, and that many of the others are nearing exhaustion. The latter is particularly the case in regard to the mines at Cape Nome. It is said that all the gold taken out at Cape Nome has been secured by placer mining, and that this can last but a few years more at the best. The Klondike mines, which are the most valuable of all those in operation in Alaska, are said to have touched their maximum output and will decline in value. These facts are being taken into consideration by the government officials, who propose to maintain public interest in Alaska and promote its commercial importance by opening up new fields for gold prospectors.

They also expect to gather enough facts about the deposits of coal and petroleum to induce capital to invest in these industries. Two parties will devote all their time to getting additional facts in regard to the placer mines along the section occupied by Nome. It is only a matter of time before this business will be ended unless veins are discovered, of which none have yet been located. The men will give careful consideration to means for promoting the development of mines that appear now to be worked out. They will ascertain how the gold occurs, where it comes from and any other facts that may tend to prolong the life of this industry at Nome.

There are bright prospects for the future of the region on the Tanauna river, near the mouth of the Chena, about 250 miles from the Yukon. There is every reason to believe that rich and valuable deposits of gold are to be found there, and that it is the next point to which fortune hunters will rush. In fact, it is known that gold exists there and it is proposed to find out this summer in what quantities it occurs and where it is located. There has been a little prospecting in that district, but it has been carried on in an indifferent and careless manner. One of the best points about this region is that it is within comparatively easy reaching distance. It is possible to reach it by rail and steamer, as it is within twenty miles of steamboat navigation.

Geologists believe there is a great future for gold in Alaska and will try to demonstrate it. The only trouble, as far as the general public is concerned, is they will stand but little show of benefit. Any information obtained will first be known by capitalists and they will reap results.

The Superior grain inspection bill has been defeated again in the Wisconsin senate and is now dead and buried. The people of Superior who backed the measure made a hard fight, and despite the weakness of their cause, nearly won out. The passage of the bill would have caused much trouble to the grain trade, and Superior would have been injured instead of being benefited.

A Chicago millionaire has offered $1,000,000 for an ideal servant girl. But even if he finds one, he will not solve the servant problem. One ideal girl will not be enough to go round.

A philanthropist has anonymously given $3,000,000 for the rebuilding of a London hospital. Philanthropists who give such large amounts are seldom so modest as to conceal their identity.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Edward F. Bishop, of Port Arthur, arrived in the city this morning with a grievance against railroads, because he would not have had to experience a tour around through Winnipeg, had the Port Arthur, Duluth & Western road been finished from Gunflint to Ely.

"We have a crying grievance on that score," said Mr. Bishop, who is most extremely English in mannerism and general appearance, but who claims to be a Mexican or an Irishman, or something of the kind, "and it is only a matter of forty-five or fifty miles of construction that is necessary to complete the line that will give us a direct connection with Duluth.

"When the line is done it will give us a route to Duluth of about 250 miles, an easy run in this part of the country, and it would be a valuable thing for both cities, for there are a great many common interests between the two cities, which could be developed by such connection.

"The Ogilvie Milling company, of Winnipeg, is on the verge of putting up elevators and mills at Fort William, and are only waiting the commencement of actual labor, until the enabling act gets out of the hands of parliament. The company is asking for certain abatement of taxes and other special privilege concessions, which can be granted under that act, and it will make no moves until the provisions are passed. That is one of the big improvements due at Fort William and Port Arthur.

"The Canadian Northern is completing some immense steel docks at Port Arthur, with which they expect to handle all the steel for the western country. The road has put on two new trains to Winnipeg, with Pullman cars and other modern equipment, which makes it some easier to live in that part of the universe. The new offices of the company are being furnished and will be occupied a very short time now.

"Navigation has been hindered in Nepigon bay by ice as late as the day before yesterday.

"It is always far behind, and we use that route, too. I think the last of the ice is out now, however."

Lieutenant Governor Alex Maitland, of the Republic Iron & Steel company, at Negaunee arrived at Duluth this morning and took quarters at the Spalding hotel for a few hours. He will go to Chicago this afternoon. Mr. Maitland came directly from home over the South Shore, and will not visit the range this trip.

Price McKinney, of the Corrigan-McKinney company, of Cleveland, arrived in Duluth last night in a special car, of the Northwestern road from Crystal Falls, Mich., where he inspected his company's properties. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. S. Burke and E. S. Burke, Jr., also of Cleveland, and the party registered at the Spalding hotel. The car will be taken up on the range sometime today and a visit will be paid to some of the company's mines in the vicinity of Hibbing.

C. W. Wolf, the black diamond agent, returned from a trip to near Grand Rapids last evening. He says the Cloquet river for miles is almost as solid as a well built floor, the mass of logs in it being so great. At several places log jams have occurred and gorges of rugged picturesqueness and some seriousness resulted. The river has never been so heavily piled with logs, as this spring, it is said.

United States Special Internal Revenue Agent F. Lawrence, is a guest at the St. Louis hotel. He is in the city on official business of a routine nature.

Mining men who have visited the property of the Fletcher Bros., near the Diamond mine, southwest of Nashwauk, report that three churn drills and one diamond drill, are working on the property now.

Results from the explorations so far are meager, but the proprietors say they have struck a large body of ore by earlier explorations, which is merchantable in its quality, and it is the prospect of locating an extension of this that has caused the further explorations. The mine will not be ready to ship, at any rate, until the Great Northern branch is put in, and that will hardly be this summer, as it is not expected the line will be constructed any farther than the Arcturus mine before the snow flies.

BOUNDARIES OF RESERVE

First Selection By Forestry Bureau on Chippewa Reservation.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene S. Bruce, lumberman of the bureau of forestry, when seen this morning in reference to the boundary of the national forestry reserve, gave out the following official statement: "The territory which will be included in the first selection by the bureau of forestry to constitute the national forest reserve on the ceded Chippewa reservation includes the following described territory: In range 29, the northerly portion of township 144, all of township 145, all of township 146, and the south half of township 147. In range 30, the northerly part of township 144, all of township 145, and a portion of 146. In range 31, the north half of township 144 and township 145. In range 32, township 145 and that portion of township 146 lying north of Steamboat lake, in the Indian reservation. This territory will be taken practically solid, with the exception of the Indian allotments. The ten sections are included under these boundaries and the map showing the exact location will be exhibited later."

Mr. Bruce and his men went into camp on the reserve to continue their work. The reserve takes in the town of Cass Lake and the surrounding country.

JUDSON HARMON

Is Favored By Cleveland For the Presidency.

Put-in-Bay, Ohio, May 15.—In the fishing party here, of which Grover Cleveland is a member, are a number of prominent Kentucky politicians and among them the story is afloat that Cleveland has intimated that he favors Judson Harmon, of Cincinnati, as the next Democratic presidential nominee. According to their statement the present plan is to foster with great care the growing sentiment in favor of the ex-president until just before the convention. At that time Cleveland will make a statement positively declining the nomination and will announce his preference for Harmon.

Mr. Harmon said: "I cannot make a statement at this time further than that just before a presidential year friends of prominent men are bound to trot them out."

HORRIBLE DEED

Of Young German Girl on Idaho Ranch.

Spokane, Wash., May 15.—Abaton Jacobs, a young German servant girl on a ranch near Genesse, Idaho, gave birth to an illegitimate child several days ago and, it is said, buried the infant while it was still alive.

The deed was committed while Mrs. Payne, wife of Justice of the Peace Payne, who operates the ranch, was out in a field. Upon returning, Mrs. Payne forced a confession from the girl, and the latter dug up the infant from behind the outhouse, its naked little foot sticking out of the soft earth. It was still alive, but it is reported it afterwards died of a bowel complaint. An investigation is in progress.

GRAIN INSPECTION BILL

Is Finally Killed By the Wisconsin Senate.

Madison, Wis., May 15.—The Superior grain inspection bill which was passed by the assembly a few days ago, came to a vote in the senate last evening and was defeated by 17 to 16—the same vote as that by which the previous inspection bill was killed. This ends the fight over the question for the present session at least.

SCHEMING IN IOWA

Cummins and Blythe Said to Be After Senatorships.

Belief That Allison Will Resign In the Near Future.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 15.—A good deal more interest is aroused here over the question whether Governor Cummins and J. W. Blythe have reached an understanding on the senatorial question than on anything pertaining to the "Iowa idea." If the politicians could penetrate into the facts of the relations between Cummins and Blythe on the senatorship, they would rest easy on the Iowa idea.

There can be no doubt there will be some concessions on both sides as to the language of the Iowa state platform this year. This fact, however, does not imply there has been anything like recanting on the part of either the tariff revisionists or the "stand-patters." The necessity of a cessation of the factional strife that has been going on here for years, and of which the tariff discussion has been merely a part, has undoubtedly been felt by the president and the politicians interested in his renomination. Governor Cummins unquestionably talked over this when he was called to Washington by the president several months ago. He undoubtedly expressed his willingness to abandon the language of the Cedar Rapids platform if necessary. Further than that he did not go, in the opinion of his closest advisers here, and none of them believes for a moment that the governor has been guilty of double dealing or that he made any further concessions as to the policy of the language of the platform of last year without a sacrifice of the principles for which he has all along contended.

What the politicians here are asking themselves is, if Cummins and Blythe have got together on the state platform, have they not found a common ground to stand on in reference to the United States senatorships from this state? There is a belief here that the time is not far distant when Senator Allison will resign. Indeed, it is the belief of well-posted politicians that the senator will be satisfied when he has served two years of his seventh term in the senate. This would give him one of the longest, if not the longest, careers in the senate on record and would satisfy his ambition. The belief is gaining ground that Senator Allison will resign and that it is with a foreknowledge of this that Cummins and Blythe have been planning and have been in conference with Allison. In fact, not one but several conferences have been held, and it was only by chance that news of the most recent conference leaked out.

It is said that the resignation of Allison is the key to the whole situation. The belief is that Cummins is slated to succeed Allison and that Blythe is intended to succeed Dolliver when the latters' term ends in 1907. Many things point in the direction of an understanding between Cummins and Blythe on the senatorial situation. In the first place, it is pointed out as significant that just three men in Iowa have been conspicuous in the harmony conferences. These are Allison, Cummins and Blythe. Dolliver has not been called in. Shaw has been conspicuous by his absence. George D. Perkins was consulted, it is true, but largely because of the desire to find a suitable man for the temporary chairmanship. It is not believed here that any body of men in Iowa can guarantee to Mr. Perkins the delivery of the governorship of Iowa, and there is great skepticism here on the stories to that effect that have been freely peddled.

Formerly Blythe was wont to speak slightingly of Cummins, but now he has taken to voicing much admiration for the governor to his friends and to making the confession that until recently he never thoroughly knew him. Down on the reservation, along the "Q" lines, where the mortal enemies of Cummins have been supposed to reside, they have recently been pronounced in their expression of friendship for the governor, and his reception when he crossed the state recently with the president was marvelled at.

Then, too, the governor showed recently a disposition to forgive and forget in the recent appointment of Representative Charles J. Wilson, of Washington, on his staff. Wilson is a good fellow, it is true, but he has also been one of Blythe's righthand men and was an ardent Gear supporter. These are but a few of the surface indications of the bridging over of the chasm.

RESTORED TO LIFE.

A New York Physician Resuscitates a Dog.

New York, May 15.—Raising an interesting question as to when life in animals actually becomes extinct, Dr. Robert C. Kemp has found it possible to restore a dog to life after its heart had stopped beating for sixteen minutes. After an examination by surgeons an animal was officially pronounced dead, yet Dr. Kemp by a massage of its heart so far brought it back to life that it lived twenty-four hours, and meanwhile was so far restored to the use of its faculties that it ate, did drank and performed its usual functions. In eleven out of twenty-three experiments of this character Dr. Kemp succeeded in "restoring dogs to life," and he is convinced that in the case of human beings, under similar conditions the proportion of restorations would be far greater.

The vital spark remains active, he believes, and he merely fans it into renewed life by massaging the heart. For more than two years Dr. Kemp has been making experiments of this character in the physiological laboratory of the college of physicians and surgeons.

DENVER CHURCH BURNED.

Denver, May 15.—St. John's cathedral, the most pretentious church building belonging to the Protestant Episcopal church in this city, was destroyed by fire believed to be of incendiary origin at an early hour this morning. The loss is placed at $100,000, insurance amounting to $80,000. The building was erected in 1881 and is said to have cost $150,000.

CHOOSE NEW PRETENDER.

Madrid, May 15.—A dispatch from Melilla, Morocco, says the sultan's envoys who were charged with a pacificatory mission to the rebels have arrived there with $16,000. The rebel chiefs, it is added, have chosen a new pretender, named Hubel Kader. He is a Moor of a good family.

$21,742.53 Worth of Fine New Wash Goods Bought for $6,430.28

160,757 YARDS TO GO ON SALE AT 2½c, 6c AND 9c THE YARD.

Also News of Brilliant Dress Goods Bargain-Giving.

This is the greatest purchase ever made by any house in the Northwest. KING COTTON succumbs to the power of COLD CASH.

Our ever-ready almighty dollars have landed us 160,756 yards of fine, fresh, new wash goods (a big jobber's entire store) at about 25 cents on the dollar!

As an exhibition of master merchandising it stands unparalleled—it gives the Big Store an unprecedented opportunity to offer a colossal collection of the season's choice cotton stuffs at next to nothing prices.

Think of buying 12½c yard white percale at 2½c the yard, 25c lace novelties at 6c, and 35c organdies at 9c.

You can do these very things here tomorrow! and those are only three of the hundreds of record-breaking bargains which crowd the whole main aisle to its utmost capacity.

Table after table is piled high with the very cream of the season's wash goods beauty weaves—and no matter if the very same goods are being sold at three or four times as much elsewhere—the Big Store offers them to you at these magic prices—2½c, 6c and 9c the yard.

Never before and nowhere else were really desirable wash goods ever sold for so little—the cotton in the field was worth more than we ask for the finished fabric—just think of buying sheer, silky, soft cottons at the prices mentioned. The list of fabrics is long and varied—many of the names are printed at each side of this article—look it over carefully and come prepared to buy wash goods for the whole family and for the whole season.

It is the boldest bargaining we ever heard of—the Big Store bought the entire stock of a Western jobber who was long on wash goods and short on cash—and needed money so badly that he gave us an enormous stock of 160,756 yards of choice spring styles at an unheard of sacrifice. It is a gigantic scoop for the Big Store—few houses in the country could handle it without being swamped.

All the newest creations in the wash goods world are here.

No other store in the West shows such an assortment, and not another store in America can offer them to you at less than two, three and four times our sale prices.

We Bought Arnold, Constable & Co.'s Surplus $1.00 $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 $2.25 and $2.50 Dress Goods and Offer Choice at 78c Yard.

"You own these goods cheaper than any other house in America. Never as long as we have been in business have we sold such a splendid lot of Dress goods at such a ridiculously low price"

So said one of the heads of the great house of Arnold, Constable & Co., of Broadway, Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth St, New York. He referred to our purchase of 4836½ yards of this season's very best dress goods, regularly selling up to $2 and $2.50 the yard—and which is now on sale here at Seventy-eight Cents the Yard.

Every well posted woman knows the high character of Arnold, Constable's goods —every woman who sees the fabrics on display here will note their richness — their exclusiveness—they will see here the very same styles that other stores throughout the country are selling for double or treble our present price.

While the quantity is something enormous—there is not much of any one piece or style—consequently you may choose without fear of "commoness."

The fabrics range from 42 to 54 inches wide—a list of the cloths would be the season's honor roll—the colorings are particularly good—some are mixed colors — others are in spring's most fashionable shades—and there are also some whites and creams suitable for graduation or commencement wear or for the exquisite white tailored costumes now so much in vogue. All in all it is the greatest dress goods bargain we ever heard of at any time—at any place!

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Iron mountain, Mich., May 14.—An extra freight on the St. Paul railroad, southbound, was wrecked two and a half miles from this city by a broken flange on the car wheel. Four cars dashed down the embankment twenty feet and were badly wrecked. Rails were torn up for a distance of 100 feet. The crew saved themselves by jumping.

Ishpeming—A local business man and one of his employes were arrested charged with taking trout in nets. The men were at a stream out from Humboldt, when a party of Ishpeming men came along and saw them with the nets and some trout. The accused parties claim they caught some fellows working with the nets and as soon as the guilty ones saw them they ran and left the outfit behind. They will try to prove that they merely took the nets from the river and did not attempt to take any fish with them. The case will be given a hearing before one of the local justices. Game Warden J. C. Downing made the arrests.

Ishpeming is soon to have another full-fledged labor union. The carpenters, bricklayers and stone masons of the city are palnning to unite soon to get ready for the spring campaign in building, which promises to be very active this season. All has been arranged except the final details. The officers of the Marquette union will come here and put the organization on its feet and get it properly started. When that happens a boost in wages and shorter hours will be demanded.

Newberry—Fin Clark was arrested near Newberry last week by Deputy Sheriff Tracey for violating the game laws. Clark is operating a cedar camp has, it is said, been making a practice of killing deer to supply his camps with meat. Justice Mulvaney assessed him $50 and costs.

In the north end of Luce county and Hancock—The apportionments for the various funds for the ensuing year as recommended by the finance committee of the Hancock council are as follows: Ctningent, $10,000; fire department, $4000; building, which promises to be very active this season. All has been arranged water fund, $8900; police, $4500; interest and sinking, $4000; park, $150; light $3000; total, $43,850. The total amount to be raised by general tax is $19,000, while the amount anticipated from liquor licenses and other sources is $20,150, making the total resources $39,150.

St. Ignace—While Narcisse Martineau and Michael McDonald of St. Ignace, were engaged in "spreading" oakum—preparing it for the caulkers—at Muckinaw City, the men wanting on a scow that was to be reconlked, they were the victims of a rather peculiar accident. The oakum was piled in their laps and spread out on a bench before them. One of the men in lighting his pipe fired the oakum, which is highly inflammable, and before they could get away from the laps, both men were severely burned on the hands.

BESSEMER ORES

Are Said to Be Selling Very Slowly.

Cleveland May 15.—The Iron Trade Review says: One Cleveland firm reports that it has sold practically all of its non-Bessemer ore and all sellers are finding it less difficult to dispose of the non-Bessemers; but the firm referred to has been more unfortunate than the others, and all report that Bessemer ores are selling very slowly. Ore is moving more freely from the mines and vessels have been arriving in such numbers at Lake Erie ports that railroads have had more than they could do to meet demands, and there is already much complaint about poor dispatch. Rates are unchanged at 85 cents from ports at the head of Lake Superior, 75 cents from Marquette and 65 cents from Escanaba. The Pittsburg Steamship Co. is taking some wild tonnage.

QUICK ARREST.

J. A. Gulledge, of Verbena, Ala., was twice in the hospital from a severe case of piles causing 24 tumors. After doctoring and all remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly arrested further inflammation and cured him. It conquers aches and kills pain. 25c at all druggists.

MOFFATT IS CROOKED.

Chicago, May 15.—Walter Moffat, who disappeared from Chicago September 3, and who until a week ago was supposed to have been lured into Wisconsin forests and murdered, was arrested here today on a charge of larceny. Moffatt left in company with two men ostensibly to purchase horses in Wisconsin. It is now known that he had been given various sums to invest for others, and this circumstance led to his arrest.

CRIMINAL CASES

Martin Brosius on Trial For Stealing Money and Watches.

John Tanko's Murder Case Will Probably Come Up Next.

Martin Brosius, who was indicted on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree, was on trial in district court today on the latter charge. All the testimony in the case was introduced by noon and the arguments to the jury were made this afternoon. Brosius was defended by C. B. Miller.

As soon as the lesser charge is disposed of Brosius will have to stand trial on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree. The charge against him in the case tried today was that last March he stole a watch valued at $25 from the Keystone Loan and Mercantile company and put it in a safety deposit vault in one of the local banks. The two cases are interwoven to a great extent, the state's statement being about as follows:

Last fall Brosius obtained a position as night bartender for Little Jake, opposite the Union depot. A woodsman named Stewart obtained $5 from him on a watch and went into the woods for the winter.

Stewart and a companion are said to have come out of the woods last March with some money. Stewart having $70 in a small bag and his friend having about $35. They went to Little Jake's and Stewart asked for his watch, Brosius putting him off until the next day. That evening Stewart and his friend stopped over Little Jake's saloon. Stewart got very drunk. Two women figured in the festivities. The next morning Stewart complained to the police he had been touched for his $70. His companion, who remained sober and who occupied another room, complained that he lost $35.

The local police department found one of the women, who was in Stewart's room, and she declared Brosius took his money with the remark he would take it for safekeeping. The police department, according to Chief Troyer, discovered that Brosius, about the time of Stewart's robbery, had gone to the Keystone Loan and Mercantile company and redeemed two watches, paying $26. One of the watches was Stewart's and the other belonged to Brosius. Soon afterward it was discovered that one of the loan company's gold watches was missing and Brosius was suspected. He was arrested but denied having taken Stewart's money. Nothing was said at the time of the watch deal and the officers asked to see the contents of Brosius' deposit vault in the bank, to prove that he had all the money which he claimed. In the vault the authorities found a watch which the pawnbroker identified as the one stolen from him. Brosius claimed he had bought it from a woodsman.

The testimony this morning showed that Brosius lived at 601 West Superior street with a woman who passed as his wife, the couple being known by the name of Allen. This woman appeared in court this morning as Kitty Boles and testified that she was an inmate of a disreputable house in St. Croix avenue.

Brosius claimed that he was fresh from a farm last fall and that he worked for a time on the docks and did some paving on the city streets before he began to tend bar.

The next criminal case that will come up for trial after the cases against Brosius are disposed of will be that of John Tanko who is charged with murder in the first degree. The court is arranging the cases with a view of having as many jurors as possible free when the Tanko case is called so that the necessity of a special venire will be obviated as far as possible.

FOURTH OF NORWAY

Next Sunday, May 17, Is the Norwegian Independence Day.

The 17th of May, the Norwegian day of independence, will be celebrated in West Duluth this year under the auspices of "Fram" lodge, No. 5, Sons of Norway.

May 17, 1814, is the day the Norwegian storthing unanimously adopted the constitution Norway has today. During the period of 400 years before that Norway was a province under the rule of Denmark. After the constitution was adopted an agreement was made with Sweden to have one king for both countries, the power to rest in the hands of the Norwegian storthing to make and change the laws for Norway.

During the time Norway was under Danish rule the Norwegians were treated like step-children, and as a nation with enough energy and ability to rule itself, as it had always done from the olden time, the people got tired of the Danish government. The result was the election of representatives from all over the country to a national body to make their own constitution.

While under Denmark the people of Norway had been thirsting after education, as the school system was very poor in Norway during that time. The changing of the government gave the people the opportunity to build schools and other kinds of educational institutions. Today the people of Norway are among the most educated of all nations.

People with love for freedom and education are the best citizens of this country, and the Norwegians, by showing their patriotism in respect of their old country, will as much be in the front rank of the American people in working for liberty and humanity.

As the 17th of May comes on Sunday, the celebration will be Saturday evening, May 16, at 8 o'clock, at Great Eastern hall.

MR. LOWRY HERE

The Street Railway Magnate Inspects the Duluth Lines.

President Thomas Lowry of the Twin City Rapid Transit Co., whose interests in the Duluth-Superior Traction company's property bring him here, arrived in the city this morning, and was at the Spalding for breakfast, accompanied by C. G. Goodrich and C. A. Bennett of Minneapolis and M. D. Munn, of St. Paul.

Mr. Lowry's visit was occasioned by a desire to look over the street railway lines and to confer with the Northern Power company relative to contracts for the furnishing of power to the railway company when the great power system is finished.

The party went to the offices of the power company shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, and remained in conference for some time.

"We are only in the city to look over some of the street railway lines and talk a little regarding the power contracts," said Mr. Lowry this morning.

Mr. Lowry again denied that there was anything in the story of a proposed electric line between Duluth and St. Paul and the lower Mississippi river points.

"The Soo line will start to build on the extension from Frederic, Wis., north twenty-five or thirty miles," said he, "within a few days, and the work on the Glenwood extension has already begun.

"The line north of Frederic is pointed toward Duluth, but a line directly into the city is not a probability, at least for a long while. The branch north is being built by easy stages, and I have no idea when it will be finished as far north as Duluth."

The Soo line has its Duluth connections in the South Shore road.

President Lowry and party will probably leave for home early this evening.

Small Verdict Given.

Ole Weld, who brought action for damages against the Red Cliff Lumber company, was given a verdict of $150. The case went to the jury yesterday afternoon and a sealed verdict was returned last evening to be opened in court this morning.

The personal injury case of Brsson against the Minnesota Land and Construction company, is likely to reach the jury this afternoon or tomorrow.

In Judge Ensign's room the damage action of Wilie against the city was completed and the jury began its deliberations this morning. Up to this noon no verdict had been returned.

DEADLOCK IN DENVER.

warned seventy-five men in the Bronx to quit work on pain of death. Four of the strikers were arrested.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 15.—The conductors and motormen employed by the Connecticut Railway and Lighting company here went on strike today, tying up all the lines in the city. The company offered a slight increase in wages but refused recognition of the union. About 225 men are out.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 15.—Premier Irvine announced in the legislative assembly today that he had received a letter from the officials of the Engine Drivers' association declaring the strike off and submitting unconditionally.

The president of the Engine Driver's union, in an interview, said the surrender was due to the drastic nature of the strike bill, which was sure of adoption, and increased the number of men returning to work. It is only four, therefore, to place the others on the same level.

Auburn, N. Y., May 15.—All building operations are suspended here, 300 carpenters having gone on strike for higher wages. The demand is for 30 cents an hour minimum and 36¼ cents for foremen.

Indianapolis, May 15.—On account of the strike of the sawyers and other employes of the Bedford Quarries company, all the stone setters employed on the new federal building in this city were compelled to quit work today. There are no developments in the strike at Bedford, and the trouble seems no nearer adjustment than on the first day.

El Paso, Tex., May 15.—All the switchmen at the El Paso & Southwester yards are on a strike today because the night men were discharged for demanding extra help.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, April 30th, 1903.

In thet Matter of the Estate of Thomas Kristian Mauritssen Loland, Deceased: Also known as Tom Lond, Thomas Laland and Thomas M. Loland:

On receiving and filing the petition of Glen Morrison by her agent, Ole M. Ness, of the county of St. Louis, Minnesota, representing, among others things, that Tomas Kristian Mauritssen Loland, also known as Tom Lond, Thomas Loland and Thomas M. Laland, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 25th day of April, A. D. 1903, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the mother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Ole M. Ness, granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on Monday, the 1st day of June, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., the 29th day of April, A. D. 1903.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLESCOFF,
Judge of Probate.

PLANS FOR SUMMER

Made By the Diplomatic Representatives of Foreign Countries.

Most Will Then Spend Vacations In Their Native Lands.

Washington, May 15.—With the approach of warm weather the diplomats who play so prominent a part in the official life of the capital are getting ready for their yearly hegira, and all, or nearly all, have definite plans made now for the summer months.

Many of the ambassadors will, as usual, go to Europe on leave of absence. Diplomacy is not so exacting a mistress in the summer as she is in the winter, so that the chiefs of embassies and legations can have a vacation from the cares of state during these months.

They accordingly go back to their native countries, leaving their first secretaries as acting charges d'affaires, who in turn establish their respective embassies or legations wherever it suits them. The resorts most favored by them, however, are Newport and Manchester by the Sea, on the north shore of Massachusetts bay.

The dean of the corps, the Russian ambassador, will take his adopted daughter, the Countess Marguerite Cassini, with her friend and companion, Mme. Schevic, to Europe, as is his usual custom.

Last year the Russian embassy was without a first secretary, and Count Cassini was obliged to remain in this country. He chose Bar Harbor as a resort, and so delighted was he with the climate, the life and the beauty of the Maine coast, that he would not have been disappointed if he had to go there again this summer. But, as he has said, it is necessary for him to see the czar and also to go to one of the czars of Europe. He has been far from well this spring, and after a short visit to their home in Paris the ambassador and Countess Cassini will go to one of the German spas before going on to St. Petersburg.

The ambassador and his party, which will include M. Rogestvensky, will depart May 26. Mme. Rogestvensky, a bride of a few months, has preceded her husband to Paris and will await him there. M. Hanssen, the first secretary, will be in charge d'affaires during Count Cassini's absence, and will establish his embassy in one of the New England resorts.

The Mexican ambassador and Senora Aspiroz, with their daughters, Senora Perez and Senorita Aspiroz, will spend the summer at Avalon, N. J., where they have taken a cottage. Senora Perez is one of the most popular of the young matrons in society here, and the second daughter, a pretty girl still in school, is assured a brilliant social success when she is introduced, which may possibly be next winter. Senorita Aspiroz, however, desires to go abroad to study before making her bow to the social world, as she is quite as sensible as she is pretty.

The Italian ambassador and Signora Mayor des Planches, who rank next in diplomatic precedence, are now traveling through the West. The trip is a hurried one one, but having gone as far as St. Louis for the dedication ceremonies of the exposition the ambassador and Signora Mayor decided to go on as far as California, to get at least a glimpse of the "Pacific slope." On their return they will travel in the east, through the Adirondacks and the White Mountains, also visiting the Thousand Islands and other resorts nearby. In July they will go to Italy for the summer, which they will spend at their country home, near Turin. They were at Manchester by the Sea last year, and enjoyed life in a simple way, the signora playing tennis at the Essex County club with Mme. de Margerie of the French embassy and some of the gentlemen of Signor Mayor's staff, all of whom were with him at the little vine-covered cottage in School street, which served as the embassy.

Count di Cellere, the first secretary, who was appointed last autumn, but was deterred from assuming his duties by ill health, is now expected to arrive in June.

The British ambassador and Lady Herbert, who have given many delightful social entertainments at the embassy this last season, will spend their summer in England. They depart in June and Mr. Raikes, the first secretary, will, as charge d'affaires, move the embassy to New port, where it has been during the summer months for many years.

The Austrian ambassador and Mme. Von Hengelmuller are the first to depart. They sailed today for Europe. Mme. Von Hengelmuller a week ago met with a serious accident, slipping on the highly polished floor of her drawing room while entertaining a dinner party and spraining her ankle very badly, so that it had to be put in a plaster cast. All winter Mme. Von Hengelmuller has been far from well, and has had to withdraw frequently from social gayety. As she is extremely fond of society, however, and a popular hostess, speaking many languages, she has continued to hold her Saturday evening salons and has given several dinner parties and teas.

The ambassador and Mme. Von Hengelmuller go direct to London, to remain a fewZ days. From there Mme. Von Hengelmuller will go on to Paris to replenish her wardrobe, leaving the ambassador in London with his tailor. From Paris they will go on to Vienna, then to Carlsbad, returning to Washington in October.

The new first secretary of the Austrial embassy, Baron Giskar, and his American wife, are expected to arrive in May. Until he comes the present secretary, M. Von Callenberg, and his charming wife, two of Washington's favorites, will be at the head of the embassy. They will depart for Europe in May. Where Baron Giskar will establish the embassy is still unknown, but it is thought that he will favor Manchester-by-the-Sea.

The French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, having but recently arrived in this country, will remain here for the summer, while M. De Margerie, the counsellor of the embassy, who for two years has been charge d'affaires and the head of the embassy at Manchester-by-the-Sea, will be relieved from duty. M. and Mme. Jusserand will probably take the cottage at Manchester occupied two years ago as the French embassy and last year as the Italian. The ambassador is an artist, and the bald cliffs of the north shore of Massachusetts will afford ample inspiration for his brush and pencil.

M. and Mme. Jusserand came to Washington with the reputation of being famous entertainers. As the embassy has been undergoing extensive repairs, they have not as yet had an opportunity to verify this report, but at Manchester they will no doubt do a great deal of entertaining. With the ambassador and Mme. Jusserand will be M. Angnlieur, the latest addition of the corps, a young Parisian, who has just come to the embassy as an attache. He is tall and distinguished in appearance, with dark hair and eyes—in a word, one of the best looking young men of the corps.

M. Jules Boenfre, the genial chancellor of the embassy, always goes abroad, and this year he will spend his summer in France. The military attache and Mme. Vignel, two of the most unassuming and delightful members of the corps, will, as usual, spend their summer abroad and will sail in June. The naval attache, Lieut. Commander de Faramond, is at present in South America on a special mission for his government and will be there for several months longer.

Germany's envoy extraordinary, Baron Speck Von Sternburg, with Baroness Von Sternburg, and her sister, Miss Laughann, will spend the summer in this country. Where the baron will summer he has not yet decided, but it will be some resort in New England, either among the foothills of the White mountains, in New Hampshire, or on the north coast of Massachusetts.

Baron Gevers, the Netherlands minister, will, as usual, go to Europe, while Mr. Van Roljen, another popular bachelor, as his secretary, will represent the legation, which he will move to Newport, as last summer.

The Belgian minister, Baron Moncheur, and his beautiful young wife were among those who went to St. Louis for the dedication ceremonies of the exposition. The baroness there met her father, Powell Clayton, United States ambassador to Mexico, and with him returned to Mexico. The baron will keep bachelor's hall here in Washington, at the legation, till July, when he will sail for Belgium, to be joined later by the baroness. The minister's three little girls by a former marriage will spend the summer in this country with their grandmother, Mrs. Holman, and will probably be near their uncle, Edward Padelford, and Mrs. Padelford.

Impossible to foresee an accident. Not impossible to be prepared for it. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—Monarch over pain.

AN UNIQUE STORY

Mrs. Brown Potter Gives London Paper Her Autobiography.

An American Actress But Is Enamored of England.

London, May 15.—Mrs. Brown-Potter has contributed to T. P. O'Connor's Mainly About People a bit of her autobiography. The editor makes this prelude to her article:

"A notable representative of the heroines of poetical drama, Mrs. Brown-Potter is also one of the most interesting of women to meet in private life, and the note of a romatic and picturesque personality rings clear in the Chaper of Autobiography the American actress contributes to this week's M. A. P. To spend a brief hour in the company of the beautiful mistress of Bray Lodge, Maidenhead, is to understand wholly who rule and leading the world of culture, and to feel how well deserved is the honor done to her talents in the letter from Queen Alexandra, which she makes public for the first time in these columns. This, as will be seen, is no formal letter of thanks from the official department of royalty. It is a personal expression of sympathetic appreciation from the highest and most beloved lady in the land.

"Mrs. Brown-Potter is so thoroughly 'old English' in her affections and inclinations that the description, 'American actress' seems in her case a strangly ill-applied one to those who know her well. The rooms of her beautiful house up the river are museums of old English productions in furniture, tapestries and china—not 'on show' as relics, as it is the stiff and unhomely fashion for some collectors to have them, but in their ordinary places as ordinary goods and chattels. Her lovely garden, with its trim lawns and plain, undeviating paths, its sundial, and its neat white steps to the river, is a background from a Dendy Sadler. The lady who walks in and sends it, in large hat and gauntlet gloves cold driving gloves for doing the wedding in), is a figure from an S. E. Waller. And old English enough is the personal and practical attention this picturesque and most fascinating lady finds time to devote, in spite of her professional duty's constant calls upon her, to the management of her stately English home."

This is the autobiography which is signed "Cora Urquahart Potter":

"Somebody has said that variety is the very salt of life. Speaking from my own personal experience, I do not think that anything could possibly be truer. It is variety that makes life endurable, that gives it the element of the picturesque and the romantic, without which it would not be worth living. Nothing so soon destroys the great giant of the commonplace—the monster that crushes so many lives into the mud and slough of despair, as variety of life. And it is variety that helps to lead us out of ourselves, to build up character, to make the world what it is.

"I thank God my life has been one of continual and picturesque variety. I have been in very part of the world. I have known every kind of humanity. I have gazed into the mirrors of life from every point of view, and nothing. I suppose, has helped that variety so much as the career in which I have long been embarked, for the life of the actor or actress is one of perpetual change. It has been so with me from my earliest days. To begin with, I was born in the sweet and romantic Southern states. My earliest memories are of wide-spreading plantations, gaily-clad negro mammies, the chivalrous Southern gentlemen with their soft, Southern drawl, the beautiful mountains, the wild forests, the great yellow Mississippi—father of waters—ever rolling to the far-off ocean, and last, but not least, the splendid silent sun of Walt Whitman's imagination shining down upon the whole vast scene. It was amidst such surroundings that I was brought up. I was always very fearless as a child, and I used to go all alone through the great forests to a school right away amongst the mountains.

"My earliest memory is of a very dramatic incident in my life. I was only 3 years old. One day a little pet lamb of mine fell into a stream that ran through our grounds. It was sinking and I jumped in, clothes and all, and seized hold of it; then I began to sink, but I hung on to the lamb, and when I was pulled out, quite unconscious, the lamb gambolled off into the meadows. I have another memory of those sweet, Southern days, who rule and leading the world of cul- while I was always a very romantic child, a great lover of poetry, which I used to declaim to myself on every possible occasion, and I can see myself flying down to a little creek—Mud creek it was called—and apostrophising it with outstretched arms and eloquent gesture in the words of Lord Macaulay—

"'O Tiber, Father Tiber!
To whom the Romans pray,
A Roman's life, a Roman's arms,
Take them in charge today.'

"In my very early youth my father used to read Racine to me, and show me how Rachel used to play Phedre. And then my grandmother used to write little French plays for me, and my mother would teach me how to play them.

"My first appearance was made in New Orleans, where we were then living, when I was only 15 years of age, and it was than that the manager of the Opera house saw me and advised me to go and study in Paris. Long before I ever thought seriously of the stage I went in for amateur theatricals, and in one year in New York I made $30,000 for charity. And thus I easily stepped into the great mysterious world of the theater—a world that stands absolutely by itself. It was at Secretary Wildmere's in Washington that I recited G. R. Sim's beautiful little poem, "Oaker Joe." It made a most unenviable sensation, a number of very prudish dames getting up and walking out of the room. The curious thing is that I had recited it when I was making money for other people, without any notice being taken whatever, but when it was for my own benefit—ah! that was a different matter altogether. But I suppose nothing on earth can approach the self-righteous prudery of the American woman, especially if she is untraveled.

"In my early days in London I went in mainly for recitation, and how different was the reception I met with, how immeasurably more broad-minded! One of the greatest treasures I possess, and the thing I value most of all my Lares and Penates, is a letter written to me by Queen Alexandria when she was Princess of Wales, just after she had heard me recite. I am so proud of it that I am sure her majesty will not be displeased at my making it public for the first time. It is written in her own beautiful handwriting:

"'My Dear Mrs. Potter: Thank you very much for so kindly remembering in sending me those pretty verses I so much admired, and which you recited in such a charming way. I shall often look back to the many pleasant moments you made us pass by your most faschating and wonderful talent which you are always so good-natured in displaying for our enjoyment. I enclose my photograph, and hope you will not forget yours. Believe me, yours sincerely, "'ALEXANDRA.'

YOU CAN SEE HAIR GROW

AFTER WASHING THE SCALP WITH

MUNYON'S WITCH-HAZEL SOAP

IT MAKES THE HAIR GROW THICK
IT MAKES THE HAIR GROW STRONG
IT MAKES THE HAIR GROW BEAUTIFUL

Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap is truly a blessing to those who are losing their hair and becoming bald. This soap is a food and vitalizer; it stimulates and acts as a gentle tonic to the weak and sick roots, and gives them new life and vigor. It promptly removes dandruff, scales, humors and all sores of the scalp. Give this soap a fair trial, and if there is a particle of life in the roots, this soap will stimulate and invigorate them into new life and healthy growth. Of course, you know that Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap for the complexion and for the toilet is superior to any high-priced French soap made. It makes the skin soft as velvet and keeps one free from pimples, blotches and most skin eruptions.

If your blood is out of order, take Munyon's Blood Cure. It will drive all impurities from the system and make good, rich, red blood.

If your liver is sluggish and you have a sallow complexion, use Munyon's Liver Cure. These two remedies, taken in alternation, will soon rid the blood and system of all impurities, and give life and vigor to the whole body, and when used in conjunction with the soap, makes the skin glow with youthful freshness.

WANT MILES' FULL REPORT

Herbert Welsh Presents Plan to Try to Secure It.

Washington, May 15.—Secretary Root and a number of other officials in the war department yesterday received a circular from Herbert Welsh, of Philadelphia, which has also been mailed to a number of private individuals in reference to the report of Lieut. Gen. Miles. The letter desires that letters be addressed to the president, Secretary Root, Adjt. Gen. Corbin, Judge Advocate General Davis, Assistant Adjt. Gen. Hall and Assistant Adjt. Gen. Ernst, asking them to publish for the information and guidance of the country the full report of Gen. Miles, regarding affairs in the Philippine islands. He suggests that the especially request that the report of Maj. Hunter into the facts of whippings of Filipino prisoners of war for the purpose of extracting information from them, be included in the publication. He says he has not seen Gen. Miles' report, having in vain tried to secure a copy of it from the war department, but believes that it contains information that enlightened citizen should have. Mr. Welsh says that 600,000 souls have perished in those islands from war, famine and pestilence under our flag. In the letter he refers to the military record of Gen. Miles in the civil war and in several Indian campaigns and says with a few thousand letters sent to men he mentions, the object would be secured. He suggests that persons interest their senators in the matter.

Secretary Root referred the circular he received to Judge Advocate General Davis.

The war department made public the letter of Adjt. Gen. Corbin to Gen. Miles answering one sent to the secretary of war Wednesday regarding the publication of Gen. Miles' report. The adjutant general says to whom the report was given and encloses copies of the reports which were furnished the press.

BUSH FIRE AT WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg, May 15.—Arrivals from Lake Winnipeg state that a large portion of the timber and scrub lands surrounding the southern end of the lake have been devastated by bush fires. The dry weather has made all standing timber like tinder and the flames spread with great rapidity. Over 100 families have lost their homes and stock. There has also been considerable damage in the Dauphin district.

IRON AND STEEL

Importation Continues Without Any Signs of an Abatement.

Value In March Amounted to Over Four Million Dollars.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The importation of iron and steel, which has characterized the past year, shows no sign of abatement. The value of iron and steel imports in the month of March, as shown by the figures of the treasury bureau of statistics, amounting to over $4,000,000 against about $2,000,000 in March of last year; and for the nine months ending with March amounted to over $38,000,000, against less than $19,000,000 in the corresponding months of last year. Curiously, all of the more important articles or classes of articles so imported are those of which the United States is a large producer. The United States is now by far the largest pig iron producer of the world, having last year produced more of this article than the United Kingdom and Germany combined, her production having practically doubled since 1897. Yet the importations of iron and steel during the fiscal year which is to end with next month will be double in value those of 1897, and four times those of 1899.

The three classes of articles which show the largest increase are pig iron, steel rails and ingots, blooms and billets of steel. Pig iron shows an increase from 76,728 tons in nine months of last year to 725,270 in the same months of this year, or nearly ten times as much this year as last, despite the fact that production is still increasing. In ingots, blooms, bars, etc., the increase is still more rapid, the total importation of the nine months of last year being 41,370,209 pounds, and in the nine months of this year 657,597,319 pounds. In steel rails, of which the United States has in the past not only supplied her own wants, but exported largely, the percentage of increase is still larger, the imports of the nine months of last year having been but 3,262 tons, while those of this year, for the same month, were 92,889 tons, or nearly thirty times as much. The value of the pig iron imported in the first nine months of this fiscal year is $12,645,060, against $1,925,858 in the same months of last year; that of ingots, billets, etc., $7,351,374, against $1,424,430 last year, and that of steel rails, $2,181,187, against $85,172 last year.

The table which follows shows more clearly than any other statement could show the greatness of the iron and steel imports of the present year as compared with those of earlier years. It shows the total value of iron and steel manufactures imported in the nine months ending with March of each year, from 1870 to 1903. The imports of iron and steel in the nine months ending with March 1903 are larger than those in the corresponding nine months of any preceding year in the history of our importations, except 1873.

ROW OVER DRAMA

Playwrights Clash Over the Ownership of a "Thriller."

Shift In Name to Avoid Ban on the Bandit Plays.

Chicago, May 15.—Here is a melodrama that was too thrilling even for one-night stands in the wilds of Indiana. It had more plot than it could conveniently handle in five act and ten scenes, including a grand tableau of "Twenty—Count 'Em—Beautiful Women—Count 'Em—Twenty." As a consequence the thriller came to an abrupt end on the stage proper and will henceforth appear exclusively before court room audiences, beginning with a dress rehearsal this morning before Justice Prindiville in the Harrison street police court.

"Younger Brothers, Bank Robbers," is the delicately suggestive title of the drama which has proved too great for the cramped and narrow confines of the stage. It was owned by R. L. Cresey, of Chicago, a manager of several dramatic thrillers and father of the actress, Miss Elsie Cresey, who recently sued M. A. Donahue & Co. for $50,000 damages for the publication of her portrait on the cover of a novel.

The "Younger Brothers" play seems to have fired the imaginations of its cast to as high a pitch as it was warranted to excite its audiences. As leading man Phineas McLean put in an adventurous three hours every night blowing safes, holding up bank clerks and escaping from prison.

When the show closed from financial and other embarrassments in South Chicago last Saturday night, most of the principals went out of the thrilling business. But McLean? Not he. McLean declared that he had an interest in the manuscript of the drama, and forthwith he hunted up Justice Prindiville and secured a search warrant.

Accompanied by four detective sergeants, McLean marched up to Manager Cresey's office in the Chamber of Commerce building and demanded the manuscript. It appeared that the document was in Mr. Cresey's safe, and upon his refusal to deliver it up McLean stepped forward and with a majestic sweep of the arm he commanded, just as in the drama:

"Then, men, blow the safe."

At this the detectives, who had maintained a brave front, weakened and forgot their lines. But, as McLean remained standing with his head thrown back and his arm outstretched, as in the show lithographs, one of the detectives took the cue and went in search of a safe expert.

The next sensation was the entrance of Miss Jennie Epstein, stenographer to the manager, who rapidly convinced the constantly increasing crowd that the proper outlet for her genius was the stage.

"Get out of here, you cheap loafer!" cried the infuriated stenographer to the leading man. "You know you never wrote a line of that play—you were paid $5 a week to revise it, and now you say it's yours. Don't you dare call my employer names or I'll fix you."

Miss Epstein squared off menacingly and the detectives thought it best to step between the disputants, though McLean stood his ground and waved them grandly aside with one hand thrust tragically in the bosom of his flowing frock coat.

The next development was the tumultuous arrival of another claimant to the authorship of the play—Ben Atwell, a newspaper man, who says that he produced the drama in collaboration with E. Stout, another newspaper man. Atwell had heard the rumblings of trouble from afar, he said, and he hastened to the scene to protect his manuscript and a large amount of advertising for the play which hung on the manager's walls.

McLean was now forgotten and all efforts centered on the ejection of Playwright Atwell from the office. Manager Cresey shook his finger in the author's face, and Miss Epstein screamed valiantly, but all to no avail. Then M. J. Isaacs, attorney for Cresey, won the point by ejecting all but the police from the room.

After this Mr. Isaacs and Mr. Cresey opened the safe voluntarily and produced the manuscript, which was found to be the book of a play entitled, "The Heart of the Ozarks." McLean claimed that it was an entirely new play which Cresey had tried to steal from him, while Cresey claimed that it was nothing more than the revised manuscript of "Younger Brothers, Bank Robbers," to which McLean had attached another title without authority. The police were so confused by he tangle of threads in the plot that they solved the difficulty by taking both parties to the contention into custody.

Cresey was taken to central detective headquarters and booked on the charge of larceny, while McLean was booked on a charge of perjury preferred by Cresey. Both were released on bonds and Justice Prindiville will attempt to settle the difficulty.

According to Cresey, "Younger Brothers, Bank Robbers," was a show that might be termed "fierce." The police authorities of several Indiana towns forbade its production within their jurisdiction on the ground that its moral tone was low. The dramatic syndicate sent word that it was not booking any more "bandit shows."

"So we decided to change the name of the play and tone it down," said Mr. Cresey. "Atwell still owned a sixth interest in the production, and Stout was out of it, having sold his interest to me for $350. I hired McLean, who was with the company, to revise the manuscript for $5 a week extra pay. I paid him regularly and he turned out a typewritten revision which he delivered to me. We had discussed what little title to give the revised version, but had arrived at no decision, and the title, 'The Heart of the Ozarks,' was unauthorized."

JURY FIXES THE BLAME.

Denver, May 14.—The coroner's jury in the case of Mrs. Thomas McKernon, who was fatally injured last Friday evening by the collapse of the Wiener building, which was undergoing repairs, has returned a verdict, laying the blame for the accident upon the architect, the contractor and the building inspector.

LAURA BIGGAR WINS.

Will Receive Handsome Fortune From Bennett Estate.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 15.—By an agreement reached between Attorney E. G. Ferguson, of this city, and lawyers representing Miss Laura Biggar, the actress, Peter Q. McNulty and R. M. Gulick, proprietors of the Bijou theater in this city, will pay Miss Biggar for the interest she had under the will of the late Henry M. Bennett, in the property on Penn avenue and Sixth street, occupied by the Bijou theater and office building. Under the terms of the agreement, Miss Biggar will receive in cash from the sale of the property $180,000, an apartment house in New York valued at $40,000 and personal property estimated to be worth $100,000, making a total of $320,000, besides an annual allowance for life of $1800. The settlement closes one of the most sensational estate fights which this country has had in years.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that fact. Mrs. M. C. Mertz, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free. Regular sizes 50c. $1.00.

QUIET AT MONASTIR.

London, May 14.—The under secretary, Lord Cranborne, in the house of commons today read a telegram from the British consul at Monastir, European Turkey, saying that while several Christians had been killed during the recent disturbances, there had been no further disturbance during the last few days, and adding that business is proceeding as usual. The consul also reported that the loss of life was exaggerated.

FILIPINO GIRL

Speaks For the Independence of Her People.

Chicago, May 14.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Boston says: Senorita Clemencia Lopez, the Filipino girl who is here to do crusade work for the independence of her people, has spoken for the first time in English at an anti-imperialistic luncheon. She said she came to make an appeal to President Roosevelt: "Now that Gen. Miles has spoken," she said, "it may be that some of the fear will disappear that has hitherto prevented most of my countrymen from protesting against the oppression that we are suffering under.

"The only true way is for a proper commission to go to the islands, appointed either by congress or privately, charged to ascertain the real situation and the real sentiments of the Filipinos."

ASKS INJUNCTION

Against Sixteen Insurance Companies In Illinois.

Chicago, May 14.—On the ground that they have failed to comply with the insurance laws of the state, Insurance Superintendent Vreedenburg filed a bill for an injunction in the circuit court today against sixteen fire insurance associations. The bill asks that the defendants be enjoined from issuing policies or making contracts in Illinois, in which the liabilities of any subscriber is limited to less than his aggregate liabilities on all policies and contracts issued by him, from carrying on the business of issuing policies wherein the liabilities of any underwriter is limited, and from exercising corporate functions by limiting the total liabilities of the individuals composing the association, either in policies or contracts.

STUDIES IN ACTS

PAUL BEFORE FELIX

International Sunday School Lesson For May 17, 1903.

Acts 24:10-16, 24-26. "And when the governor had beckoned unto him to speak, Paul answered:

"Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do cheerfully make my defense: seeing that thou canst take knowledge, that it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship at Jerusalem: and neither in the temple did they find me disputing with any man or stirring up a crowd, nor in the synagogues, nor in the city. Neither can they prove to thee the things whereof they now accuse me. But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call a sect, so serve I the God of our fathers, believing all things which are according to the law, and which are written in the prophets; having hope toward God, which these also themselves look for, that there shall be a resurrection both of the just and the unjust. Herein do I also exercise myself to have a good conscience void of offense toward God and men always.

"But after certain days, Felix came with Drusilla, his wife, who was a Jewess, and sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Christ Jesus. And as he reasoned of righteousness, and temperance, and the judgment to come, Felix was terrified, and answered, Go thy way for this time; and when I have a convenient season, I will call thee unto me. He hoped withal that money would be given him of Paul: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him."

Golden text: "I will fear no evil: for thou art with me." Psalm 23:4.

IMPEACHMENT OF PAUL BY TERTULLUS.

This lesson notes another step in the transfer of the gospel from the Jews to the Gentiles. Gradually the church has been breaking away from attachment to Judaism. In every case the break has been occasioned by the opposition of the Jews to the preaching of the gospel or to the Christ himself. Paul uniformly tried to present the gospel to his fellow countrymen. Though he was an apostle to the Gentiles, yet the dream of his life seems to have been to win his brethren of the house of Abraham to the Christ he knew. Immediately after his conversion he planned to evangelize Jerusalem and Judea, and was only prevented from such an effort by the voice of the Spirit which sent him forth far from them unto the Gentiles. At every step in his journeys he sought first to gain converts from among the Jews, but was rejected by them; and now he has made his last visit to Jerusalem, and his last testimony in the city has been drowned by the frantic yells of a zealous but mistaken mob that refused to believe and participate in the consummation of Gods' promises to Israel. By force his compatriots drive him away to close his life in ministrations to those he could reach while a prisoner in Imperial Rome.

By order of Lysias Paul was safely convoyed to Caesarea, the political capital of Judea, where he was delivered to the Roman governor, who caused him to be kept a prisoner in the praetorium until he could have his formal trial. Roman law provided that a prisoner who was sent to a judge with such a letter as Lysias sent with Paul should have his trial, if possible, within three days. Felix arraigned Paul after five days. He had to send to Jerusalem for the accusers and witnesses, which occupied at least four days. So Paul was tried as soon as the course of justice permitted. A professional attorney had been engaged to presente the apostle. At the appointed hour for the trial, Fleix took his seat as judge and Annanias with others appeared against Paul with Tertullus as judge advocate.

Tertullus was a trained rhetorician of his day and began his arraignment with the usual adulation of the governor-udge. He then stated the general charge that Paul was a pestilent fellow, giving the specifications: (1) That he was a mover of insurrections among the Jews. This was an offense against Rome which, if proved, Felix would have neglected at his own peril. (2) That he was a ringleader of religious heresy; a thing about which Felix cared very little, except that he found it necessary to show some interest in Jewish affairs in order to pacify the growing discontent of the Jews. (3) That the was guilty of sacrilege, in that he brought uncircumscribed people into the temple. That such an event might easily have become the occasion of a riot. Felix knew; and it was to his interest to maintain order in Jerusalem. Then, too, Felix had a Jewish wife which gave him some more personal interest in maintaining the Jewish religious order.

With great skill Tertullus presented his case which was no case at all, for his statements were either false or such truths as were an honor to have charged against one. The Jews who were present affirmed that what Tertullus had said was true; and the case passed over to the defense, Felix indicating to Paul to begin his answer to the charge.

PAUL'S DEFENSE.

Whenever Paul was called upon to defend himself against the calumnies of his enemies he exhibited an indifference to his own safety that was heroic. It was not merely carelessness of life; but such complete absorption in the great mission of his career that all else, even personal comfort and existence, dwindled into insignificance. He was not selfishly seeking his own glory, but was ready to lose his life that he might serve Christ.

Before Felix he devoted very little time to answering directly the charge against him, but spent much time in declaring the gospel. His brief reply to his accusers was concise and to the point. He indulged in no fulsome flattery to the court, merely noted the fact that Felix had been governor and judge longer than individuals had usually been retained in that office, which fact was to his advantage, because Felix had thus had time to gather a high degree of familiarity with Jewish ideas, institutions and prejudices.

To the charge of sedition, he replied that the time he had spent in Jerusalem had been too short for him to have organized any seditious movement. It had been only twelve days since he had left Caesarea, during which time his conduct had been open to all the world, and no one could prove against him any such charges as had just been made. In fact his conduct in the temple, the synagogues and the city disproved the charge. Proper conduct is always the best court of appeal against any charge of a criminal nature. If one leaves a good record every day, his past deeds can never rise to curse him, and may rise to bless him in some day of trial.

As to the charge of sacrilege, Paul pleaded that there was no shadow of evidence against him, in fact the evidence all went to show he had been scrupulously reverent toward the temple and all the sacred institutions of his people. After some years' absence he had returned bringing alms to the people and proper offerings to the temple. Surely there was no sacrilege in such actions. He had observed the laws of ceremonial purification and walked purified in the temple, conducting himself in an orderly manner. That could not have rendered him guilty of sacrilege, yet while he was thus engaged his enemies had set upon him and created a tumult of which he was charged with having been the author. The enemies who had stirred up the trouble and first made the charge against him were not present to give their testimony. Paul appealed to the fact of their absence as evidence that they had no real testimony to offer or they would have come down to help convict him. So sure was he of the righteousness of his position that he turned from the judge and challenged all the Jews who had come from Jerusalem to assist in convicting him to state any wrong of which he had been guilty while in Jerusalem, unless they had considered it criminal for him to assert his platform: "Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question before you this day." It seems that the party of accusers in the court was composed of Pharisees. They had changed front completely since the day when they had taken his part against the Sadducees in the session of the Sanhedrin, and this reference Paul made to the resurrection may have had something of irony in it, aiming to rebuke them for their vacillation.

They charged Paul with being a "ringleader," and the charge was true. He was the sort of a man who would have been a leader in any circle he might have entered. He had been a Jewish leader before his conversion. After it he quickly became a leader in the Christian church. Wherever he went Christian churches sprang up or were strengthened. Without his leadership the Christian church would have been very different from what it is. No man since Christ has left such an impression on Christendom as did Paul. To the charge Paul replied, confessing frankly that he served the God of their fathers after the way which they called a "sect." But it should be noted that Paul never for one instant let others forget that, in serving Christ, he was also serving the God of Abraham. This claim was very galling to the Jews who heard him. Paul's example of firm adherence to his faith and profession, no difference what peril it entailed, ought to fill every trembling and faltering heart with new courage or drive to shame those who do not stand up for their faith.

Paul boldly claimed to believe the same Scriptures his accusers believed. He had, in fact, been spending his best energies in preaching Christ from the Old Testament. His hope of life was based on the Messianic hope of the Jews, which he saw was fulfilled in Jesus. He was seeking to square his life by that hope. It was an inseparable part of his character. It was one thing to say that he had that hope and quite another to assert that he lived in its light with a clear conscience. That is the high grade of Christian life which every devout believer earnestly desires to attain.

Why did Paul so much emphasize the similarity and kinship of his faith to the old Jewish faith? One motive, of course, was that he might win the Jews to faith in Christ. But he also undoubtedly sought to retain the protection for his faith that Rome accorded the Jews, but which would have been withdrawn from the church the moment Rome had been led to consider Christianity an entirely new religion. His was the wisdom of the serpent, the harmlessness of the dove.

PRIVATE DISCOURSES ON RELIGION.

One of the strange things of life is that the most immoral people seem to delight in discourses upon religion. They seem to take comfort in the moral excitement created by the appeal to conscience of the earnest gospel preacher; although they turn away from the sermon with no intention of forsaking the abominable conduct. Listening to a sermon is regarded as a sort of penance, and they are more consoled the more harrowing the arraignment of their consciences.

Felix and his illicit wife Drusilla are classed by history among the most immoral rulers of their day. She had been the wife of Azizus, prince of Emesa, but was enticed away from him by Felix through the arts of Simon the Cyprian sorcerer. Both she and Agrippa, her son by Felix, perished in the eruption of Vesuvius during the reign of Titus.

Drusilla, being a Jewess, was interested in the case of the man who had made such a stir among the Jews everywhere he had gone. She had doubtless heard of the doctrines concerning Christ, and was eager to learn of them through their most powerful exponent. Probably her husband wished her to hear Paul, in the expectation that she would be able to help him understand why the leaders of the Jews became so excited over him. At any rate, there the two rulers sat, clad in robes of pagan state, to listen more or less idly to discourses of passionate earnestness from a man who spoke to them on the great theme of his life—the peerless truths and demands of Christianity.

Antonius Felix had been a slave, from which condition he was freed by the Emperor Claudius. On this account he is sometimes called Claudius Felix. He rose through cunning to a position of power which he abused by his ferocious cruelty and by injustice to his enemies. His lustful passions led him into unbridled license. That his rule was not successful is evident from the fact that when he turned over the government to Festus it is said that his province was "wasted and harrassed day with fire and sicarii, and by bands of robbers and sicarii, and the old plague of false prophets."

Felix repeatedly called Paul to private audiences, hoping that Paul would offer him a bribe to gain his freedom. But he was reckoning without a true knowledge of the character of his prisoner. Paul did not believe in the doctrine that "the end justifies the means." He believed in having righteous aims and in attaining them by righteous means. The thought of buying his way out of the Caesarea prison seems to have never entered his mind.

With the judge who desired a bribe Paul reasoned of righteousness. To the man of unbridled license he spoke of temperance in the use of life's pleasures and privileges. To the unrighteous judge and the immoral consorts he told of the dread summons, which all men will receive, to appear before the judgment bar of God to give an account of the deeds done in the body. On one occasion Felix was more than ordinarily moved by the apostle's discourse. He became uncomfortable, even terror-stricken, and dismissed the preacher, saying that he would call for him at a more convenient time. He did call for Paul again, and repeated the call often, but apparently not with the desire of hearing similar discourses. It is a law of human emotion that to resist an emotion to do some right action lessens the probability of a similar emotion ever affecting that life again. If one resists or disobeys his conscience, that conscience will become callous, dead. Felix never responded to the demands of Christ as they were presented to him by Paul. All we know of his later life is that he disgracefully vanished into obscurity shortly after he was succeeded at Caesarea by Festus, to whom he delivered Paul bound in order to gain the favor of the Jews whom he had alienated by his misrule.

Paul was right in presenting Christianity to Felix as morality. He might have discoursed on Christian history or Christian doctrine and have woven fine-spun theories of salvation. But Christianity is first of all a practical demand upon life and an efficient force in the formation of conduct and character. Christian dogma that is worth anything is the statement of Christian truth vitalized by the Holy Spirit and of the mode of that truth's operation on human life. In short it is the statement of purest morality suffused with the emotion and vigorous vitality of a perennial, spiritual religion. As such it never grows old and never ceases to be the gospel each new age needs, whether it be an age of doubt or faith, of religious and moral scrupulousness or indifference and revelry.

TRACING THE MACHINE.

Infernal Apparatus Sent To New York In Trunk.

Chicago, May 14.—The trunk which is believed to have carried the infernal machine found on the Umbria's dock and which was shipped from this city on April 25, is now thought to have been purchased from a storage concern here. On April 22, a day answering the description of the New York suspect ordered the trunk delivered at the Washington boulevard house from which place it has been traced through the transfer company to New York. The description given by Mr. and Mrs. Ehlen of the mysterious roomer also tallies with that of G. Rosseau. When he appeared at the house on April 15 and engaged board for a week he is said to have carried a small grip. Within two or three days tools and pieces of mechanism began to arrive. His explanation to questions was that he was inventing a new gambling devise. The man did not appear at all unbalanced, said Mrs. Ehlen. The Chicago police have not been asked to investigate and have thus far taken no hand in solving the mystery.

ARE YOU LOSING WEIGHT

If so then your system is out of balance, and there is a flaw somewhere in your constitution, and a possibility that you are losing health, too. The falling off in weight may be slight, but it makes a wonderful change in one's looks and feelings, and unless the building up process is begun in time, vitality and strength are soon gone and health quickly follows. If you are losing weight there is a cause for it. Your blood is deteriorating and becoming too poor to properly nourish the body, and it must be purified and enriched before lost weight is regained. It requires something more than an ordinary tonic to build up a feeble constitution, for unless the poisons and germs that are lurking in the blood are destroyed, they will further impoverish the blood and weaken the system, and you continue to lose weight.

In S. S. S. will be found purifying and tonic properties combined. It not only builds up weak constitutions, but searches out and destroys germs and poisons of every description and cleanses the system of all impurities, thus laying the foundation for a healthy, steady increase in weight and future good health.

Food may be bountiful and the appetite good, but still the system weakens and we remain poor in flesh unless what we eat is properly digested and turned into rich, pure blood. S. S. S. re-inforces the Stomach and aids the digestion and assimilation of food, and there is a rapid up-building of health and strength. S. S. S. acts promptly and beneficially upon the nervous system, strengthens and tones it up, and relieves the strain by producing sound, refreshing sleep. You can find no tonic so invigorating as S. S. S., and being composed exclusively of roots and herbs its use is attended with no bad effects. Old people will find that it braces them up, improves the circulation of the blood, and stimulates all the bodily organs, and persons of delicate constitutions can take S. S. S. with safety, as it does not derange the Stomach like the strong mineral remedies, but acts gently and without any shock to the system. Those whose feelings tell them they are not strong or well, and who are growing thinner and falling below their usual weight, should take a course of S. S. S. and build up again. S. S. S. is recognized everywhere as the leading blood purifier and the safest and best of all tonics. We cheerfully furnish medical advice, without charge, to all who will write us. WHEAT IS HIGHER

Market Is Dull But Prices Have a Moderate Advance.

May the Stronger Option —Flax Is Quiet and Firmer.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 15.—The wheat market was very quiet and stronger. May which yesterday was so weak in comparison with July was much the stronger of the two today and in Chicago moved back to the level which it held for many days, 78½c. The crop reports have been bad enough to cause some buying but not any great amount. The Modern Miller was somewhat bullish but not strongly so. There was some business reported at the seaboard, 28 loads, but the demand was not felt at Duluth and shippers here worked nothing.

The Liverpool market closed with an advance of 1d. Paris was 1c lower. Antwerp was unchanged and Buda Pest ½c lower.

Bradstreet reported clearances of wheat and flour for the week aggregating 4,267,000 bus, against 3,700,000 bus. last week and 5,172,000 bus. last year. Argentine shipments for the week were 2,104,000 bus, against 2,560,000 bus. last week and 624,000 bus. last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 390,000 bus., last year 1,630,000 bus. Shipments 558,000 bus., last year 321,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 366,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 168 cars, and at Chicago 58, a total of 226 cars, against 115 last week and 418 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed 1d higher. July corn in the Chicago market was 3c stronger and July oats ¾-5c up. Primary receipts of corn were 425,000 bus. last year 1,750,000 bus. Shipments 730,000 bus., last year 357,000 bus. Clearances were 196,581 bushels. Argentine shipments of corn were 664,000 bus., this week against 1,330,000 bus. last week, and 960,000 bus. last year. Since January 1 the total shipments have been 4,087,000 bus, against 1,355,000 bus. a year ago. Bradstreet reported weekly clearances of corn aggregating 1,431,257 bus., against 1,-631,760 bus. last week.

Trading in wheat was very slow on the Duluth market. July opened a shade higher at 75¾c and sold at 75¾c and 75⅞-8c up to shortly before noon when it advanced to 77½c. The close was at 77½c. This was an advance of 1⅝-1¾c. Chicago and Minneapolis July advanced the same.

Cash business was very dull and prices unchanged at May prices for No. 1 northern and 1¢ under for No. 2.

Flax was slow and lower. July selling 5-8c up to-day and closing there.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat, to arrive, No. 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 78¾c; No. 2 northern, 76¾c. May, 78¾c; 79¾c. No. 1 northern, 78¾c. July, 77½c; September, 76¾c. Flax, in store, $1.14½; to arrive, $1.14½; on track, $1.14½; May, $1.14½; July, $1.16; September, $1.17. October, $1.16; November, $1.16. Oats, to arrive, 34½c; on track, 34½c; May, 34c. Rye, on track, 50c; to arrive, 50c; May, 50c. Barley, 35@51c.

Cash in store—Wheat, 21; last year, 8. oats, 2; rye, 2; flax, 20.

Receipts—Wheat, 9347; oats, 3725; rye, 1179; barley, 572; flax, 2005.

Shipments—Wheat, 7833; oats, 11,566.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Firm With Good Demand at Start.

Chicago, May 15.—Wheat opened firm on small receipts and firm cables, July being a shade to 1-16c higher at 72¾c to 72⅞c. There was a good general demand at the start due to reports of damage by Russian fly in Kansas and the market advanced. July selling up to 73¾c but selling by scalpers soon caused a reaction, the price again dropping to 72⅝c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 108 cars, which with local receipts of 28 cars, three of contract grade, made a total for the three points of 136 cars, against 115 last week and 168 a year ago.

The market held firm throughout the entire session and July closed 1@1¼c higher at 73⅝c.

Corn opened a trifle easier, on favorable weather with July unchanged to 1c lower at 44⅞c to 45c. Cables were steady receipts moderate and the cash demand good which combined with buying of September by commission houses had a rallying effect on the market, but the trading in general was light and featureless. Local receipts were 126 cars, ten of contract grade.

Reports of late selling helped prices and the market was firm the latter half of the day. July closing 1@1c higher at 45¾c.

There was a good demand for May oats at the start but trading was light, owing to lack of offerings. Opening prices were steady. July being unchanged to a shade higher at 32¼@32⅝c to 32⅝c, and there was little change in values during the first hour. Local receipts were small at 89 cars.

An advance in prices of hogs had a strengthening influence in the provisions pit opening prices being steady. September pork unchanged at $16.09, September lard 2½c to 5c higher at $8.95 to $8.97½, and ribs unchanged at $9.17½. The only feature in trading was a fair demand for September lard.

Close: Wheat—May, 78¾c; July, 72⅝c; September, 73⅝c; December, 70⅞c. Corn—May, 45¾c; July, 45¼c; September, 44⅝c. Oats—May, 30⅝c; July, 33¾c; September, 30¾@30⅝c; December, 29½c. Pork—May, $18.90; July, $17.17½; September, $16.65. Lard—May, $8.85; July, $8.95; September, $9.00; October, $8.85. Ribs—May, $9.30; July $9.40; September, $9.22½; October, $9.07½. Rye—May, 50c; July, 50¼c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.16; S. W., $1.11; May, $1.12½; July, $1.14. Timothy—May, $3.60. Clover—May, $12.50. Barley—Cash, 42@55c. OFFICE OF THE George A. Treadwell Mining Company.

27 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

We have in our Iron Queen group of mines a well-defined vein proved three thousand feet in length and with a probable length of more than two miles, proved five feet in width at the minimum and widening out in places to forty feet, and at least two thousand feet in depth, with the probabilities in favor of its going below five thousand feet.

Taking the minimum measurements and multiplying the three thousand feet in length by two thousand feet in depth and five feet in width, we get as the contents of the vein 30,000,000 cubic feet of ore, which will run ten cubic feet to the ton, giving us 3,000,000 tons.

There is a net profit in this of at least $10 a ton over all expenses of mining and milling.

3,000,000 tons at $10 a ton yield $30,000,000 in profits.

This is from only one group of our properties. In the Cliff and Brookshire groups I believe the ore bodies to be even richer and more valuable, but it takes longer to get at them, and we have several other groups almost equally promising.

I have had too much practical experience in mining to indulge in visions. I would rather underestimate than overestimate results. When the United Verde stock was first offered for sale I was asked to estimate upon the probable production of the property, and my estimate came short of the reality. The same is true of my estimates of the Greene Consolidated, with which I was connected. The people who bought the United Verde upon my recommendation have made three thousand per cent upon their investment in ten years. The people who bought Greene Consolidated also upon my recommendation—have made five hundred per cent in two years. I believe that the stock of the GEORGE A. TREADWELL COMPANY at present prices is a better investment than the United Verde or Green Consolidated ever was.

GEORGE A. TREADWELL, President.

THEY WANT CHECK

Grain Men Want All Grain Cars Estimated Again.

The state railroad and warehouse commission, comprising J. G. Miller, of Two Harbors; Ira B. Mills, of Moorhead, and Charles F. Staples, of West St. Paul, arrived in the city yesterday and spent this morning looking over the local grain inspection departments. A number of minor matters were considered.

One matter that the board took up and had a hearing upon was a request by the local grain dealers that the department revive a custom that was abandoned last fall. This custom consisted in having a double check on grain weights. Not only was the grain weighed in the customary manner, but estimates of the cubic contents of each car were made, so that besides the weight there were two fairly accurate estimates of the amount of grain in each car.

The grain men said that this was a great protection to all concerned, and they wanted it restored. They stated their reasons for this request in a hearing before the members of the commission this morning, and the commission took it under advisement.

The value of the checks outlined above are obvious. Often shippers of grain to Duluth come in with complaints that their cars showed up shorter than they ought to be. When informed that the weight showed the reported contents to be correct, the shipper might claim that the scales were incorrect. Then there were the other estimates to fall back on, and these must either convince the shipper that he was wrong, or that everybody at the head of the lakes was in a conspiracy to beat him. Another advantage was that it insured that the inspectors really inspected the cars.

The commission returned to St. Paul this afternoon.

IRREGULAR COURSE

Of the Stock Market, Closing Heavy and Lifeless.

A Rally After the Noon Hour Was Not Maintained.

New York, May 15.—St. Paul advanced ¾ on opening sales of 1000 shares and Pennsylvania declined ¼ on a similar transaction. The contrary movement of the recent market leaders was followed throughout the list in which the movement was confined within a narrow range. Of the less active stocks Lackawanna dropped 3. T here were declines of a large fraction in D. & H. and Tennessee Coal.

Metropolitan Street Railway was forced down 1¾ and its weakness together with heavy selling of other favorites depressed the market sharply all around. Important stocks generally yield large fractions, but the severest losses were in less active properties. New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, second pfd, Hocking Valley and St. Louis & San Francisco and the second pfd declined 1@2½ and a number of others 2 to much. The market was steadier at 11 o'clock, but the recoveries were slight.

The selling movement became more general and increased in activity. All of the Pacifics, Reading, Illinois Central, Amalgamated, Colorado Fuel, Tennessee Coal, Consolidated Gas, People's Gas and others suffered to the extent of a point or more. Soo lost 3½, Peoria & Eastern 3, General Electric 2½ and Ft. Worth & Denver City stamped 2½. The market railled a fraction when the selling pressure relaxed but became lethargic. General discouragement apparently prompted the selling. Bonds were heavy at noon.

Prices hardened decidedly when no new offerings were encountered and a few short sellers covered their earlier stocks more than recovered their losses. St. Paul, Metropolitan Street Railway and Delaware & Hudson led the recovery and sold a point above the lowest. Northwestern and New Haven declined 3 points each.

The market was fit and feverish. Some stocks were pressed for sale anew, while buying helped others. Only a few of the leaders fell off to any extent, notably St. Paul and Sugar, which ruled a point below yesterday's close. Both stocks were pretty full recoveries later, and the general list showed some disposition to advance. Consolidated Gas lost nearly 3 points.

Prices hardened slowly on the demand to cover from shorts. St. Paul, Missouri Pacific and Pennsylvania were lifted a shade over last night's level. Consolidated Gas rallied 2½, and New Haven, C., C., C. & St. L. dropped 3%. Hocking Valley 2¼ and Colorado & Southern, the second preferred, Canada Southern and Pere Marquette 1½@1¾. The rally was not held. The closing was heavy and lifeless.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine-Webber & Co.: There was quite a general resumption of liquidation in all markets today. The New York list ran off slightly at the opening and then met good substantial support. Except in two or three stocks that are seldom active prices held within a slight fraction of yesterday's close. There was heavy selling of Amalgamated. Copper and good buying around 64. We think the market has been pretty well liquidated and expect to see better prices in the near future.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 15.—Close: Money on call steady at 2½@3 per cent; closing 2@2½. Time money steady; 60 and 90 days, 3¾@4; six months, 4½ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4½@5½. Sterling exchange steady at $4.88 for demand and $4.85 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85½ and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84¾@4. Bar silver, 54½c. Mexican dollars, 43c. Government bonds easier; railroad bonds irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 15.—No abatement in the excitement which has made the current week one of the most notable in the history of the cotton market, was apparent in any of the three great markets this morning. At the opening there was an enormous volume of liquidation under which prices started 3 points higher to 8 points lower, with belated shorts furnishing the chief demand. Europe and spot houses were very heavy sellers, however, and prices showed increasing easiness, but were later rallied by New Orleans demand. After starting a shade easier than expected Liverpool at the hour of the local opening was about 6 points higher on the new months. Spot cotton there continued inactive demand at an advance of 6 points. The strength at Liverpool is attributed to the spot situation there, where it is said July shorts in New Orleans are endeavoring to secure actual cotton.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 10 points lower. Middling uplands, 11.50; middling gulf, 11.75; sales, 5200 bales. Cotton futures closed steady; May, 11.11; June, 10.76; July, 10.56; August, 10.35; September, 9.35; October, 8.89; November, 8.80; December, 8.79; January, 8.81.

TREASURY BALANCES.

THE CITY WINS

The Garfield Avenue Property Owners Get No Damages.

The city of Duluth has won out in the first of the Garfield avenue damage cases brought because of the new viaduct. This afternoon the jury in the case of Wille against the city, brought in a verdict for the defendant.

The plaintiff owns some property on the corner of Garfield avenue and Michigan street with a frontage of fifty feet on the avenue. He alleges that the construction of the new viaduct damaged his property in the amount of $5000 and for this sum he brought action.

There are still three other cases of the same nature pending against the city, one of the plaintiffs owning an improved lot which he claims has been damaged by the proximity of the viaduct. The other two plaintiffs own unimproved lots.

The main contention by the plaintiffs in these actions is that the viaduct has turned business from the old channels on Garfield avenue and Michigan street, that the buildings which formerly rented at good prices cannot now be rented for any price and that the viaduct, in certain cases, shuts off the light from the buildings.

The plaintiffs are represented by M. Douglas, while City Attorney Mitchell is defending the actions for the municipality.

Summer Bible School.

An interesting event of the coming summer is to be the gathering for Bible study, to be held in July, near Mellen, Wis., on thes hores of beautiful Lake Galilee, in the depths of the wild wood. Those in charge aim to make the Bible teaching feature the great attraction, and among other speakers have secured Dr. J. M. Gray, of Boston and Chicago. Dr. Gray has traveled extensively, giving lectures to large audiences, and is well known even in the West. He will be present, it is announced, early in July.

Arrangements are to be made for accommodations on the grounds at a very reasonable rate, the object being simply to offer those who are interested in the Scripture teaching an opportuntiy to attend.

The school is under the Northland and Bethany Missionary association, an undenominational affair. J. O. Buswell, of Mellen, who is well known here, is in charge. A number of Duluthians will go to the meeting.

Stole a Grip.

A grip containing mileage, orders and clothing was stolen yesterday from the Michigan street sidewalk in the rear of the St. Louis hotel.

The stolen property belonged to P. E. Murphy, a traveling man from St. Paul.

Today the police arrested three men supposed to have committed the theft —at least the trio were identified as being the same three men that were peddling mileage books about the Bowery yesterday afternoon. These suspects gave the names of James Bradley, Dennis Harrington and John Moore.

The stolen valise was found in a Northern Pacific box car all cut to pieces.

Max Wirth's Unusual Offer.

I am still selling Dr. Howard's specific at half price, 25 cents, although I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so, and anyone who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion or a general played-out condition ought to take advantage of this chance. You can tell your readers that if they are not satisfied with the specific they can come right back to my store and I will cheerfully refund their money.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Grain Charters Made at 1 1-4 Cents—Shippers Predict One Cent.

The Schooner Pretoria Is Aground and Three Feet Out of Water.

The grain rate to the lower lakes is nominally 1½ cents a bushel but no charters are being made at that figure and the breaking of the rate is almost certain. It is in fact reported that two lots of grain were placed very recently at 1¼c, although the shippers are quiet as to them. But with the knowledge that the 1¼c rate has been obtained, shippers will not be apt to pay any higher than that, especially as there does not seem to be any grain pressing for shipment. Shippers are predicting that the rate will go as low as 1 cent.

DISPOSING OF VESSELS.

Chicago, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vessel agents and a number of boats on their hands today to dispose of at 1½ cents for wheat, and at noon, they were making some progress in getting rid of them. Tonnage will be pretty well cleaned up for Sunday.

THE PRETORIA AGROUND.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Schooner Pretoria, in tow of the steamer Rappahannock, downbound, grounded on Vital shoal today. The schooner is out three feet forward, with twenty-five feet of water under her stern, and is filling rapidly. No assistance had been given to the stranded boat up to 10 o'clock.

19 EAST SUPERIOR STREET.

AT WEST DULUTH

Work on installing the new switchboard at the West Duluth central office of the Zenith Telephone company is being pushed. The new board is already in its place and connections are being made.

The wires are being buried for a block from the central office in order to avoid fires and to lessen the amount of roaring caused by the wind.

The new board is very complete in its mechanism and will enable the operator to give a much prompter and better service. The new board is arranged to accommodate 140 subscribers, and more can easily be added. The total number of subscribers in West Duluth at present is about 115, and as the present was built to accommodate only 100 subscribers the service has not been satisfactory.

Several new trunk lines between Duluth and West Duluth are also being installed. At present the company has nine trunk lines to the city. Six more are being added, making the total fifteen. I is thought that fifteen will be amply sufficient to meet all requirements, even at the busy hours, and will do away with all the trouble and annoyance caused subscribers by being compelled to wait for a trunk line. New poles are being put in on Grand avenue, Ramsey street and a number of other points in West Duluth.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

May 17, the Norwegian Independence day, will be celebrated in West Duluth by the Sons of Norway lodge, "Fram," No. 5. The day of the proclamation of the Norwegian constitution is always observed by the Norwegian people in this country as well as in Norway.

The program will be an elaborate one with speeches, music by Flaaten's orchestra and patriotic songs by the Normanna Singing society. The celebration will be at Great Eastern hall, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

THE CALIFORNIA PARTY.

The party of landseekers which will leave Monday for California held a meeting last evening to complete their arrangements. Mr. Gilman, under whose charge the party will be, is already in California making arrangements for the reception of the members. It was decided last evening to go by way of the Omaha road. They will leave Monday, arriving in San Francisco Wednesday evening. From San Francisco they will take passage on board a steamer for Eureka.

The party, which was expected to consist of about thirty, has become smaller as the time of departure draws near. Twenty only have declared their definite intention of going, but several others are wavering and it is likely that the number will be brought up to twenty-five before Monday. The majority of them are West Duluth citizens although there are several Duluth men, one from Superior and two or three from various parts of Wisconsin.

HEAVY TAN AND BLACK CHEVIOT box coat mackintoshes, silk velvet collar, silk sleeve lining, regular price $12; only $6. Others $1.50 to $10. All at exactly half price Saturday night between 7 and 9 o'clock. The Great Eastern, West Duluth.

SEVEN CHILDREN ARRESTED.

Seven West Duluth children were brought before Justice Stone last evening charged with breaking into a boat house and removing a number of oars and other boat fixtures. The warrants were sworn out by D. L. Gamach.

All of the children pleaded guilty. They were cross-examined by Justice Stone in an attempt to find out the guilty parties. They were finally allowed to go to their homes, although they have not yet been discharged.

The names of the children are: Herbert Doyle, Fred Willie, Ernest Willie, Arthur Enberg, Aggie Doyle, Edward Cheboyski and Lolla Carrie.

MACKINTOSH SALE.

Fine cape and box coat mackintoshes at exactly half price Saturday night between 7 and 9 o'clock. The Great Eastern, West Duluth.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Go to Nygren's for wall paper.

The West Duluth Commercial club will hold its regular weekly meeting this evening.

The West Duluth baseball team held a well attended practice last evening. Several of the members of the team were out in uniform, and the boys showed themselves to be in good shape for the game with Grand Rapids Sunday.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Remfrey.

Boys' long pants suits, fine black and fancy cheviots, worsteds and serges. Splendid tailoring and fit, $4 to $1. The Great Eastern, West Duluth.

The West Duluth "Hubs," the new baseball team recently organized, has secured games with one or two outside teams. The team shows every indication of having a strong string of players. New uniforms have been ordered and a game will likely be arranged with the West Duluth team.

Miss Beatrice Wilson, of Billings, Mont., is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. P. Adams, of Seventy-first avenue.

Working and dress shoes for men and boys, $1 to $5. All styles and leathers. The Great Eastern, West Duluth.

H. G. Hanson left yesterday for Idaho, where he expects to spend the summer months.

Gus Johnson, of Fifty-eighth avenue, is preparing to leave for Alberta, where he intends to take up a homestead and settle with his family.

A. C. Potter, a former resident of West Duluth, who has been engaged in the ranching business in Texas for the past two years, is in West Duluth this week visiting his old friends.

F. C. Eble, of Milwaukee, is in West Duluth today looking after his property interests in this part of the city.

THOMAS P. BROWN DEAD.

Death Occurs Suddenly at His East End Home.

Thomas P. Brown, a prominent real estate and mineral land man, died today at his home, 102 South Nineteenth avenue west. His sudden death is supposed to be due to a ruptured blood vessel.

Mr. Brown was ill yesterday and was found in the bath room in his home in a fainting condition during the afternoon. He did not fully recover from this fainting spell and along toward midnight it was apparent to those at his bedside that he was passing away.

Mr. Brown was 66 years of age and has been prominent in Duluth for a great many years. He is survived by a wife and family of grown up children—one of the married daughters being Mrs. A. C. Jamison, of Spokane.

No arrangements were announced for the funeral at a late hour today.

The Jobbers' League.

Representatives of the baseball teams of the Duluth jobbing houses met again last evening. The league will be known as the Duluth Jobbers' Baseball league. The schedule of games has not as yet been entirely completed, as some of the wholesale houses do not close Saturday afternoons until the first of June. Tomorrow the F. A. Patrick & Co. team will play the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy men, and the following Saturday the Patrick & Co. men will play the Stone-Ordean-Wells men.

A trophy will be provided for the winning team in the summer series.

LET ONE CONTRACT.

Clark-Jackson Company Will Saw 20,000,000 Feet.

S. J. Cusson, who has been here contracting for the sawing of logs taken out by the Hines Lumber company, will leave for his home in Ashland this afternoon.

Mr. Cusson let one contract for the sawing of 20,000,000 feet of logs last evening to the Clark-Jackson company.

"I do not think any more contracts will be let," said Mr. Cusson this afternoon. "This one was all that was essential at this time, and I believe that will end the contracting for the present.

"I leave for home this afternoon, and will do nothing further regarding the logs on this visit, at least."

There still remains 30,000,000 feet of logs to be placed for contract cut of the total amount that was to have been sawed at the Scofield mill this season.

OVER FIVE THOUSAND MEN ARE NOW OUT

Over Two Thousand More Quit Work In Denver.

The Building Unions to Consider Going Out.

Denver, May 16.—The joint executive committee in charge of the strike in this city issued an order early today calling out the members of unions as follows:

Cigarmakers, papermakers, pulp and paper mill workers, international firemen and engineers at mills, other mill employes, brewers, beer bottlers, retail clerks, lady clerks, mattress makers, garment workers, horse shoers, electrical workers, coopers, tobacco strippers, stage employes, barbers, tailors and bartenders. The order became effective at once and through it 2350 additional men are brought into the ranks of the strikers, swelling the number of men out to something over 5000.

The Building Trades' council has decided not to order a sympathetic strike, but has referred the matter to the unions for individual action. Special meetings will be held within the next twenty-four hours to consider the matter.

The strikers' executive committee has notified the officials of the Western Packing company that they would permit a sufficient number of men to remain at work to operate their refrigerator plant and thus protect the large supply of meat in storage, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars in value.

More than 500 new members have been initiated in the unions now out since the strike began, and with the addition of 2350 union members to the strikers' ranks today their number is increased to 5000.

A committee of the Allied Printing Trades' council, accompanied by proprietors of newspapers and job printing offices, held a conference today with the officers of the Citizens' alliance, whom they urged to agree to arbitration between employers and employes directly interested in existing troubles, as proposed by the union's executive committee.

Philadelphia, May 16.—A strike has been inaugurated in the Bible printing establishment of the National Publishing company in this city. Sixty-five members of the Bookbinders' union struck because of the refusal of the company to pay the union scale of $12 and upward weekly, according to the branch trade. More than eighty girls employed in the bindery are idle as a result of the bookbinders' strike.

James E. Cogan, business agent of the union, said: "This is the beginning of a fight against nearly all Bible making plants in this section. All we ask is a fair day's pay for a fair day's work."

New York, May 16.—There was a clash between Italian strikers and non-union men in the Bronx today, in which several persons were injured. The strikers attacked a number of men who had been engaged to take their places. A lively fight was in progress when the police arrived and dispersed the rioters.

Police were summoned to Morris avenue, in the Bronx and in Wakefield, to drive away strikers who were gathering at points where the workmen were garding. When Frank Battullo, who was arrested yesterday for using a revolver to defend himself from strikers, went to work in the Bronx today he was set upon and beaten by a gang of men. He slashed one of them, inflicting an ugly wound. Battullo was arrested but was subsequently discharged by the magistrate, who said the man had a right to defend himself.

Chicago, May 16.—A strike of butchers' clerks to enforce their demands for a ten-hour day began today when the employes of a number of shops walked out. The strike was voted upon at a meeting of the Market Butchers' union last Thursday. About 600 men are affected.

HONOR FOR SCHWAB

Residents of Homestead Give Him a Royal Reception.

On Occasion of Presentation of Free Industrial School.

Pittsburg, May 16.—All business was suspended at Homestead today and the town folks took a holiday in honor of the dedication of the C. M. Schwab Free Industrial school and the formal opening of the institution built and to be maintained by the president of the steel corporation, who but a few years ago was an employe of the Homestead Steel works. That the residents appreciated to the fullest extent the day's event was proved by the elaborate decorations. During the morning Mr. Schwab and his New York guests inspected the magnificent building, and at noon the party sat down to a luncheon prepared by the pupils of the domestic science department as their tribute to Mr. Schwab's generosity. Mr. Schwab, in presenting the building, said:

"I doubt if any man or woman here can appreciate how deeply this demonstration goes into my heart, or what a lasting impression it will make. I verily believe that no honor can come to any man that can more genuine pleasure and satisfaction than to know that the people with whom he was so long associated and from whom he has been more or less separated, still retain their love and affection for him. I want no prouder epitaph than to have it truly said that 'The working people with whom he worked, loved and honored him.' I never say 'The man who worked for me;' the men of Homestead always worked 'with' me. What an answer to those who say that men employers are not in sympathy. Homestead has seen troubles in this respect. Thank God, they are fast being forgotten, and it was my proud privilege eleven years ago, to contribute much toward bringing about that happy relation which now exists, and, I hope, always will exist.

"Ten years ago I sent for Mr. West and some other directors of this town and explained my ideas of an industrial school for this great industrial center. They received the idea enthusiastically and we started, as you know, in a small way. Thanks to the energy of the succeeding school boards, it boldly grew in favor until this new building was necessary, and it was my happy privilege to supply it. I believe that from such a school will spring the industrial genius and captains of industry for the future, and the future will place the successful captain of industry on a higher niche of fame than ever before.

"The object of this school is to teach that work to boy and girl is ennobling; to be able to do nothing is disgraceful. We hope that many young people will here develop the latent tastes and talents for such things and believe me, no course in life offers greater inducements to the future generation. The United States is to be the great industrial nation of the world and it is a proud position. It is the trained mechanic, chemist and engineer who will be the true leaders in the future of this great industrial country. Hence, persons of exceptional talent and training will be much sought after."

Mr. Schwab continued in a vein of personal reminiscences and concluded with presenting the deeds and keys of the school to the president of the school board, in behalf of Mrs. Schwab and himself.

A GLOWING TRIBUTE

Is Paid Governor Taft By His Executive Secretary.

The Philippines a Paradise, According to His Story.

San Francisco, May 16.—W. B. Winthrop, executive secretary to Governor Taft of the Philippines, has arrived here on the Siberia. He has just completed two years' service in the Orient and is home on a six months' leave of absence.

Secretary Winthrop said that Governor Taft was still at Benguet when he left, but that his health had been almost entirely restored.

"Manila," says Mr. Winthrop, "is now the cleanest city of its size in the world, with less crime than any community of which I know. The ladrones you read about in the dispatches are just about like your burglars and highwaymen, only not so numerous and more easily disposed of.

"Business in Manila is dull at present, but the agricultural department is responsible for that and the condition is only temporary. The rinderpest destroyed a great many cattle, and the agricultural methods in vogue throughout the islands are of the most elementary nature. The natives raise sugar and make it pay, and that by the crudest and most wasteful of processes. The agricultural possibilities of the islands are infinite, and with modern methods there are no reasons why the islands should not be as fruitful as any lands on earth. The recent congressional appropriation will do much to alleviate the situation.

"The labor problem is a deep one. It will be settled, however, and on the lines laid down by Governor Taft. The commission realizes that while the admission of Chinese labor would hasten the development of the country and promote the prosperity of Americans financially interested there, it would reduce the Filipino to the lowest imaginable condition. Where he has been given a chance under proper supervision he has made an excellent workman. Capt. Butt, of the land transportation department, and Maj. Aleshire, of the water transport, have both employed large numbers of natives as teamsters, longshoremen, boatmen and general laborers, and both speak highly of the Filipino's 'good qualities' in these lines of industry.

"Peace is now assured in the islands, and much of the success of the service administration is due to the wonderful personal influence of Governor Taft."

DR. AMES SENTENCED TO SIX YEARS IN PRISON

GOVERNOR LIED

When He Called Cartoonist an Outcast, Says Latter.

Will Sue Pennypacker For Libel Unless He Retracts.

Philadelphia, May 16.—Charles Nelan, cartoonist, has addressed a long letter to Governor Pennypacker, in which he complains of the use of the word "outcast" in the governor's letter on the libel bill as applied to the maker of one of Mr. Nelan's drawings. Mr. Nelan demands a prompt apology, failing to receive which he gives notice he will bring suit against the governor for libel. He says in the letter:

"I beg to say to you, sir, that when you applied this epithet to me you uttered an unqualified falsehood. I am not an 'outcast,' I am not a 'vagabond.' If you will not retract, but will agree not to plead the privilege of your position as a denfence to the wrong you have done me I will institute proceedings against you within five days, and will hurry the case to trial with the utmost expedition, so the jury in the courts and the larger jury of the people of the commonwealth may know whether I am the "outcast" you have stigmatized me, or whether you are a slanderer and libeler of an honest citizen."

ARMS FULL OF PLUNDER

St. Petersburg, May 16.—The majority of the persons arrested for participating in the anti-semitic outrages at Kishineff, Bessarabia, have been tried and sentenced to varying punishments. Although they were mostly arrested on returning to their homes after the second day's pillage with their arms full of plunder, all the prisoners protested their innocence and pleaded that they found the things in the streets and were taking them to the police station.

The Case Will Be Carried to the Supreme Court.

Former Mayor Secures Liberty Under Bonds.

Minneapolis, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—After listening to the appeal of the counsel of former Mayor A. A. Ames for mercy, Judge Elliott this morning sentenced the once powerful political leader to spend six years at hard labor in the state penitentiary. A bond og $19,000, signed by Titus Mareck, Conrad Birknofer, G. J. Heinrich, A. B. Herman, L. B. Allen, Gus Gluck and John Flannigan, was accepted by the court and Dr. Ames will not have to go to prison until the supreme court has passed on his appeal. The bondsmen are mostly brewers.

Frank Nye, attorney for Dr. Ames, made an eloquet appeal for mercy in the imposing of sentence, suggesting a belief that the jury may have thought the punishment would be only a fine and hoping that this might prove to be the case.

County Attorney Boardman had nothing to say and Judge Elliott passed the sentence at once, speaking rapidly in a tone of voice that betokened some slight agitation, but unshaken decision:

A discretion is given to the court in this case, as the maximum penalty is imprisonment for ten years and a fine of $5000. But it is a judicial discretion, to be controlled by the nature of the crime and the circumstances of its commission, and not by any personal considerations, such as the previous high standing of the defendant or his general condition at present. The jury, in pronouncing him guilty, has passed on his mental capacity. I must impose the same penalty as I should upon any other man for the same crime. The question of leniency and mercy is for the department of the state government, which has to do with granting pardons.

"The judgment of the court is that you be confined in the state prison at Stillwater at hard labor for six years."

There was no sound until County Attorney Boardman moved that all other cases against A. A. Ames be continued over the term, which was done. There are nine such.

Notice of appeal was served by Attorney Meade and a stay of execution ranted.

The defendant's new bonds aggregate $8000 on this conviction. One bond of $300, Titus Mareck, C. B. Birkhofer and G. J. Heinrich; bond of $2000, Charles Gluck and Dr. L. B. Allen; another bond of $2000, Dr. Allen and John Flannigan; bond of $1000, Dr. Allen and A. B. Hermann, druggist.

Albert Alonzo Ames was born in Garden Prairie, Boone county, Illinois, Jan. 8, 1842, being the fourth son of a family of seven boys. His parents were Alfred Elisha Ames, M. D., who died in Minneapolis in 1874, and Martha A. Ames.

In 1852 he came to Minneapolis with his brothers and parents, while the city was yet comparatively a wilderness, he being 10 years of age at that time. At 16 years of age he graduated from the high school, then located on the block where the new city hall and court house now stands. In 1857, while still attending high school, he worked in the office of the Northwestern Democrat, as "devil," and also carried papers. In the summer of 1858 he commenced the study of medicine and surgery with his father, and later on attended the Rush Medical college at Chicago, Ill., graduating with the degree of M. D., Feb. 5, 1862, at the age of 20 years.

He commenced the practice of his profession the following August, but at the call for volunteers to enter the civil war he helped to organize Company B of the Ninth Minnesota regiment, enlisting himself as a private. At this time the Indians also began to grow restless and troublesome and the men of the regiment, who had been given a fifteen-day leave of absence to return to their home and settle up their affairs, were hurriedly ordered to the frontier to quell the Indians, who by this time had become very savage and quarrelsome.

Later he was appointed assistant surgeon of the Seventh Minnesota regiment and with that regiment was ordered to report to Ridgely, at which point the greatest danger threatened. He served with his regiment for three years and was then appointed surgeon-general, when 23 years of age. At the close of the Civil war he returned to Minneapolis, but soon set out for California via the Isthmus of Panama. He entered the newspaper business in that state and shortly afterward became the managing editor of the Alta California, the leading paper of the Pacific coast. In the fall of 1874 he returned to Minneapolis, where his father was on his deathbed.

In 1876 he was elected mayor of Minneapolis. In 1882 he was again elected and was chosen again in 1884. In 1886 he was also nominated by the Democrats for governor, but did not succeed in being elected, although he reduced the Republican majority to only 2500, the lowest that had been known up to that time. He was also nominated for congress and for lieutenant governor, but failed to be elected in both instances.

In accepting the nomination for governor in 1886, he asked the support of the Democratic party in a bill which he proposed to introduce by which a soldiers' home would be erected near this city. He failed to win in the election, but the Republican party took the suggestion and the Soldiers' home stands today as a result of his hard work in that connection. For five years he served as surgeon of the institution, but later, through necessity he was forced to resign. Dr. Ames is also one of the best known fraternal men in the Mill city, belonging to almost every order represented there.

In 1900 he was again elected to the mayoralty, since which time his record is a matter of history well known by the public.

ARMENIAN REVOLUTIONISTS ALARM TURKISH AUTHORITIES

Recent Appearances of Large Bands Coming From Russia Indicate a Revival of Activity on the Part of the Old Armenian Committee.

Constantinople, May 16.—The Turkish authorities are disquieted at the recent appearance of bands of Armenian revolutionists, coming from Russia, in the districts of Bayazid and Sasun, Armenia, and are adopting rigorous measures to guard the frontier. The Armenians cross in small parties in the neighborhood of Bayazid and thence they make their way to the Sasun mountains, where they are safe from pursuit. It is alleged here that the Russian authorities of Kars, Asiatic Russia, are aware of the movement of the Armenian revolutionists, but that they do not intend to interfere. It is believed that the appearance of these bands indicates a revival of activity on the part of the old Armenian committees, who are understood to be anxious to be in a position to take advantage of possible complications arising from the Macedonian situation, in which case the claims of the Armenians will be revived and the same advantages gained by the Macedonians from European intervention will be demanded for Armenia.

The Turkish government has notified the Bulgarian exarch that Gerassimos, bishop of Strumitza, Macedonia, has been removed and has invited the exarch to appoint his successor. The exarch, however, refuses to recognize the authority of the Turkish government to remove the bishop and has advised Gerassimos, who is practically a prisoner in his own house, to remain firm. It is alleged that Bishop Gerassimos is a supporter of the Macedonian movement, but it is also stated that the charges are brought by the jealous Greek clergy. The prisons of Macedonia are overflowing with Bulgarians, the Turkish authorities hoping to thereby paralyze the action of the Macedonian committees.

It was announced today that the Turkish troops entered Ipek, Albania, yesterday and not May 2, as previously announced, after meeting with strong opposition.

CHINESE TO BE IMPORTED INTO SOUTH AFRICA TO WORK MINES

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and Mining Firms Agree That There Is No Other Solution of the Existing Labor Difficulties Possible.

London, May 16.—The importation of Chinese labor into South Africa was decided upon in principle some time ago, but no definite plans have yet been formed regarding the number to be imported, nor the conditions to govern the importation. Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and the big firms of the Rand are in agreement that no other solution of the labor difficulties is possible. At present half the stamps at the mines are idle because only 50,000 Kaffirs are procurable, when 150,000 men are required. As a consequence, the conditions at Johannesburg are daily growing worse and business is slack. White laborers flocked there at the close of the war, but they were unable to find satisfactory employment, and discontent is rife. This suits the Rand magnates, who are loath to accept the sole responsibility for introducing yellow labor, and hope that the prevailing paralysis of trade will soon lead to a popular demand for the importation of even the "hated Chinese," so that the mines may be set working at their full capacity, with a consequent revival of business depending thereon. Up to the present, however, the trading population of South Africa is bitterly opposed to the importation of Chinese.

GOVERNOR OF BULACAN, P. I., MAKES A GLOWING REPORT

Washington, May 16.—The bureau of insular affairs of the war department has received the annual report of Senor Pablo Tecson, governor of the province of Bulacan, P. I., for the year 1902. The report says:

"The political situation of the province could not be more satisfactory. Since I took possesssion of the government there has not been noted the least perturbation of public order, but on the other hand, I have observed that American sovereignty is now so firmly established that it is reflected in the confidence and faith which the inhabitants feel when they see the efforts the government makes in carrying out their exceedingly favorable promise.

"As an eloquent proof of this, we cite the ease with which the taxes were collected, especially the land tax, which is so new in this country, and to the payment of which the province responded with such patriotism, without offering the least opposition, notwithstanding the agricultural crisis through which it has passed and is now passing. Small bands of Ladrones, the remains of the past revolution, still exist in the province, engaged in stealing animals, making highway assaults upon isolated roads and settlements, but having, however, no political significance. These small bands are fast disappearing, owing to the constant prosecution of the constabulary, local police and the provincial volunteers."

The governor mentions how agriculture has suffered from the loss of animals and the plague of locusts. He also gives quite a list of bridges, both of wood and stone, that have been constructed and roads that have been improved.

In speaking of public instruction he reports that education has not developed as it should for the following reasons:

1. The scarcity of Filipino teachers, who should be paid by the municipalities.

2. The lack of a law compelling the attendance of children when their parents, through apathy or ancient custom, do not wish to send their children to school.

3. The continuous calamities that have befallen this province during the year 1902.

He urges that Filipino teachers be assigned to asssist the Americans in their task of teaching English.

"The hygienic condition of the province," adds the report, "is highly satisfactory, and this is due doubtless to the persevering and intelligent efforts of the president of the provisional board of health, seconded by the municipalities who enforce the sanitary laws in their respective jurisdictions. In the cholera epidemic just past the provincial president was found lending his personal aid in the most infected pueblos of the province. There occurred only 1520 deaths from cholera in the whole province, which contains approximately 214,000 inhabitants."

CHICAGO TO CELEBRATE

Elaborate Plans For Centennial Celebration In September.

Chicago, May 16.—The entertainment committee of the Chicago centennial celebration has mapped out an elaborate and interesting program for every day and night between Sept. 6 and Oct. 1. There will be an illuminated night industrial parade, an illuminated automobile parade at night, a military pageant, automobile races and an athletic tournament, water polo, swimming races, rowing regattas and centennial yacht races for championship trophies. Arrangements will be made for an old settlers' reunion, which probably will take place under a huge canvas on the lake front, and also for centennial religious exercises in all the churches. The two most important features of the celebration, however, will be the monster naval battle off the lake front on the first night of the jubilee, and the reproduction of Chicago of 1803, on the new ground of the lake front east of the Illinois Central tracks, at Van Buren street and Jackson boulevard.

In the naval battle it is anticipated that all of the government boats on the lake will participate, and the fight will be made realistic by the destruction of several vessels expressly constructed for this purpose.

The reproduction of old Fort Dearborn will take the form of an Indian village inhabited by 400 Ojibways, Pottawattomies and Menomines, which will come to Chicago from Canada for this special purpose. These are the tribes that inhabited Chicago when John Kinzie arrived here 100 years ago. In coming from Canada it is proposed that the Indians make their first stop at Milwaukee, finishing the trip to Chicago along the lake shore in their canoes, making stops at Racine, Waukegan, Kenosha and other points.

An active canvas will begin next week for subscriptions to defray the expenses of the celebration.

SYBIL SANDERSON, THE SINGER, DIES SUDDENLY IN PARIS

Death Was Caused By Pneumonia Which Resulted From an Attack of the Grip Which She Experienced a Few Weeks Ago.

Paris, May 16.—Sybil Sanderson, the well known American opera singer, died suddenly today of pneumonia resulting from an attack of the grip.

The announcement of the death of the famous artist caused a profound shock in the American colony here, where she was well known, and throughout musical and theatrical circles. She returned to Paris from Nice six weeks ago, suffering from a slight attack of the grip. Her condition was not regarded as serious, but she gradually grew worse and her sickness finally developed into pneumonia. The doctors continued to hold out hopes of her recovery, but the singer sank and finally succumbed this morning. Miss Sanderson's mother, the widow of Judge Sanderson, of California, with whom she lived in apartments at No. 1 Avenue Du Bois De Boulogne and other relatives and friends, were present at the time of her death, including her sisters Edith and Marion and Mary Garden, of Chicago, the soprano of the Opera Comique.

Miss Sanderson, according to report, was to have been married this summer to Count Paul Tolstoi, a cousin of the Russian novelist.

The funeral of Miss Sanderson will take place here on Monday.

Miss Garden said Miss Sanderson, who had been unconscious since Thursday evening and had suffered great pain, regained her senses before death came, although she passed away quietly in her sleep.

A NEW COMMISSION TO TRY TO CONSOLIDATE BUREAUS

Secretary Cortelyou Names a Board to Straighten Out Matters and Officers For the New Department of Commerce and Labor.

Washington, May 16.—Secretary Cortelyou, of the department of commerce and labor, has appointed a commission to rearrange the statistical work of the bureau and officers confided to the department and to consolidate any of the statistical bureaus of offices transferred to the department by the law creating it.

Following is the personnel of the commission, which is composed of chiefs of bureaus, either now or after July 1, to be of the department of commerce and labor: Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, chairman; S. N. D. North, director of the census, chairman; James R. Garfield, commissioner of corporations; O. H. Tittman, superintendent of coast and geologic survey; George M. Bowers, commissioner general of immigration; O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics; Frank H. Hitchcock, chief clerk, department of commerce and labor, secretary.

Secretary Cortelyou in appointing the commission and directing its work, is carrying into effect a part of the law creating his department. The work of the commission will be in the line of economical administration and scientific regulation of the collection and publication of statistical matter.

THREE AMERICAN SOLDIERS BOLOED

Manila, May 16.—Capt. Clough Overton of the Fifteenth cavalry and Private Harry Noyes were killed and Private Harlow was wounded yesterday in a bolo rush at Sueatlan. No details of the fighting have been received beyond a brief telegram reporting the death. It is said that six of the enemy were killed. It is thought the natives approached Capt. Overton's command, pretending friendship, and then attacked the Americans.

About 300 insurgents, armed with bolos, resisted the landing of a force of scouts at Catalman, Camiguin island, Tuesday. They charged the scouts and wounded two of them. It required an hour to disperse the insurgents. Twelve of the latter were killed and many were wounded. The scouts, whose gallantry has been commended, are pursuing the insurgents.

Washington, May 16.—Capt. Overton was a native of Indiana. He was appointed to the military academy from Texas in 1884. Harry C. Noyes, the private killed, enlisted in troop D, Fifteenth cavalry, at Cincinnati, Ohio.

MRS. LORILLARD'S LOSS IS HEAVY

London, May 16.—The loss of Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, who is reported to have been robbed of $50,000 worth of jewels, amounts probably to a far greater sum than at first reported. Mrs. Lorillard lost all her jewelry, except what she was wearing, and a letter of credit and other valuables. The robbery occurred at the Berkeley hotel, to which place two men followed Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard all the way from Monte Carlo. The thieves evidently waited for a favorable opportunity to commit the robbery and have now gone off with the valuables. The police have no clue to their whereabouts, but Mrs. Lorillard now remembers meeting, at various points of the journey, the two suspects, and seeing them again when she arrived in London.

SHAMROCKS TO CROSS OCEAN SOON

Gourock, Scotland, May 16.—The final race between the Shamrocks on this side of the Atlantic had been arranged for today but the severity of the weather prevented the yachts from leaving their moorings.

Sir Thomas Lipton, in expressing his regret, said to a reporter of the Associated Press: "I would have liked at least one more trial in fresh weather. This, however, is no time to take risks. The yachts, therefore, will immediately be stripped and prepared for the voyage across the Atlantic. I am quite satisfied with the challenger's work in every kind of weather in which she has sailed."

THREE MEN DROWNED IN KLONDIKE

Dawson, May 16.—Three men were drowned at the mouth of the Klondike river by the overturning of a canoe. They were:

WILLIAM BAILEY, aged 30 years.
JOHN HAGLAN, aged 36.
JOHN FRANK.

Navigation on the Yukon has opened. The steamer Thistle was the first to start. She is now en route for Lebarge, loaded to the guards with passengers and freight and bringing the mails. She is escorting five heavily-laden scows. Steamers are in commission everywhere this side of Lebarge, and a steamer from that port is expected in Dawson Wednesday.

AMONG THE ROADS

Double Tracking of Stony Brook Line Is Being Pushed.

Steel Laying Is Underway —Milwaukee Industrial Commissioner.

Work is well under way on the double tracking of the lower end of the Great Northern's Stony Brook line, and the steel will probably all be laid by the middle of next month.

The work should have been finished last fall, but the lack of steel and the failure of material to arrive caused its delay.

Assistant General Superintendent Phibin, of the Great Northern, who has this work in charge, says the steel is being laid, and that there is no more chance of delay, since the strike has been declared off.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER.

W. B. Davenport Gets That Position With Milwaukee.

W. B. Davenport has been appointed industrial commissioner of the Milwaukee road, according to circulars received in Duluth today. He succeeds Louis Jackson, who has left the road and has taken a similar position with the Erie Railroad company. The business of the industrial commissioner is to look up industries at points away from the lines of his railroad and induce them to locate at some point on the line he represents.

Mr. Jackson has been eminently successful in this position, and has secured for Minnesota hundreds of manufactories and other industries from the East.

Mr. Davenport has been in charge of the Iowa division of the Milwaukee road at Des Moines for the past eight months.

Mr. Hannaford's Secretary.

Announcement was made at the office of the Northern Pacific railway this morning that J. F. Simont, who has been the private secretary of Assistant General Freight Agent H. E. Still, has been appointed private secretary of J. M. Hannaford, traffic manager of the road. Mr. Simont takes the place of W. E. Blair, former private secretary of Mr. Hannaford, who is now the division freight agent of the road in Montana.

MARCO LINGI FOUND GUILTY

Assault In the Second Degree—Tanko Trial Monday.

Marco Luigi has been found guilty of assault in the second degree. The jury returned a verdict after being out about ten minutes this morning. Luigi is a resident of Eveleth and was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of assault in the first degree. The information against him was that he shot Tony Stefonetti at Eveleth, April 12.

Luigi's case was begun yesterday afternoon and finished this morning. The evidence against the defendant by the state was that he went to the boarding house at which Stefonetti and his brother Velo stopped, and going in, had trouble with the boarders. This was on Easter day, and the Italians had been celebrating. Luigi finally left the house, but returned later and asked for Velo, who had retired. Tony Stefonetti heard Luigi asking for his brother and went into the hallway, where Luigi met him, and, drawing a short-barreled shotgun, shot Tony through the shoulder.

The defense claimed that Luigi did not shoot Stefonetti until he had been assaulted. It was alleged that the defendant had been made the sport of the boarding house, and discovered that his face had been blackened when he left the boarding house. He claimed to have returned to ask an explanation, when he was struck in the face and fired the shot over his shoulder, but not with the intent to kill anybody. Luigi claimed he carried the gun merely for protection, as he was going to a distant part of the town to see a relative.

There were no criminal cases set for trial this afternoon. John Tanko's case will be the first called for trial next Monday. Murder is the charge.

In the civil cases the action of the Finnish Mercantile company against its former president, Adolph Pernu, is on trial in Judge Ensign's room. The firm claims that its former president contracted some debts, and claims the amount is $500. The defendant claims the amount is only $200. The case is being tried before the court, the jury having been excused until Monday.

GIVEN A LUNCHEON.

Gifford Pinchot and Judge Morris at Commercial Club.

Gifford Pinchot, of Washington, D. C., head of the bureau of forestry of the agricultural department, returned from St. Paul this morning and is talking with Duluth men and land office officials regarding the plans for segregation of the forest lands in the Cass Lake reservation, to create the forest reserve provided for in the act of congress by which the reservation is to be opened to settlers. He has taken copious notes of the timber locations on the reservation, and will probably get out his diagrams here. He will leave for Washington probably tomorrow afternoon.

This noon a luncheon was tendered Mr. Pinchot and Judge Page Morris, of whom he is a guest, at the Commercial club. Those present were: Gifford Pinchot, Judge Page Morris, W. A. McGonagle, Millie Bunnell, T. W. Hugo, John Millen, Edwin H. Eddy, T. D. Merrill, F. A. Patrick, A. H. Comstock, A. L. Ordean, G. G. Hartley, M. H. Alworth, A. B. Wolvin, W. J. Olcott, F. L. HAS INTERESTS HERE.

W. F. Norton of Kentucky Dies In California.

Word was received today from San Diego, Cal., of the death of Capt. William F. Norton, Jr., of Louisville, at Coronado, near San Diego, where he has been for several months in quest of health.

Capt. Norton, with G. W. Norton, also of Louisville, was interested in the Norton estate, which owns a large amount of property in this city. He was the son of W. F. Norton, Sr., now deceased, and a cousin of G. W. Norton, Jr., who is a son of the late G. W. Norton, Sr., the two elder Nortons having founded the estate.

The brothers purchased land in Superior in 1855 and 1856, and bought into Duluth in 1870. After the panic of 1873 they bought still more, and the estate has been a large holder of property here for years. Judge J. R. Carey, who is at present in California, is the Duluth agent of the estate.

The elder Nortons were prominent in Kentucky, and the bank in which they were interested during the panic of 1857 had the distinction of paying dollar for dollar, something a large number of banks in that day failed to do as a result of the panic.

FOR JEWISH BENEFIT.

Chinese Theater Gives Performance For Relief Fund.

Those who are working in Duluth for the fund for the relief of Jewish sufferers in Jerusalem are wishing they could excite as much interest as there is in New York. A Jewish paper recently received from there contains an account of a benefit at a Chinese theater in aid of the fund, where a Chinese company produced "The Lost Ten Tribes" three times, the first performance beginning at 6 o'clock and the third ending at 2 o'clock in the morning. The audience was the largest the theater ever had. The benefit was arranged by an Americanized Chinaman.

CELEBRATE THE DAY

Norwegians Will Observe Norway's National Independence Day.

"Fram" and "Nortun" Lodges, Sons of Norway, Both Assist.

Tomorrow, Norway's independence day, will be celebrated by the local lodges of the Sons of Norway both in West Duluth and Duluth.

Tonight "Fram" lodge, Sons of Norway, will celebrate at Great Eastern hall, West Duluth, and tomorrow afternoon "Frami" lodge will join with "Northun" lodge in a celebration in the Armory. Both events will be assisted by the Normanna Singing society, and the Armory celebration will have Flaaten's orchestra as one of the features.

The constitution under which Norway is governed today was adopted by the Norwegian storthing May 17, 1814, and this is the event that is celebrated. The day is as dear to Norwegians as the Fourth of July is to Americans, and it has similar associations, as it marked the release of Norway from Danish rule.

The program of the West Duluth celebration includes music by the orchestra, the Normanna Singing society and C. H. Giddings, with speeches by L. J. Nordhelm, J. E. Erikson and others. The program for the Armory exercises, which begin at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, are as follows:

Norwegian folk songs.....
Flaaten's Orchestra.
Song—"Jeg Vil Vaerge Mit Land"
Normanna Singing Society.
Speech.....
John L. Erikson.
Vocal solo.....
Miss Prytz.
Speech.....
Rev. N. B. Tvedt.
Song—"Naar Fjordene Blaaner"..
Normanna Singing Society.
"Old Memories of Norway".....
Flaaten's Orchestra.
"Ja Vi Elsker".....
Normanna Singing Society, Flaaten's Orchestra and Sons of Norway.

TOO FREE WITH TALK.

Alles Abalan, the Assyrian, Gets a Fine.

A loquacious Assyrian named Alles Abalan talked himself into $12 worth of trouble in the municipal court yesterday.

Two terrible Turks were put under bonds of $100 as a guarantee that they would not kill Abalan's brother-in-law for a period of six months, despite a tremendous yearning to interfere with his heart movement at sight.

Abalan thrilled some wierd monologue about the wheels of justice revolving in the wrong direction, apparently under the impression that the offending Turks should be beheaded.

Judge Windom advised him to be cautious in his statements, but the loquacious one persisted in disturbing conversation as he hastened toward the door.

"Be careful or I'll have to fine you," said the court.

"Well, you'll have to fine me, then," replied Abalan, as he sought to get out of the room.

"Officer, arrest that man," was the court's rejoinder, and Officer Edward Jensen sent Abalan spinning back into the court room so quickly that he forgot to open his mouth.

A fine of $10 and cost was imposed and paid and the foreigner went on his way regretting.

ON ROLL OF HONOR.

Duluth Bank One of Two on Financier's List.

The First National bank of Duluth has the distinction of being one of only two banks in Minnesota to find a place on the roll of honor of the national banks of the United States, published as a supplement to the Financier, a New York financial publication. The banks on the roll of honor include those whose surplus and undivided profits are in excess of the capital stock. There are 592 of them in the country, and only two in Minnesota. The other is the First National of Luverne, which ranks first, but which is a small bank of $50,000 capital, while the Duluth bank has $500,000 capital.

LAZY COFFEE.
Another Name for the "Sloppy" Sort.
Postum Coffee is not made like ordinary coffee for it takes at least 25 minutes' cooking to bring out the heavy food value of Postum. It requires some effort for those things which are really worth while—making Postum requires a little care.
The grocer is in a position to hear of those lazy ones who will not take the trouble to make Postum correctly. "I am well acquainted indeed with Postum," says a grocer of Camden, N. J., "for I meet it not only at my breakfast table but I am also associated with it daily in my business.
"Coffee drinking used to affect my nerves and stomach, but since we have been using Postum in our family in place of coffee the bloated feeling after eating has ddisappeared and my head is now clear and stomach and nerves all right. We all feel better in every way and find Postum just as satisfactory to our palates.
"I have met customers who complained that Postum was not good, but we always found this due to the fact that they tried to make it as they used to make coffee. Of course we set them right by pointing out the reasons, telling them they must boil Postum 15 or 20 minutes after boiling commences, then they get fine, choice and delicious Postum." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

CONCESSIONS FOR DULUTH

Which Will Enable the Postal Delivery to Be Improved.

Washington, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was finally decided today by the postoffice department to allow Postmaster E. L. Fisher six additional letter carriers from July 1 to maintain and improve the service at Duluth and also to give Postmaster Fisher an increase of $50 per month for horse hire. These concessions in favor of Duluth are made upon the recommendations of W. G. Edens, who visited Duluth in March. The additional force will enable Postmaster Fisher to completely re-district the free delivery routes and will give a force sufficient to make four collections daily instead of three as now, and there will be a night collection of mail in outlying districts also.

Found Not Guilty.

Martin Brosius, who was tried in Judge Dibell's room on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, was found not guilty, the verdict being returned by the jury late yesterday afternoon. Brosius was charged with stealing a gold watch from a loan company. He is still held under another indictment charged with grand larceny in the first degree.

The Tanko murder trial will come up in district court next Monday morning. Tanko is alleged to have shot and killed George Bollich at Chisholm last March. Tanko will be defended by R. J. Dowdall.

Junior Class Wins.

The junior class of the high school defeated the sophomores in a practice game of baseball at Lester Park this morning by a score of 13 to 10.

The sophomores are in training for a game with the freshmen in the near future and despite the fact that they were defeated by Capt. Michaud's men this morning, they still feel that they will have little difficulty in defeating the first year men.

The juniors are not to play any regular class ball, but have organized to give the other teams practice.

GOVERNMENT CAN DO NOTHING

Has No Warrant For Interferring In Jewish Massacre.

Washington, May 16.—Marked copies of Jewish newspapers and personal representations are pouring in upon the state department related to the reported killing and maltreatment of Jews in Bessarabia. Some at least of these show misunderstanding of the situation and of the limitations of the powers of the state department in dealing with the matter. Ambassador McCormick has been criticised for denying that any massacre occurred. It is said at the department that the ambassador made no statement of his own on the subject; he simply transmitted textually the reply of the Russian government to a request made by the United States that relief funds be admitted for distribution among the sufferers. The Russian government's reply, published at the time, was that there was no such suffering as had been reported and no occasion for relief. Mr. McCormick could not question the veracity of his official informant and he sent the denial along without comment, distinctly placing it upon the Russian government. The state department feels that it can do no more than it has done in the cause of the oppressed Jews. It has not learned officially that a single one of them is an American citizen, so it has no warrant for interference.

ADVISED TO LEAVE.

Richmond Judge Talks Plainly to Negro Boaster.

Richmond, Va., May 15.—"You had better get back to Pennsylvania right away or you may find your body ornamenting a lamp post some fine morning," said Police Justice Crutchfield to Robert Williams, an intelligent negro, yesterday. "The charge against you is dimissed. I don't blame you," he continued, addressing Harry Barber, a stoutly built young white man.

The cause of it all, according to stories told in court, was that Williams had boasted of being on terms of equality with white girls in Philadelphia.

"He told me," said Barber, "that he had sat beside white girls in Pennsylvania schools, and then escorted some of them home under his umbrella I argued with him until I could stand it no longer and then I knocked him down with an iron bar."

"If he had not acted as he did," interposed Barber's lawyer, "I should ask your honor to lock Barber up."

Williams denied having made any claim to social equality, but the judge did not believe him, and disposed of the case as above indicated. A large crowd heard the decision, and it seemed to be fully approved by all.

AUTO AIDED CUPID.

Father Fleming of Boston Was Outwitted.

Boston, May 16.—Captain Charles Senter, instructor of the military academy at Nyac, N. Y., and Miss Martha Fleming, daughter of a wealthy banker of this city, were married here yesterday. Miss Fleming's father did not approve of the match and she was placed in Notre Dame convent. She was 18 years old yesterday and so had a right to marry without her parents' consent, and the captain took advantage of the fact.

Captain Senter drove up to the convent grounds in an automobile. Miss Fleming jumped in and the couple sped away to the house of Rev. Chester G. Miller, three miles distant, where they were married. Coming down town they went to a hotel and sent a telegram and a letter to the girl's father. Miss Fleming is reputed to be an heiress to $200,000, while Captain Senter is said to have recently fallen heir to $40,00.

MAKE NEW OFFER

Bitulithic Paving People Would Do Superior Street Paving.

Cut 20 Per Cent If Asphalt Contract Is Held Up.

Bitulithic paving people say if the courts grant an injunction restraining the Barber Asphalt company from going a head with the East Superior street contract, they will guarantee the improvement with bituminous macadam at a saving of 20 per cent under the contract price for asphalt.

Mayor Hugo today received a telefram from Fred Warren, of the Warren Bros. company, saying:

"If Barber contract is canceled we will agree on municipal plan recently suggested to you, which will save property owners 20 per cent or more on the contract price agreed to be paid the Barber company."

The municipal plan referred to by Mr. Warren is his proposition to sell the city a stationary mixing plant for $7000 and Warren patent bitulithic cement at 60 cents a yard.

The city is not disposed to accept this offer, preferring a portable mixing plant and the right to make its own bitumen from the coal tar product of the proposed West Duluth coke ovens.

As for the Barber contract, the city officers are unwilling to see it canceled at this time, though a number of property owners have asked the court for an injunctional order restraining the concern from carrying out the contract.

The work of paving is already under way between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues, and although the city officers are as a rule strongly opposed to asphalt, the contract was let on a petition of 25 per cent of the property owners, owning 25 per cent of the property to be assessed, and a delay now means the leaving of the street in bad condition all summer, in addition to tying up considerable working capital of the permanent improvement revolving fund.

DECLARED SANE

After Spending Twenty-One Years In Asylums.

La Crosse, Wis., May 16.—Henry Wicks, once a wealthy farmer of Chipmunk coulee, near here, has upon re-examination, been declared sane, after having spent twenty-one years in the insane asylum. Drs. Rowells and Maurier conducted an examination at the direction of County Judge Brindley. The former declares that he believes Wicks was never insane. He was committed for an attempt to commit suicide while drunk.

A year after he was declared insane, in 1882, his wife secured a divorce and married A. Herman, who had been a hired man on the Wicks farm. Subsequently all the property of Wicks fell into the hands of Herman.

The examining physicians, while declaring him sane, refuse, without Judge Brindley's consent, to liberate Wicks until it can be assured that he will have no opportunity to murder his wife, children and Herman.

CANADA ADOPTS

The Plan of Subsidizing Dry Docks.

Ottawa, Ont., May 16.—For the purpose of equipping the lakes and the Atlantic and Pacific coasts with dry docks capable of accommodating the heaviest steamships, the government has offered a resolution in the commons authorizing the payment of subsidies to approved undertakings of this sort.

These will not exceed 3 per cent of the cost of the work during twenty years from the time of completion and acceptance. No such subsidy is to exceed $50,000 a year. The motion was carried. The first two docks to be undertaken under this resolution, it is understood, will be at Collingwood and St. John, N. B.

MAD WITH CARNEGIE

The Citizens of St. John, N. B., May Refuse Library.

St. John, N. B., May 16.—The interview with Andrew Carnegie, published in English papers this week, in which Mr. Carnegie is quoted as expressing opinions considered unfavorable to Canada, is causing a stir in this city, which had accepted $50,000 from Mr. Carnegie for the erection of a library, and the citizens are advocating the cancellation of the acceptance of the gift. At the time the offer from Mr. Carnegie was made there was strong opposition to taking the money, and the ultimate decision of the city to accept the fund was followed by the resignation from the library commission of Frank W. Hathaway, a prominent citizen. The interview has caused renewed agitation, and several leading citizens have taken the lead in a movement to have the library fund declined, although a site has been purchased and plans for the building have been prepared.

A mass meeting to discuss the matter will be held soon. Mayor White announces that if the citizens so desire, the money will be declined and the library plans destroyed.

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS.

New York May 16.—The steamer St. Paul from Southampton was reported off Nantucket lightship at 3:20 a. m. today.

The steamer Etruria from Liverpool was reported forty miles east off Nantucket light at 2 a. m. today.

New York: Arrived—Island, Copenhagen; Cedric, Liverpool.

Queenstown, May 16.—A wireless message from the Cunard liner Umbria, from New York May 9, was received at Crookhaven today saying: "All well. Expect to arrive at Queenstown at 3:30 p. m." The Umbria is the steamer on board of which an attempt was made to ship an infernal machine at New York just previous to her sailing.

TERROR IS CAUSED

By Mysterious and Dangerous Wild Beast In Missouri.

Its Eyes Are Described to Be Like Small Headlights.

Bevier, Mo., May 16.—The people of Prairie school district, a few miles north of here, are intensely excited over a mysterious wild animal that has been prowling around the neighborhood for several weeks.

While calves, sheep and dogs were its only victims, the undomesticated visitor was not taken very gravely, but after it had attacked John Mullinx while he was on horseback, the people stopped going out at night and every door and window in the lower story of houses are strongly fastened and barred.

One night last week Mullinx was riding his horse at an easy canter toward town when the animal leaped from the roadside embankment, and, striking him fairly on the side, fastened its claws in his breast and arms. The horse gave a mighty leap and the horseman hit his assailant square in the head with the butt of his riding whip. It fell to the ground, and Mullinx beat the racetrack record in getting out of the dangerous vicinity. He related his experience to friends when he got to town, showing his torn coat.

W. E. Mosel, teacher of Prairie school, said on damp nights he could hear the wild cry of the animal somewhere along the ravine, and it was the most peculiar noise he ever heard made by animal kind. It was a plaintive, faraway shriek, like some human being in mortal agons.

Incidents of encounters with the beast are numerous, before its dangerous characteristics were generally known a party of coon hunters were out on Middle Fork. They sighted a large animal up a tree, and, thinking it would come down eventually, built up a big fire and went to sleep, leaving the dogs on guard.

They were awakened about midnight by the noise of a terrific encounter between the dogs and their prey. Two of the dogs had been disabled by the ferocious beast and the other two would have experienced the same fate had not the hunters, with clubbed guns, beat it off. It slowly made off to the woods, howling defiance in its queer voice. Then the hunters knew it was not a coon they had treed, and concluding they had not lost any wild animals, returned home.

Several of Thomas Risiers children were on the highway one night when they ran across the mysterious outlaw. They had a couple of hand lanterns, and although they did not wait long to make a close inspection, their description is the best so far turned in.

They were more impressed with its eyes than anything else, which they said "glowed like small headlights." The animal was long—much larger than a wildcat—and appeared "yellowish and white." It was not taller than an ordinary dog, but seemed to cover the earth in great bounds as it crossed from one side of the road to the other.

Mr. Morris has abandoned all the evening literary entertainments at the school house because nobody will dare venture out after dark. Of course parties have been organized to capture the beast, but the only result so far has been the massacre of dogs. A meeting will be held by the farmers at the schoolhouse this week for the purpose of organizing a systematic effort to capture, dead or alive, the elusive and dangerous invader.

A few years ago a small overland circus was here, and one night an accident occurred by which a few of the animals escaped, but this would hardly account for the presence of the beast that is now harassing the neighborhood, as no animals were seen directly after the mishap to the show.

I. O. O. F., of Washington.

Moses B. Crane, Secretary I. O. O. F., writes from Tacoma, Wash.:

"I can endorse Peruna as a cure for kidney troubles as it affords speedy and satisfactory results."—Moses B. Crane.

Past State Counsellor, Kansas City.

Mr. Marshal Polland, No. 521 Ohio Ave., Kansas City, Kansas, is Past State Counselor of Juniors Order of United American Mechanics, and is National Representative of the same. He writes as follows:

"Four doctors tried their best to cure me of rheumatism without success. What they failed to do Peruna did in a few short months and I have all the faith in the world in this great medicine to cure this torturing and most distressing disease. It regulated my entire system, drove the uric acid out of my blood, increased my appetite and restored my vital forces, until I felt as thought I could work from morning until night without the least weariness."

American Anti-Treat Society of Minn.

Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary American Anti-Treat Society, of St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine competent to do all it claims. I have used it several times in cases of severe colds and catarrh and know of nothing that cures so completely and at the same time builds up the system."—Joseph H. Ridgeway.

Woman's Benevolent Association of Chicago.

Mrs. Harriet A. S. Marsh, president Woman's Benevolent Association, of 327 Jackson Park Terrace, Woodlawn, Chicago, Ill., says:

"I suffered with la grippe for seven weeks and nothing helped me until I tried Peruna. I felt at once that I had at last secured the right medicine and kept steadily improving. Within three weeks I was fully restored."—Harriet A. S. Marsh.

Lake View Lodge of Foresters.

Wm. Ubelaker, President Lake View Lodge of Foresters, writes from 3327 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.:

"When I have been exposed to wet or inclement weather my chest would hurt me serious indigestion and I would have and I would be laid up for a day or two, causing inconvenience and pain. One of my lodge friends advised me try Peruna, as it had helped him, and I found that a bottle cured me. If I feel badly now I at once take two or three doses, and I find it keeps me in fine health."—Wm. Ubelaker.

Valkrein Association.

Mrs. Catherine Toft, President Valkrein Association writes from 5648 Cottage Grove ave., Chicago, Ill.:

"It has been my privilege to advise a number of my friends concerning the best medicine in cases of a worn out constitution. I know of nothing better than Peruna in cases of catarrh of the stomach, and for liver trouble it is of superior merit. I gladly endorse it."—Catherine Toft.

W. C. T. U. of Illinois.

Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty, recent superintendent of W. C. T. U. headquarters at Galesburg, Ill., writes as follows from 401 Sixty-seventh st., W., Chicago, Ill.:

"My health failed me a few years ago. I took Peruna and am well."

Royal Templars of Temperance.

Hon. John Elliott President Royal Templars of Temperance writes from 1216 Ellsworth St., Philadelphia, Pa.:

"I have found Peruna of much help in cases of catarrhal trouble, also in kidney and bladder diseases. I can recommend it to all."—John Elliott.

IN COPPER CIRCLES

Gratifying Story of Growth Told By Copper Range Report.

Elm River People Sinking New Shaft on Winona Lode.

Houghton, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual report of the Copper Range Consolidated company tells a gratifying story of growth and sound business gains. The railroad is doing a far larger business than had been hoped for by any but the enthusiasts, and the Baltic and Champion mines are already copper producers of no mean importance with even brighter prospects for the future. The success of the Copper Range company should be begrudged by no friend of the lake district, for to this company is due the opening of the great mineral, timber and agricultural domain lying between Houghton and the Ontonagon river. Any corporation that goes into a wilderness and converts the uninhabited forest into a chain of thriving towns, within four years, is entitled to all it makes even though the profits already earned, and to be made in the future, are as princely as those of the Copper Range Consolidated.

The Elm River people have taken another tack, or rather have gone back to the course first laid, and are sinking a new shaft on what is thought to be the Winona lode. The friends of the Winona persist in thinking that the Winona amygdaloid is the southern continuation of the Baltic lode, and may be correct in their opinion, though the evidence pro and con is so scanty that it is rather rash to deny or affirm the identity of these mineral bodies. Matters at the Winona are continuing satisfactorily and the management has strong hope of making a mine of the property in time.

The diamond drill explorations in the lake district are producing nothing of especial promise. It is a rather remarkable fact that the diamond drill has never brought in an important new mine in the lake copper district, though the most extensive use of this drill made on the American continent is to be noted on the Mesaba iron range, lying on the northern span of Lake Superior, 200 miles to the westward of Houghton. The lake iron and copper districts are really the home of the diamond drill, which was first used in the local mines, and Lake Superior men, are found in charge of diamond drill operations in every important mining field of the world. It seems a strange fact that the diamond drill must cut cores from either the worst or the best of the supriferous rock traversed, and many are the tales—well founded tales—told of the vagaries of this probe. As an example, the Tamarack shafts may be cited. The diamond drill holes have invariably penetrated the very leanest portions of the conglomerate, and had Capt. John Daniell listened to the story told by the "sludge" from the drill hole in No. 1 Tamarack, the shaft would never have been bottomed—yet the shaft found remarkably rich ground on all four sides of the drill-hole. In the case of the Mayflower the exact opposite was the case, as the core brought up by the drill carried pretty much all the copper that ever existed in the lode. The core was rich—undeniably so—yet the lode was almost barren, and by no means workable, on both sides. The decreasing price of diamonds is a great relief to operators making use of the machines. At $62 per karat for black diamonds the cost of drilling ranged from $5.50 to $5 per foot in this district, and the cost of setting a single bit ran to nearly or quite $1500. A further decrease from the present price of about $50 per karat would result in more extensive use of the diamond drill, if operators can be found to run the machines, as there seems a great scarcity of experienced men for this work at present.

The Portage Lake and Bisbee, a local corporation operating in the Warren district of Arizona, has started the sinking of a shaft, and is getting permanent machinery on the ground. The Wolverine and Arizona has begun active work, and almost without exception the Cochise county mining prospects, backed by lake capital, are sinking vertical shafts as rapidly as men and money will do the work. The advent of Michigan capital has been greeted with enthusiasm by the mining men and other residents of the far Southwest, but a few of the old-timers, accustomed to the local methods of by-gone days are still in a state of bewilderment over the system pursued by Michigen men. The idea of selling all the stock in advance strikes some of the professional mining promoters of Bisbee as strange. It seems to some of them almost like flying in the face of providence not to have stock on sale at any and all times, as freely as the Yankee farmer is supposed to have let the hard cider flow in harvest time, long before the days of labor troubles in reaper factories. The better class of people in Arizona heartily appreciate the business-like methods followed by Michigan men in their Western mining operations. The Michigan idea is to secure control of promising properties, test them as quickly as is compatable with thorough work, and make them into either mines or worthless and abandoned prospects within as short a time as possible.

The Adventure mill is now running as smoothly as could be wished, and the troubles of the first few months are all over, so far as the mill is concerned, though the water supply is not yet in the best of shape. The main trouble with the Adventure is in the mine, and not in the mill, but the production of rock is being gradually increased, and the percentage of copper taken from the rock stamped is also showing a gain, both of which are encouraging indications.

It is expected that the Federal and Miskwabik companies will co-operate in the exploration of their adjoining tracts in Keweenaw county. Such seems the work can be done to the advantage of both by saving the cost of duplicating work that will tell as much if done on one property as on the other.

The accounts that have reached here of a new native copper district on the north shore of Lake Superior, in the vicinity of James bay, on an arm of Hudson bay, are not sufficiently definite to afford the basis for extended remarks or predications. It may be said, however, in a general way, that the discovery of native copper in considerable quantities in the James bay district is not essentially improbable. Newfoundland has native copper, occurring in rocks closely resembling the Keweenawan series, while native copper is being produced in considerable quantities in the maritime provinces of Canada. There seems a broad belt reaching from Newfoundland on the east to the western end of Lake Superior, in which native copper is found at occasional intervals. The Lake Superior synclinal of the cupriferous beds of the Keweenawan formation extends the full length of the lake, though all of the successful mines have been developed on the southern shore, and in the Keweenaw peninsula. Recent reports from the Weyerhaeuser-Gates exploration, fifteen miles south of Gordon, Douglas county, Wis., are that indications are not so favorable as earlier in the work.

The program of improvement begun at the Quincy mine five years ago has not been discontinued, though the heaviest and costliest work is all done. The electrification of the mine by the substitution of power trams for hand labor will be continued, and more extensive use will be made of electricity at the mill and about the surface of the mine. Other improvements are in progress and contemplated. The Quincy management has been censured for certain of its actions in the past year or two, but even its critics must admit that the president and directors have gotten one important fact fixed firmly in their heads—that fact being the aphorism that a copper mine that stands still is failing behind. A mine that has perfected itself and has permanently closed its construction account is a dead mine. The decease of the property may be disputed, and the corpse continue to hobble about for a time, but the funeral will surely come.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Chicago Record-Herald: There is a minister in Middletown, N. Y., who claims that he lives comfortably on $12 a month. We would like to know where he buys his coal and meat.

Pittsburg Chronicle: Our Lutheran president listened yesterday to a sermon preached by a Presbyterian minister in a Methodist church. If this isn't religious harmony, what is?

Washington Post: The fact is that missionary work as it is prosecuted today cannot easily be justified. There is a certain impertinence in Americans, for example, going to Germany or Mexico or China or Japan or any other country having an established religion of its own, fixed institutions, customs and ideas, for the purpose of persuading the people to reject creeds and repudiate convictions which have been handed down to them by their ancestors and in the practice of which they have found content and peace. Of course, it is perfectly clear to us that they are steeped in ignorance while we dwell in the full light of truth, but we must remember that they think differently and that they have as much right to their opinions as we have.

Springfield Republican: The interview between the pope and King Edward VII in Rome was of no special consequence in itself. They may have talked about the weather, or, what is equally harmless, the peace of the world. In a larger significance, however, the interview was worthy to be called historic. When last did a king of Protestant England visit Rome and make a friendly call on the pontiff at the Vatican? More than anything that King Edward VII has yet done, this act shows how destitute of meaning he holds those harsh passages of his coronation oath which reflect upon the religious faith of his Roman Catholic subjects. Indeed, it may be that the visit was designed to have this effect. If so, the call at the vatican was shrewdly conceived. The king's next trip to Catholic Ireland may prove how keen a stroke it was in the field of politics and government.

FUNDS ARE SECURED

Minneapolis, Superior, St. Paul & Winnipeg Road Is Financed.

Another Line From Duluth to St. Paul—An Agent Here.

Another independent railroad, tapping most important country and giving an outlet to the Canadian Northwest, seems to be assured.

The Minneapolis, Superior, St. Paul & Winnipeg Railway company, a project that was launched in 1897, has at last been financed by strong Eastern capitalists, and it is now ready to complete the survey on preliminary lines already laid out.

The projected lines include a new air line between the head of the lakes and the Twin Cities, and an almost direct line from the Twin Cities to Beaudett, connecting there with the Canadian Northern to Winnipeg. The main line will be 320 miles to Beaudett, and a branch line from Anoka to the head of the lakes will be 120 miles long, giving the road a mileage of 500 miles. The capital stock authorized is $12,500, and the 5 per cent gold mortgage bonds an equal amount. The company to have an independent line of lake freighters and independent docks at the head of the lakes.

Traffic arrangements to be made with the Canadian Northern will give the company outlet to the greta Northwest and ample provisions have been made for connections with east and southbound trunk lines at Minneapolis.

The profile of the line shows low grades with ocasional or under crossings of other railroads at Mora, Aitkin and Grand Rapids. The lake terminals will be approached without grade crossings, which insures rapidity of transportation.

The road will tap a country in Northern Minnesota almost without railway facilities, which is rich in timber, productive soil and grazing lands. Another feature of the line is the excellent facilities for outings at Mille Lacs which it will afford business men. Already St. Louis and Minneapolis citizens and those of other cities who seek summer recreation in the North have stated that when the road is open for traffic they will build summer cottages in Mille Lacs county. Hotels will be built on the lake, along the east shore.

Not less than 500,000,00 feet of hardwood lumber, hundreds of thousands of cords of hard and soft cordwood, immense quantities of pulp wood, posts, telegraph poles, ties, furniture material, etc., practically none of which can be used now, are accessible to this line. Bye means of boats on the lakes and teams the product of five mills now built, with an aggregate output of 75,000 feet, are now conveyed at great expense twenty-five to forty miles to Isle harbor for shipment by rail to Minneapolis. This will in the future come by rail. One man has already notified the officers of the road that an entire cut of 15,000 cords a year will be turned over to them for shipment and another shipper has offered twenty-five acres of timber a day.

An expert sent by those financing the project has just completed a trip over the line, in which he drove three weeks and broke the trail for 200 miles through a wild country. His report made a few days ago was so enthusiastic, both from an engineer's point of view and from the standpoint of a prospector's estimate of the tonnage tributary to the road, that the obtaining of money was an easy matter, and already terms have been definitely arranged.

Freight experts say that for the first year contracts can be made for all business that the road can handle between Duluth and the Twin Cities, and he estimate the gross passenger and freight and passenger earnings at $1,365,276.92, with net earnings at $471,847.03, and fixed charges at $141,905.30, leaving a surplus of $335,941.73.

A tabulation of estimated net earnings of the whole system is $1,001,877 which, after payment of interest, would leave a surplus of $376,877, equal to a 3 per cent dividend on the capital stock.

The officials of the road declare that for a long time the necessity of a new and independent line from Lake Superior to the two cities has been recognized by the business interests of Duluth, Superior, Minneapolis and St. Paul, and they say that the reports of the chamber of commerce of the three cities have established whatever is claimed in the road's prospectus as to the merits and necessity of the independent line between the cities. It will be the shortest line, 137 miles, against the 150, 156 and 172 miles length of other lines reaching Superior.

President S. M. Hanley says: "We are opening a vast territory tributary to the Twin Cities and our independent attitude will give them the privileges once enjoyed when the St. Paul & Duluth was an independent line, so far as our Duluth line is concerned; besides our main line up through to Canada opens up a direct line to the Canadian wheat territory and thus gives an outlet to the south, so far as Minneapolis, at least."

The present officers of the company are: President, S. M. Hanley; vice president, J. L. Lovering; secretary, H. S. Funson; chief engineer, E. C. Hollidge; general attorney, H. M. Funson; directors, S. M. Hanley, J. L. Lovering, H. M. Funson and J. J. Elliott.

The new project has been kept very quiet and for the first time leaked out yesterday. So carefully have the plans of the corporation been kept under cover that the general public and even officials connected with other roads, have been unaware that the general offices of the M., S., St. P. & W. have been maintained for years in Minneapolis and that for the past year the road has had a suite of offices on the top floor of one of the office buildings in the city.

The first intimation that anything particular was doing was July 4, 1902, when the announcement was made that E. C. Hollidge, chief engineer, had secured the signature of President Roosevelt to a bill authorizing the road to construct a bridge across the Mississippi. This spring dispatches container the news that engineers were working on the ice at Anoka. The crew would give no information and wild theories were advanced that the Soo and various other lines were contemplating some coup. Engineer Hollidge had simply set the men at work because soundings for the company's bridge could not be made except through the ice.

As far back as 1896 S. M. Hanley conceived the scheme. From that time it passed through several vicissitudes and received many hard knocks. The grade between Minneapolis and Anoka was made in 1898, the piling driven in the river and some of the culverts built. This work was done under the title of the Minneapolis & Champlin Suburban company. The intention then was to build directly north.

Later the Minneapolis & Anoka railway was organized with a capital of $100,000, which, May 17, 1902, became the Minneapolis, Superior, St. Paul & Winnipeg. The contracts were let in the name of S. M. Hanley, and work was completed within 2200 feet of Camden place, Minneapolis, or the intersection of the Soo line. The heaviest work has been done within the last two years.

At one time everything was in fine shape, and graders were at work, when, through the death of the financial backer in the East, the plan was temporarily dropped. Everything is again in shape, a great deal of the right-of-way has been purchased and arrangements have been made to take care of the business at all terminals.

President S. M. Hanley has stuck by th proposition through thick and thin. He is the only one remaining who was connected with the inception of the plan. Since the present company was organized and new blood brought into the organization he has been ably assisted by the present officers and directors, who have worked to the same end for the past two years.

President Hanley is a thorough railroad man. When 17 years old he started in the railway business with the North-Western line. He worked up through all the branches, such as station man, fireman, section hand, tracklayer, brakeman, freight conductor and passenger conductor. In 1887 he went into the employ of the Soo line and remained with the road until six years ago.

REPRESENTATIVE HERE.

Road Believed to Have One Looking Up Data.

For several days a railroad engineer has been in the city getting information and data on various plans for getting a right-of-way into Duluth.

He has introduced himself as a Mr. Gillis and when necessary to give his mission in order to get desirable records and plats, he has informed city officers and others that he is representing a well financed railroad company which is seeking an entrance to Duluth, but the name of the company for the present could not be given out.

It is now believed that Mr. Gillis represents the Minneapolis, Superior, St. Paul & Winnipeg road. He has made a very thorough investigation of the local railroad situation, inquired particularly about good uptown terminal facilities and the bridge rights in crossing the St. Louis river or bay. He even intimated on one occasion that his company would build a bridge of its own if it were deemed advisable.

Mr. Gillis obtained a number of railroad maps of the city and surrounding country and also secured a copy of the ordinances of the city granting railroad franchises.

It is said that he is well satisfied with the situation here and is of the opinion that a new road, suitably financed, can be brought into the city with little trouble. Mr. Gillis is now said to be making a similar investigation of railroad conditions over in West Superior.

Accurate Treatment Of

Men's Diseases

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

I guess at nothing. My understanding of men's diseases is so sufficient that I have no need to resort to guess work. To men's diseases alone I have devoted my entire attention for many years. I have closely studied them in every possible phase and complication. I believe there is no case that I cannot accurately diagnose. My diagnosis is the foundation of my treatment. It determines the course to pursue. As the cure progresses I carefully note developments and vary the remedies accordingly. I employ original and distinctive methods of treatment, but they are not set methods. They are pliable to meet the conditions in individual cases, and their use calls for the most delicate prescribing. That they are correct, scientific and rational methods is conclusively proven by the cures they produce.

"WEAKNESS"

That disorder commonly known as "weakness," has for years and generations baffled the efforts of physicians, yet to this very day a majority of doctors are attempting to overcome it by methods that have been in constant use and that have constantly failed for half a century. They dose the system with powerful stimulants and tonics calculated to restore nervous forces or strength that is not and never has been lacking, with a result that the functions are temporarily excited to the positive detriment of the patient. Weakness, we will call it such for convenience just now, is only a symptom resulting from a chronically swollen and inflamed prostate gland, and is curable by local treatment only. Either early dissipation or some improperly treated contracted disease is responsible for the inflammation in most instances, though accidental injury, strain, etc., may produce the same result. I have permanently cured thousands of cases of prematureness, loss of power, which demonstrates the absolute accuracy of my understanding and treatment of the disorder. In years I have not met with a single failure, and I have entire confidence in my ability to cure all cases that come to me for treatment other than that which I have perfected can completely and permanently restore strength and vigor.

VARICOCELE

Many men afflicted with varicocele are endangering their general health, their manly power and even life itself by allowing the disorder to remain uncured. Varicocele results from partial paralysis of the delicate nerve fibres that have a part in controlling local circulation of the blood. The muscular coating of the veins being deprived of nervous communication and control, becoms inactive, weakon and relax. The blood vessels expand from the pressure within, the circulation in the parts become sluggish, and frequently stagnant pools form in little nooks and pockets that constantly enlarge as the relaxation continues. The possibility exists that clots may form in these stagnant pools and then pass out into the general circulation. Should one find lodgment in the valve of the heart the result might be instant death, or should it be carried to the brain, general paralysis will follow.

I guarantee to cure varicocele in one week by a method that involves no cutting or ligature, or caustic. No other physician employs a like method, and so thorough is my work that there need not be the slightest fear of a relapse into the old condition. Those who have been long afflicted with varicocele will never realize the injury it has caused until they feel the vim, energy and buoyancy of spirts that a complete cure will bring.

CONTRACTED DISORDERS

To but partially cure a contracted disease is almost as dangerous as to allow it to go untreated. Unless every particle of infection and inflammation is removed, the probability exists that the disease will gradually work its way into the general system. All greater is the danger of the prostate gland becoming chronically inflammed, which always brings partial or complete loss of power. Perhaps 25 per cent of the cases of so-called "weakness" are a direct result of some improperly treated disease. During the past five years I have treated over 6500 cases of contracted disorders and have effected an absolutely thorough and safe cure in each instance. There have been no relapses or undesirable developments whatever and my patients have been cured in less time than other and less thorough forms of treatment require in producing even doubtful results.

STRICTURE

My treatment for stricture removes the necessity for surgical operations, even in severe cases of long standing. I do no cutting or dilating. No other physician employs my methous of overcoming this disorder, so the service I offer you is original and distinctive. Do not give up hope because others have failed. I will cure you and the cure will be a prompt and painless one. My treatment dissolves the stricture and permanently removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, subdues all inflammation, relieves all irritation or congestion that may exist in the kidneys or bladder, reduces enlargement of the prostate gland and restores to health and tone all organs affected by the disease.

SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON

I permanently cure this most hideous of all blood diseases. I employ harmless, blood cleansing remedies that positively drive the very last taint of virus from the system, and every symptom vanishes to appear no more.

We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

WON A RICH HUSBAND

Louisville Girl Weds a Wealthy Frenchman From Klondike.

Louisville, Ky., May 16—Unable to withstand the fascinating influence exerted over him by the photograph of Miss Elizabeth Pohlmann, a Louisville girl, with whom he had been corresponding, but whom he had never seen, Ferdinand de la Gasse, on whom most beautiful women of France, Canada, England and the Orient had made slight impression, hastened to this city from Minneapolis, romantically introduced himself to the fair Miss Pohlmann, paid court in an ingenious manner, suggested matrimony, was accepted, and this evening at 6 o'clock were married.

All of the elements of romance are to be found in this marriage. The groom has wealth, education, travel and the knowledge of a man of the world. The bride has those eyes, hair, complexion, bewitching manners, demureness and beauty which have made Kentucky women famous.

First, a word about M. de la Gasse. Descended from one of the proudest families of France, men who were in the courts of Louis XIV and the first Napoleon, he sought the new world and settled in Canada. The warm blood of adventure flows through his veins.

Despite this he longed for wealth and a wife.

One day he read in the newspapers about the marvelous riches in the mines of Alaska and the great fortunes being dug out of the Klondike. A man of action, he decided to be a gold hunter and soon was off with Dawson as his destination. This was two years ago. He settled in Minneapolis a rich man.

"I have gold," said De la Gasse to himself. "One link in my completed life is accomplished. Now, it only remains to find a wife."

Like many another man he found a wife hard to secure. Beautiful girls there were in Minneapolis, but none that smiled him. Some were too fair, that one too short. In despair he picked up a matrimonial paper.

Almost the first thing he saw was Miss Pohlmann's name. It appeared to him and he wrote begging for her photograph. She sent a picture. "They have no girls in Minneapolis," said Monsieur to himself as he gazed at it the first time. He sat down immediately and wrote a letter. This was the beginning of a correspondence which grew more regular with each passing week. The more that Monsieur De la Gasse looked at the photograph the more he was smitten, and he finally decided to come to Louisville and see Miss Pohlmann in person.

Two weeks ago he arrived in the city and rented a suite of rooms at 1714 West Jefferson street. For several days he remained in the quiet of his room. He had not written Miss Pohlmann that he was coming and he decided to surprise her.

Sunday a week ago, he walked to her home at 2232 West Walnut street, and rang the doorbell. His fair correspondent opened the door herself.

"It is she," exclaimed M. de la Gasse immediately. He stood like one carved in marble.

"Who are you?" demanded Miss Pohlmann.

"I am the man from the West," he said when he had recovered his voice.

"Not M. de la Gasse, my correspondent?" she inquired.

"The same. And you—you are the girl of the picture.

"And do you think the picture does me justice?" she asked with a tremor in her voice, a bewitching tremor.

"You are a thousand times more beautiful, mademoiselle," he responded in a sincere voice without a moment's hesitation.

"Come in," she said.

It was a case of love at first sight. De la Gasse, who had loved the picture, fell deeper in love with the original. The Rev. Leo Grenfell, at St. Anthony's church, linked their lives. Mme. de la Gasse is 23 years old.

BLANCHE WALSH,

Supposed to Be Single, Secures a Divorce.

New York, May 15.—Even the relatives and most intimate friends of Miss Blanche Walsh will be surprised to know that the theatrical star was married seven years ago, and that her husband all this time has been Alfred Hickman, a young Englishman now in the "Nanny Brown" cast at the Bijou theater in this city.

On the heels of this announcement, made by an intimate friend of the couple and a member of the Lambs, wagging tongues do not cease to gossip, for it is said that divorce proceedings begun by Miss Walsh, or more properly Mrs. Hickman, had terminated in this city within the last day or two, and that a decree had been entered which would permit her to marry again at the end of three months if she so desired.

It was while Mr. Hickman was playing the part of Little Billee in the original "Trilby" company, at the Garden theater in the spring of 1896, that he took Miss Walsh, daughter of Thomas P. Walsh, a former warden of the Tombs prison, for his bride. The ceremony was performed in this city.

CLEVELAND IMPOSSIBLE

Eastern Democrats Say He Cannot Secure Party Nomination.

Chicago, May 15.—Walter Wellman, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

Former President Cleveland might stand another chance to win at the polls, but it is virtually impossible for him to get the nomination. This appears to be the prevailing opinion among Eastern Democrats. Conversations with quite a large number of them both in New York and here have brought out a general expression of the opinion given above. In New York I was told Tammany stood ready to support Mr. Cleveland if the convention it there is any chance of his nomination and in the campaign if he is nominated.

It is not so many years since the vast majority of Tammanyites habitually spoke of Mr. Cleveland in language which cannot be disinfected, and for which there is no adequate synonym. To-day Mr. Cleveland is almost popular with the tribe. The truth is, of course, that Tammany is counting the days till January 1 next, when it confidently expects to be in full possession of the Metropolitan flesh pots. It does not care very much about the presidency. 'Twould be nicer to have a Democratic president, of course, but really that does not matter much, so far as Tammany is concerned, and the braves are ready to throw their beavers into the air for Senator Gorman, Judge Perkins, Judge Gray or any one else.

Though it is apparent on all sides that the talk of Mr. Cleveland had enjoyed a fortnight of unexpected prosperity and celat, not the slightest advice has appeared that the demand for the reincarnation of the ex-president is strong enough ever to assume the proportions of a tidal wave and sweep everything before it. In fact, so much opposition has developed that shrewd and impartial Democrats say his nomination is clearly impossible in a convention where the two-thirds rule obtains. Even if a considerable majority of the Democrats of the United States come to the conclusion that Mr. Cleveland is the only man with whom there is a chance to win, how is it possible to get a two-thirds vote for him in the convention?

Practical politicians looking the facts in the face say Mr. Cleveland's nomination is wholly out of the question, and may as well be dropped first as last. They say that more than one-third of the delegates to the next national convention will be so bitterly anti-Cleveland that they would not nominate him if they knew he would be elected, and that another large, but not so outspoken element will be opposed to resurrection of a man who has not supported the Democratic ticket since 1892 when he himself was the head of it.

Before leaving Washington for his European tour Senator Gorman told one of his friends that he believed the so-called Cleveland boom would run itself out in two weeks. Mr. Gorman is understood to be very glad the Cleveland business was started upon this early in the campaign, so that it may be decently and finally disposed of before the real work of selecting a candidate is begun.

The friends of Senator Gorman believe he is rapidly coming to the front as a promising candidate for the Democratic nomination. They say he is gathering strength all the time without making the slightest effort to do so, and that next winter, as leader of the Democracy in congress, he will loom large as the man of the hour and of the coming year.

SUED THE BLACKSMITH.

Young Woman Kept Account of the Kisses.

Albany, N. Y., May 15.—Miss Frances Pettit of Galway has recovered a judgment from 69-year-old James P. Tittemore, the village blacksmith, for $5000 for breach of promise. Tittemore had courted her fourteen years and, according to her memorandum book, kissed her 1226 times. The first entries in her book were as follows:

"Mr. Tittemore came to see me tonight. He is a nice fellow, but he is married and I guess mother won't like to have him come."

"James was here tonight. He kissed me. It was the first time I was ever kissed by a man."

Tittemore looks upon the judgment as excessive and has decided to appeal.

BOTH WILL DIE.

Akron, O., May 15.—Lewis Dice went home this afternoon under the influence of liquor and after trying to kill his wife, went up stairs and cut his throat dying in ten minutes. His wife cannot recover.

GOTHAM IN MAY

New York Is Now In Its Most Attractive Aspect.

A Season of Parade—Gay Processions on Fifth Avenue.

New York, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—New York in May is New York in its most attractive aspect. Not even the autumn season, bringing the crisp air and that delightful sense of anticipation which heralds the winter pleasures, can compare with the atmosphere of the great metropolis in the guise and under the influences of spring and May. Fifth avenue, where streams of carriages pass up and down filled with women in bright gay toilettes, present the constantly-changing kaleidoscopic life of the city. The air is soft yet stimulating, the parks are brilliant with flowers and flashing fountains, the buckeye blossoms scent the air and last, but not least of the feminine observer, the shops seem to rival nature's claims to interest, and with seductively arranged wares pander to vanity's love of picturesque accessories and surroundings.

Imagination finds no place in New York for a belief that, once upon a time, Eve found that a fresh set of fig leaves answered the demand for a new spring costume, for the compilations of present day fashions and the complexities of modern life are nowhere else presented with such visible insistence as in the great island city by the sea.

May is a season of parade. To be sure there is ever that surging life of the city where humanity is always on parade, but the formal season of processions on Fifth avenue which sees its opening in the parade of St. Patrick's day in March, finds its culmination in the month of May. The first day of the month brought forth a demonstration which was almost pathetic to American eyes and deeply significant in its portent. Small, stunted, little Italians, and strange looking foreigners running along in groups and hordes without any effort to keep up a line of march, represented a striking sub-way employee commanding the inalienable rights of American citizenship interpreted today in the right of kick—the right to assert dissatisfaction with existing conditions between labor and capital and to demand a change, whether with or without justice. The day, though sunny, was cold and chill with a wind blowing that might rival one from Lake Superior. No attempt was made to keep ranks or march, but the poor little laborers trotted along for miles, waving American flags, which probably had no significance to them, excepting perhaps, to still a homesick longing for color.

The next day brought its contrast. Facing Madison Square plaza, on a flag-draped stand, with the soft young green of the park as a background, his honor, the mayor of the city of New York, Gen. Greene, police commissioner, Gen. Chauffee, from Governor's island, Rear Admiral Rodgers and other notable personages, reviewed the police parade, one of the most inspiring sights that I have ever seen.

Preceded by a detachment of street sweepers scraping the asphalt to the smoothness of a floor, these officers of municipal law marched 5000 strong. From the Battery, up Broadway to Twenty-third street, they swept into Madison avenue up to Fortieth street, from which they turned into Fifth avenue and thence down to the reviewing stand. Each platoon of fifty, in double ranks, preceded by the white-capped inspector, and followed by two white-capped sergeants, passed in marching order, each regiment of twelve platoons headed by a band, many of them having added a drum corps. Soldierly in bearing and step they were all splendid, stalwart, athletic specimens of manhood, numbers of them superb. The harbor police—men, the signalmen and flagmen, the mounted police, with their splendidly cared for horses, the bicycle squad, keeping perfect step, all roused enormous enthusiasm, which was well deserved, but best of all, to the feminine eye, were the medals on the breast of honor men—won for bravery, won in duty well done, won at the risk of life. When one realized that though this display called forth 5000 men, yet the city was well policed by 2300 besides, some conception of the police force of New York may be had. It gave one a thrill of pride to note the effect of organization and discipline. This is the first time in two years that the parade has been made, and there was a general feeling prevalent that it should not be omitted again. It is an immensely suggestive show and I can well imagine the good effect produced by this splendid physical representation of the organization of municipal law. New York feels now she has justified her claim to ownership of the finest police force in the world.

Last Saturday the coaching parade took place. This is at once the bow and farewell of society in the city. By long custom, this event has been allowed to open the out-door season, and though its former glory has departed, yet there has been sufficient impulse given it, in the last year or two, to accord it consideration as a social event. All the world was out last Saturday, an ideal spring day, to see the meet at Fifty-ninth street and the Eighth avenue entrance to Central park. There was a touch of exhilaration in watching the coaches with tooting horn sweeping up the avenue to the meet, and it was not difficult, to those who witnessed the parade at the horse show last November, to pick out the famous whips and the prize horses. As a feminine beauty and dress show, and an exhibition in heroic effort in an expenditure of masculine leisure, it is a very spectacular and interesting event. This week the New York world takes its pleasures al fresco. The races to which Gunther's performance last week gave an immense impetus of interest, rank now as society's event, and all who can hurry out to Morris park to bet and win and lose in the regulation fashion. Golf and country house parties also absorb attention, and the temptations of a journey to Nature easily offset the allurements of the city.

In J. P. Mowbray's book, "A Journey to Nature," which had such a wonderful sale, two years ago, one reads a mystery and wonder of the literary world, and the strange story of a very gifted writer just recently dead. Published first in the form of letters in the Evening Post, when put upon the market in book form, in the spring following, it had the most phenomenal sale of the summer. It was followed by "Dialogues in a Library," "Tangled Up in Beaulah Land," which is a sequel to the first named, and more recently, in book form, by a posthumous book, "The Taming of Kate."

The author found in these books, written after he had passed his 60th birthday, has third great vogue as a writer. As a newspaper correspondent during and after the war, he won fame under his own name, Andrew C. Wheeler. He was one of a group of men who traveled with Mr. Lincoln to Gettysburg to hear and write of that speech of the great martyr-president which he said was "the noblest condensation into the fittest words of all the emotions, aspirations and sentiments that millions of mute people wanted, at that moment, to utter."

Changing his style of work and following dramatic writing, he took the pen name of "Nym Crinkle," and for a while had a vogue, and was a most prolific writer; but this did not last for a great while, and he was practically silent for a number of years. As "Nym Crinkle," his work was on lines adopted by the yellow journals of today, and he fell into disrepute among the more conservative papers. When "A Journey to Nature" began to appear in the Saturday edition of the Evening Post, in the form of letters, there was great curiosity to know whose gifted pen was producing this distinctly high-class work. Not only was there the charm of originality in the presentation, but great literary merit, an evidence of familiarity with many subjects, and a broad outlook indicative of ripe judgment and long acquaintance with what Stevenson calls the tools of literature—the ability to use the right word in the right place with a distinctive originality which is called style.

So well, however, was the identity of the author kept secret that it was only after the death of Andrew C. Wheeler, during the past winter, that the editors of the Evening Post and the world at large found out that the most delightfully original books of the past three years were written by the man who had used many styles of writing and made each a success in its way. But the interesting part of the hidden identity lies in the fact that had the editors of that staid old maid among new spring costume, for the compilations of present day fashions and journals, the New York Evening Post, been able to associate J. P. Mowbray's personality with that of the free-lance and recreant "Nym Crinkle," never would those prim sheets have given place to the products of that pen. And here is an interesting problem presented to solve, objectively the value of a name.

May sees practically the end of the season of picture shows; but much has been shown at the galleries this past winter which has been of unusual interest, notably the portrait exhibits, among them those of Heileu, the French artist, whose wonderful dry-point etchings called forth many visitors, though curiously was stirred largely, in this case, by the different portraits of the duchess of Marlborough, which were really very attractive, the one of Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson not being quite so pleasing to the imagination. Chartran's portraits also drew many people to see his conception of our very strenuous president; unfortunately, this was not the typical Mr. Roosevelt, it had a decidedly sentimental air, which accorded ill with the known personality of the subject; nor yet does Sargent's picture seem to convey the correct idea of this man who seems so difficult to focus. Picturesque he certainly is, but not in the sentimental way; it is mainly in the vigor and strength of American manhood in its best interpretation that he appeals to his countrymen, and I fear that no one but one who would study him as William Ordway Partridge studies Nathan Hale for the very beautiful statue of the martyr spy, which stands on the campus at New Haven, as the tribute of Yale college to one of her sons, will ever be able to catch and hold this man of America, who stands at the head of the nation, at once its type and symbol.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Warm Weather Enables Retail Trade to Regain Losses.

New York, May 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review says:

Warmer weather has made it possible for the retail trade to regain part of the earlier losses in volume of transactions, and the level of quotations for staple lines of merchandise is well maintained. Wholesale trade in seasonable goods is quiet, although there is more or less supplementary business and jobbers report increased activity in several lines of wearing apparel. Clothing manufacturers are busy on fall samples, which are unusually late. Furniture and harness factories are notably well supplied with orders and there is no evidence of dullness in machinery or hardware. At most points there are indications of improvement in mercantile collections, the favorable progress of farm work having a good influence at the interior, while heavy sales of fertilizers testify to the extensive preparation for large crops. Industrial conditions would be exceptionally encouraging were it not for the vast army of men voluntarily idle. Railway earnings continue to show the usual gain, May figures thus far surpassing last year's by 13.4 per cent and those of 1901 by 29.3 per cent.

An unprecedented production of pig iron in April was accompanied by a decrease in furnace stocks, testifying to vigorous consumption and wholesome conditions in the steel industry. It is not surprising that a somewhat easier tone is noticed, however, because the scarcity of fuel earlier in the season had retarded the output and forced quotations above normal, especially on prompt shipments.

Textile manufacturing conditions are extremely irregular, some improvement been noted at woolen mills, while cotton spinners are in a bad position. More business has been done in men's wear, woolen and worsted, than at any recent date, tardy supplemental orders having at last begun to appear. Aside from a few exceptional cases in which small advances were secured, there are no alternations in prices. Carpets opened at the expected advance and met a good demand. Woolen mills are harrassed by the phenomenal quotations for raw material, being unable to obtain even small concessions from buyers of goods, who only purchase such small quantities as are required immediately. Not only has there been no advance in print cloths, but a special sale at 3 cents occurred. There was no demand from producers, but there was a re-sale of goods purchased at higher figures earlier in the season. Mills have not made any general reduction in output, although the subject is under consideration and several concerns have decreased the number of active looms.

Failures this week were 196 in the United States against 228 last year and 13 in Canada, with 17 a year ago.

OFFICERS ARE RESPONSIBLE

For Cruelties Perpetrated In the Philippines, Says Gen. Miles.

New York, May 16.—The Army and Navy Journal prints a letter from Gen. Nelson A. Miles, in which the writer says that he went to the Philippine islands not as a tourist, but in an official capacity, and that the instructions addressed to him as "Lieutenant General commanding the army," came from the highest authority, viz., the president, in which he was directed to give especial attention to the instruction, discipline and supplies of the army.

In referring to his official report, Gen. Miles says that "no one has a more sacred regard for the honor of the army than himself."

Coming to the subject of cruelties in the Philippines, Gen. Miles' letter reads as follows: "It is idle to assume that campaigning in the Philippines has conditions that warrant resort to mediaeval cruelty and a departure from the honorable method of conducting warfare, and that such departures as have existed should be overlooked and condoned.

"It is most gratifying that the serious offenses have not been committed by the soldiers unless they were under the direct orders of certain officers, who were responsible. Soldiers have withheld fire when ordered to shoot prisoners, protested against acts of cruelty, and written to relatives at home urging them to take action to put a stop to those crimes. It will ever be one of the glories of the army that scuh deeds, committed by whatever authority, are abhorrent to the American soldier. The officers who are responsible for using chiefly cruel Maccabee tactics do not by any means constitute the American army, and there must be a very unmistakable line drawn between the great body of honorable and faithful officers and brave soldiers whose records have been commendable and those of whatever station, whose acts have received and should receive the earnest condemnation of all honorable men.

THE HABIT OF HASTE

AND THE SERIOUS RESULTS TO WHICH IT OFTEN LEADS.

Hastily Swallowed Food and Irregular Meals Are Sources of Much Suffering In This Country.

One peculiarity of Americans upon which visitors from other countries comment is the habit of haste. This extends even to eating. Meals are eaten hurriedly and irregularly; food is swallowed half masticated and the stomach is unthinkingly neglected and abused to such an extent that nine-tenths of our people are dyspeptics. Take the case of Mrs. Ida M. Turro, the wife of a prosperous farmer at Brainerd, Crow Wing county, Minn. She says:

"Irregular meals and too hurried eating ruined my digestion and I was miserable until by the aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I was cured. I was in a very low state of health, food of any sort distressed me terribly, gas formed in my stomach and it became sore and bloated. Everything I ate seemed to turn sour. I suffered so much when I ate that I had to almost starve myself. There was a pain in my heart, my bowels were constipated, I felt chilled all the time and my flesh fell away till I was horribly thin. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did not help me and I kept growing worse until, at my mother's suggestion, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They made me feel better very soon and I kept on taking them till my stomach stopped bloating, the pain in my heart disappeared and I became perfectly well again. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to a great many and will always speak of them in the highest terms of praise."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure stomach trouble by their tonic action, building up the digestive organs and enabling them to do the work that nature intended them to do. Artificial ferments and predigested foods weaken the stomach in many cases. Medicines should not do the stomach's work but should put it in condition to perform its natural functions. A diet book giving useful information will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

FRAUDULENT USE OF MAILS.

Charged to American Literary and Musical Association.

Chicago, May 16.—Complaints against the management of the American Literary and Musical association, 358 Dearborn street, resulted yesterday in the arrest of F. A. McGillis, proprietor, and C. E. Phillips, manager, on charges of fraudulent use of the mails. About twenty-five complaints were received by the postal authorities charging that deposits of $15 were asked on the promise of positions that would pay a salary of $900 a year. The concern failed to carry out a part of the agreement. Among the complainants were F. N. Miller, Norwood, Ohio; Fred Sterns, Gettysburg, Pa.; F. E. Kitzmiller, Des Moines, Iowa; S. E. Murphy, Delta, Ohio, and Miss George True, Indianapolis, Ind.

BOODLER CONFESSES

Former Senator Busche of Missouri Tells All He Knows.

St. Louis, May 15.—Unable to bear the strain of mental torture which he says he has suffered since the grand jury investigation into boodling was instituted, former State Senator Fred L. Busche went before Circuit Attorney Folk this afternoon and made a complete and far-reaching confession of his connection with corrupt deals extending over a period of eight years. Busche's declaration involves several men of prominence, and he names those who have been conspicuous at the state capital as distributors of boodle. Later Busche was taken before the grand jury where he remained an hour. When he emerged from the jury room, tears were streaming down his cheeks. With his face buried in his hands he hurried down the steps of the Eleventh street exit of the building.

Because of the statute of limitations which prevents prosecution three years after the crime is committed, none of the men against whom Busche has testified can be indicted.

HORSE WAS DOPED.

Racer Dies From Excessive Use of Drugs.

New York, May 16.—The race horse, Dr. Riddle, is dead from an excessive dose of drugs and the stable connections of the horse in question are under suspension, pending final action by the stewards of the Jockey club. Dr. Riddle raced in the name of J. Gardner and was a starter in the second event of yesterday's program at Morris park, a selling affair at seven furlongs over the Wither's mile, in which fourteen horses ran. The horse was ridden by the lightweight jockey, Salling, and was said to be backed for a "killing." He attracted attention in the paddock by his furious actions, as he required two men to handle him when he was saddled, and seemed then to be almost uncontrollable. The matter was called then to the attention of Starter Fitzgerald, who, after noting the condition of Dr. Riddle at the post, sent word to the stewards and asked for instructions as to whether the horse should be permitted to start. He was advised to let Dr. Riddle break with his field, the rider after that having the steward's permission to pull up. Salling very pluckily broke away from the post, but at once pulled up the horse, which was reeling under him, and walked to the stretch long after Miss Buttermilk, who raced out in front with Kickshaw all the way, had won the race by a head. Dr. Riddle could not be got to the paddock, and so Salling dismounted and turned the horse over to grooms, who, after great difficulty, got him to the stable at the head of the stretch. The stewards sent a veterinary surgeon to examine him there, and on the report of the surgeon, later issued the following ruling:

"The stewards of the meeting order the entries of J. J. Gardner and the horse, Dr. Riddle, be suspended and the case referred to the stewards of the Jockey club."

The horse died within two hours after reaching the stable

TRAINING SHIP OVERDUE.

Some Anxiety Is Felt For the Alliance.

Washington, May 16.—The training ship Alliance, with 309 landsmen on board, is seventeen days overdue at Hampton roads, and the navy department is worried about her. Officially, the authorities say they are not surprised that the vessel has been delayed in arriving at port as she may have encountered head winds, but the facts do not bear them out. Under instructions from the department, the Alliance was ordered to sail from Kingston, Jamaica, April 17, and report at Hampton roads on April 29. It is believed by the department that twelve days would be ample for her to make the passage of 1206 miles, the rate of progress being fixed at only 100 miles a day, or a little more than four miles an hour. The Alliance sailed on April 17, as directed, but that has been the last heard of her.

Commander J. B. Murdock, an experienced officer, is in command of the Alliance, and the officials are satisfied that he will bring her safely into port. The Alliance, though built twenty-five years ago, is regarded as a strong and sturdy craft capable of standing heavy weather.

THE TURNING POINT REACHED.

It is well known that for the past year or two an industrial depression of no mean proportions has existed in Germany, and the announcement that the turning point has been reached will be hailed with pleasure by the whole civilized world. Figures submitted by the United States consul at Brunswick, Germany, show the depression and the change. Of late failing companies have been reorganized; better methods have been effected and the dividends, while low, are accepted as having reached the lowest point possible, with business conditions promising better for the coming twelve months. The consul's reports on the dividends paid by the leading industrial and manufacturing companies in Germany for the year 1902 show a falling off from the previous year's earnings in most of the enterprises. The average dividend paid by stock companies in the more important branches of manufacturing in 1901 was 7.98 per cent. In 1902 the same industries paid an average dividend of 6.69 per cent, or a falling off of 1.29 per cent.

While this falling off is serious, it does not show any desperate condition of "hard times" when compared to dividends in other countries of Europe. The consul shows, for instance, that in sugar manufacture the average dividend for 1901 was 10.38 per cent, in 1902 only 7.64 per cent. But even that is a trifle better than the common stock of the American Sugar Refining company pays at the present time; and the 1901 average in Germany, 10.38 per cent, was nearly 4 per cent better than sugar paid in this country for that year, although not quite equaling the 12 per cent that our leading sugar company paid almost uniformly from 1894 to 1900. In Germany's brewing industry the average dividend for 1902 droped to 8.85 per cent from 10.88 for the year previous. The average dividend in paper manufacture exactly held its own—8.76 per cent; in the mining and blast furnace industry the falling off was from 9.66 to 7.73; in machinery, from 6.10 to 4.77; and in electrical enterprises, from 5.92 to 4.13. In chemical manufacture the average dividend about held its own—10.43 per cent in 1901 and 10.39 last year; in porcelain and glass manufacture there was actually an increase last year—12.98 from 12.93, while in textiles there was a jump up from only a 2.91 per cent average dividend in 1901 to 4.69 last year.

There is no reason to worry about Germany. She is building a great navy and reaching out for greater foreign markets. It seems evident that a reaction has already set in, and a boom will come sooner or later.

PROPAGATION OF FISH.

The United States Fish commission has given unusual attention this spring to the distribution of "fry" all over the United States. Whether this was actually a desire to make fish an active competitor to the meat trust is not known, but certain it is, that more fish has been distributed than for a long time. Many carloads of "fry" have been sent out of Washington and have included shad, perch, pike, salt water and land locked salmon, trout and black bass for many points in the country.

In addition to these millions of "fry" and "fingerlings," distributed from headquarters, the different hatcheries in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Virginia, Tennessee, Texas, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Missouri and Colorado are also engaged in the spring distribution. It is stated that the fish commission this year will pay particular attention to the stocking of virgin streams with black bass, for which there seems to be more than the usual demand. As an illustration of the mammoth scale upon which the government is engaged in fish culture the statement shows that 71,000,000 whitefish eggs are being put into one hatchery in Ohio. As an experiment, 500,000 Lake Michigan trout eggs will be hatched and planted in Lake Erie. This Ohio hatchery expects to have more than 150,000,000 eggs in preparation for hatching before the close of the spring fishing season. A heavy consignment of rainbow and brook trout was recently planted in the streams of Houghton county, Mich., and 5000 brook trout were placed in a stream near Northampton, Mass. Twenty million shad eggs will be deposited in the upper waters of the Hudson river this spring. It is said that it is not unusual for the fish commission to take 5,000,000 eggs a day for several days in succession.

It has now been more than thirty years since the artificial propagation of salmon on the Pacific coast was first begun. Forest and Stream—a publication that is devoted to the discussion and encouragement of outdoor sports—says that in the spring of 1872, W. W. Montague, a civil engineer, discovered the spawning grounds of salmon in McCloud river, California. He communicated his observations to the deputy fish commissioner for the Pacific coast, who dispatched an assistant to the McCloud river where the Indians were spearing. Appearances plainly indicated that the spawning season was far advanced and that no time was to be lost in preparing to hatch the salmon eggs by artificial conveniences. Lumber was hastily procured and a rough pine cabin with hatching troughs were constructed. A mountain stream was turned in and the fertilized eggs were placed in the trough. The following fall the first salmon eggs ever matured by artificial process were shipped across the continent to a trout hatchery in New Jersey. This was the beginning of artificial salmon hatching on the Pacific coast. Then the United States fish commission took up the work, and, with the help of private parties and the legislatures of the Western states, developed an industry of great magnitude and of considerable commercial importance. The salmon is a great egg producer, but the Pacific waters are well stocked with the salmon's enemies, which follow the fish to their spawning grounds and the artificial propagation by hatcheries is necessary to supply the rapidly growing demand for the salmon as an article of food.

In the East the fish commission is devoting considerable attention to the propagation of shad, which is considered the most valuable river fish on the Atlantic coast, and, next to the Pacific coast salmon, the most important commercial fish in North American waters. It is said to be not a prolific fish, although a great egg producer, a single fish being known to yield from 80,000 to 100,000 eggs. The shad catch of the Atlantic seaboard averages about 15,000,000 fish annually and is worth to the fishermen anywhere from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. Hence there can be readily seen the importance of maintaining the supply by giving attention to the construction of hatcheries.

While the propagation of fish as a whole may be of the most benefit to promoters of the fishing industry, there are many families who depend quite largely on catching fish for a food supply, and they also reap a benefit from the work of the government.

"GRAFTING" IN HAWAII.

The alacrity with which the officials and even the governments of the new territories of the United States have adopted the grafting methods for personal gain is simply astonishing and withal a sad commentary on our much vaunted liberal government. Too much is already known of the official scandals in Porto Rico, but now reports come from Hawaii, which show that the people of that archipelago are not a bit behind any of the others in feathering their own nests. The second legislature of the territory adjourned Wednesday, April 29, after a session of sixty days, and an extra session was begun on the Friday following. The closing days of the legislature were signalized by a charge of bribery which, though not substantiated in the investigation ordered by the house, had every appearance of having some foundation. The Honolulu Star charged that certain of the legislators had received money for their votes on a general beer law, and on a bill granting $150,000 to a private water scheme.

Owners of the Pauoa Springs, which are situated near Honolulu, attempted to sell their water rights to the government, but were refused. Then a bill was introduced to provide for the purchase of the springs without the intervention of the territorial officials. A lump sum of $250,000 was asked for the water rights alone, though the assessed value was only $50,000, the actual value being fixed for assessment purposes in Honolulu. The committee in the house recommended the passage of the bill without amendment, going so far as to say that the springs were worth $500,000. The bill went through with a rush, with plenty of votes to spare. When the bill reached the senate the same influences were at work, but the senate reduced the amount to $150,000, which was accepted by the owners of the land. They had been willing to accept bonds in the first place, but in the senate bill, cash payable from the first revenues of the territory was specified. The governor vetoed the bill, and said that the water rights were not worth the price asked, and referred to the bill as one for the promotion of private interests at government expense. In the house the veto was not sustained, but in the senate there were six votes against the bill, enough to sustain the veto. Two of the senators claimed that they had been insulted by the governor's veto message, in which it was intimated that the public interests were not being served. In the house one of the members openly charged that bribery or undue influence had been used to secure the passage of the bill. These charges were echoed in the Hololulu Star, one of the evening newspapers, and then the house decided to investigate. The committee spent but a few days in its work, and examined only four witnesses, ignoring for the most part the charges that had really been made. The whitewash was applied by the house with a liberal hand, the committee reporting in part, as follows: "The examination has been as exhaustive as your committee could make it, but nothing whatever had been brought out to show any foundation for the charges contained in the said newspaper article."

There was also considerable scandal connected with the way the house appropriation for expenses was used, but it was beyond the power of anyone to interfere. It is not expected that the extra session will be a long one, the legislators now having no need for a waste of time, as they receive the $200 provided for the extra session, no matter how long it lasts. The regular session was paid for at the rate of $400, and its principal object was to so arrange matters that the appropriation bills could not be passed, and Governor Dole was thus compelled to call the extra session. The appropriation bills were all passed in the senate, and could easily have been disposed of in the house had there been any such desire on the part of its members. Altogther the legislature passed nearly 100 bills, of which 88 became laws by receiving the signature of the governor. The most important of these were the county bill, the Torrens system of land registration, a law to provide for drawing jurors, a pure-food law and laws to regulate dentists, pharmacists and physicians. Two municipal bills were passed, one a general act which was vetoed by the governor, and a second making the entire island of Oahu the city of Honolulu, which was not signed. The legislature failed to pass the general municipal bill over the governor's veto. The legislature on the last night of the session sat until long after midnight, continuing to pass bills, and setting back the hands of the clock for that purpose. Governor Dole, however, refused to accept the legislature's time, and exactly at midnight announced that he would sign no more bills and would count time by his own watch and not according to the clocks in the legislative hall.

It certainly does seem as though our new protege had become thoroughly adept in the tricks of some of the corrupt legislatures of various states, which is cause for deep regret.

Of course the assimilation of Manchuria by Russia will be benevolent.

IN THE RAND DISTRICT.

Reference was made in these columns a few days ago to the failure of the mines in the Rand district in South Africa, to meet expectations in respect to their output for the first year after the close of the war, and attributing the cause largely to the scarcity of labor. Further information shows this to be really the most serious drawback to increasing the output of the mines as rapidly as desired. Before the Boer war the mines of the Rand gave employment to 96,700 Kaffirs; the mills and mines, which were about to enlarge their operations as the time, were ready to employ about 40,000 more; therefore, on the full resumption of work after the war, from 135,000 to 140,000 Kaffirs were needed. As yet only about 60,000 have responded to the recruiting, which has been carried on vigorously since the war ended. These figures do not measure the full disparity, for when the proposed new mining undertakings are started and the intended enlargement of the old ones is carried out there will be need for approximately 200,000 to 250,000 Kaffirs, or their equivalent.

According to the Engineering and Mining Journal the main object of the mine-owners, so far as their influence was instrumental in promoting the war, was the lowering of wages in the mines. That is revealed by the recorded discussions of their meetings. They regarded the price they were paying for labor as outrageous. But they have learned that it was not the British rule in Rhodesia, but the but tax, that lessened or abolished the payment for labor. In Rhodesia the operating company and the government are one, and the company simply levies a tax which the negro is forced to work out. No such system would yet be tolerated where there is as much publicity as in the Transvaal. The condition of the negro is not only different from that which prevails in Rhodesia, but different from the conditions of his race in the United States. The American negro, however indolent and contented he may become, must serve an employer for his living. In Africa there is still for him the freedom of a semi-savage condition, with an easy possibility of a living from nature's storehouse. The negro is not obliged to work for an employer in the Transvaal, so it is necessary for the mine operators to offer him sufficient inducements. The introduction of British rule has not changed the situation in the least, although it will lead to the modification of laws to the advantage of the mine operators. When settlement advances and the negro can live only by working for hire, he will be in the same economic position as in the United States.

Chinese are to be brought into South Africa in large numbers and the introduction of these coolies may solve the labor problem in that country. It would be different here, but the plan may work in the Rand district.

A DIFFICULT TASK.

It is evident that it will prove no easy task to arrange the proposed transfer of bureaus from one department to another that those properly belonging to the new department of commerce shall be arranged in that branch of government control. It is well known that much duplication of work exists in the various bureaus, and one strong argument in factor of Secretary Cortelyou's department was that considerable consolidation could be effected and great expense saved. It is proving to be a very difficult matter to accomplish the desired results. Every bureau chief objects to any change in his line of work and a vigorous protest has gone up where it has been proposed. A special board, consisting of Director Wolcott of the geological survey, Rear Admiral Bowles, Gen. Crozier, Commissioner Garfield and Forester Pinchot, was appointed by the president to arrange such consolidations and changes as were necessary. They have had a merry time so far and accomplished nothing.

One of the first things to come up was the question of taking the naval observatory away from the navy and placing civilians in charge of it. Admiral Bowles promptly opposed this and introduced no end of argument to prove that the work performed at the observatory is largely of a naval character, and that it was highly important that naval officers should direct it. Then the counter proposition was made to transfer to the war department the coast survey, geological survey and all other bureaus engaged in the making of topographic and other land surveys. It was shown that the custom of European governments is to have all work of this kind done under the direction of the military authorities. This proposition was naturally strennously opposed by Director Wolcott, who said that there was no reason why our government should copy European methods in this regard. He pointed out that in continental Europe the army was the controlling factor, and that the land surveys were made for the primary benefit of the army and not for the public generally. Here the conditions are just the reverse. Mr. Wolcott announced that he would never consent to the transfer to the army of any of the work now performed by his bureau, while the officers of the coast survey are also just as strongly apposed to giving up any of their present duties. The navy is reaching out to capture the coast survey, contending that as the navy now has control of all deep sea hydrographic work there is no reason why it should not also take in the surveying along the coast. This move was probably made to forestall a demand on the part of the coast survey that the navy turn over to it the deep sea chart work. This is an old fight, and has been the subject of more than one bitter quarrel in the house.

It was evidently a mistake to appoint such interested parties on the board. The only way to accomplish anything toward consolidation and arrangement will be to have a board with nothing at stake. It can then hear the arguments of the interested parties and act according to its best judgment.

Perhaps Secretary Root's announcement that there will be no more changes in the army uniform is due to a desire to keep down Gen. Miles' expenses before his retirement.

Poultney Bigelow is soon to leave on a visit to Europe—probably to find out why the kaiser has not started that war that Poultney prophecied.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says the automobile "has come to stay." Generally it does not stay, but goes too fast.

Hunters and fishers seem to have the call to the presidential chair or to be mentioned for it.

THE WEATHER.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

A man whose business it is to open safes when there is something the matter with the combination, and who has nothing more than a screwdriver with which to tackle the most serious cases of forgotten time locks and injured mechanism, is at the Spalding hotel.

He has a card, which he may present to you, and when you read it you will know who he is just as well as you did before he handed out the card, for what it says on it is:

"That's my business."

He talks safes to everybody he sees, and once in a while he tells a little story about another subject.

Not that anyone questions his veracity, but he certainly knows a lot about safes, which might cause the inference to be drawn that he wasn't a crackerjack on zoology.

Of course a man who can sell such a commonplace article as a safe, and paint its virtues in glowing colors, winding up in a blaze of glory and a contract, ought to have some imagination. He had been here long enough to hear about the bear stories some Duluth people tell, such as that there were a score or more killed in the city limits last winter.

"I was coming from the bank at West Duluth yesterday," he said, "and the day was so fine and warm that I couldn't help but take a chance and walk it.

"I was marching along with my hands behind me and my head bowed, when I looked up suddenly out somewhere near the ore docks, at the sound of a stirring ahead of me.

"There was a bear, up on its haunches, and staring me straight in the eye.

"I gasped, looked all around, and remembered I didn't have a gun, and was on the point of giving myself up, when I had a lucky thought.

"'Boo!'

"I threw up my hands as I said it and then repeated the operation.

"The bear remained to see me start on the second 'boo,' and then with a few bops and bounds cleared the road and dove into the underbrush.

"I stood there for five minutes, unnerved, listening to the underbrush crashing, as the bear tore through it, on the way up the cliffs.

"And that's all the bears I ever encountered.

"I thought afterwards that if I'd waited for a street car and got on that it would have been just as well."

President Thomas Lowry of the Soo line, who was in the city yesterday from Minneapolis, don't overlook any bets, when he thinks the interests of his road are not being taken care of properly.

He was in the lobby of the Spalding yesterday morning, and was talking to a reporter, and telling him about some railroad extensions.

"I'll show you on a map," he said and went over to the rack of railroad folders and put up his hand to what he evidently believed to be the usual place for the Soo line folders.

When he looked at his draw he found a Soo folder.

"Dum it," said the president of the big road.

He put it back, and looked the next time when he started to select one. He couldn't see any. He pushed his antiquated silk hat on the back of his head and squatted down and scrutinized the lower tiers of the folder rack.

"Dum it," again said the dignified president, whose face was becoming red.

"Let's go in here," he said, and started into the South Shore ticket office.

"Have you a Soo line folder?" he asked, glaring.

The young man didn't know who it was, and handed him a Canadian folder.

The impatient president shoved it back, and was about to shout, when he spied the combination map on the counter of the ticket office, under glass.

He pointed out the routes of proposed extensions and went back out into the lobby.

"If one Soo folder is so valuable they have to keep it under glass, up here," he said. "We'll have to see that they get a few to drug the market with hereafter."

HIS BREAD AND BUTTER CASE

By Henry L. Doolittle.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

And still the damage suits against the Urban Transit company multiplied. The general manager was seated at his desk studying the report of new cases.

"The devil of it is," he muttered, "the juries have got so used to bringing in big damages against 'this soulless corporation' that they do it from sheer force of habit. Oh, well—"

He paused as he turned to the next case. "William Ford, injured in collision between his carriage and car 78, motorman 253, conductor 156, Hamilton road and Grahnam, May 24, 10 a. m.," he read; "witnesses disagree concerning speed of car and sounding of gong."

"That means another big hole in our dividends," he reflected grimly. As he turned to the next memorandum, his secretary entered with a card bearing the simple script, John C. Archer, Counsellor at law."

"John C. Archer? John—C.—Archer?" he repeated absently. "Where have I heard that name before? Oh, yes, now I have it; at my last fraternity dinner. Nice young chap he was, too—and a stranger in town. Wonder if he wants some help? Oh, well, show him in," this last to the secretary, who stood awaiting a reply.

"Ah, now I've made connections," he exclaimed half aloud, as the latter was leaving the room. "I can just remember hearing the girls at the dinner table discussing young Archer and old Ford's daughter. Said she wore a ring, and seemed to think it was a sure thing."

"Well, well, I'm more than glad to see you again, Mr. Archer," cordially exclaimed the general manager later. "Have a chair. Let's see, you have come in reference to that suit being instituted by Mr. Ford? Did he send you here to settle out of court?"

"He—sent—me—here?" the other repeated slowly. "Why, he didn't send me. I came to see if you wouldn't let me take up your side of the case."

"What in the name of—" the general manager checked himself and gazed thoughtfully out of the window. "But I thought you and Miss Ford—" again he checked himself as the young man rose stiffly.

"Oh, come now," he added in a fatherly way, "we're both Chi Phi men and I like you immensely, but how am I to know you are not just trying to be put on the case under Ford's directions. The Lord only knows we stand a poor enough show to win with loyal attorneys. Old Ford knows that, he's no fool—nor is he above trying to buy in the lawyers on the opposite side, as—"

"Stop!" cried Archer in a sudden fury. I won't hear a word against him."

"How is it you're not on his side then?" dryly queried the other.

"I did try," he admitted.

"And got turned down in more ways than one, eh? So this, I take it, is in revenge."

"No! it's bread and butter. He told me that as a lawyer I would never be worth the room I took up, he'd stake his daughter on that. I intend to show him that even if he can deprive me of the sweets of life, he cannot of the substance. It is dollars and cents and a reputation against sentiment that has brought me here."

"But let me tell you a trolley case is the poorest sort to stake your reputation on, particularly when you are the under dog. Why, the plaintiff can make these juries believe that anything that bears any relation to a trolley company is always black."

"But you haven't given me a chance to explain my mode of procedure," the lawyer made haste to reply. "If I can give satisfactory proof of my standing a good chance to win your case, will you let me try? You know the Fords came less than six months ago—and I followed."

"All right, fire away. If you can satisfy me, I'll give you carte blanche to try it on that dog of a jury. Anything dramatic just suits them to a T."

Half an hour later young Archer left the general manager's office, the possessor of a retaining fee and legal contract to defend the case of "Ford vs. The Urban Transit company."

The trial had dragged on in the customary way. The prosecution had produced a dozen witnesses to swear that the car was running at least fifteen miles an hour; and the defense had produced as many, procured from only the general manager knew where, to assert that it was moving but moderately, and that the gong was rung for several seconds before the collision.

The prosecution had summed up, using every ounce of eloquence to work on the sympathies of the jurors. "Here is a man in the prime of life," the attorney had exclaimed forcefully in conclusion, "whose maimed limb he will carry with him to the grave. Here is a man who will never more be able to walk unaided. And who is responsible for this? Again I ask, who is responsible?"

This and much more to the same effect had brought to the faces of the twelve jurors a settled expression of a foregone unanimity that augured ill to the traction interests.

It was in the face of such an opposition that the young attorney arose to sum up. He glanced towards the plaintiff, who was regarding him contemptuously, so it seemed to his sensitive nerves; and with that thought burning its way through his brain, the last vestige of pity left him free to begin with grim determination.

Passing on through the defensive evidence of contributory negligence, he plunged fiercely toward his last card, which even the conservative general manager had declared should win the trick.

"Granted that to a certain extent, the plaintiff has been rendered unfit to carry on the battle of life," he exclaimed earnestly, "yet look at yonder man in the far corner of the room and save some of your ready sympathy for him. Up to within a year ago he was an expert machinist in the plaintiff's brass foundry, earning $25 a week by the skill of his hands. Look at him now—one hand gone and one foot maimed for life. And whose fault was that? Ah, if you could have but attended the indignation meeting of the employes after the accident, you need not have asked? Time and again the machine that maimed him had been declared unsafe, and yet our worthy plaintiff would do naught. And after the accident, did he render aid to his injured employe? Not much! Through a technicality he escaped the payment of heavy damages at the first trial, and while the poor and helpless sufferer was endeavoring to raise funds for a second suit, he sold out and came West. Look at him and see if he dares deny it. Look, I say!"

Mr. Ford half rose from his seat, but fell back white as a sheet as he caught a glimpse of his former employe. Even the jurors could distinguish mental anguish from physical agony.

"And yet another point let me bring out," continued Archer heatedly, while the attention of all was equally divided between his speech and the faces of the two cripples; "whereas the plaintiff has been injured, and not without carelessness on his part at that, yet his earning capacity has not in the least been impaired. He can clip just as many coupons; he can be a director in just as many mining enterprises; he can organize just as many new land improvement associations; in a word his head, by which alone he earns his livelihood, has not in the least been impaired.

"Now turn your eyes to the other poor fellow. Scare a year ago he earned $25 a week by the skill of his hands. A month ago he wandered into my office—penniless, health shattered, family scattered, and without the wherewithal to ply his accustomed trade—his right hand. He wanted my advice about instituting a suit on new grounds. And meanwhile," he continued, impressively, as he saw the jury casting off its lethargy, "and meanwhile this traction company, this soulless corporation, as so many delight to call it, has kept him from starvation by giving him a job as switchman at its Halstead street car sheds, where he can earn a boy's wages of a dollar a day. And this the company did before he entered into the present case.

"And yet this plaintiff, who has never considered the Golden Rule until he himself desired to profit by its teachings—this plaintiff, who would not so much as lift a finger to save a fellow man from starvation, however much he himself was responsible—this plaintiff has the unmitigated effrontery to appear before you all, and to try to win his case by winning your sympathy. If such a quality is to be much vaunted justice of our city—" his eyes swept the jury, the witnesses, and last of all the gallery—"My God!" he cried, and staggered back.

Amid the confusion, a young woman left the gallery unobserved.

"The defense will rest its case," he concluded with forced calm.

The lawyer was seated at his desk. A verdict in favor of the defendant company had been rendered two hours before, and already an official-looking document enclosed in a manilla envelope had been forwarded to him from the general manager's office. He lacked heart even to tear it open from the enclosure.

Instinctively he felt that he had done well, but the feeling of exultation over his first success was wanting. He needed someone—no, just one—to congratulate him, to wish him well for the future; and now she was the last person who would do such a thing.

If only he had known she was in the gallery, he might have picked his words most carefully. But now—

A messenger entered, the bearer of a dainty white envelope. Mechanically he receipted for it.

"And in her handwriting. Can it be?" But his fingers which had been brushing across the envelope, encountered a hard little lump in the middle.

"The engagement ring," he murmured inaudibly. "But come now," he added half aloud with a pitiable attempt at briskness. "If the sweets are still lacking, let's have a look at the bread and butter."

He tore open the manilla envelope. The first thing that met his gaze was a check, the size of which made him feel dizzy. Then a letter from the general manager fell out.

"My dear Archer, the manager had begun in his off-hand way, "Your dramatic finale was certainly what won those jurors—I told you they like a free show. Why, man, your acting was so real, I could fairly see you turn white as a ghost * * * The position of junior attorney with our company is yours for the asking."

Archer threw the envelope and contents aside and gazed longingly at the little white missive. And then he opened it.

"My dear Jack—I fear I should have returned this ring without a word had not dad happened in just as I was calling a messenger. He says he admires your cool nerve in using such tactics against him and if he can forgive you, I suppose I can, too. He added that he has already been injured enough externally and internally by the trolley and the Golden Rule, and that if you are thinking of taking up Roger's case back East, to come around here first and he will try to settle it out of court. And then what do you suppose he said, Jack? He patted me on the head and mysteriously remarked that he owned you more than I knew and that next time he went to law, he wanted his son-in-law on his side! On the whole, therefore, let's forget the immediate past. If you can dine with us tonight, bring the ring with you, and together we'll see how much better it fits with dad's consent than it ever did without. MADGE."

Oiling the Wheels of Education.

Chicago Post: It is strange that the price of kerosene should have any effect on education, but the people of Nebraska seem to connect the two. Else why talk of refusing a cash gift to the state university from John D. Rockefeller simply because coal oil went up a cent a gallon a few days after the offer of the oil magnate was received?

THE TEAM LEAVES

League Men Off For Stillwater To Play There Sunday.

Managers Hopeful of First-Class Work—Fargo Loses Pitcher.

They're off in a bunch!

Duluth's Northern league team got away this afternoon and it was not the same team that got licked 4 to 1 by the high school last Saturday—either.

It took one week for the local management to put its shake-up machinery in motion at a terrific velocity and simultaneously with the rapid firing of last week's aggregation, sign another team that has all the appearances of being the genuine, pennant winning article.

For the first time the make-up of the team as it will appear in the opening games of the season can be announced officially. Moran, of last year's Boston National league club, and "Louie" Kline, the old-time local, hard-hitting-pretty-throwing favorite will do the catching.

Volz, the best pitcher in the New England league; Mueller, the star University of Wisconsin man, and Gehring, one of the best pitchers in the Northern league last season, will constitute the twirling department.

Kennally, who has been playing first base for Rockford, at a tremendous clip, will play first. Winston, captain of the team that landed second place in the Northern league last year will play second. Shephard, another old favorite with local fans will play short, and Olmstead, the infield find of the season, will play third.

In the outfield Lagger, Lambert and McCoy will have regular positions and probably Clark, of Eau Claire, who is a good outfielder and catcher, will be carried as an extra man.

Kennally, Winston and Volz will not be in tomorrow's practice game at Stillwater, so it has been decided to shift the players a little and they will probably line up as follows:

Kline	catcher
Mueller	pitcher
Gehring	pitcher
Moran	first base
Lagger	second base
Shepard	short stop
Olmstead	third base
Clark	left field
Lambert	center field
McCoy	right field

A large number of fans went out to watch the new team practice yesterday and are filled with all sorts of confidence. Olmstead at third seems to have made a particularly good impression and it has been decided to recall the offer made for Van Dine of Des Moines, and play Olmstead at third right along.

When the men take the field at the diamond at Stillwater tomorrow they will resemble a crazy quilt in the matter of uniforms. The league uniforms were late in arriving and the men will not be able to get them till they reach Fargo on Monday. As a result all sorts, conditions and colors of uniforms have been pressed into service temporarily.

While the real Duluths are doing stunts at Stillwater tomorrow the Big Duluth will play the Superior league team. West Superior ball scribes think have been confusing the two will kindly take notice.

Now Fargo is having trouble getting a player to report. Orr, said to be the best pitcher in Manitoba, declines to join the Fargoites preferring to twirl for the independent professional team of Virden.

Volz pitched great ball for Grand Forks against York, allowing only two hits. And yet they say, "What's in a name?"

HINES COMPANY GETS VERDICT

Last Case on Federal Circuit Court Calendar Is Concluded.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the case of the Edward Hines Lumber company against Comstock Bros., which was heard before the United States circuit court. The case went to the jury late yesterday afternoon and after a short deliberation the jury awarded the plaintiff $730.92, with interest at 6 per cent. The suit was to recover on a contract.

This case is the only one which was heard at the present sitting of the circuit court, and completes the calendar, the other cases having been continued until the fall term. The court will not adjourn, however, until the district court has completed its work.

The federal grand jury has adjourned until Monday morning. Up to the present time eleven indictments have been returned, all of the prisoners being accused of selling liquor to Indians.

The district court began its work yesterday afternoon when the first liquor case came up for trial. Yesterday afternoon was occupied in swearing in a jury for the trial of Marshall Case, accused of selling liquor to Indians on the Leech Lake reservation. Testimony was taken this morning and the case will probably go to the jury this afternoon. Three indictments were returned against Case by the grand jury and the three cases are being tried simultaneously.

The case of William P. Varden against the Pullman Palace Car company has been transferred from the St. Louis county district court to the United States circuit case. Varden claims to have secured a berth on one of the cars belonging to the defendant. When he boarded the train his berth was already taken by another man. He places the damage at $5290.40.

Uncle Reuben's Opinion.

"They may say what they please, but listen—hear me: I've taken all kinds of laxatives, purgatives and cathartics, but when it comes to one that is easy and pleasant to take, mild and gentle in its action, and that makes one want an extra slice of bacon for breakfast, just give me Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and you may have all the laxative syrups, dyspepsia medicines and pills, little or big, there is in this country. Them Tablets surely do make you feel joyful." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

FOND DU LAC SEASON.

Good Business Looked For By Nicholson & Clow.

Nicholson & Clow will open the excursion season to Fond du Lac with their popular steamer Newsboy, June 1. The steamer has been rebuilt the past winter in Napoleon Grignon's shipyards and now has new decks, stanchions, bulkheads, etc. Her machinery has been overhauled and a new speed wheel put in which will enable the steamer to run a mile faster per hour. The runs to Fond du Lac will be made daily and twice Sunday. In the evening the Newsboy will run excursions on the bay and lake.

Manager Clow said this afternoon that while the excursion business was good last season, he anticipates a still better business this summer, particularly on the Fond du Lac route, as many people have made arrangements for summer homes along the river. Nicholson & Clow have leased the park at Fond du Lac known as Chamberlain's grove and will open the grounds for picnic and excursion parties on the steamer Newsboy.

THEY FORM RUBBISH

Mayor Hugo Would Suppress the Handbill Nuisance.

Does More Apparently to Litter Streets Than Anything Else.

Suppress the handbill nuisance!

This is Mayor Hugo's latest order to the police and he supplements it with a request that all citizens seeing persons distributing handbills shall immediately notify the police department by telephone.

The passing of handbills is apparently doing more toward littering up the city than any one other nuisance that the city officers have been waging war on, and from now on it is the intention to concentrate efforts of all departments for the suppression of the handbill and the co-operations of all citizens is earnestly sought.

These bills by thousands are scattered broadcast every week by small boys hired to pass them, and whose earnest ambition is to get rid of as many as possible in the shortest time.

As an advertising proposition, according to experienced business men, the handbill system is the rankest kind of a failure. People regard them as a nuisance and do not read them—it is estimated that out of one thousand bills not one hundredth receive the slightest attention, while in lines of legitimate advertising the same ad would be read by thousands.

The mayor will undoubtedly be strongly backed in the stand he has taken and not the dirtying up of the city with this sort of advertising and the nuisance will quickly be suppressed if people will notify the police whenever they see the city ordinances being violated in this manner.

The health department is meeting with great success in its efforts to secure the cleaning of vacant property by local agents and owners under the new cleaning ordinance.

Some of the larger real estate agencies have purchased a team to do nothing else but haul rubbish from vacant property under their control and which has not been cleaned in years.

TREATIES WILL BE RATIFIED

President Palma Says They Will All Be Signed.

Havana, May 16.—President Palma today assured the correspondent of the Associated Press that understandings will be reached on all the treaties between the United States and Cuba, and that the signing of them will follow shortly. He also said he would do all possible to secure their ratification during the present session of congress of Cuba, but it is generally believed that the reluctance of senators to conclude suh treaties before the reciprocity question is settled makes it doubtful whether the naval stations can be occupied before another year. The order for signing the treaties will be—first, the Platt amendment; second, the naval stations; third, the Isle of Pines. The question of obtaining the soldiers' pay loan promptly expresses public attention to the exclusion of the treaties, but the more intelligent of the people realize that the conclusion of the treaties will make the loan more easily and advantageously obtainable in the United States market.

PLAN OF ARBITRATION

Proposed to Settle the Strike at Omaha.

Omaha, May 16.—A plan of arbitration has been proposed by the Central Labor union to settle the strike here. The plan is to submit the differences to a court composed of eleven, five each from the Employers' association and from the labor unions, the eleventh to be selected by these ten men. The plan has been unanimously adopted by the labor unions and it now remains for the employers to accept or reject the proposition.

Everything was peaceable today. Sixteen men arrested for interfering with strike breakers were arraigned in police court and released on bond pending a hearing next week.

CHARGES BY TULLOCH

Against Postal Administration Are Formally Submitted.

Washington, May 16.—The formal charges made by Seymour W. Tulloch, cashier of the Washington postoffice for many years until his removal four years ago, alleging irregularity in the postal administration, were submitted to Postmaster General Payne today. Mr. Payne and Fourth Assistant Bristow went over the statement in detail. The postmaster general stated that of the fifty typewritten pages of 200 words each only about three of the pages contained matter germane to the investigation. He said the rest of the statement contained "glittering generalities."

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Judge Hall of Chicago Dead at Colorado Springs.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 16.—Police Magistrate W. T. Hall, of Chicago, died this morning. He came to this city on a visit two weeks ago. His wife will accompany the remains to Chicago, leaving this afternoon. Judge Hall came to this city in hopes of regaining his failing health. He grew rapidly worse, despite the best medical skill. Death came at an early hour.

Chicago, May 16.—William T. Hall, familiarly known in this city as "Biff" Hall, whose death was announced from Colorado Springs today, was one of the best known newspaper men of Chicago. He had been engaged in the journalistic field in this city for the past twenty years, during the greater part of the time in the capacity of dramatic critic of various papers. While connected with the Herald he became famous as the author of the "Turnover club," a series of papers which were afterwards published in book form. He was a graduate of the law department of the university of Michigan and in 1878 was elected president of the National Amateur press association. For the past five years he had been police magistrate at the Harrison street station, popularly known as the "tenderloin district." He was 45 years of age and leaves a wife and three children.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—Constantine Gruetwaldt, who was prominent in the seal industry, is dead. He married a lady of San Francisco.

THE CONDUCTORS

Resume Discussion of Matters Concerning Their Order.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 16.—At today's session of the Order of Railway Conductors the delegates resumed their discussion of several measures which had been reported adversely by the jurisprudence committee. All considered today were defeated and the recommendations of the committee thus upheld. Late in the afternoon they began the third and final readings of the measures providing for changes in the laws of the order. They expect to finish this work at Monday's session.

The question of a permanent home for the disabled members of the order will also probably be reached on Monday. It was stated today that the matter will be voted down with but little discussion, as there is a general feeling against it. The movement for a permanent home was begun seevral years ago, at which time the order of railway trainmen was invited to join.

The election of officers for the next two years and the choosing of a place for the next biennial meeting will probably be done Tuesday. All of the present grand officers will be re-elected.

HEBREW ASSOCIATION

To Protest Against the Massacre of the Jews.

St. Louis, May 16.—The preliminary steps have not been taken by the directory of the Young Men's Hebrew association, for a mass meeting to protest against the massacre of Jews which occurred in the recent race riots in Russia.

In addition to protesting against the Russian massacres and cruelty, it is the purpose to institute a local movement to raise funds for the relief of the victims.

At the mass meeting addresses will be made by prominent citizens of all denominations.

MINNESOTA FIRST

Minneapolis, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A letter from Professor D. A. Sargent, head of the National Association of Gymnasium Directors, was received this morning, saying that the university of Minnesota has taken first place in the inter-collegiate standing contest with a total of 77,722. Columbia is second with 73,669 and Harvard is third.

WOULD END FEUDS.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 16.—General O. O. Howard, founder of the Lincoln memorial school at Cumberland Gap, and other institutions, is riding alone through the mountains of eastern Kentucky to investigate condition with a view to ending feuds. Gen. Howard, who goes on horseback, will ride through Breathitt, Letcher and Harlan counties, ending his trip at Grant-Lee hall, Cumberland Gap.

TAKEN BACK TO FREMONT.

Norwalk, O., May 16.—Walter Stratton and Lorenzo Martin, the negroes charged with killing Otto Miscke at Fremont last Saturday night, and who have been in jail here for safe keeping, have been taken back to Fremont. Since the settlement of the strike in the Claus Shear Works, excitement at Fremont has abated so much that it is deemed safe to have the prisoners there.

BURIED AT LA CROSSE.

La Crosse, May 16.—The remains of the late P. M. Myers, secretary of the Milwaukee road, were interred here this morning in the family lot in Oak Grove cemetery. The remains have been in a receiving vault at Milwaukee since his death occurred several months ago. Nearly all the high officials of the Milwaukee road attended the funeral.

STRIKE CALLED OFF.

Montreal, May 16.—The strike of teamsters was called off today. The railroad officials announce that they are now prepared to handle all kinds of business.

CHATTANOOGA NEXT.

Milwaukee, May 16.—The Woodmen of the World today selected Chattanooga, Tenn., as the place for holding the 1905 convention. The convention is engaged in discussing matters pertaining to legislation affecting the order. No changes of importance have yet been acted upon.

TROOPS ENTER TETUAN.

Tangier, Morocco, May 16.—Reinforcements for the sultan's troops have entered Tetuan without encountering any opposition.

THE ASIATIC FLEET

Largest Ever Assembled Off the Coast of China.

Decided Activity In Navy Circles on the Inside.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Of course there is no significance in the withdrawal of three of the vessels composing the European squadron, the Albany, the Cincinnati and the Raleigh, and their assignemnt to the Asiatic fleet, according to officials in the state and navy departments. There is never any significance in the strengthening of any fleet in Asiatic or European waters if the powers directing this strengthening of our squadron in foreign waters are to be believed, but the fact remains that the biggest squadron ever assembled off the coast of China is already an accomplished fact. The assignment of the three cruisers above named is taken to mean that the European squadron will not go to Kiel to attend the muneuvers of the German navy. In fact is is stated at the navy department that no orders have been issued for the European squadron to assemble at Kiel, and according to those in a position to know such action is not contemplated by Secretary Moody. The war cloud is hovering over China, and it has been thought the part of wisdom to assemble a cruiser squadron in Philippine waters with battleships enough, monitors and gunboats to compel the resepect of any nation contemplating a descent upon China. The New Orleans, which is of the same type as the Albany, the Cincinnati and the Raleigh, will be the fourth ship of the squadron. The vessels ordered from the European station to Asiatic fleet will proceed from Villefranche, via the Suez canal, under command of Commodore Rodgers of the Albany, the senior officer, and he has orders to report at once to Rear Admiral "Bob" Evans, in command of the Asiatic squadron. The detachment of the three cruisers will leave only the Chicago and the Machias on the European squadron. The San Francisco, however, which is now in West Indian waters, has been ordered to the European station to take the place of the vessels named above. Of course there is no significance to be attached to these movements, but the activity in naval circles and the disposition of the heads of the several departments of the navy towards securing men and officers to man and navigate the new vessels almost ready to go into commission seems to be potentious. While everything seems to be at peace and rest on the outside, there is decided activity in navy circles on the inside. It is hardly expected that such a formidable squadron as we have now in Asiatic waters would be assembled there for mere pastime, and for the purpose of giving officers and men something to do. We have never played the war game that way, and we are too old to make any radical change in the manner in which to prepare for future contingencies. It had been intended that the Wisconsin should have her ventilating apparatus altered, but telegraphic instructions from the navy department this week directing that the battleship should sail Thursday for China shows on the face of things that all is not serene in the Orient. As outlined in these dispatches during the past few weeks there will be mobilized about the last of June in Asiatic waters the biggest battle fleet we have ever assembled away from our own shores. This fleet will consist of the battleships Kentucky, Wisconsin and Oregon, the monitors Monterey and Monadnock, and the cruisers New Orleans, Albany, Cincinnati and Raleigh.

There is to be no more tinkering with the White House or the grounds surrounding that historic mansion if Mrs. Roosevelt can put a stop to it. The mistress of the White House of the president has given indisputable evidence recently of her disapproval of the constant experimenting with various plans of adornment for the beautification of the White House and the terraces surrounding the same. Ignorance of a most lamentable character has been shown in the manner of making the alterations in the White House which congress ordered should be made by a most liberal appropriation. Yards upon yards of earth have been dug up and carted away and then carted back. A navy official who crosses the White House grounds every morning and evening and who has watched the progress of changing the gardens surrounding the home of President Roosevelt, observed the other day that in all his public career he had never seen such crass ignorance shown as has been displayed in making the White House grounds conform to an impressionist's view point. He said it reminded him of Gellett Burgess' story of the purple cow, wherein the Nonsense Man said, referring to this remarkable animal, that "he would rather see than be one." Mrs. Roosevelt has been greatly annoyed with the everlasting changes that are going on under the direction of Architect C. F. McKim, who is responsible with adding the excrescences commonly called wings to the mansion. The upper part of these wings have been made as terraces, ornamented with electric lights and finished off with bay trees and boxwood bushes. Yesterday the nurseryman who installed the Dutch trees attempted to cart them away, seventy-two in number, but was stopped on peremptory orders from Mrs. Roosevelt, who stated that she did not desire to have any more changes unless she had been previously consulted, and that the changes had met with her approval. According to a reliable estimate the cost of the bay trees and the boxwood bushes installed on the east and west terraces and the porte cochere at the north front of the mansion was between $6000 and $7000. It is stated that Mr. McKim's objection to the present adornment of the terraces was that while the bay trees looked well in themselves, they were not sufficiently imposing to bring the White House in relief. More costly ones with box-shaped tops were desired, and that is the reason assigned for the architect's ordering the first consignment of trees to be carted away and others substituted. The American people who have seen the old White House standing as it did overlooking the Mall and surrounded by imposing government buildings, with an atmosphere peculiarly its own, will never take kindly to the new White House, with the gimcracks that have been added. A sacred shrine has been desecrated and the thousands of visitors to Washington every year will go away from the White House with feelings of the burial of their friends. The old White House is no more. The home of Madison and Monroe, the home of Buchanan and Lincoln, the home of Grant, Cleveland and McKinley has passed away under the plan of a member of the American Society of Architects.

From all over the country, during the past week or two, have come reports of unprecedented cold weather during the latter part of April and the first days of May. Some of "the oldest inhabitants" assert that the spring of 1903 is the most backward in the recollection of any of them. It is true, according to the weather bureau statistics, that this spring has been unusually cold and wet. The exceedingly warm weather of March, which prematurely started up vegetation, was followed by a cold spell in April which set back agricultural interests to a very considerable degree. But a gentleman from Western New York who has kept a record of the weather for many years, calls attention to what occurred in 1859. "There is," said he, "in the township of Wales, in the county of Erie and state of New York, an old covered bridge, one of the kind built up of planks riveted together with wooden pegs, thatched with shingles and inclosed with clap boards which were common fifty years ago. This bridge carries a legend which reads as follows: 'Wales, N. Y., 1859, hard frost June 5th.' This was the way of Erie county, New York, recorded a peculiar meteorological condition. Forty or fifty years previous to that date, however, the whole country north of the northern line of Pennsylvania suffered from several severe frosts in May and June. There are men still living who recall the fact that all vegetation was absolutely ruined by frost in June some seventy-five years ago. It is a rather peculiar incidence that on the 5th day of June, 1879, just twenty years from the date referred to in the above incident, that another frost should have visited Western New York, which, while not so severe as that of 1859, was sufficient to ruin the corn crop of the region bordering upon Lake Erie.

DECEIVED HUSBAND.

Queenstown, May 16.—On the arrival of the Umbria, detectives arrested Mrs. Gunning S. Bedford, who, accompanied by her baby and a maid, was a saloon passenger on that vessel. Mrs. Bedford's husband, who lived in London, died recently in Paris, leaving property estimated to the value of $500,000, to his wife and child. Relatives contesting the will allege that Mrs. Bedford had no children and that she procured a child and deceived her husband for the purpose of securing his whole property.

WILL PRODUCE BOOKS.

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—The attorneys of Clarence H. Venner held a conference with Judge Humphrey of the United States district court today in regard to the case in which the Boston banker yesterday was fined $1000 and costs and ordered committed to jail here for sixty days for contempt of court for failing to produce in Boston the books of the Alton Waterworks company, of which he is president, and it is hinted by the court that if Venner produces the books in court here the order might be modified.

Venner accordingly telegraphed for the books and they will arrive by next Tuesday. In the meantime Venner remains at a hotel, although in custody of officers of the court.

NEW ARCHBISHOPRIC.

Rome, May 16.—The diocese of Vancouver has been taken from the jurisdiction of the archdiocese of Oregon. Vancouver has been raised to an archbishopric, forming a new Canadian ecclesiastical province, having two Canadian western bishoprics. Rt. Rev. Betram Orth, bishop of Vancouver, has been created archbishop of the new diocese.

MANY PEOPLE INJURED.

Marion, Ind., May 16.—Twenty-one persons were injured by the overturning of a car on the Union Traction line while running at a high rate of speed in this city at 1 o'clock this morning. The air brake failed to work. The passengers were thrown into a heap and many were bruised and cut by broken glass. The most seriously injured was Dr. H. A. Woodruff, of this city.

WHITNEY'S HORSE WON.

London, May 16.—William C. Whitney's Pan Michael, ridden by Martin, won the Marlborough stakes at the Gatwick spring meeting today. Martin scored two other firsts, besides landing Richard Croker's Cooniing second in the Rock Plate.

DR. MITCHELL,
THE MAGNETIC HEALER,

Is Accomplishing Wonderful Cures — People of All Ages and Physical Conditions Are Being Restored to Health By His Powers.

The crowds of disabled people who daily visit the office of Dr. Mitchell, at 17 East Superior street, amply testify to the fact that his power over disease is little short of miraculous. Had these cures been performed in the days of superstition, the doctor would have been accredited with supernatural abilities. Many are slow to grasp new ideas and new methods, but when treatment by magnetism shall become thoroughly understood by all, it will unquestionably work a reform of secondary importance to none in the history of medicine. This power is something with which but one in a million is gifted, and not to so great an extent as Dr. Mitchell. Like the gift of a song or the other fine arts, it must remain in the possession of a comparative few. That such wonders have been performed by Dr. Mitchell is the best guarantee that all who seek him will receive relief from their ailments, no matter what their cause or of how long standing. You can be benefited by the magnetic power of this great healer. He has saved many who were on the brink of the grave. He has restored to the helpless invalid the use of limbs that had been powerless for years. The records of cures made by Dr. Mitchell is doubly wonderful when you consider that most of the cases were cured by him after drugs and doctors had completely failed. Proofs are given of his ability and power to cure disease by his many cures made in this city and from letters received from all over the country and kept on file for reference. These letters are filled with expression of gratitude to Dr. Mitchell for relief and cure and perfect restoration to health. To those who are weary and discouraged, to those threatened with cruel operations, to men and women who feel that in spite of heroic efforts they are steadily declining, and to those who have been cast aside as incurable—investigate this matter and be convinced that there is yet hope for you. It matters not from what diseases you are suffering, Dr. Mitchell can cure you if he says so.

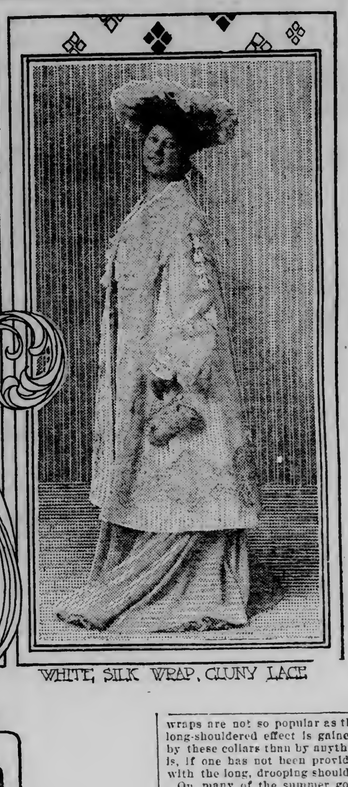
Frock & Coat for Early Summer

SHANTUNG PONGÉE GOWN. WAIST OF CLUNY INSERTION AND BLACK VELVET RIBBON

PONGÉE COACHING COAT, BLACK VELVET & GILT TRIMMINGS



WHITE SILK WRAP, CLUNY LACE

COACHING COAT OF PONGÉE SILK, TIGHT FITTED RED CLOTH WAISTCOAT, GILT TRIMMINGS

Coats and wraps to match gowns are as fashionable as ever this season, and yet never before this year was it necessary to have so many wraps and coats that in themselves are separate garments and can be worn with any gown. Made of different material, often of an entirely opposite color, and in themselves complete, they yet seem as if they were a part of whatever gown they are worn with. This fashion has at one bound attained a surprising popularity. Apparently shapeless as are all the wraps and coats of the moment, with the exception of the severe tailor-made variety that goes with the short skirt, they are in reality most carefully fitted and shaped, and, in spite of apparently hiding every line and disguising the figure, they really bring out every good point. If a woman be tall and have broad shoulders, her height and breadth are accentuated—that is, the desirable breadth. If she be short and stout, the sloping shoulders and the trimmings will be arranged to make her slender in spite of herself. Most cleverly will the extra fulness in the front of the cloak which is worn by the tall, slender woman be done away with, while the same effect of being loose and not fitting at all is still carried out. The eye is caught by the long lines of trimming, which give the much-to-be-desired slender appearance.

All light colors are tremendously popular—so popular that it is safe to predict that in a few months at latest dark colors will be in again. But for the moment light tans, ivory white, champagne color, gray, pale blue, pale green, pale red and even a light shade of pink, are in favor, and in these same shades are made up smart and attractive coats and cloaks. Cords and tassels of passementerie, dyed to match the material exactly, are used in connection with heavy lace and heavy embroidery or are deemed sufficient as trimming, with the addition of a narrow velvet collar and revers, velvet with a polka dot of white being preferred and a plain color, or with facings of a plain colored foulard, with polka dot of white. Last year's fashion of pongee or India silk in pale green, blue or red, embroidered with heavy linen thread in a design of grapes and leaves, is still fashionable, but is not so new or smart as some of the other embroideries. The newest are made of the basket weave of Madras linen—white, blue, pink or yellow—heavily braided with a fine white soutache braid. In themselves the materials for this embroidery are inexpensive, but the work, to meet the stamp of approval, must be done by hand, and, consequently, this is never an inexpensive trimming, although perfectly possible for even an amateur to turn out.

The length of the coats varies considerably. The so-called three-quarter length—so long that it reaches almost to the hem of the skirt—and the length that comes only to a little below the waist are both considered smart. But the long three-quarter is considered the smarest of all and is more becoming, for when a coat or wrap of this description is too short it makes too much fulness without the lines being long enough to modify that fulness. The accordion-plaited cloth and chiffon wraps are as fashionable as they were when first seen in Paris five summers ago, and are made without any trimming, but are not so good for carriage wear as are those of plain cloth, trimmed with either the cord and tassels, passementerie ornaments or the bands of heavy lace insertion. In white these coats are especially smart and becoming, and they are very useful also in pongee for driving and for dust cloaks. A costume of pale gray, with a long gray wrap, is immensely smart, and the gray wrap can do duty as well for a white or a black gown, but, of course, is not so smart as the white with everything else. The one tone of color carried out by having the gown, the coat and the hat all of one shade is nearly always becoming, and when it is not, just another touch of some other color added is all-sufficient to make it distinctive and original. At the present moment silk gowns in changeable taffeta, with a wrap of the same color—not necessarily of silk, but of cloth—are quite the newest, and as such are very charming.

It would seem as though velvet were never to go out of fashion. But the velvet sold by the yard, for gowns and coats and trimmings, and the velvet ribbons used also for trimmings, velvet rosettes, stiff velvet bows and the narrow velvet ribbon run through beading, have reappeared again on the latest designs for summer frocks. In many instances the touch of contrast given by the black velvet is very smart and almost always becoming. The gowns cut low in the neck—we have been threatened with these for the last two or three, even four, years, in fact—are now worn with a broad band of black velvet around the throat. This is a fashion that, strangely enough, is always pronounced becoming, but it has an unhappy faculty of adding many years to the apparent age of the wearer, as any woman who has passed the first freshness of youth or has a tendency to a double chin has found out to her sorrow. But black velvet is fashionable, and as such is used when run through beading, in rosettes or bows or in the new collars, for the black velvet ribbon is made up into stiff collars as well as worn tied with a bow at the back of the neck.

Although broad lace collars on gowns and wraps are not so popular as they were, the long-shouldered effect is gained more easily by these collars than by anything else—that is, if one has not been provided by nature with the long, drooping shoulder line.

On many of the summer gowns that are more or less simply made this wide collar is one of the features of the season, and it is seen on many of the new wraps, the collar costing even more than the entire garment, for expensive lace shows to much better advantage when so used than in any other way. Lace in color of the coat or wrap or of ecru is more used than all white, although an attempt is now being made to use the clear white with tan or gray, rather than ecru. There are several different kinds of laces. In fact, almost all kinds are considered possible, but the fad of the moment is a fine lace used in connection with shirrings of chiffon. This style of collar with long ends in front is really a wrap in itself, and on some of the long coats is made so that it can be taken off and worn separately if so desired. But somehow it makes the coat cumbersome and does not seem so trim or so in keeping as the deep collar of lace the color of the coat. The sleeves are all very large and are put in such a way that they look as though they were part of the cloak, and not sleeves at all. They are wide at the wrist, and it is very rarely that there is any lace on them. If the sleeve is fancy, with a deep turned-back cuff, there may be insertion of lace, but lace ruffles and things of that sort are quite out of date. This applies to the wraps, not to the short fancy coats of dark cloth which are now finished with double or triple ruffles of pleated white muslin and lace combined. On the silk and pongee coats and all the so-called traveling or driving cloaks the rule is that there shall be no trimming likely to catch the dust, and, consequently, only a facing is used in the fronts and on the collar and revers, if revers there are, because for the moment they are rather out of date.

Where And How To Grow The Edible Mushroom.

Although heat and humidity influence all kinds of vegetation, yet heat seems to exert less and humidity a greater influence on mushrooms than on other plants. For this reason it is in spring and autumn that the fleshly mushroom flourishes most vigorously in the United States, which is one of the most favorable countries known to the class, and in spring and autumn mushroom hunters can be found in field and forest searching for the delicacies they know so well. The members of the various mushroom clubs are enthusiasts on the subject, and there are those who assert that the cultivation of this fungus will eventually have an important bearing on the world's food supply. If more were known about the edible species it would form a more important part of our diet than now, for we would realize more clearly that for home consumption it is a healthful and grateful food, and when successfully grown for market it becomes so profitable that the original investment often is doubled. In parts of Russia, Germany and Italy mushrooms furnish the peasants and working classes with a food that takes the place of meat. The French often cultivate them in cellars and caves, and they may be grown in all kinds of greenhouses and even in boxes and frames, which can be obtained at little expense and which will supply enough for domestic use. Spring and autumn are the best seasons, and the mushrooms are usually in full bearing at the end of four weeks.

Some women use the cellars of their houses for mushroom beds, and in the case of those who wish to grow a few, a part of the room can be partitioned off alongside the wall to protect it from cold draughts. Shelves can be placed above the bed as in any other part of the cellar. This has been known to work admirably, especially if the temperature of the cellar varies from 50 to 60 Fahrenheit. One grower markets nearly three thousand pounds yearly from the cellar and attributes the success to absolute cleanliness and coats of lime wash which are frequently given the cellar walls. Such beds in a dwelling house may seem unsanitary to some people, but when rightly handled and thoroughly prepared before being started in the house they emit no odor.

No person can grow mushrooms more successfully than the farmer's wife, yet, strange to say, she has paid little attention to this branch of home gardening. Little skilled labor is necessary, and after planting all the care consists in maintaining an even temperature and in gathering the crops. Many women in search of employment can find no pleasanter work than mushroom growing, but only lately has this been realized. There is nothing arduous about it; the spawn, or bricks, can be obtained from the seedmen and nearly every yard or even a small patch of land affords the conditions necessary to the cultivation of the common varieties. The market, too, is increasing and there is every indication that as it becomes better known the cultivation of these succulent dainties will become an important industry. Space that would otherwise be unavailable can be beautified and a little knowledge of the market demands will enable one to know what kinds to cultivate and where to sell them. The mushroom clubs are advocating the industry for women, and they collect every specimen available, so that it may be catalogued and tested and the edible species become commonly known.

Florists have planted thousands of square yards under their greenhouse benches and in this way first utilized the loam needed in their greenhouse work. Chicken raisers are also becoming more and more interested, seeing in the cultivation of this fungus a good winter business. Near San Francisco is a canning factory which is used to put up mushrooms, grown in sheds filled with long and narrow beds. All the work is done by machinery, and railroad cars are used to haul the earth. Around Buffalo, N. Y., tunnels have been utilized, and St. Paul has in caves on the river bank beds of mushrooms which are noted all over the West. The beds in Buffalo and St. Paul, like the famous mushroom caves of Paris, which are yearly inspected by the government, are at such an even temperature that whole acres of mushrooms can be gathered.

All edible fungi should be collected in their prime and prepared and served as speedily as possible, lest decomposition set in. Another precaution is to carefully scrutinize the mushroom for the minute grubs which sometimes infest the entire surface. A vertical cut through the stem and cap will settle this question.

The Social Obligations Of The Working Woman

In the good old days when the working woman was a being set apart from social opportunities to almost as great an extent as her conventual sister she enjoyed certain distinct advantages as well as certain very apparent disadvantages. The discussion of her duty to society usually resolved itself into a discussion as to what she should wear during business hours and as to how far she might compromise with her "womanliness" by failing to observe elevated masculine feet and coatless masculine arms in an office. But nowadays the problem is more complicated.

She is invited to dinners and dances as a matter of course, provided that she knows dinner and dance giving people. Her acquaintances no longer say: "It would be so pleasant to have Elaine down for the club tea on Saturday afternoon, only, of course, she doesn't care for that sort of thing. She paints, you know." Week's end parties are no longer withholden from her on the ground that law and a fondness for rural relaxations are antagonistic tastes. It is not supposed that she scorns golf tournaments because she teaches Greek in a woman's college, or that a yachting trip is out of the question for her because she is a real estate broker.

Of course all this is pleasant, but he who imagines that it is unalloyed joy to the working woman is reckoning—as she cannot—without the dressmaker, the tailor, the cabby, the servants and the other expensive adjuncts of a social career. For, accepted as a fact, the professional woman is no longer allowed for as a mild monstrosity. She may no more make her appearance at a formal dinner clad in a shirt waist and cloth skirt, on the ground that she is a physician, than her brother can make his in knickerbockers and a Norfolk jacket and expect excuse to be offered because he is a landscape gardener or a railroad engineer.

Take the case of Hester, for example. Hester reaches literature in a swell private school. That in itself implies expenditures. One may not train the youthful mind there to appreciate the beauties of Shelley or the thunderings of Carlyle unless one is properly attired. The scions of the aristocracy may not hear that George Eliot did not begin to write novels early in life from a woman whose tie is badly chosen and badly tied. And when under the guidance of the head of the literature department the class is taken to see "As You Like It," the head of the literature department must be a model in matinee costuming.

But in addition to these unavoidable expenses Hester has others. She has a wide and varied circle of acquaintances. The parents of some of her pupils are on her visiting list. She has her own agreeable circle, and one distinguished one which has descended to her from days of former greatness. Moreover she is pretty, she can talk well, and, to the everlasting gratitude of hostesses, she can listen even better. She is, therefore, in great demand, and her fellow teachers envy her in a good natured way.

Some of them were telling her of her good fortune last Monday when she returned from two days at Tuxedo. The country, they said, must be perfectly lovely at this season of the year and she must have had a great measure of comfort visiting in a well appointed house, to say nothing of the delight she could not have failed to derive from intercourse with so many agreeable persons who did not talk "shop." Hester admitted all these blessings, and then she produced a notebook.

"It comes high," she observed after making sure that no lurking pupil was near to be corrupted by her slang, "but we must have it."

"Comes high," echoed the others. "We thought you were visiting."

"I was," replied Hester. Then she consulted her book. "Tip to the coachman," she announced, "fifty cents—I think he utterly despised me for not making it a dollar; silver coin seems so insignificant to him. Tip to the maid, another fifty—and she laid out the contents of my bag with an air of such carefully repressed disdain that I almost made it two dollars, just to show her that I was a person to be respected, even if I did bring only one dinner dress for three dinners and two 'changes' for three days. Tip to man who was on hand to give me a solitary breakfast at seven, one dollar—you couldn't offer him less, you felt so keenly that you had sinned unpardonably in routing him out in time for such an ungodly repast. I think that is all—for tips."

But the tips are not the whole or even the worst of the drains on the working woman who aspires to "go out." It's clothes and carriage hire and return courtesies and time and energy. Man, proud man, clothed in a single evening suit, may make a season's round of dinners and operas and dances. He may with it wear the overcoat which does duty by day, and not be conspicuously badly dressed. A woman whose chiffon flounces or spangled train float free beneath a jacket of Persian lamb or of broadcloth is grotesque. Moreover, she is extravagant. Crush all her billows under the restricting folds of an ordinary coat and they are half ruined.

The "working man" may walk to or from any social engagement and no one will regard him curiously. Imagine a woman in pale pink or violet crepe, with a Spanish lace scarf over her head and a white lined cloak over her shoulders, walking out to dinner! The chances are that she would not arrive, the constabulary having interfered. She may not even ride in a car with comfort.

The working woman is often an unattached woman, living alone and with no comfortable establishment to aid her in her return hospitality. Yet a return is necessary, not because of the mental attitude of her entertainers, but because of her own. She may consort with millionaires, but if she does she wants them also to consort with her. She cannot take them yachting or invite new and attractive dining place and give it them to her country house. She must, therefore, in order to preserve the feeling of equality and reciprocity which distinguishes the relation of friends from that of patrons and followers, devise some other form of entertainment. She must organize a first night theatre party, she must discover a —to use the most abused word in the English language—bohemian dinner there. She must send a bunch of flowers or a new book. She must introduce her acquaintances to new nooks and corners which they have not explored.

ADVANCE IN WHEAT

Market Opened Slightly Lower, But Firmed and Advanced.

Flax Trading Was Slow and the Market Irregular.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 16.—The wheat market started out weak and slightly lower this morning under the depressing influence of easier cables and favorable weather for the growing crop, but a fairly good export demand had a strengthening effect and the market advanced and ruled firm.

The export situation was fairly good today and Duluth shippers worked about 13 loads, pretty good business for Saturday. Chicago was considerably concerned over the possible reduction of the French duty. Duluth is not interested so much as France imports winter wheat almost altogether. St. Louis was sending out crop damage reports and that market was especially strong.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 106 cars, and at Chicago 53, a total of 159 cars, against 178 last week and 112 last year.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged and Paris ¼ to 1c lower. Primary receipts of wheat were 215,000 bus., last year 285,000 bus. Shipments 502,000 bus., last year 351,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 917,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market ¼ to ½d higher. July corn in Chicago closed ⅞-1c lower and July oats ¼-⅝c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 447,000 bus. last year 179,000 bus. Shipments 312,000 bus. last year 206,000 bus. Clearances were 14,000 bus.

The Duluth market was fairly active, July opened slightly lower ⅛c off at 77⅝c, but strengthened, selling to 78c within the first hour; 78⅛c at 11:10 and 78¼c at 11:55. The close was at 78⅛c; an advance f ½c. September advanced ⅜c and May ½c. In Chicago May advanced ⅛c and July ⅝-¾c. In Minneapolis May was unchanged and July up ⅛c. New York May showed no change and July was up ⅝c.

Cash sales were about 5000 bushels at May price for No. 1 northern and 2c under for No. 2.

Flax was slow and July sold ¼c up to $1.16¾ but fell back to $1.16 and closed there. May declined 8c.

Oats to arrive, on track and the May option unchanged ½c.

Following are the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 78¾c; No. 2 northern, 76¾c; May, No. 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 78¾c; No. 2 northern, 77¼c. Flax—To store, $1.14½; to arrive, $1.15; on track, 1a store, $1.14½; to arrive, $1.15; on track, 1a store, $1.15; May, $1.14½; July, $1.16; September, $1.15; May, $1.13½; July, $1.16; September, $1.17; October, $1.18; November, $1.16. Oats—To arrive, 35c; on track, 35c; May, 31c. —To arrive, 35c; on track, 36c; to arrive, 50c; May. Rye—On track, 50c; to arrive, 50c; May, 50c. Barley, 25@31c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 17; last year, 2; rye, 1; barley, 1; flax, 9; last year, 4.

Receipts: Wheat, 10,979; rye, 2245; flax, 11,182.

Shipments: Wheat, 31,000; oats, 137,572.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Easy Cables and Favorable Weather Depress Wheat.

Chicago, May 16.—Easier cables and favorable weather had a depressing effect on wheat prices at the opening today, July being unchanged to ⅛c lower at 72⅜@72⅝c. Trading was light, with offerings small, and only a scattered demand. After selling at 72⅜@73c, July advanced to 72⅝@73c, and steadied around the opening figures. Minneapolis and Duluth reports of receipts of 106 cars, which with local receipts of 25 cars, two of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 237 cars, against 178 cars last week and 112 cars a year ago.

A better demand developed during the latter part of the session and the market became strong, July advancing to 73⅜c and closing 5/8@¾c higher at 73½@73⅝c.

Corn opened a trifle easier on excellent weather and increased receipts, while cables also had a strengthening influence. July was off a shade to 1c opening at 46c to 46⅞@46¾c and a prominent provision interest bought considerable around 45c the offerings coming largely from locals. The volume of business was said and the market held fairly steady, July selling at 46⅛@46⅜c. Local receipts were 255 cars, 23 of contract grade.

The corn was easier with ⅜@½c lower at 45½c.

Oats opened steady on unfavorable crop advices, July being a shade to ⅛c higher at 33⅝@33¾c, but on selling by scalpers and in sympathy with the easier tone in other grains the market became somewhat easier, July declining to 32⅝c. Large receipts were a bear factor. Local receipts were 115 cars.

Provisions opened steady with a fair demand for July lard from brokers. Trading, however, was small owing to the light offerings. September pork was unchanged, at $16.55. September lard was unchanged to 2½c lower, at $8.97½ to $9.00, and ribs were up from 5@7½c at $9.22½@9.25.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was fairly active and strong. There was a heavy decrease in stocks for the week and prospect of a liberal decrease on Monday, but the main incentive of strength was the advance in St. Louis and the unfavorable crop news from the winter wheat section. These seems to have an increasing tendency from the Ohio valley, this state and Missouri. The few complaints from Kansas so far seem local. With the light stocks the market responds rather readily to buying from any incentive. The character and tendency of the crop news the coming week is likely to be the controlling factor. At the moment it is unfavorable and we think we would go with the market. It has been in a rut a long time and is apparently getting out. Cables are still complaining of lack of rain and San Francisco is sharply higher today. Estimated cars, 20.

Corn—Tone of the market here was easy. A good deal of the pressure came, no doubt, from rather bearish local sentiment, which seems to be increasing. Country offerings are becoming quite liberal and there is every prospect of a largely increased movement. Through one cause or another, the movement of corn this crop has been interfered with and we are inclined to expect that between now and July receipts will be large. The new crop is pretty well planted and under fairly favorable conditions. Argentine is likely to be a large exporter in competition with us. We have pretty persistently bulled corn for many months. We are now inclined to think, however, that bearing local manipulation, the money for the immediate future will be on the bear side. Estimated cars, 100.

Kansas City wires following from prominent miller of Wellington, Kansas, which county is banner wheat county of state: "The acreage here is greater than it was last year or ever before for that matter; it looks like a greater yield per acre."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: The trade in both grain and provisions for May delivery is getting narrowed down so much that it is becoming quite hard to execute orders. Frequently it not even requires considerable time, but fluctuations between trades are sudden and wide. If our friends will kindly bear this in mind it will avoid disappointments. Wheat and corn for May are still under manipulative control.

Snows crop report: Outside of considerable districts in southern and southeastern Missouri and southern Illinois, winter wheat promise is fairly well maintained. In these districts cool, dry weather for nearly a month has served to permanently impair plant vitality and while nothing like crop failure is indicated, yet best result now possible is much below early promise. Reports of Hessian fly are more numerous than recently but there is no evidence of material injury except in limited localities.

Chicago: Indications now point to a liberal decrease in wheat visible Monday, likely around 2,000,000 bushels, against 1,725,000 last year. Minneapolis will lose 1,350,000, Duluth 600,000.

"I am looking for 40c oats," says W. O. Elmore, of Chicago. "All through central New York there has been such a lack of moisture the streams are unprecedentedly low. Any shortage in the natural supplies down East means an extraordinary demand on the West.

AID FOR JEWS.

Large Sum Collected In the United States.

New York, May 16.—During the ten days that collections have been made in the United States for the immediate assistance of the sufferers in the religious riots of Kishineff, Russia, about $50,000 has been subscribed to the relief fund. The largest amount has been raised in this city, and the money, about $21,500, or 43,000 roubles, has been cabled to the head of the committee at Kishineff. The sum forwarded yesterday was 25,000 roubles.

Berlin, May 16.—The Morning Post publishes a dispatch from Moscow saying that Count Tolstoi has given $7500 to the fund being collected to aid the Jews of Kinshineff.

FAVORABLE SHOWING

Made By Ohio Banking House Which Failed.

Cleveland, May 16.—The banking house of Boughton, Ford & Co., which recently closed its doors at Burton, O., filed a schedule of assets in the United States district court here yesterday. The assets are said to be $1,161,204. This amount is greatly in excess of the liabilities alleged, according to the report filed in the same court two weeks ago. The liabilities were given at $908,822. It is said that the showing of the figures is much better than expected and that if the assets can be fully realized upon the 2500 depositors may be paid 40 dollar for dollar.

A CAR AND A BEER WAGON

Come Together In Chicago, Injuring Many People.

Chicago, May 15.—Four persons were severely injured, one probably fatally, and twenty others were slightly injured early today when a Halstead street electric car collided with a beer wagon. The failure of the driver of the wagon to hear the warning bell of the car is said to be responsible for the accident. The motorman and two men, who were standing on the front platform, were injured.

NO DISTURBANCE

Occurred on Russian Labor Day, Although Expected.

Rostoff-on-the-Don, Russia, Friday, May 15.—In spite of the agitation of the Social Democrats, who urged the public to start disturbances, the Russian Labor day, yesterday, passed off quietly and work went on as usual. Infantry and Cossacks, however, were held in readiness to preserve order. Some Social Democrats tried to incite a crowd to make a demonstration in the evening but they failed. There were numerous arrests of agitators.

KILLED HIS SON.

La Grange, Ky., May 15.—W. P. Kelly, one of the wealthiest farmers of this county, last night shot and fatally wounded his son Morris, a medical student, who entered his father's yard unannounced. Two weeks ago Mr. Kelly and two of his neighbors shot and killed William Mansfield, and Mr. Kelly since that time has been in an extremely nervous condition.

TO MARK SPOT WHERE BODY LAY.

Canton, O., May 16.—A tablet of bronze or oxidized copper will be placed in the court house corridor here where the body of the late President McKinley lay in state the day before the funeral, bearing the words: "Here lay in state the body of William McKinley, president of the United States, Sept. 18, 1901."

TWO WARSHIPS FOR TURKEY.

Rome, May 16.—It is reported that Turkey has agreed to buy two warships which have been built for the Argentine Republic.

FROM PRISON TO ASYLUM.

Berlin, May 16.—The Hanover Algemeine Zeitung says that Prince Prosper Von Arenberg, who was sentenced some years ago to fifteen years' imprisonment for cruelly murdering a negro in German Southwest Africa, will be transferred from prison to an asylum. The claim is made that the prince's health has become seriously impaired.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Market Was Weak and Dull Throughout the Session.

Some Buying By the Shorts Caused a Steady Close.

New York, May 16.—Opening prices varied only ⅛@¼c from last night's level, about equally divided between gains and losses. The market was so nearly stagnant as to show no perceptible current either way. A rise of ⅝ in Canadian Pacific was the largest change.

Offerings of various low priced stocks selling in the 20's and 30's were made at sharp fractional concessions from yesterday's close, and in the case of Texas & Pacific the loss was 1⅜. This weakness gradually extended to other portions of the list and the usual leaders also became heavy. Losses, however, did not exceed fractions. Tennessee Coal, International Power and Evansville & Terre Haute declined 1@1¼.

Southern Pacific was sold down a point before the appearance of the bank statement, which was considered weak. Light buying to cover caused the market to waver but the decline was renewed. Louisville & Nashville, Brooklyn Transit, Manhattan, Hocking Valley preferred and some inconspicuous stocks declined 1 to 1½. Pacific Mail lost 1⅞ and North American 2. Southern Pacific touched 52½. There was renewed buying by the shorts and the close was steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was again heavy and dragging. Prices were partially regained at the close on covering of shorts. The bank statement was mildly unfavorable. There was some little pressure on the Harriman stock, but nothing very important. The prospects are that gold may go out rather free the coming week. It would appear that the market is still dull and the buying of stocks does not materially improve.

It should have rallies, but we think stocks should be sold on the hard spots. The tendency of the news on wheat is unfavorable and if it should develop to any important degree the market would hardly stand it.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Most of the big houses whose opinions are worth anything, are inclined to think the market will do better. On the other hand Keene and his followers are bearish, or at least say so. Whatever way you look at it there is a mixup and one man's guess is as good as another's. My own opinion is not worth anything and I doubt if any one else's is. For a long period back Harris-Gates have been sending out the best information. The last two or three months the Wall street information bureau has, in the main, been fairly correct, but I have never heard of any one who followed them long enough who did not go broke. My opinion, given for what it is worth, is that stocks are low enough and that purchases made on drives should result profitably. Men of means are buying stocks now, will stand pat and make money.

Harriman to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bank statement was of a negative character and did not have much effect upon the market. The market continues to be a trader's market with but little feature. The bank statement today, as compared with a year ago, reflects almost the same conditions of banks as at that time. There isbut little to add to general conditions beyond those enumerated in this morning's letter.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: It is noted that at a decline which leaves many stocks 30 to 40 points below their high level of last year there is more curiosity to know the identity of buyers than that of the people who are offering stock down. It is generally admitted by experienced observers that recent manipulation has been of the sort usually employed to tire out holdings and accumulate stocks and discourage speculative holders when the big banking interests aim to shake out such holdings and accumulate stocks for a bull campaign. Despite the gloomy-out-givings from certain influential sources it is believed that such stocks as St. Paul, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Atchison and Southern Pacific, and for this reason and because othe, and for this reason and because othe, and for this reason and because othe

REALTY MARKET IS QUIET BUT STRONG

Considerable Changing of Small Properties and Demand For Homes Continues Good—Outlook For Building Brightening But Not Enough Will Be Done.

The local realty market for the past week has shown a quiet but steady strength. While the transfers have not been particularly active, there has been a steady inquiry and numerous small sales have been closed. A few good city properties have changed hands this week and some deals that have been negotiating for some weeks were closed up. Outside property continues to sell well, and some good sales of farm lands are being recorded. There is considerable acreage even now in the process of changing ownership. The fair weather of the past few days has brought out a great many people who are looking for homes at moderate prices. According to the drift of the talk among the brokers it is still a little difficult to bring the buyer and the seller together on prices. There is no tendency on the part of property owners to weaken as to their prices, and many offers have been turned down within the last few days.

The building outlook is brightening. During last month a number of intending builders gave up their projects on the ground of increased cost of material and labor, but some of these and other new people have begun figuring on new homes. Nearly all the architects are busy on plans for moderate-sized homes and the list of permits issued from day to day indicate that the home builders are getting in line.

Still, with all the preparations that are going on for new buildings this summer the sentiment among the realty agents is that building activity is not so great as it should be. They complain that the number of new flats and apartment houses that are going up for rent is ridiculously small, that the bulk of the improvement is for people that are building their own homes. This kind of building is characterized as a good thing for any city, but the situation is likely to remain as serious as ever to those who must rent homes. A canvass of the rental agencies shows that the agents have very little to offer, and some are daily turning people away with the remark that their slate is wiped clean.

New building enterprises in Duluth since May 1, 1902, have amounted to $1,604,980, yet the demand for flats, houses and commercial houses cannot be met. Some of those who have been watching the building situation predict that in another year the building figures will reach another million and a half dollars, and that even then the demand will not be met. One of the features about the building record figure for Duluth, as given above, is that it represents a normal and quiet growth, whereas some of the other large Minnesota cities have gone ahead by spurts.

The yearly record for new buildings is in excess of any other month and breaks the previous big record of $1,000,405 which was made in 1901. Despite the general belief, flats and residences have increased at an enormous rate during the past year, as shown by the building increase books of the city assessor. Hotel and store buildings have figured prominently in the building enterprises of the past year and will also figure prominently in the coming year's new structures.

The Schiffman residence at 1627 East Superior street has been sold through the office of Stryker, Manley & Buck, to Elcey H. Cole, for $3850. The property is described as lot 10, block 59, Endion. The firm has also, among other sales, sold the flats at 221 West First street to George Smith for $2500. The property belonged to outside parties. The deal for the Eldridge residence in the East End, for $7620, from the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, to Perry D. Jones, was completed this past week and the papers filed. The transaction was mentioned some time ago.

Capt. A. C. Majo, of the Independent Ferry line, has purchased a home on Fourteenth avenue east, between Third and Fourth streets, for $4500. The property was bought from Nelson S. Hillman and is described as the southerly 35 feet of the northerly 100 feet of lot 1 and of the westerly half of lot 2, the southerly 70 feet of the easterly half of lot 2, and of the westerly half of lot 3, block 90, Endion division.

Robert Mannheimer has sold to Bridget Lynott for $3650 the residence property on the upper side of Second street between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east. The property is described as lot 12, block 60, Portland division.

J. W. Hilliard has bought from M. M. Deetz the double brick residence property on the upper side of Second street between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east. The consideration was $4800. The property is described as half of lots 9 and 10, block 56, Portland division.

The Boston & Duluth Farm Land company has disposed of some large acreage in sections 3, 9, 17 and 19-50-13, to Fred A. Mudge, for $15,358.50. The company has also sold 500 acres of Carlton county land to Spencer, Iowa, people, who propose to open a stock farm. The company has a number of stock farm projects under way within a radius of 40 miles of Duluth.

North Star Lodge of Perfection, No. 6, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Masons of the Southern jurisdiction of the United States has taken another important step toward the construction of the proposed new Masonic temple, by filing articles of incorporation. The lodge may now legally hold property and take steps for building. Two lots at the corner of Second avenue east and Second street were purchased last year for $12,000, and the plans for the splendid new edifice to cost about $50,000 have been under preparation by Architect J. J. Wangenstein. About half of the sum required for the new building has bene subscribed, and it is expected that the remainder will be subscribed so that the new temple will be built inside of the next year.

Hill & Bray have ready the plans for the new parochial school which is to be erected this summer at the corner of Fourth street and Second avenue west for the Sacred Heart parish. The architects will take figures on the plans next week. The new school building will cost about $50,000. It will be of brick and stone, 3-story, 80 by 140 feet. The construction work is to be started as soon as possible.

The same firm of architects is getting out plans for a $10,000 frame residence building for Capt. Robert Smith, to be erected at Twenty-fourth avenue east and Fifth street. The exterior will be of purely old Colonial style. The reception room and main entrance hall will be of Colonial style, the dining room of Dutch renaissance, and the main living room, 18 by 28 feet, will be finished in French renaissance style.

Figures will be taken this week on the new brick and stone sub-station which the Zenith Telephone company will erect on Sixteenth avenue east and Third street. The building will be a model of its kind and unique in structure. It will be two stories, 22 by 50 feet. The first floor will be occupied by the working apparatus and the second floor will be used for the operating room. The walls will be laid up with flashed hydraulic pressed brick, the first instance of this kind of structure in the city.

The plans for the new Town and Country club house will be in the hands of contractors in about a week.

Architect J. J. Wangenstein reports the contract for the Pinnsonault building let to John Grandy. Wangenstein has just returned from Brainerd, where his plans for two new school houses have been accepted and bids will be received up to May 26.

Young & Nystrom, architects, have removed from their offices in 510 Manhattan building to much larger and handsomer quarters. One of the features of the new office will be a reception room.

The sale of the F. L. Shipley property on parts of lots 7, 8 and 9, block 11, Portland division, to Z. T. Mullin, for $6000, was made through the office of William Prindle & Co. this week.

The deal whereby the title of block 87, Second division of Duluth, passed from the Western Land association to the French Catholic association, was consummated this week through T. G. Vaughn's office. The property is bounded by Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west and by West Second and Third streets. The new Catholic church is to be erected on the property. The consideration was $20,000. Other sales of the week through the same office were the residence property at 119 East Fifth street for $2000, a lot on Fifth street near Twenty-third avenue west for $700, two lots on Fourth street and Twenty-first avenue west for $560 each, a lot in Hazelwood Park for $550. An offer has been sent out of $12,000 for a centrally located property.

THE COPPER MARKET

Calumet & Hecla People Believe Metal Price Will Advance.

Copper Shares Dull But Show an Improving Tendency.

George L. Walker in his weekly copper letter says:

Copper is firmer. Lake and electrolytic are both 15 cents bid, and except for a few unimportant lots none is offered below 15¾ and 15¼, respectively. London quotations have advanced steadily, and close the week at a gain of nearly £2. Foreign advices state that consumers are again coming into the market, and that they are finding producing interests very independent and unwilling to sell except at advancing prices.

I am told that Calumet & Hecla people are very well satisfied that copper will sell higher. The company is understood to be holding its product at 16½ cents. Two and three years ago the management of this company had no confidence in the 17 cent copper market, and was charged with cutting the prices that the Amalgamated people tried to maintain. It was apparently right then, but it has been convinced by the heavy consumptive demand of the past year that it is just as easy to sell copper at high prices as low. In common with practically all other independent producers it is now lending its influence to the maintenance of high prices.

It comes to me from very good sources that an effort is being made by interests connected with Amalgamated to make the metal market appear lower than it really is. It is said that instead of electrolytic copper being offered at 15 cents, a week ago with 14¾ cents the best bid, the bid was really 15 cents all the time for considerable large lots. There has all along been a real shortage of electrolytic copper, and there is now a ready demand in excess of the supply. The outlook is that prices for all grades will shortly be higher.

THE COPPER MARKET.

Coppers have continued dull this week, but have shown a steadily improving tendency. There has been quiet buying of some issues in this market for New York account, and more or less also for local investors. The selling has been almost wholly for the account of Lake holders, who are still buying shares in all kinds of Arizona and other local flotations at all kinds of prices. Their recent action recalls the fact that New England investors have often in the past bought Lake coppers of Lake holders at bottom prices and sold them back again on the tops of speculative waves. The prospect is that history is to be repeated.

Conditions continue to be very favorable to an advance in copper share prices. Money is now sufficiently easy to warrant activity in the Boston market. New York speculation is so quiet that local bankers have little demand from Wall street institutions for their surplus funds. There is still a considerable market following both here and in New York that can be depended on to take a ready hand in copper share speculation when it develops; and see far as can be learned is the greatest obstacle to such development is that the leading trading interests have been unable to accumulate as large a supply of stocks at low prices as they wish. In several issues including Amalgamated, determined effort has been made to shake out weak stock; but how far it has been successful can only be guessed.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

James Sheehy, of Negaunee, Passes Away.

Negaunee, Mich., May 16.—Special to The Herald.)—James Sheehy, aged 70 years, a resident of this city for the past forty years, died yesterday morning. He is survived by a widow and six children: Patrick Dowd, a step-son; Michael and John Sheehy, Mrs. Abbie Riley, of Chicago; Mrs. Mary E. Block, of Marquette; and Mrs. G. Trotter, of Belvedere, Ill. A sister of the deceased, Mrs. Michael Murphy, of Ironwood, is also in the city.

A telegram from Chicago to Mr. and Mrs. John Bartle, of this city, announcing the death of his son-in-law, Mr. Al Austrian, 46 years of age, has been received.

PHIPPS GETS BACK.

San Francisco, May 16.—Henry Phipps, multi-millionaire and philanthropist, whose fortune of $50,000,000 or more was acquired while he was a partner of Andrew Carnegie in the steel business at Pittsburg, arrived on the Siberia, accompanied by his son and daughter, en route to New York, from a pleasure tour of the world.

CURES CHRONIC CATARRH.

Hyomei Cures Worst Forms of This Disease In Any Part of the System.

It is the height of folly to continue doctoring a catarrhal disease by stomach drugging, when the whole trouble lies in the respiratory organs where nothing can reach the germs but a local direct treatment by inhalation. Hyomei is Nature's remedy for the cure of catarrh. Just breathe it a few times daily and it will effect a cure.

You may have catarrh of the stomach, liver or kidneys, and Hyomei will as surely cure it as it will catarrh of the head and throat. The catarrhal germs are in the mucous membrane or tissues, and Hyomei not only kills the germs along the air passages, but enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood.

The medicated dry air that goes through the air passages and into the lungs when Hyomei is breathed through the inhaler that accompanies every outfit, is rich in ozone, purely vegetable and filled with marvelous healing and strength-giving qualities.

If you are tired of stomach drugging and seem to grow weaker all the time, "throw physic to the dogs" and get well with the health-giving Hyomei treatment that is Nature's own method.

Rev. J. B. Cook, of Holliston, Mass., says: "My wife has suffered greatly from catarrh for fifteen years. Nearly four weeks ago she commenced to use Hyomei, and the beneficial effect was immediate. It is very seldom that she needs to clear her head and throat, and she is able to rest quietly at night. For years past she had been troubled with pain in her limbs, which we supposed was rheumatism, but since she has used Hyomei that affliction has disappeared."

S. F. Boyce will return your money if Hyomei does not cure you of catarrh. This shows his faith in the remedy.

TO DRILL ON THE BUCKEYE

George H. St. Clair Gets Contract From Buffalo & Susquehanna Co.

The Buffalo & Susquehanna Iron and Steel company has taken an option on the Buckeye mine, on the western Mesaba, and has let a contract for drilling to George H. St. Clair, who has already begun the work. The lease is owned by Minneapolis people and the fee by the state. The property has been optioned several times and abandoned in each instance. Capt. M. L. Fay, Corrigan, McKinney & Co. and John T. Jones have explored it. The deposit is like the Arcturus, mixed with silica, but it is likely that the Susquehanna company will adopt some method of washing the ore, as has been successfully done with the Arcturus ore.

W. A. and Guy A. Eaton have taken an option on land in section 4, near the Incas property, east of Ironwake, from the Longyear Land and Mining company. One forty is just south of the Incas and the other is south of the eighty which lies immediately west of the Incas, and on which drills are now working in ore. The Eaton eighty is almost certain to contain ore, as the Incas deposit passes into it.

CARNIVAL IS FINE SUCCESS

High School Entertainment Brilliant But Audience Not Large.

The athletic carnival given by the High School Athletic association at the high school last evening, was a great success. The stage of the Assembly hall presented the appearance of a gymnasium while fifty stalwart students went through their evolutions.

There was high jumping, buck vaulting, long horse work, table vaulting by the high school boys. The numbers in which they made their hit were the live and ladder pyramids. In the live pyramids about ten of the larger boys got down on all fours, a row of boys of one size smaller took like positions on their backs, then still another tier on top of them and a diminutive feshman constituted the fourth row.

It was the first time that anything of the sort has been seen here in an amateur performance and it was applauded loudly. The pyramids made with ladders also met the approval of the audience.

The Venetian march by a class of girls from the Washington school was the prettiest number on the program. Torches of red and white, the high school colors, were carried through the mazes of the drill on a darkened stage. The illuminated club swinging by the pupils of the Irving school was also fine.

The size of the audience rather disappointed the high school boys as they did not make enough to clear their debt, but the carnival was declared a great success. There is talk of repeating it.

Under Elks Auspices.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, a graduate of Trinity college, Dublin, Ireland, will give his popular illustrated lecture on Ireland at the Lyceum theater on Wednesday evening, May 27. Mr. Mooney is a native of Ireland and will take his audience with him through historic and beautiful places, his memory and remarkable descriptive power being aided by eighty stereopticon views. He will also consider Ireland politically and review the situation as it appears today to the most ardent supporters of Irish independence. The Minneapolis Tribune speaks of Mr. Mooney as a fascinating speaker, who is a master of his subject and that his lecture should appeal strongly to all students of the present conditions in the Emerald Isle. The lecture will be given under the auspices of Duluth lodge No. 133, B. P. O. E.

HANDSOME HOME

Young Women's Christian Association In Its New Quarters.

Finely Equipped For Its Work—Opening Reception.

The ambition of the Young Women's Christian association to be installed in a proper home has been realized and it has been installed in its new quarters in the Bradley building at First avenue West and Superior street. Last evening the formal opening took place and the rooms which have been occupied for the past few weeks were thrown open to the public. They equal and surpass the majority of the public rooms of the city and were admired by the large number of friends of the association that called. The new home of the association occupies the entire upper floor of the building and was finished under the direction of the association, so are qualified in every way for the work that is to be done in them. The rooms have been occupied for some time and no fault or draw back has as yet been discovered. The assembly room and guest hall which is finished in golden oak. The furniture of the hall, chairs and tables is also in the same wood as is the desk counter. Along the further wall runs a couch well cushioned and overflowing with pillows of bright stuffs contributed by the girls.

The rooms at the front of the building are taken up with the reception room and Miss Kemper's office. These are finished in weathered oak and are beautifully furnished. The office is furnished with the regulation office furniture and the reception room has the weathered oak furniture. Two tables with a number of late magazines upon them and chairs, a piano and a tiny desk in the same severe style of furniture make the rooms inviting. The rugs are in red and with the bright cushions of the Morris chairs and the soft green of the wall, make one of the most charming rooms of the building.

The dining room opens off the hall and also off the reception room through large double doors and last evening with the pretty flowers for decorations and the daintily gowned girls serving was an attractive room. This room and all the remaining rooms are finished in golden oak and the walls are tinted a soft olive color. The furniture here consists only of the chairs and tables, built when prepared for the public luncheon with some pretty floral centerpiece and the scrupulous cleanliness of everything is the most popular room with the hungry girls.

Across the hall from the dining room is the rest room simply fitted up with couches and cushions and a few magazines.

The kitchen is the pride of the association in one way, for the handiness of everything and the full stock of utensils make the room convenience itself for those at work there. It speaks well for the increase in patronage that another range had to be added recently to the equipment.

The "gym" is at the end of the hall and is a fine, large, well-lighted room, with some considerable apparatus. A small office off the gymnasium has been fitted up by the gymnasium classes as an office for Miss Culver, the physical director. A piano is in the room, the equipment of the room. The lockers and baths are the joy of the gym girls who have felt that baths were all that were necessary to make the gym ideal. The baths have been fitted out with the latest improvements and are large and correspond with the equipment of the rest of the rooms.

Last evening an informal musical program was given by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra which plays finely and Miss Jane Everington and Paul J. Gilbert sang charmingly. A very large number called during the evening and punch was served in the dining room. Miss Grace Maxwell and Miss Della Goodman were in charge of the dining room.

The work of the Young Women's Christian association was begun last spring in Duluth by Miss Henderson of St. Paul, but the rooms were not opened until October when quarters in the Axa building were secured, which did very well for temporary work, but spring work has been going on in those rooms and with the moving into the new rooms it is felt that a very great deal has been accomplished in a remarkably short space of time.

The directors who have worked during the past year so faithfully and brought the work to such success are Mrs. J. D. Ticonic, president; Mrs. L. W. Klein, vice president, Miss Indianola Wilcutts, secretary; Mrs. W. C. Agnew, corresponding secretary; Miss Elizabeth Garvin, treasurer and Mesdames F. C. Bowman, Sarah McCord, W. W. Billson, C. H. Merritt, R. S. Manley W. S. Bishop and Warwell Ames, Misses Ella Roe, Alice P. Ray and Ella Greaser. The advisory board which has been such a help in securing the present rooms consists of Messrs. J. B. Adams, S. D. Allen and W. S. Moore.

Next Wednesday evening a membership supper will be served in the rooms for active, associate and sustaining members. The supper will be served at 6:30 and following will be held a business meeting at which the board of directors will be elected for the ensuing year. A large attendance is desired for all members of the association have never yet been brought together at once with outsiders excluded. The membership is growing rapidly, applications for more being received yesterday. All members desiring to attend the supper Wednesday evening are desired to leave their names at the office by Tuesday evening.

All in all the formal opening last evening was a success of which the association may well be proud.

FAREWELL TO DR. FORBES

Masonic Friends Banquet Him at Kitchi Gammi Club.

A number of his Masonic friend last night gave a godspeed banquet to Dr. Robert Forbes at the Kitchi Gammi club. Dr. Forbes leaves early next week to take up his new duties in the East, leaving the fields that he has graced with his kindly and genial presence for so many years, and those who participated in last night's affair wished to foregather with him once more in order to show their appreciation of his companionship and their regret at his departure. Mayor T. W. Hugo gave the farewell speech, and Dr. Forbes responded. Both talks were full of the spirit of the occasion. W. A. McGonagle presided as toastmaster. Those in attendance were as follows: Dr. Robert Forbes, W. A. McGonagle, T. W. Hugo, W. E. Richardson, George W. Buck, William White, J. E. Cooley, A. L. Frazer, B. Silberstein, J. T. Armstead, R. E. Denfeld, Jesse Norton, John T. Black, B. G. Segog, Henry S. Ely, M. M. Gasser.

FIRE AT HARRISON, IDAHO.

Spokane, Wash., May 16.—Practically the entire plant of the Empire Mill company at Harrison, Idaho, has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000.

AT WEST DULUTH

It is expected that the match factory will commence operations Monday with three machines of the ten. The delays incidental to the equipping of a new plant have been many and the date of opening is later than was expected. It was planned to open last Monday, but this was found impossible.

The machinery, which was brought from Chicago, has been installed and the new machines will be put up as fast as they are completed. The National Iron works is building the machinery for the plant.

The interior of the factory has been remodeled. A commodious office occupies the front of the main building to the right of the entrance. The machine room occupies the north half of the main building and the remainder of the plant is used as a shipping and storing room.

When the ten machines have been installed the factory will be one of the largest in the Northwest and will employ a large number of hands. The machines are of a new and very complete type. They have been thoroughly tested, having been used in the company's plant at Chicago for two years. The equipping of the Duluth plant was under the direct supervision of the inventor.

REAL ESTATE SALES NUMEROUS.

Real estate has been active in West Duluth during the past week and a number of sales and transfers have been recorded. The demand is chiefly for homes and for building lots for improvement.

J. J. Frey reports the following sales:

Patrick Haley sold his house on Wisdom avenue to R. O. Kindey for the sum of $2000. Mr. Haley will move to Central avenue.

James Jamieson has purchased number 216 Fifty-seventh avenue for the sum of $1000.

Tony Cascialto has purchased the corner of Main street and Central avenue for the sum of $1550. He intends to improve the property.

Two lots on Grand avenue were sold to James Fitzgerald for $650.

A number of other deals are pending and will probably be closed today.

The market is in a healthy condition in West Duluth. The demand is good and a large number of profit takers are offering their holdings.

TOOK NO ACTION.

President Hubbard of the Zenith Telephone company was present at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening and presented the company's side in the proposed increase in the company's rates. He explained in the manner in which the operating expenses of the company increased as the number of the 'phones became greater.

A lengthy discussion followed. The members of the club seemed to be favorably impressed with Mr. Hubbard's address, but no action was taken pending the report of the city comptrouer, who is making an examination of the company's books.

MACKINTOSH SALE.

SIX ARE DISCHARGED.

Six of the seven lads who were held by Justice Stone on a charge of breaking into a boat house have been released. The boys pleaded not guilty and were released without bail. No evidence was found against them and they have been discharged. The names of those who were discharged are: Herbert Doyle, Fred Willie, Earnest Willie, Aggie Doyle, Edward Cheboyski and Lolla Carrie. The boys are said to bear a good reputation in the neighborhood in which they live, and the suspicion under which they fell is said to have been without foundation.

Arthur Enberg will be arraigned Monday night in Justice Stone's court.

TWO ISLE ROYALE SCENES.

WASHINGTON HARBOR, SHOWING THE WASHINGTON HOTEL.

WASHINGTON HARBOR, SHOWING WASHINGTON AND GRACE ISLANDS.

TWO ISLE ROYALE SCENES.

Isle Royale is one of the most charmingly picturesque spots on the continent, and Washington Harbor, shown in the pictures published herewith, is one of the most beautiful parts.

The north shore trip is growing more and more in favor every year. It is a succession of charming views, and in the Isle Royale waters the climax of beauty is reached. The big island is surrounded by a myriad of smaller ones, and the clear, limpid waters are full of fish, lake and brook trout. The air is charged with ozone to the fullest extent, and there is more health to the square inch up there than in almost any other place that could be named. There seems to be something that is utterly fatal to hay fever, for instance, and there have been very few of the most obstinate cases that have not yielded to a round trip up the north shore.

Snugly located in the jaws of Washington harbor are Washington and Grace islands, the former being the one shown in the center of the lower picture. The big log cabin owned by a number of Duluth men is in the center of this island. G. G. Barnum, of this city, and others have cottages on these islands, and a more delightful place to camp or spend a summer's outing could not well be imagined.

VIEWS OF INDIANS ATTENDING TERM OF FEDERAL COURT IN DULUTH.

Hobbling painfully along by means of a long pole which he carries obliquely across the front of his body, and with his red blanket wrapped about him, "Ne-Gaune-Gig-Gish," an old Indian chief belonging to the Bear Island band of Leech Lake Indians, is a conspicuous and picturesque figure on the streets of Duluth at the present time. He is seen in two of the views given herewith. He is in the city as a witness in an illegal liquor selling case which is being tried before the United States district court.

One leg has been amputated at the knee. It was wounded by the accidental discharge of a gun and amputation was necessary.

When in the witness box at the court room the old man answered only through an interpreter. He cannot speak a word of English. He is without any education and did not kuow his age when asked, but there is a native dignity aboht the old man which becomes him, and which brings to the mind of the on-looker pictures of the noble Cooper Indians. He sat in the chair on the witness stand in a slightly stooped position, with a sad, wistful expression on his countenance, gazing out of the north windows of the court room far out over the hill top, which was bathed in the sunlight of a perfect May afternoon. He did not seem to hear the questions of the interpreter, but the answers came promptly, and in one instance where a question was repeated in a slightly different form he replied, "I have answered once."

What stories of the great North country this old chief could tell were his lips but trained to the English tongue or were he given the gift of writing. Born on the Leech lake reservation, he has spent all the years of his life, which must number more than three score, within the limits of the state of Minnesota. Long before the white man was established here the old chief was wandering the shores of the inland lakes chasing the deer and the buffalo, and he may have wandered the shores of Lake Superior when great pine forests covered the site of Duluth and Superior, and the shores of the Great Lone lake responded but to the call of the moose or the long-drawn howl of the wolf.

The two blushing young damsels that are shown in the above picture were exceedingly shy when it came to have their pictures taken. It is shyness that is shown in the reproduction, and not an attempt on their part to flirt with the reporter, as things would seem to indicate.

The young lady at the left with her hat on straight and wearing the glad dimples is Emma Jackson in English, and Show-show-un-e-bees in the Indian vernacular. The young lady with the hat on the side of her head, and who wears the happy smile, is Mary Jackson, or, in Indian, Te-hish-ko-gah-bow-squay.

Emma and Mary figure as belles among the Indian society in which they move, and many of the young bucks are ready at all times to do something to win their favor and one of the bewitching smiles, as shown in the picture.

WOULD ENCOURAGE ART HANDICRAFT

State Fair Managers Increase Amount of Premiums In That Department—Duluth Recent Exhibit Along This Line May Stimulate Interest In State Exhibit.

The state fair of Minnesota ranks high among the state fairs of the country and the annual exhibition this year will in all departments doubtless be as good and in one department the prospect shows a department much superior to those of others years. Through the State Federation of Women's Clubs a much larger appropriation has been given for premiums in art handicraft. Mrs. Anna Underwood, of Lake City, suggested the increase, and the managers of the fair have given $100 for premiums in this line of work and exhibits and an added interest is expected in the work.

The work will be in charge of women, and a larger building for their exhibit has been given them. The interest that women have taken in the artistic work of their hands is by no means modern, as is known that in history of all time women designed and did the work on any number of things. The idea nevertheless has had a firm hold on a great many people that originality was denied women. But even this has been proved false and now women enter in competition all the fields of art open to men.

Mrs. M. L. Luther, of Minneapolis, is in charge of the work, and in view of the fact that for the past three years there have been no premiums offered for art work as the paintings presented for exhibition were not deemed of sufficiently high standing to be worthy of recognition by the managers, the conditions have been changed and this year the premiums will be revived for a better and more helpful class of work.

Duluth has lately enjoyed a most artistic and beautiful exhibit of arts and crafts of work gathered from all over the states, and although this work was from the hands of artists all over the country, there is no reason that Duluth, or rather St. Louis county, should not have a cerditable showing at the fair. One of the artists of Duluth said in regard to art handicraft work that it was a later stage in the growth of art. In Duluth so little has been done beside the drawing in the schools and the work of the Art club that Duluth would be able to show not very much, and yet the work that has been done is most artistic and beautiful. If the effort were made exhibits in pyrography, stained glass basketry, weaving and embroidery might be shown.

The interest in pyrography has been great in Duluth the past few years, and last year was shown at the annual exhibit of the Art club one most beautiful piece of work. This was the settle exhibited by Clarence B. Stewart in the Joan d'Arc design in which the execution of the design and the work are both good. Other very handsome pieces in the burnt work on leather and other materials have been done by other Duluth artists.

The work in stained glass, or as it has been better called, decorated windows, is one of the most fascinating forms of artistic work. The work, as most of artistic work, is very old, and in the works of the artist, Chartres, John La Farge, the highest living authority on this subject today, says: "All principals of work in glass windows are stated here, though in an archaic form." The work has been revived within late years and has an added force and freshness that is indispensable to a true development. The work in this line has been limited in Duluth. Mrs. J. B. Weston has done some exquisite designing for windows that are to be placed in the library, but the work was executed by Tiffany, of New York. However, a transom window, designed by Mrs. Weston, has been executed by St. Germain Brothers, of Duluth, and that piece of work would, of course, be wholly a Duluth product.

The Indian basketry has been most popular here the past few months, and the work done has been mostly by children in schools. The work has been taught in one or two private schools, and at the Webster school on lower St. Croix avenue. The skill acquired by the tots is really surprising and some creditable baskets are shown which might be entered in the juvenile work.

The rug weaving has received scant attention here, but a few of the women at Lakeside have recently done a little along this line, which has resulted in pretty and dainty pieces.

The premiums offered are as follows:

Class 1—Pyrography; No. 1, leather; best collection of ten pieces, $3, $1.50; best single piece not included in the collection, $1, 50c. No. 2, leather book; best collection of ten pieces, $3, $1.50; best single piece not included in the collection, $1, 50c. WANT PEOPLE TO HELP OUT

The Midsummer Fair Will Be For All the People.

The people of Duluth and vicinity will be asked by the Duluth Carnival and Amusement association to assist in the work of "boosting" the midsummer fair which will be held in this city from July 6 to July 12. The promoters of the proposed big carnival are business men who have personally financed the affair and who have not asked for donations. The purpose is to raise funds for purely benevolent purposes and in view of this efforts will be made to have the local people assist in every way that they can to advertise an event that will bring thousands of visitors from the Northwest into the city during the carnival week.

The association has already ordered 5000 "booster buttons" for free distribution and official badges will be issued later. The buttons will be finished in the carnival colors, red, yellow and purple.

Steps will be taken immediately for the printing of a large amount of stationery, which will be used in writing outside of the city. The envelopes and letter heads will have appropriate designs finished in colors that will advertise widely that Duluth will have a carnival here in July.

The carnival offices will be located on the ground floor of the Manhattan building and arrangements have been made for an immense banner to be stretched across Superior street from the building.

"The association back of this affair," said Manager A. L. Preston, this noon, "wishes it understood that it is a carnival for all the people and as such we desire all the people to take an interest in it and help the project along for they will not in any way be furthering a private enterprise, but will be assisting in a worthy benevolent movement."

HAD FIST FIGHT.

New York, May 15.—Assistant United States District Attorney Ernest Baldwin and Postoffice Inspector Oldfield of Cincinnati, had a fight with fists in the corridors of the Federal building today, in which several blows were struck. They were separated by friends. Inspector Oldfield had called at Mr. Baldwin's office to see him about the postoffice investigation now in progress.

RECRUITING SUSPENDED.

Washington, May 15.—Recruiting in the navy has been suspended for the present owing to the prevalence of contagious diseases at various training stations and aboard receiving ships on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

BEATEN BY BURGLARS.

Freeport, Ill., May 15.—Earnest Stock, a farmer residing near Pearl City, in this county, was badly beaten by burglars early this morning. It is known that he always had several thousand dollars in the house. It is not known how much was taken. The robbers escaped.

THE RED MAN AND HIS TASTE FOR LIQUOR

Responsible For Large Number of Indians In Attendance at the Federal Term of Court—Craving For Liquor Apparently Born In the Red Man.

One of the signs that surely mark the opening of a term of the United States courts here is the presence on the streets of an unusual number of Indians.

While there are reservations all around Duluth, and plenty of them within a reasonable distance, the sight of Indians on the streets is not a particularly common one. But when the United States courts open there are plenty of them, of all sizes, shapes and conditions.

They are here because the Indian likes whisky.

Of course, the Indian is not the only human being that likes whisky, but he is the only human being that it is particularly dangerous to sell liquor to, under the law, and that is largely because he likes it a good deal better than most other people, and because it makes a good deal worse sort of an Indian out of him than it does out of any other people. Besides, he is a ward of the government, which is therefore responsible in a measure for his moral welfare.

So the government has prescribed severe penalties for those who give liquor to the red man. In spite of them, however, he still gets it in some way, and that is why there are always a lot of members of the Chippewa tribe in Duluth at court time.

They happen to be all members of the Chippewa tribe, because the Chippewa tribe is the only tribe around here. One tribe has nothing the advantage of another on this thing, because they all like whisky and it makes devils out of all of them.

One funny thing about it is that the witnesses that come to Duluth to get other people in trouable for selling whisky to Indians usually manage to get some of the hot stuff here, and it is not at all uncommon to see Indians about the street drunk during a session of the United States court.

There are nearly 200 Indians in town just now, because of the liquor cases. Some of them are from the near-by Fond du Lac reservation, others are from the Cass Lake reservation, but most of them are from the Leech Lake reservation.

The offense is just as bad whether one sells or gives liquor to an Indian, and the law makes no distinction between bringing liquor on a reservation and giving it or selling it. The judge might make a difference in his sentence, but the law makes none. There is no color line, either; a red man is just as culpable as a white man, and vice versa.

The penalty may be severe, as the law leaves the maximum wholly in the discretion of the court. It cannot be less than sixty days and a $100 fine, which means ninety days if the prisoner has no money and takes the "poor debtor's oath," which means that he swears he cannot pay and is permitted to serve an additional thirty days in lieu of the fine.

As high as two and a half or three years in the penitentiary has been inflicted for violations of the federal liquor laws, but usually the penalty is not quite so strong as that.

The Indians that visit the city on these occasions make an interesting study. They are of all ages, and of all sorts of wearing apparel. Yesterday there were in front of the federal building a bunch in which there was one elderly Indian with a brilliant red blanket wrapped about him, showing his disdain of civilized fashions. He had a black slouch hat, of the white man's make, and doubtless the blanket was of civilized construction also, but the hat bore a large feather to distinguish it from white men's hats worn by white men. There were Indians dressed in very decent garb, every bit of it civilized, and there were Indians dressed in the full uniform of the Indian police.

Considerable variety was shown in the wearing apparel of the women. Some of them had typical Indian garb, but most of them, as might be expected of women of whatever color, leaned toward civilization. Many of their gowns were extremely decent and respectable, flashes of color showing the presence of the real Indian in their make-up. For the red man is not far behind the black man in his love for color, and the red woman is just as far ahead of the red man in that respect as any other woman is ahead of any other man.

J. G. McGarry, the Walker United States court commissioner, talked interestingly yesterday of these Indian liquor cases. As he has handled in the neighborhood of 600 of them, he knows what he is talking about.

"While there are a lot of arrests and convictions," he said, "I do not suppose there is one arrest to 500 offenses. The reservations are surrounded by towns and villages where liquor is sold, and it is almost impossible to prevent the sale altogether.

"A good many people have intimated that the Indians work out spites and grudges by getting people into trouble on false charges. There is little or nothing to this. The Indians stick pretty closely to the truth, and they make excellent witnesses. As a rule they tell just what happened, and they do not use the slightest bit of imagination. So it is that they are very seldom shaken in their stories on the witness stand. In one case, not a liquor case, there was a hearing before me for three days in which a number of Indians testified. When they came to the United States court they told their stories again, and they did not vary in the slightest detail from those they told before me, though the trial was six months later than the hearing.

"So far from working out grudges, I know of a case where a man who had done an Indian an injury, was exonerated by that same Indian when he was arrested and charged with selling him liquor.

"There will probably always be Indian liquor laws, because there seems to be a taste for the stuff inborn in every Indian. The children and women will drink it and like it, though they have never had it before. It is not a cultivated taste with them, but a natural taste.

"Maj. Scott is going after the evil vigorously, and effectively. He recently had all the Walker liquor dealers before him and gave them to understand that he would not permit violations of the liquor laws, and while some of them appeared to think he was not very serious about it on the start because he expressed himself in reasonable terms, they have found out differently since, and it is safe to say that the evil is practically done away with there now. There has not been a liquor case at Walker for six weeks. They were going so rapidly there at one time that dealers used to sell to Indians again right after they had been released on bail on one charge, I raised the bail for second offenses to $2000, and then they quit repeating.

"One reason there are not more cases than there are is that there is quite a bit of red tape about bringing one. Nobody can enter complaint, except the Indian agent, the United States district attorney or the United States marshal or his deputies. Witnesses can make out affidavits on which any of these officers can make charges, but it is rather a complicated affair."

There are two terms of United States court here every year, and at both the May and October terms the Indian cases are a prominent feature.

They wander about town, taking in the sights in a leisurely manner when they are not needed as witnesses, and nothing escapes their view.

Since they were here last there is a new sight to be seen, and that is The Herald press, which is not so far away from the federal building that a number of Indians can be found looking through the windows at it almost any time of day. It is a wonder that they cannot get enough of looking at, and especially when it is running do they take a great interest in it.

NO RED CANS.

They Must Not Be Used For Kerosene.

In a story on the new law requiring gasoline and benzine cans to be painted a bright red, printed in The Herald yesterday, there was an error based on a mistake made in printing the law for the law supplements issued by the state. It was made to appear in the law as printed that kerosene also must be put in red cans, but as a matter of fact the bill was passed so as to provide that kerosene should not be put in such cans, and that the same penalty should be provided for putting kerosene in red cans that there is for putting gasoline and benzine into cans that are not red.

HEARING ON COAL RATES

The Railroad and Warehouse Commission Has One.

The hearing of the state railroad and warehouse commission upon the complaint of Henry Klauser, of Litchfield, who desired to know why the freight rates on coal and lumber were about one-fourth higher in Minnesota than in surrounding states, has been continued at St. Paul for four weeks.

Joseph B. Cotton, solicitor for the United States Steel corporation, represented the Iron Range and Missabe railroads, and W. A. McGonagle and A. H. Viele appeared at the meeting as traffic men of the two roads. They returned today from the hearing.

The rate complained of was that the freight rate from Streator, Ill., to Litchfield is $2.62, while from Duluth to Litchfield it is $2.20. Inquiry was also made as to the reason which made it possible to lay down coal on Duluth docks from the East at a total price, coal and all, of $2.40, and why it cost $2. to move it from the docks to Litchfield.

No explanation was offered. An examination of traffic men showed that competition had a good deal to do with the rates, and the commission introduced a large number of rates from other states on coal and lumber, showing that Minnesota has the limit for freight rates, as compared with them.

The hearing was adjourned for four weeks.

LOVE OF ADVENTURE

Evidently Caused Young German to Leave Home.

New York, May 15.—Love of adventure and desire to see the world are thought to have caused Jesco Von Putkamer, who is only 13 years of age, to leave the luxurious home of his father at Kiel, Niemannsweg, Germany. Some of his relatives fear he may have been kidnaped and is being held for ransom. Others think he has come to this city.

The Von Puttkamers are connected by marriage with the family of the late Prince Bismarck. Young Puttkamer is described as being 13 years of age, although he looks 16 or 17, tall, slender, of fair complexion, with blue eyes and straight nose.

GERMOND IS SENTENCED.

New York, May 15.—Philip C. Germond today pleaded guilty to forgery and was sentenced to three years at hard labor at Sing Sing. Germond was arrested in Wilkesbarre Pa., a few days ago after being traced about the country, where it is alleged he had passed a number of bad checks on hotels. The specific charge on which he was convicted was the passing of a worthless check for $150 in this city.

THE SPRING AND SUMMER STYLES

In Millinery Show a Return to Much Smaller Shapes—Bonnets or Capotes Likely to Be In Fashion Again.

New York, May 16.—The Millinery Trade Review says in its May number: The present season is certainly rich in surprises. Since its commencement there has been a steady influx of novelties. This month it is the shapes that specially command our attention.

In the present unstable condition of fashion one hesitates to draw inferences from what may merely prove a passing vogue. Still everything seems to point toward a return to much smaller shapes. It is really wonderful what progress has been made in this direction in the course of the past few weeks. The very wide brimmed plateau hats that were so fashionable a short time since, already strike us as passe, while the same fate has overtaken the picture hat turned up high on one side.

Once more we are confronted with the bonnet problem. The persistence of certain first-class firms to announce the return to fashion of bonnets or capotes must, I suppose, tell in the long run, if my memory does not play me false, it was last November, twelvemonth, that I first had occasion to mention the possibility of this and the question is still pending. But anyhow we are undoubtedly nearer to such a solution than we were two months back. It is significant that several ladies of very high standing here and in London have adopted for very dressy occasions the demure little bonnet known formerly as swallows do not make a summer, therefore the princess shape. Of course, a few fore it is not safe to argue from a few isolated instances. What is much more to the purpose is the sudden and real success obtained by a new, trim-looking toque which looks as if it might pave the way for the capote. This is a decided reminiscence of the boat-shaped hat. It is very narrow at the sides, from whence it slopes toward the front and back. In some the brim turns up vertically all the way round, whereas in others it is only vertical at the sides, and forms a pronounced dip over the forehead and into the neck behind. These toques have a rather wide opening, as they are intended to come well on the head, in which they entirely differ from the round Russian toque of last year, while resembling them in so much as the trimming is not of a superabundant order.

Plateaux and bergeres and other flat or semi-flat hats are being very materially transformed. One of the latest ideas is to roll the brim over on both sides so as to form a point at the back, while at the front it assumes almost a square shape. This is called the cornet de plaise, after a certain kind of thin biscuit, which has been known to many generations of French children as plaisir, probably because it is all surface and contains a minimum of nutriment. The point is generally kept in position by a piece of ribbon tied round it and arranged underneath in a knot composed of many loops. Flowers clustered low are frequently added at the side, partly resting on the rolled-over brim, partly on a cache-peigne; some, however, have an ostrich feather fastened at the point, tip forward. Another arrangement consists in folding the brim over flat on both sides, and likewise the point at the back, the effect in front being that of a square poke, similar to the preceding. Under these circumstances there is no room for a cache-peigne and the trimming lies on the top on the over-turned brim.

Other broad-brimmed hats again have the brim folded over on one side only. For this arrangement it is preferable to use a shape with the brim under on one side, the side which is folded over. Here again the trimming is of a very flat order and rests principally on the folded portion of the brim-a flat rosette or bow, however, is often added to the under side of that portion of the brim which is not folded over.

It will be seen that we are diverging very far from the picture hat turned up so as to form a lofty ridge on one side, and that the trim close style of arranging the decoration is more in vogue than ever.

Tuscan, fine Belgian and English straws and Manila are the sorts best suited to these hats, being soft, pliable and therefore easily arranged in the different manners described. They are, of course, provided ready-made, as the sewing and trimming of such straws is a special business and cannot be accomplished by any but an adept; except in simple plateau or capaline forms, which the milliner transforms as required, therefore we find such hats exhibited in different straw shades, of which the almost unlimited variety includes all the fashionable tints of beige in low-toned pastel shades and in black and white.

For smaller hats and toques on the other hand the preference is given to bright, medium and rich dark colors. Vivid dark blue has fulfilled its promise and is one of the most prominent colors just now, either used alone or combined with lighter shades of blue or with other colors. There is a great fancy for two or more colors. One of Virot's latest creations is a small hat with a rolled brim, the latter faced with dark blue; the top of the low crown is also made of the same colored braid, but its sides and the flat portion of the brim consist of rows of ruby-red, white and flax-blue braids. This hat, which tilts over the brow, is lifted behind by a cache peigne of cherries with thin leaves; it has no other trimming.

Plum color has laterly come to the fore. It looks very well interwoven with sky-blue. Ruby-red and all poppy shades are also in favor, the former is considered to harmonize with flax-blue and pale lavender and lilac. I have seen less bright foliage and green straws lately, but a great deal is done in the low-toned shades known as eucalyptus, mistletoe and sea-weed greens, which combine well with almost any color.

Some of the new toques are made of sewn English straw and in satin straw raw woven in a single piece. But the great majority are built up of fancy braids. Of these there is a most varied assortment, some comparatively simple, while others are extremely complicated. Many of the braids command extremely high high prices, and milliners are charging almost as much for some straw hats and toques with next to no trimming upon them as for their very smartest achievements. Since the commencement of the season, as we have seen, straw braids have been used very much as trimming for lace and tulle hats, and also for those made of the same or another kind of straw. Several methods of trimming with straw were described in my last letter. To those may be added a new idea, which consists in having a long, loose end to every row of braid to be gathered up together and used for the formation of a large bow or rosette. This arrangement is less heavy than when the braids are sewn up together and it looks particularly well in quite narrow tuscan, English or fancy braids.

Besides lace and passementerie executed in straw and straw embroideries for trimmings, there are flowers and berries, to which latterly have been added certain fruits, particularly grapes. The list of straw fruits is likely to be extended, and these decorations being particularly applicable as trimming for hats destined to be worn at the seaside and in the country. Nevertheless, they may be reckoned among the ultra-chic trimming for town hats. One of the Maresect Soeurs' new toques has a very large straw bow in front, formed of two loops, two ends and a cross-axil piece, made out of the same braids as the shape, i. e., red yedda braids bordered with a sort of bouillonle in fine beige lace straw. Behind this bow are some red poppies and green rush leaves, the former studded with glit spangles.

A taste for spangles has been developing rapidly of late. They are provided in a great variety of colors. Jet, too, is looking up again. Small pointed couteaux, mounted in couples, the points turned different ways, clustered with the tiny jet beads, are shown. These are used specially to trim red and other colored toques to which a little touch of black is deemed an improvement. Jet buckles are also devoted to the same purposes. Buckles generally are very much in demand, they are straw braids passing through, and they often accompany ostrich feathers, which are always arranged so as to show the end of the quill, either secured by a buckle or by being thrust through a piece of straw. Quill tips are on sale into which the feather is inserted when its own quill is not of sufficient size or of perfect shape.

Ostrich is still immensely worn and continues to rival flowers in the estimation of Parisians, though the latter are a more seasonable decoration and exhibited in greater variety. There is also a steady demand for couteaux, both small and large. Paradise is being supplanted by the sparsely barbed underfeathers of the orstrich, generally deemed of little or no value. Two or three such feathers totally devoid of curl are fastened together by their middle underneath the brims of the hats. They have nothing to recommend them but their novelty, and are distinctly inferior to all other sorts of aigrette.

The latest orders for amazons and demi-amazons include a large percentage of colored feathers, the majority of which are either shaded from one color to another or from some rather deep shade down to white. Couteaux dyed different colors, and more especially in glace tones, have the preference over natural tinted quills.

It would be impossible to enumerate all the kinds of blossoms, foliage, berries, etc., that find favor this season. With the exception of crush roses and double poppies it is small blossoms that attain most. To the lilliputian roses has been added a miniature edition of the crimson Jacqueminot, which looks equally well made up in large or small bunches. A much fancied method of using flowers is to place a large cluster in the center of a plateau, or to cover low crowns with them. The new plum-colored straw shapes look very well with a crown of small pansies in different shades; tuscan plateaux too are charming treated in this way with lilies of the valley, each wavey bloom in its sheaf of green leaves, as also with a flat bunch of small Jacqueminot or moss roses framed in green leaves. Very natural looking strawberries are fashioned out of red velvet, studded with brown and yellow seeds. Blackberries and raspberries are likewise made of velvet covered with thin white gossamer to give the effect of bloom. These and other fruits are always mounted with plenty of their own leaves.

Some milliners are advocating the wearing of large lace veils hanging loosely over the face and half way down to the waist, but it requires a very elegant woman to carry off a style which is too apt to look dowdy. I doubt, therefore, very much whether they will ever come into general use, especially when veiling nets, which are so much more becoming, are to be had in such variety.

A few of the smaller hats and toques appear furnished with strings. These are not intended to be tied under the chin, but under the hair at the back.

The activity of the royal family is a distinct advantage to the West End trade of London and indirectly affects the whole country. The trade in Scotland is already feeling the effect of the approaching visit of their majesties to Edinburgh next month, when a court and levee are to be held at the palace of Holyrood for Scottish ladies and gentlemen, and a momentous item to the millinery trade is contained in a few words in the official announcement of the king's command. It is, "for ladies', morning dress with bonnets." The question immediately arises will this be the means of bringing the bonnet once more into general favor as the fashionable head covering. The opinion among experts is against it. In the best West End society there will be a few more worn than usual, and a number of milliners are showing bonnet toques which are something between the two and worn without strings; this is no doubt the thin end of the wedge, but it is unlikely that the wedge will be driven very far. I think it is more likely to result in a return to small toques for the autumn, but for the present wear medium to large shapes are more favored, and as the season progresses there is no doubt that large, open, lacy effects will be the leading modes.

A NOVEL HAT.

Hat of white Neapolitan, brim split off half way and turned forward on crown, drapery of pale green ribbon between trimming of chestnut burrs and leaves, with ribbon bow at left back—From Henry Bendel.

GOWN OF WHITE VOILE

Elegant gown of white voile, fine gored skirt, seams tucked, invisible plaits at back. Yoke of tucked white chiffon. Trimming is of plaited white chiffon barred with black velvet ribbon, held by lace bands. Upper part of sleeve is tucked, the full lower sleeve tied in with velvet ribbon and gathered into deep cuff. Lace outlines the sleeves. Girdle of velvet and chiffon. Hat of white chip, trimmed with jet, lace, and white and black feathers.

NEW SHIRT WAIST HAT.

Hat of brown and green straw trimmed with changeable silks to match, cut and stitched in many ends and loops, spreading from low crown over brim, two strands carried over brim to head side. Loops and ends wired.

Girls Who Work

Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female ills, especially when obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night.

Day in and day out, month in and month out, the year through, the working girl toils; she is often the bread winner of the family, and must work that others may live; whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, whether it is warm or cold she must get to her place of employment and perform the duties exacted from her.

Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach; in consequence of frequent wetting of the feet monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden and it is hard work to drag about. All these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism, and if taken in time can be easily and permanently cured.

A Cordial Invitation to Every Sick and Ailing Working Girl.

It is to these girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand, and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her unrivalled record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Don't put off writing her until your health is wrecked.

Grateful Words from Working Girls Who Have Been Helped.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I want to thank you for what you have done for me. I was dreadfully tired, I stand over my work all day, and no one who hasn't tried it knows how it makes your back and sides ache. I couldn't sleep, and had no appetite, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel entirely different now; it is a wonderful medicine. I do not feel that my work is hard now, and I recommend your medicine to other girls who are always tired."—MISS ISABEL SURGIN, 293 Willis Ave., New York City.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done so much good for me that I wish to recommend it to all girls whose work keeps them standing on their feet all day in a hot store. The doctor said I could not live and I must give up work, and stay out of doors; he did not seem to realize that a girl cannot afford to stop working. My back ached, my appetite was poor and I could not sleep; menstruation was scanty and very painful. One day when suffering I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me, I soon found that my menstrual periods were free from pain and natural; now my health is fine, and every one is surprised at the change in me, and I cannot be too grateful for what you have done for me."—MISS JANET PAINE, 530 West 125th Street, New York City.—$5000.00 forfeit if originals of above letters proving genuineness cannot be produced.

WISE IS THE WOMAN WHO HAS FAITH IN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

In flowers, small cup shape piquets with hanging buds are good and are shown in a variety of blossoms. Small rings of roses held together by trails of stems, and buds are also shown and are used generally for decorating wide, flat-crown sailors. Wheat in all colors, such as pale blue, mauves, grays, reds, etc., are good. Small close bud roses, jessamine, colored stocks and cornflowers in their natural dark blue shade are all used in large quantities. There is still a great deal of foliage used, and the latest addition to the variety is the French laurel. It is the natural leaf, and is prepared in such a way as to be very flexible and firm.

Long ostrich plumes are worn as much as ever, principally in black or white. Small and medium-sized birds, such as the merl, waxtail, Formosa swallow, etc., are dressed perfectly flat, with spreading wings and quite soft and pliable.

As might have been expected when they put in an appearance several weeks ago, Manhattan milliners are showing a certain degree of interest in the hats with the taller crowns, alluded to in our review of the mode in millinery for the month of April. But this concern, we are inclined to think, may have bearing on the styles in hats for the future, whether nearer or more remote, rather than as tending, as yet, to counteract the trend of the mode in the shapes designed for the season, earlier brought out. At any rate, it is hardly to be supposed that it will very sensibly influence selection in many individual cases, or will to any great extent after the season's trade in hats earlier on the market.

The hats with the taller crowns, although now to be found in all the first-class collections in New York city, are still comparatively few in number, besides those with low crowns; and while there is intimation that the vanishing note of the plateau hat is in contemplation, there is reason to believe that hats with low crowns and shapes more or less flat will rule the mode as long as the existing season continues.

Illustrations of several hats with the taller crowns recently coming into notice are seen in the following: A model in a large hat, with small, tall, bell crown, and brim saved the poked, or projecting, effect, by being squared off at the front, flaring at each side, and short at the back, is covered with triple standing folds of double black chiffon alternating with strips of black fancy fiber braid and faced with folds of doubled white chiffon. The crown is encircled at the base by a garland of small white roses, and at the front is posed a full wisp of white heron tigrette. This hat with strings, and the brim hugging the sides more closely, might pass as well for a revived model of an old-fashioned grandmother's bonnet.

A large hat of white fancy rice braid has the braid laid crosswise the brim in sections at the front and back, and all around the medium-tall and medium-narrow crown, and at the sides, sections of green satin wire piping framing, loosely smothered under veiling of green malden's-hair fern leaves. The facing of the braid sections is of folds of tulle in blush-rose pink; bordering the brim of the braid sections is a row of close ladder bows of No. 15 pink velvet ribbon, and dividing the sections, running from small tight clusters posed upon the edge of the crown, are slender garlands of blush-pink picayune roses, the garlands overlapping the edge and extending to the bandeau under the brim—a full bunch of young rosebuds tied by their stems posed at each side of the crown. A large hat with tall, medium narrow crown, and brim wide and flaring around the front and right side, and wide and somewhat lifted at the left side, and turned down at the back, of white fancy chip braid embroidered with white horsehair in lace-like effect, has the brim overlaid midway its width with insertion of frish cut point. Clusters of great white field daisies and blue velvet houstonia blossoms are laid on the brim on the front and at the right side of the back.

A model now and then placed under inspection serves to illustrate the variety in conception in which fashion sometimes indulges, rather than establishes a rule for guidance in the matter of headwear. This is especially the case in shapes, a novelty not extensively repeated being brought to notice. Of hats of this character is a toque with crown of white rice braid broad at the top and narrowing down to the base, the braid laid edge to edge and adjusted to imitate the radial gills of a mushroom, and the brim of white chiffon on white satin piping wire, rolled high and edged with a strip of the braid. The facing is of machine-pleated chiffon, laid in crosswise the shape, and the trimming consists of two oval rings formed of slender garlands of pink button roses and a few green leaves, overlying the brim at the back, the brim being drooping.

HARPER'S GREAT SCHEME.

Would Affiliate Chicago University With Institutions.

Chicago, May 15.—President William R. Harper, of the University of Chicago, is planning to affiliate the University of Calcutta, the Imperial University of Japan, the University of New South Wales and the Government Normal school, recently established in the island of Cebu, Philippine archipelago, with the University of Chicago.

This story was circulated here today, when it was said that President Harper would leave soon for Paris, where Mrs. Harper now is, and that, after visiting in France, Germany and Russia, he would continue around the world.

Wu Ting Fang, former Chinese ambassador, before leaving America, invited Dr. Harper to visit him at his home in China. Dr. Harper probably will now avail himself of this invitation, and may induce the Chinese government to endow a chair of Chinese langage and history at the university.

It's like a "dip in the fountain of youth." Touches the cheek so gently that "youth lingers on the face of old age." That's what Rocky Mountain Tea does. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

RAIN CHECKS FIRES.

Lancaster, N. H., May 15.—Last night's rainfall, the first in weeks, checked the forest fires that have caused great damage in this vicinity. Not in years has the northern part of this state and Vermont been so thoroughly fire swept. Thousands of acres have been burned over and the loss will amount to several hundred thousand dollars.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

PRIZE GARDENS

What cannot one get out of a garden? Mother Nature will give so much with so little care and thought in return. In this my town garden, of 372 feet in length and 75 feet in width, I see first from my back plazza a very pleasing picture. The lawn in the foreground is divided by the main paths, which at 44 feet turn into two side paths, around a large circle, say 50 feet in length by 40 in width. This gives room on the side for border planting. On the left of the circle is a vine-covered summerhouse, just within the shadow of a wide-spreading apple tree. Beyond the circle we enter in among the flowers, in their half moon beds bordered with box.

These all surround a court or center bed. In the rear of these beds are two oblong beds of ten feet by four, which are divided by a shield of sweet peas from the vegetables. The walk still continues across the entire garden here, and all is well ended by my neighbor's hawthorne hedge of six feet in height. This gives an excellent background to the whole picture, not to speak of the charming contrasts I have seeing the beautiful lawn effects of the neighbor on my right, besides the contrasting flowers of the one on my left. For we are all such good friends that we have no fences for five city lots.

The garden has a northeasterly exposure, giving me plenty of afternoon sun, and I have no trouble to have anything grow.

About the main path I have plenty of roses as the beds and borders devoted to flowering plants, and is capable of expressing the owner's individuality in a charming manner.

While the plan of the grounds and walks is to be determined by the size and shape of the lot and must harmonize with the style of the house, it is always best to leave the lawn in front of the house in clear, unbroken turf. This clear space may be thickly planted in early autumn with crocus bulbs, which will bloom early the following spring and be out of bloom before the lawn mower is used. These bulbs remain indefinitely and multiply rapidly, consequently are a good investment, besides being absolutely no trouble at all.

Before leaving this front lawn it may be remarked that if some degree of privacy is desired a row of flowering shrubs may be planted three feet back from the fence and eight feet apart. This will obscure the view somewhat and still afford delightful glimpses of the beauty within. These shrubs may be selected from a long list, and may all be of one sort or selected to afford a succession of bloom. Spireas Van Houttei and prunifolia, altheas, deutzias, Philadelphus and pyrus japonica, the "burning bush" of our grandmother's gardens, are all fine flowering shrubs for this purpose, as is also weigela. A beautiful screen may be had by planting althea folia variegata, which has beautifully variegated leaves of green and white, which have a cool and refreshing effect on the warmest day.

and shrubs trained to grow tall. Around a few have been placed some early crocus and tulips to give a little color early in the spring.

On the right side of the garden by the house there are all kinds of lilacs planted as a border to the yard, followed by a hedge effect of flowering quince, ending in plain, practical currant bushes.

On the sides of the circle there are three or four big apple trees, which give me their stores in the fall. Back with the currant bushes, the plum tree grows very well.

The flowers are usually pansies, zinnias and poppies in the half-moon beds, surrounding the center bed of scarlet geraniums. All are hastened by being started in the hotbed in among the vegetables. On the sides at the ends of the garden, and in the oblong beds, are quantities of Iris, peonies, Canterbury bells, with anemone for tall flowering.

With all these I still have room for a ten by twelve asparagus bed, and all the radishes and lettuce I need for a family of four persons. There is always something to see in this garden from the earliest crocus to the Christmas roses under the spruce tree.

The garden in the country in its largest sense includes the lawn and walks, as well as the beds and borders devoted to flowering plants, and is capable of expressing the owner's individuality in a charming manner.

It may be remarked in passing that no garden can be considered at all complete without a good collection of flowering shrubs, and plans should be made to introduce a few even in the smallest garden. The carriage drive may be bordered with dwarf growing sorts, but they should never be planted so closely as to give a brushy, neglected air to the lawn. In order to emphasize the green of the turf a flower bed of size the green of the turf a flower bed of set design may be introduced in the turf at one side. Its position here must be calculated with mathematical precision. Scarlet should be the predominating color. A fine effect may be produced by using cannas for the center of the bed. Italia is a fine sort for this purpose, having scarlet and yellow flowers. Next the broad band of scarlet may be produced by salvias, which may be purchased or grown from seeds started in March. Scarlet geraniums also give a fine glow of color. For the border sow seeds of dwarf sweet alyssum, which will give a broad ribbon like border of foamy white and cause even a faded turf to look normal by contrast. A carpet-like bed of red may be obtained by the use of coleus, but will lack the air of tropical luxuriance of the other. These set designs may be varied indefinitely, but it is to be remembered they are for effect only and do not admit the cutting of our flowers for vases, etc.

The most lovely garden ornament is furnished by a hedge of hardy roses. These may be planted anywhere a line of division would naturally suggest itself, either separating the front and back yards, the lawn and garden, or may be used to suggest an imaginary effect of distance. For best effect the roses should be of one color and blooming at the same time. Crimson white and yellow ramblers are fine for this purpose, also the older prairie queen pink and the lovely Baltimore belle and some others. Strong growing sorts should always be selected for this purpose. These roses may also be trained to a back fence with grand results. Crimson rambler is also fine for training on arches over gates and walks. The smallest plot can have an arch over the gate.

Where a long arch is desired, as over a drive, nothing can surpass wisteria. These arches may be rustic and made of cedar boughs, or may be purchased ready to set up in galvanized wire. A beautiful feathery vine for small arches in clematis Paniculata. In graceful effect it surpasses the climbing roses and throws a thicker shade. A border for hardy perennials and herbaceous plants can usually be arranged at the side of the lawn. This will prove a feature more enjoyed with each succeeding season. Here all the old favorites and many new ones may find a home—spice pinks, violets, peonies, columbine (aquilegia), love lies bleeding (dicentra), Iris, lilies, sweet William (dianthus barbatus), mullein pink (agrostemma), larkspur, Canterbury bells and many more. The list in this desirable class is constantly increasing and will repay study.

There is great satisfaction in knowing that every spring the red points of the peonies will come pushing through in the same spot. The columbines will unfurl their leaves in earliest spring, while all through the snows of winter the silvery foliage of the spice pinks will remain fresh and bright. Considerable study should be given to planting the hardy border, being sure to keep the tall growing sorts, such as hollyhocks and rudbeckias at the back, graduating down to the alyssum laxatile and phlox lurlata on the front edge. By proper selection a succession of bloom may be obtained through the entire season, from the bravest polyanthus in the early spring to the stout little pompon chrysanthemums that brighten the gray days of November. In autumn daffodils, campanelles, narcissus and snowdrops may be planted among the hardy plants, where they will make a brave show every spring.

In autumn, when the frosts have killed the tender plants in the bed in the turf, plant hyacinths or tulips there for early spring bloom. These will be ready to rest when warm enough to set out tender plants again. For flowers for cutting we may have as large a number of annual flowers as space will admit at the back of the house or at one side. While there is no objection to these being visible from the street, they must not be reckoned on for any display except when cut. These annuals are among the most charming flowers, and are the flowers for those who rent their houses. Pansies, stocks, nasturtiums, sweet peas, zinnias, marigolds, calendula, ageratum and asters are all very fine for vases. For feathery green plant ambrosia Mexicana, and for the touch of white every bouquet needs, sweet alyssum. The above list merely gives a very few of the many available, and selections must be made according to personal fancy.

Poppies are one of the finest flowers, but are extremely short lived. China pinks are almost ideal for cutting, also scabiosa, but why prolong the list? A tenth part could not be mentioned, and one garden can hold only a few sorts. Roses are the flower par excellence for vases and personal adornment, and the garden without a rose would be a mockery, yet it is well for the novice to study rose culture in particular before planting many. The hopelessness of unutilizing the "best" roses (the amateur invariably wants this information) out of a thousand sorts is apparent to any one. With Paul Neyron (pink), General Jacqueminot (crimson), perfection des blanches (white) and Harrison's yellow the garden will be enriched by varieties that are ironclad in hardiness and beautiful in flower. With the exception of the last mentioned, all bloom at intervals during the season.

Ten roses make beautiful beds and borders, giving a continual display of bloom. They may be purchased in bloom in spring, transferred from their pots to the bed, and will grow without any evidence of being disturbed. This plan saves trouble, and one knows just what colors and shapes to expect. In our Northern climate tea roses require good protection in winter to survive. Treated as annuals, the results are more satisfactory. Plants may be wintered in the window, or new ones purchased each spring. Sturdy young roses may be procured at 10 cents each by mail. In fact, having one's garden filled from the accommodating mail bag is quite the usual thing where the florist is not readily accessible.

While considerable expenditures may be devoted to gardening in even a limited space, lovely effects and an equal amount of satisfaction may be obtained with trifling sums in even the poorest soil and under unpromising conditions. Flowers are no respecters of persons, and the posies of the laundress will sometimes put those of the professional gardener to shame. In fact, amateurs are constantly surpassing the professionals in this respect. The reason is, with one the culture of flowers is a delight, while with the other it is a mere matter of routine. For thin, sandy soil petunias make a fine, large bed or border. Single sorts should be planted. Portulaccas make lovely carpet beds or ribbon borders, and resist drouth well, but cannot be cut for decoration.

Nasturtiums, both dwarf and climbing, bloom more profusely on poor soil than on rich, heavy loam. These are fine for cutting. The dwarf sorts make nice beds, while the climbing ones may be trained up a window, fence or allowed to trail from a window box or tub on the lawn. Poppies bloom well on light soil, but must be sowed at intervals to have a succession of flowers. Calendulas and marigolds may also be relied on. It is quite impossible to really enjoy a garden or even a flower without having given it personal care and attention. To watch a plant from the time it pushes forth from the tiny seed to the crowning act of flowering is delightful, indeed. How many days must elapse as the young leaves successively unfold! With what hope the watering and transplanting, and, finally—can it really be a bud?—with a palpitating expectancy we watch the growth from day to day and wonder did Time ever lag so before.

The bud slowly swells, grows plump, a flush of color tints the tip, and, though the waiting has been long, opens almost unexpectedly. The reflexed petals reveal the heart of not only a perfect flower, but a child of the heart materialized. The long dream comes true. What are showers of commercial flowers compared to this one? It will be readily seen that the most delightful gardens do not consist wholly of the most stately trees, graceful shrubs and vines, colors galore and vistas enchanting, but on certain qualities within, lacking which the delight of a garden must ever remain a sealed book, or, at most, dimly perceived, like a glimpse of a beautiful face behind a lattice. Happily, the lattice is wholly foreign to American ideas and sympathies, and the multiplication of beautiful gardens goes on apace.

Crullers.

One pound dark brown sugar, one-quarter pound butter, four eggs, beaten separately; one coffee cup milk, one teaspoonful baking soda dissolved in the milk, one teaspoonful salt, one large nutmeg grated; three pints flour; roll out and drop in boiling lard. It will take about three pounds lard to cook. Drop on brown paper to absorb all grease.

The lace collar enjoys a popularity this season such as it has not known for many a year. The ones worn by our grandmothers are just as fashionable as the latest conceit of the European makers. A collar of real lace will set off a plain gown as no other one thing can.

In Strawberry Time.

Tell you what I like the best
Long about knee deep in June,
'Bout the time strawberries melts
On the vine—some afternoon
Like to jes' git out an' rest,
And not work at nothin' else.
—JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

The nutritive value of the strawberry is not great, neither muscle nor flesh-forming elements lying in its luscious depths, but it refreshes, it stimulates, it regulates. Analysis shows it to be particularly rich in soda salts, and despite the high percentage of water which it carries, it excels all other common fruits in the amount of mineral salts. On this account it is often recommended to gouty persons. It was the great Linnaeus who first discovered this pleasing remedy for sciatica, and his example has found many followers, since strawberries are usually allowed convalescents when other fruit is denied, while in Bavaria dried strawberry leaves are believed to make a most nourishing tea for children, mixed with hot milk and a little sugar.

While the ideal way of eating berries is fresh from the vines, with no washing to dissipate the sweetness of the fruit, only a favored few are able to compass this gustatorial delight.

Suspicion justly attaches to the berry of the huckster's cart or the market, where they have been exposed to all sorts of flying dust and uncleanliness, and in this case the berries must be washed. Put into a colander and let cold water run over them gently until all grit is removed. Drain thoroughly and arrange, if for breakfast, on pretty individual plates, with stems uppermost, and a little mound of sugar in the middle to dip them in. If there is a strawberry leaf to put on the bottom of the plate, so much prettier is the effect. Strawberries with their hulls and stems on are frequently served as a first course for luncheon or a noon breakfast. When served as a dessert pass sugar and cream.

Never sprinkle strawberries with sugar and allow them to stand, as it extracts the juice and toughens the skin. Some people aver that a slight sprinkling of salt brings out the flavor, while East Indian palates call for a dash of cayenne. Orange juice over strawberries offers a change for those who do not care for cream, and claret is the Parisian's idea of the natural complement of the sweet wild berry.

Nor is the strawberry confined to any one country. It is found in all temperate parts of the Northern Hemisphere and in the mountains of South America. Wood strawberries, the earliest species cultivated, are mentioned in the street cries of London over 400 years ago, while Shakespeare in "Richard III.," mentions the garden of the Bishop of Ely, at Holborn, which was celebrated for its berries. In Servia and Roumania the wooded slopes are still covered with the wild berries, as also the fields of Asia Minor. The gypsies are always on hand for the harvest of these berries, and one of the characteristic and picturesque street sights in Constantinople are these Chenquin women, in gay yellow and scarlet gowns and handkerchiefs holding down their elf locks, bearing their native splint baskets filled to the brim with the luscious scarlet fruit. In the Balkans and the Orient the berries are usually eaten with the creamy delicious matzoon, made of buffalo's milk, as an accompaniment, a food combination that is speedily adopted by the English residents in Constantinople and the American teachers at Robert College, on the Bosporous, and the American girls' College, at Scutrita. Somewhat analogous is the preparation in this country of strawberry junket, a dainty dish for luncheon or dessert. Make the plain junket, flavor with claret or orange, fill sherbet glasses two-thirds full and set in the icebox to chill. When ready to serve fill the glass with berries, dust them with sugar, heap whipped cream on top and crown with a large berry in the centre.

The popularity of the strawberry shortcake never wanes. It is one of the joys of early summer, gastronomically associated with sand and green peas. There are any number of recipes for making shortcake, while the New York restaurant shortcake is no shortcake at all. In the minds of those accustomed to it in their youth the genuine, old-fashioned New England shortcake, made with a rich biscuit crust, can never be excelled. There is a knack in turning it out naky, light and altogether delicious.

One method, whose proof has lain these many years in its eating, calls for four cupfuls of sifted flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of butter, a beaten egg, a level teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in a little water, and a large cupful of sour cream or thick sour milk. Mix well together with a spatula, or flexible knife, using the hands as little as possible. The dough shall be soft enough to roll out easily. Cut in two pieces, flour the pastry board and rolling-pin, put one half on the board and roll lightly and quickly into a round sheet that will fit the baking pan. Brush the top with melted butter and cover with the second sheet, rolled to the same size. Place the pan in a quick oven and bake. When done separate them, cover the lower part with a thick layer of strawberries, crushed and sweetened, place the second shortcake on top and cover with fine, whole berries. Serve with thick cream and sugar at the table.

Sweet milk and baking powder can be used instead of sour cream and soda.

A delicious strawberry sauce that may be served with shortcake or with plain boiled rice, a cottage or bread pudding, is made by beating to a soft, light cream one-half cupful of butter and one cupful of sugar. Add the whipped white of an egg and a cupful of ripe, crushed berries. Whipped cream is often served with a hot shortcake and always with the French shortcake, which is served cold. It is, however, frequently supplemented by the stiffly beaten whites of eggs, which are less expensive than the cream. To make this cake whip to a cream half a cup of butter and a cup of sugar. Sift two cupfuls of flour with a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a scant half-teaspoonful of soda. Repeat the sifting, add a half-cupful of milk and the whites of three eggs beaten stiff. Bake in two-layer cake tins. When cold ice with a thin icing and spread the lower one with berries cut in halves and sweetened. Put on the second cake, spread thickly with the whipped cream or egg meringue, and decorate with berries.

Individual shortcakes may be made by making baking powder biscuit of generous size, splitting each, buttering and filling with mashed and sweetened berries.

A freshly baked spongecake, broken, not cut, is an excellent accompaniment for berries at ten or luncheon.

Strawberry sandwiches are often seen at afternoon teas. The fine French bread or tender baking powder biscuits are used as the binding for large sweet berries, sliced and sprinkled with sugar. Sometimes a spoonful of whipped cream is added to the berries.

Strawberry Frappe.—For one quart of ripe berries use four lemons, three cupfuls of sugar and three pints of water. Crush the berries with the sugar and let them stand an hour before adding the juice of the lemons and the water. Mix well, pour in a freezer and stir the mixture for 15 or 20 minutes. Pack in ice for an hour or two; serve in glasses, with or without whipped cream on top.

To Give Piquancy To Asparagus.

A few drops of lemon juice and a few grains of cayenne added to plain melted butter and poured over boiled asparagus lifts it out of the commonplace.

Cold asparagus tips may be fried in butter enlivened with paprika. A suspicion of onion flavor tones up a dish of asparagus successfully, and chives and Spanish peppers used judiciously are excellent in a dressing for it.

Baked asparagus is usually boiled first, only the tender parts of the stalks being baked. A bechamel sauce is the popular one in which to encase the asparagus tips before baking. Over the top put cheese and crumbs, that the proper browning may take place. Now this is all very well. No one can quarrel with bechamel sauce; it is gentle and refined always. But it does seem sometimes to be insipid, and especially so when anything so unobtrusive in flavor as asparagus is decorated with it. To remedy this tameness there may be used a little anchovy essence in the bechamel, or a dash of horseradish, or onion juice, or a few capers—anything, in fact, that you have seen or heard of in connection with this sauce when used for similar purposes.

As for treating cold asparagus, there are innumerable ways. With just a French dressing it is always in favor; with French mustard added to the dressing it is even more in vogue, and with a mayonnaise or a tartare sauce it touches perfection. Then, again, lemon juice and nothing more, save a little salt, rests well on cold asparagus, only the vegetable must be chilled for all its good points so served to be apparent.

Perhaps a list of sauces suitable for asparagus hot, with directions for making them, would be a convenient thing for reference during this asparagus season, so you shall have them:

Bearnaise Sauce.—Beat the yolks of four eggs till lemon colored and add to them one tablespoonful of butter and a pinch of salt. Stir over a slow fire till the mixture begins to thicken, but it must not boil. Let it blend well and then pour in a teaspoonful of vinegar. A few chopped chives should be added or the juice of an onion.

Black Butter Sauce.—Brown in a frying pan two ounces of butter, add as it is browning a few drops of lemon juice and a few grains of cayenne.

Tarragon Sauce.—Cook together one gill each of tarragon vinegar and white wine vinegar. Add then four tablespoonfuls of veloute sauce and the yolks of two eggs to thicken it. Season well with cayenne and the needed salt and it is ready for use.

Bread Sauce.—Chop an onion very fine, put it in a saucepan with four ounces of bread crumbs pressed through a sieve, add a little pepper, salt and a half cupful of rich cream. Boil gently for 10 minutes and serve.

Sauce Bordelaise.—Peal and chop very fine four cloves of garlic and put into a saucepan with three tablespoonfuls of olive oil. When beginning to color a bit add a tablespoonful of chopped parsley.

Hollandaise Sauce.—Put two ounces of butter in a saucepan, with a little salt, nutmeg and a gill of water. Cook over the fire for five minutes. In another saucepan have two tablespoonfuls of vinegar cooked till reduced one-half. Add to the other ingredients with a tablespoonful of bachamel sauce and an ounce of butter. Mix the yolks of four eggs in a tablespoonful of water and remove the sauce from the fire; when it has ceased boiling add the egg yolks, the juice of a lemon, and strain before serving.

If these hints are not sufficient an entirely new one may be built by taking bits from several of these and adding them together, blending with a bit of melted butter if necessary.—The Epicure.

The Human Appetite.

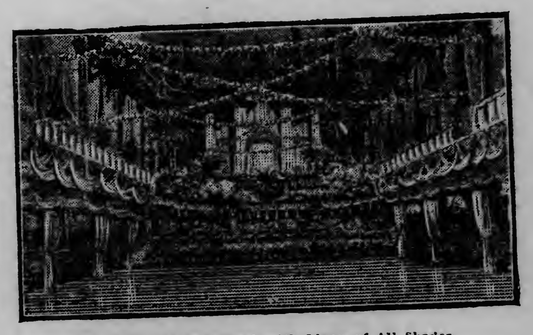
According to Mulhall, a Frenchman eats every year 549 pounds of bread and 127 pounds of meat, and drinks 35 gallons of wine and 5 of beer. Parisians individually consume every year 37 pounds of carrots, 6 of celery, 15 of onions, 7 of peas, 49 of potatoes and 17 of tomatoes. Londoners individually devour annually 7 pounds of carrots, 1 of celery, 34 of onions, 3 of peas, 172 of potatoes and 57 of tomatoes. The Spaniards individually eat every year 500 pounds of bread, 48 of meat 11 of fish and 12 of sugar, and wash down this supply with 14 gallons of wine. In one year the hens of this country produced and the people ate $250,000,000 worth of eggs, which, at twenty-five cents a dozen, equalled 1,000,000,000 dozen eggs. We produce every year 2,150,000 tons of beef, 310,000 of mutton and 2,190,000 of pork, the greater part of which goes down our own throats.

The people of the United States are the greatest meat eaters, consuming over $35 worth per annum to each inhabitant. The world's oyster fisheries produce annually 4,439,000,000 oysters, one-half being consumed within three days after they are taken. It is estimated that this country produces 180,000,000 turkeys every year to grace the tables at Thanksgiving, Christmas and on other occasions.

It is estimated that 40,000 tons of cucumbers are raised and eaten within the limits of the United States every year. Over 12,000,000 bushels of buckwheat were last year manufactured into cakes. A baker estimates that every American will consume two pies a week, and if the statement is correct the American stomach is weekly tortured with 130,000,000 pies.

An eminent statistician estimates that during the course of an ordinary life the average man will eat seven four-horse wagon-loads more food than is good for him. To alleviate the miseries partly caused by overeating we imported last year $40,000,000 of drugs and medicines.

Only Linen Costumes Worn At This Ball.



The Hall was Festooned with Linen of All Shades.

Linen's vogue as a dress material this season makes especially interesting the unique ball given in Ulster Hall, Belfast, Ireland, recently. All the decorations were of linen and all of the women guests and some of the men wore linen costumes.

Walls were hung with linen, ceilings were festooned with it and pillars draped in it, mostly in the natural color, relieved with reds, pinks, blues, grays and greens.

America was represented at the ball by Mr. Thomas McAllister, dressed in linen Stars and Stripes, and the part of John Bull was taken by Mr. William Jackson, in a pink linen coat and white linen trousers, down the sides of which were worked the colors of the Union Jack. A local paper in describing the costumes falls into rhapsody thus:

"'Are they really only linen?' was the question that rose to my lips as I critically surveyed the dresses. It used to be, when I heard anyone speak of a linen dress, a vision rose up before me of a gown of crude blue or pink or holland color, distinctly stiff, and inclining to dowdyism. Here, however, were all pure linen dresses of every shade. Warm pinks and reds showed up to advantage the dark hair and eyes of the brunettes. Blondes looked equally charming in turquoise blues and tender greens, while some delightful white, dark gray and biscuit colored dresses proved very restful to the eye. There was as much variety in texture, too, as in color. Matrons looked stately and dignified in rich fabrics that bore more likeness to silk than linen. Maidens, in soft diaphanous material, had surely never appeared to better advantage, and the all-linen suits worn by some of the men presented a pleasing change from their usual more somber attire. 'Distinctly stiff and inclining to dowdyism' were terms which would never apply to the thoroughly smart creations before me, many of them really beautiful from an artistic point of view.

"It seemed that linen could be converted into any style of garment, for up-to-date ball dresses, demi-toilettes, charming fancy dresses and trim outdoor costumes all were represented. A more brilliant spectacle has seldom been seen, I thought, than this gayly lighted ball, decorated by master hands, with its throng of fair women—some of them the fairest of Erin's lovely daughters—and stalwart men, true types of Ireland's sons. The band had struck up a waltz—a waltz full of melody and exquisitely dreamy—and the dancers glided over the smooth floor—hospital nurses, dark-skinned gypsies and Moors, jaunty fishwives, naval officers in undress uniform, Puritan maidens, military officers in mess suits and crowds of others in more ordinary attire. No, there could not be prettier costumes, I decided, let them be fashioned of shimmering satin, or silver gauze, or filmy chiffon, than these I was scrutinizing, which were only composed of pure Irish linen."

The event of the week was, of course, the singing of Mme. Schumann-Heink on Thursday evening. Seldom if ever has Duluth had the pleasure of hearing such an artist, and appreciation was shown by the large and fashionable audience that listened to the tones of the incomparable singer. It was not only the exquisite tones of the talented woman but her exceeding charm of manner that simply captivated her auditors. As one of them said, her smile, which was fascination in itself, was worth going a mile to see. Since the evening the question that begins all conversation is: "Did you hear Schuman-Heink?"

The Giant's Pillow.

BY EVERETT M'NEIL.

PART II.

The Marvelous Ending of the Quest of Prince Noble.

Prince Noble sat down at the foot of the marble shaft and waited until the moon rose in the east, and when its rays first fell on the top of the marble shaft he went to the great tree and pulled a black leaf off a branch.

"For the sake of the old and feeble, I, who am young and strong, undertake this venture, fearing not death so be it I can bring succor to the distressed," he said, and, placing the black leaf back of the stone eye, he looked through the eye at it.

The leaf appeared transparent, and he saw the near end of the great white stone called the Giant's Pillow, and close to the bottom of the end he saw a small keyhole, and under the keyhole he read these words: "Take the bronze key and open."

Prince Noble bethought himself of the small bronze key which hung under the stone eye, and he reached forth a hand and took the key, and went to the end of the Giant's Pillow and placed the key in the hole and turned the lock, and a great door swung silently open, showing a lofty marble hall dimly lighted by swinging red lamps. The young prince stepped quickly into this hall, and the great door swung shut behind him and he heard the massive bolts and bars shoot swiftly into place.

In the center of the hall stood a black ebony table, and on the table lay a white cloak, and on the white cloak was a parchment, whereon these words were written:

"Leave thy sword and battle-ax and armor here. Wear the white cloak. Be merciful and fear not. THE WHITE KING."

At the far end of the hall was a great glistening door of wrought gold and silver, and before this door walked back and forth an enormous yellow lion, with head down and uttering deep, angry growls.

Prince Noble, when he came to this table, paused a moment and read the words written on the parchment. Then he laid his great battle-ax and sword and long lance and heavy armor upon the table, and, throwing the white cloak over his shoulders, walked, all unarmed, down the long hall toward the great door where the yellow lion kept guard. When midway between the table to the door he heard the piteous mewings of a cat, and looking down he saw a milk-white kitten crawling painfully toward him, the blood dropping from a wound in the side.

"Alas, poor creature, thou hast all unwittingly proven the sharpness of the lion's teeth. I will not leave thee. Thou shalt go with me until I can find a place of safety for thee," and the prince stooped and lifted the kitten up tenderly into his arms.

The lion, lashing his tail from side to side and uttering deep-mouthed, angry growls, now crouched directly in front of the door and fixed his eyes hungrily on the prince, who, holding the white kitten in his arms, walked fearlessly toward him. Suddenly, with a roar that shook the walls of the hall, the huge beast sprang into the air straight toward Prince Noble.

Then a marvelous thing happened.

At the moment of the spring of the lion the little white kitten leaped from the arms of Prince Noble and met the lion in midair. A yellow smoke rolled up to the ceiling and the white kitten fell lightly to the floor, all unharmed, and ran and curled itself up on a silken cushion, and there lay purring contentedly.

Prince Noble, marveling greatly, strode quickly to the great door of wrought gold and silver and threw it open.

A loud burst of joyous music greeted him, and he was surrounded by beautiful youths and maidens.

"Come and dance with us! Come and sing with us! Come and play with us! This is the Garden of Ten Thousand Delights!" they shouted, as they circled around him.

Everywhere was happiness, and light, and beauty and music.

Prince Noble drew in a long breath of wonder and astonishment. He loved the beautiful, and his heart sang in tune to the joys around him, yet he said: "I cannot tarry. I being succor to distress," and he walked on, still surrounded by the dancing youths and maids.

Suddenly from the front he heard a cry of pain and the wail of a child, and he saw one of the beautiful youths cruelly strike a ragged, dirty little girl. "Away, away, thou ragged brat!" cried the youth, again striking the child and pushing her roughly.

"Harm not the poor and helpless!" and Prince Noble sprang quickly to the side of the little girl and threw a protecting arm around her.

The child looked up gratefully into his face and said: "I thank thee. Come thou with me. I will show thee the road thou art seeking," and she took Prince Noble by the hand and led him to a great door in a solid wall of stone. On the door was a white mark, and on this white mark the girl rapped sharply three times, and at the third rap, with a great groaning, the door swung open.

A flock of bats darted out, there was a rush of foul air, and all was blackness within; nevertheless, Prince Noble stepped quickly through the stone doorway, and the great door swung shut behind him. In the far corner of this stone dungeon he saw a candle burning dimly, and on a bed of straw lay an old, white-haired woman, bound with great chains to the stone floor. As he looked the woman moaned.

"I bring rescue!" and Prince Noble ran quickly to her side and stooped to lift her up into his arms; but even at his arms closed around her she sprang quickly to her feet, transformed into a beautiful maiden. There was a blinding flash of light, a weird sound, like the swishings of thousands of wings, and Prince Noble stood in the great throne room of a lordly palace, and by his side stood the beautiful maiden, holding in her hand a jeweled crown, and all around the room stood noble lords and ladies and gallant knights and their esquires.

Then from the golden dome of the great throne room floated down a golden smoke, and the smoke twisted and curled itself into great golden letters which read:—

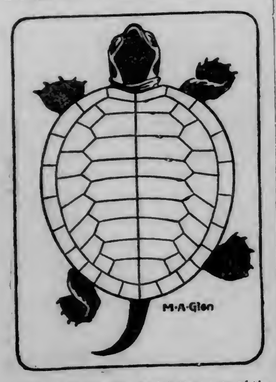
"Homage, do Homage to the Noble Knight, who of all Knights hath proven himself the most worthy to rule over the Dominions of the White King. And he it known that I, the White King, do bestow upon Prince Noble this castle and all that in it is; and that I, the White King, do make him ruler over all the country for a hundred leagues round about the castle; and that I, the White King, do command all within this domain to render unto him true homage and obedience.

"Signed, THE WHITE KING."

"I crown thee the bravest knight and the noblest that ever lived," said the maiden, placing the crown upon Prince Noble's head.

Thus it came about that the gentle and brave Prince Noble became King over all that country; and all his subjects were compelled henceforth to live honestly and to do rightly; and the cruel forays of his stern father, the Black Prince, were forever stopped.

TURTLE PUZZLE ANSWER.



This is the way in which the parts of the turtle given last week should be put together to make a nice back for the turtle.

Glass Cut With Scissors.

With an ordinary pair of scissors you can cut a sheet of glass as easily as you can cut a sheet of pasteboard.

The secret of this experiment consists in plunging your hands, with the glass and scissors, into a tub of water, and there performing the operation.

In this way the glass cuts in straight or curved lines without a break or crack, for the water deadens the vibrations of both the scissors and glass. Try this and you will be convinced of its truth. Remember that not the least part of the scissors or glass must appear above the water, and take thin glass or your hands will not be strong enough to close the scissors.

I really think it is going to rain—
For there's a fly on the window pane
That is trying not to be nervous—in vain!
(But that's a funny way to complain!)

Sand For The Sandman.

BY ANNIE WILLIS M'CULLOUGH.

Oh, where, oh, where does the Sandman live?
I've hunted and watched for him all the day;
I want to ask him to let us alone
And not be spoiling our play.
He comes, you see, when it's growing dark,
And throws some sand at my brother Ned;
And just when we're having the nicest time
Mamma says, "Time for bed."
So then there's no fun playing alone,
I get a book with pictures bright,
But if I wink when they're growing dim—
As they will by candle light—
Mamma says, "Sandman's here again;
Come, my darling, to Sleepy Town;"
And so I'm after the Sandman now,
And I've looked for him up and down.
I'll ask him first to please stay away,
For we don't like "early to bed and to rise;"
But if he says no, then let him look out,
For I'll throw some sand in his eyes!

THE MOON CHILDREN.

BY EMILY H. JUDGE.

"Come on! Come on! We will be late!" The boy calling was a queer looking little fellow. You might not have thought it was a boy, but, if you lived in the moon, as he did, you would look exactly the same.

"Oh, come on!" he called again, and flying along the white road came the girl he called. Perhaps you would think her funny, too, but she was a lovely moon girl, as they consider loveliness up there. You can judge for yourself from her picture. Laughing gayly, on they flew along the beautiful white road, and talked about where they were going. That day the Man in the Moon had told the people that they might go down to earth for a day while he went to sleep, but if they were not home by the time he got up down on the earth they would have to stay, "and," said he, "you'll be sorry if you do, for the earth people are not nice and it isn't always light there" here the people shivered. "Sometimes they can't even see me;" and he swelled with importance. Then a soft voice that, soft as it was, every one could hear, said: "Sometimes they can't even see me!" And then all the people wept bitterly, for it was the moon herself talking, and they could think of nothing more terrible than not to be able to see all the time the lovely, calm, untroubled radiance of her face. The boy and girl soon reached the edge of the moon and stood hesitating.

"It's awfully far down there," said the boy.

"Yes, but it looks nice," said the girl.

"I guess I won't go down," said he. "Let's go and play with the clouds. I'll bet we can catch them today."

"No, you shan't," cried the girl. "I want to see the earth world." And giving him a push over he went, and she after him. They were pretty well out of breath when they landed.

They had fallen in a green field, so it hadn't hurt them much.

"Isn't it funny?" said she.

"I call it horrid," snapped the boy. "What did you push me over for? I would rather be up there than here, with this horrid colored stuff over everything. Why can't everything be white?" he wailed.

"Oh, stop!" said the girl. "We are travelers now. Let's go and look around."

So they started off, and soon they saw something queer running along the road.

The Boy Who Lived in the Moon.

"That's a man," whispered the girl. It was really a little dog, but they had never seen one before.

"He will speak to us," said the boy, "and we will tell him we're from the moon." The little dog ran up to them, sniffed at them, then barked loudly and ran away. He wasn't a very brave dog, but these creatures were as funny to him as he was to them.

"He wasn't very polite," said the moon girl, with her nose in the air.

"Earth people never are," answered the boy.

Now, that was a rather mean thing to say, but almost everyone does feel angry if a dog barks at them, and they had never really met an earthly person in their lives. Soon a man and a woman came along.

"Do look at those queer things!" called out the woman.

The boy blushed and the girl said: "We're from the moon."

"Dear me!" said the woman.

"From the moon, are you?" said the man. "I'd go back there, if I were you."

"Oh, don't!" cried the woman. "I do believe it's really a little girl." And she stooped and took the girl very gently in her hand and looked her in the face. "What is your name?" she whispered.

"Love," said the girl.

The man smiled and then took up the boy.

"What's your name?" he asked.

"Work," said the boy.

"Work! What a strange name!"

"Yes, I have to work all the time," he grumbled. "I have to run after the clouds and pull them this way and that way, and catch them if they try to run away, and it's awful hard work." And the boy frowned and looked very cross.

"What do you do?" said the woman to the girl.

The moon girl looked lovingly at the boy.

"I just go with him wherever he is, because he couldn't work all the time if Love were not with him," and she caught the boy's hand, and the frown on his funny face instantly vanished and he smiled back at her bravely.

The man looked at the woman; her lips moved silently, and he could see that she was saying, "Let us keep them with us."

He sighed and said: "Ah, no! Work is hard!"

"But," she whispered, "you can't have Love if you send Work back to the moon."

The man looked long at the woman, and he knew he must have Love, so he said: "Well, let us keep them." And the moon-children were so happy with the earth-people they never noticed that the moon was rising and that the Man in the Moon was looking down on them, but played and talked until it was too late to go back. And that is how Love and Work came to earth, and sometimes now it is hard to tell which is the favorite of the earth-people, Love or Work!

The Little Moon Girl.

IN A TURKISH SHOE SHOP.

It is great fun shopping for shoes in Constantinople if you are not very particular about the fit.

All Turkish shoes are made so as to slip on and off easily, for every time one goes into the house or shop, mosque or school, off come the street shoes and on go a sort of toe slipper made of wood or leather. Here we take off our hats in church, but keep on our shoes. There all the men and boys keep on their hats, but take off their shoes, while outside of every school or in the hall you will find a long row of children's shoes on the floor, instead of hats and caps hanging on the hooks. They have no rubber overshoes there, but when it rains they put on the wooden pattens, such as they wear in the baths to keep from burning their feet on the hot floor. These have high wooden heels with a strap over the toe, so that one wearing them stands up as high as though on roller skates.

When a new pair of shoes is to be purchased, you know just where to go, for every kind of merchandise has a street all to itself in Constantinople. There is a whole street for shoes, another for pipes, one for perfumes and one for the red Turkish fezzes, and so on, just the way the old Greeks and Romans used to do things.

Oriental shops or stores are nearly all built after the same pattern, the only difference being the depth of the little cubby hole back. The portion which appears upon the street consists of a platform about two feet high and not over ten feet wide. This is covered with a small carpet, sejadeh, or a thin matting with a cushion or two. These outdoor street shops are closed at night by means of boards let down, strengthened with iron bars and padlocked. Part of them serve as an awning during the day. Here sits the shopkeeper crosslegged with his account books by him, his black carved beads in his hands to fumble with and keep him from getting nervous, and always smoking, smoking, smoking. Outside there are stout chairs or boxes for his customers or friends who stop to gossip with him, while over his head and all about hang rows and rows of shoes, boots and slippers, most of them yellow, scarlet, pink and even blue and green.

There are long boots for the soldier horseman and officials, wooden pattens for the bath, Albanian gaiters, slouchy yellow Turkish babouches, red shoes for the Armenians, blue for the Greeks and black for the Jews. There are slippers of fur, silk, velvet and brocade, some glittering with tinsel spangles and some embroidered with flowers in gold and silver and sparkling with precious stones.

If the shopper standing outside sees anything he wishes, the merchant will very deliberately take it down, but he never seems to be in a hurry to sell. Besides the out-of-door shoe bazars there is a whole street given up to the shoe merchants in the great bazar, which is an immense stone building of Byzantine architecture, surrounded by high, gray walls, covered with lead and perforated with holes to let the daylight in. This bazar is miles in extent, and here every kind of goods has its own particular quarter, the little booths being arranged just the same as in the picture. An hour before sunset all the iron doors of the entrances are closed, locked and barred, and put in charge of the watchmen, who walk about with big clubs, beating on the stones to let the thieves know they are coming.

Away to the moon and the stars we will go!
And then, I guess, we
Will sit down to tea,
And shake out the crumbs to the fish in the sea!

When Josephus Ran Away.

BY MOLLIE CHATFIELD.

"Whatever I'm a-goin' to do with that child is more than I know."

Mrs. Jones gave a vigorous shake to a pair of small blue overalls before pinning them on the line where the family washing flapped viciously in the wind, then wrapping her fat red hands in her apron she turned toward the house, calling shrilly:

"Josefus! Josee-fus!"

In answer a very discousolate and dejected small boy appeared at the door of the woodshed and came slowly toward her. He was a very small boy, with a quantity of straw-colored hair cut in ragged shapes around his neck, a snubby nose and a pair of troubled brown eyes that looked wistfully up into the frowning face above him.

Mrs. Jones shook her head despairingly.

"Josephus Jones, why ain't you in school?"

"But, you know, ma, but—'cause I, but—"

His explanation was stopped short by an impatient cuff on the ear, and then his mother's portly figure disappeared through the kitchen door, which slammed sharply after her.

Two big tears rolled down over the freckled cheeks of Josephus. He felt as if his world had come to an end.

His mouth was puckered into a hard knot; there were no tears in his eyes now; his mind was made up. He had stood the taunts and jeers of his companions as long as he could, and now that his mother's kindly, good-natured face had frowned upon him and she had actually boxed his ears, he could bear no more. He would lose himself in the woods. He didn't care what became of him.

It was a long way, and the cold, gray clouds had begun to sprinkle a few snowflakes into the air when Josephus turned from the road into the wood path. The dry leaves rustled under his feet as he scuffled his little copper-toed boots through them.

It was rather dusky under the trees, and hind leg caught in a trap.

Josephus soon found the fox and, carefully opening the trap, rubbed one drop of the oil upon the broken leg, and behold! it was as good as new.

The fox was very grateful and said:

"You have helped me; now I will help you. Carry these to the owl that lives in the old oak tree to the left of the park, and he will give you what you need." And the fox gave Josephus five quills which he had pulled from the tail of the owl.

Josephus took the quills and hastened to the owl, who sat with his feathers ruffled up about him and blinking his round eyes. He asked Josephus rather crossly what he wanted, for he did not like to be disturbed; but when Josephus told him that he had brought back his tail feathers, he was very much pleased and said that he would do anything in his power for anyone who would make them grow in place again.

So Josephus rubbed the other drop of oil on the owl's tail, and the feathers grew in place as beautifully as if they had never been pulled out.

"You have been good to me," said the owl. "Now I will show what I can do for you, for I know what you most desire."

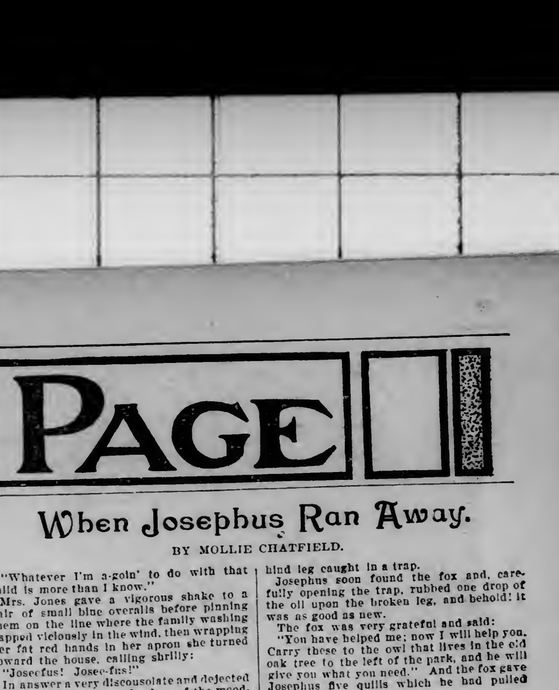
He went down into his nest and brought out a pair of gauntlets.

"These once belonged to a mighty hunter," he said. "Put them on and you will have the strength of a giant, and will be able to move great burdens."

Josephus thanked him and hurried back to the old man, who was still fast asleep by the brook.

With the gauntlets on his hands he lifted the pack as easily as if it had been a feather. The old man awoke and jumped to his feet, his back as straight as a ramrod.

The snow was now quite thick on the ground, and it was still coming down fast, but as he came within sight of the gate he saw his mother standing there and watching



"I will cure you if you will take this pack from my back."

anxiously down the road.

"Land sakes alive, Josephus Jones!" she said when he came up to her. "Where have you been? You'll catch your death a-cold, child, out all day in this snow!"

She gathered him up in her arms and carried him into the house. She hugged him close in her lap and pulled off his wet shoes and stockings, and gave him some molasses and vinegar, stewed with butter, and rubbed his hot head with witch hazel, and finally, put a piece of salt pork and a red flannel rag around his throat and tucked him into bed.

Josephus stayed in bed several days. When he got up again he had forgotten how to say "but," and talked as other children do.

A Literary Tree.

One by one the traditions of antiquity and the illusions of youth are ruthlessly dispelled. Many people will hear with sorrow and regret that the sacred tree of Kum-Bum, in Thibet, is a fraud and an imposture, like the Manhattnas of that interesting but thoroughly mendacious land. Who has not heard of the wonderful tree which sprung from the spot where the mother of Toong-Kape shaved her worthy offspring's head when she dedicated him to the divinities and threw his matted hair on the ground?

Ever since that memorable event the leaves on its branches and the bark on its trunk have not been the same as on ordinary trees, but contained sacred prayers and symbols, which were supposed to grow naturally on them and diffused a strong odor of incense. The priests were very jealous of it, watched over it themselves and were careful to prevent strangers stealing either leaves or branches until ready to be sold with letters and signs on turning.

The tree has been identified as an ordinary syringa villosa, common in China, and any marks which the leaves contain molds, aided probably with heat. Kum-bum, therefore, goes the way of the celebrated plant in Kent, England, which was believed to produce live geese in its branches.

One of the early Popes sent a messenger to investigate Kent county's phenomenon. When he arrived the people told him the tree grew in the midlands; in the midlands they said it was only to be found in Scotland; in Scotland they said it flourished solely in the Orkneys, and had he gone there he would very likely have been informed that the goose tree acted as the North Pole. At all events he could not find it.

DULUTH BALL TEAM ALMOST COMPLETE

Moran, National League Catcher, Has Signed With Local Team, Which Will Play at Stillwater on Sunday.

Moran, of the Boston National league team, has signed with Duluth. He was the third best catcher in the big league last year, having a fielding percentage of .967 in seventy games. Moran came here on Walter Wilmot's recommendation and he will undoubtedly prove a great strengthening to the team. He reported for duty last night.

It was a lively bunch of confident players that left the city this afternoon headed in the direction of Stillwater, where they will play a practice game tomorrow before going to Fargo to open the Northern league season next Wednesday.

The Universal Millers will play Cloquet at that place tomorrow. Lowe, who was not in the box at Superior last Sunday, will pitch for the Millers, and the local fans are confident that this strong amateur team, with Lowe, will again strike its pace.

This afternoon the First National bank team is playing the court house team at Lakeside. The First Nationals are now open for Saturday afternoon games throughout the season, and all challenges should be sent to Manager G. H. McCarthy. The team has about the neatest uniform even seen in the city—white with black trimmings, stockings, and lettering. F. E. Frezeau is captain and third baseman, and the other players are: Gray, catcher; Halbert, pitcher; Berg, first base; McCarthy, second base; F. A. Frezeau, short stop; Roberts, left field; Becker, center field, and Gridley, right field.

Winnipeg, with Bartos in the box, defeated the strong Little Falls team by a score of 7 to 0.

The most remarkable thing that ever happened on a ball field is, by common consent, the batting streak which Ed Delehanty, left fielder for the Phillies, showed in a game with the Chicago nine in '97.

"Adonis Bill" Terry was pitching for Chicago. Altogether the Philadelphias made just eight hits off Terry, and of the eight Delehanty made no less than five out of five times at bat.

The first time up Delehanty lined out a home run to the left field bleachers. The second he hit for four bases to right field. On his third effort he sent a sizzling liner cut into "Bullhead" Dahlen's territory. Dahlen got under it and stuck up his hands, but the ball was going so fast that it almost amputated both of his flus. Delehanty got to first on it.

The fourth time to bat Delehanty sent one right straight for center and cantered clear around to home without trouble. When he walked to the plate for the fifth time the fans were all crazy with excitement.

"Another home run, Del," they shouted, and, by way of humoring the crowd, "Big Bill" Lange went away out between the two clubhouses in center and waved his hands derisively.

Delehanty hit the first ball that was pitched. It went sailing out into left, hit the roof of the clubhouse on that side, and bounded off on to the roof of the other. Meanwhile "Del" walked leisurely around the bases and scored his fourth home run.

But in spite of Delehanty's marvelous record of four home runs and a single out of five times at bat his team lost the game by a score of 8 to 6.

Elmer Foster, formerly of Chicago, must always be borne in mind when one is relating the wonders of baseball. Late one afternoon the shadow of the grand stand falls over the field at West Side park and makes it impossible for the outfielders to see a hit ball until it has traveled beyond the shadow.

Back in '94 one of the Eastern teams was playing Chicago on the West Side, with Foster in center field. The man at bat made a terrific swipe at the ball and hit it. The shadow was deep over the infield and Foster could not see the ball. He started to run out into far center, so as to be prepared.

As a matter of fact the ball was only a bunt. The shortstop caught it and threw the batter out at first. But Foster kept on running—running like mad.

"Look at Foster," yelled the crowd in the bleachers. "What does he think he is after?"

Foster ran at the top of his speed almost to the center field fence. Then he jumped high up into the air, threw up his left hand and came down to the ground with—an English sparrow tightly clutched in his fist.

The score was 3 to 1 in favor of New York. It was the ninth inning and Chicago had two men out. The game was being played on the polo grounds in New York.

There was a fence about the outfield at the polo grounds and just outside the fence the carriages could watch the game. On this particular day in '96 Digby Bell, the actor, was sitting in his high trap, in the midst of the crowd. On the seat beside him sat an English bulldog.

As above related Chicago was "in," there were two men out, two men on bases, the score was 3 to 1 in favor of New York, and it was the last half of the ninth inning.

"Bullhead" Dahlen came to bat. The first two balls that were pitched the umpire called as strikes. The third ball "Bullhead" hit a mighty wallop. It sailed far out over the fence and struck Digby Bell's bulldog fairly in the head.

When the excitement cleared away it was discovered that Dahlen had chased home the two winning runs, while Digby Bell was mourning the accidental and unexpected death of one imported canine.

In Boston the National league left field fence backs on a railroad track. As a consequence a lot of empty tin cans and other debris are often found about the bottom of the fence.

Cleveland was playing the Boston nine. "Jim" McAleer came to bat for the Ohio city. He knocked a long liner to left field and the ball rolled up under the fence and straight into an empty tomato can.

Hugh Duffy was fielding the left garden for the Beaneaters. He grabbed the can and tried wildly to dig the ball out. Meanwhile McAleer was running to second. Finally, growing desperate, Duffy threw can and all over to third base, from which McAleer had just started for home. The third baseman hurled the can inclosing the ball in to the catcher and the latter touched the runner with it.

There was a loud protest from the Cleveland nine and the umpire finally decided that McAleer was safe and the run must count, because the rules provide that the runner must be touched by the ball.

Way back in '89 Cincinnati was playing one afternoon with Chris Von der Ahe's St. Louis aggregation on the St. Louis grounds.

Cincinnati had a man on first base and two out, and needed two runs to win. Cliff Carroll was playing center field for the St. Louis nine. The Cincinnati batter hit a slow grounder to center and Carroll ran up to gather it in. The situation was ticklish and Carroll prepared to field the ball carefully. He squatted down to meet it and got his hands in position. Just before it reached him the ball hit a clump of dirt and bounded high. Carroll grabbed for it with both hands, just as it hit him in the chest.

Somehow in the struggle the ball was wedged into the pocket of Carroll's uniform shirt. It got in there, and Cliff had a terrible time trying to get it out. The runner stopped at second long enough to see that something was the matter. Then he started for third, with Carrol running fast after him, still digging away at his shirt pocket.

From third the runner started home, Carroll still close behind him and still unable to separate himself from the ball. The result was that the runner got home safely and Cincinnati won the game.

Von der Ahe almost had a fit. He fined Carroll fifty for putting the ball in his pocket, and made a rule that thereafter no pockets of any kind should be allowed in the uniforms of his team.

The longest hit on record was one which carried the ball from Staten Island to Liverpool, though all the wide Atlantic rolled between.

Chicago was playing New York one day in '90. The One Hundred and Tenth street park of the New York team had been ruined by the opening of a street, and temporarily a park had been built on Staten island, right on the shore of the bay. The center field, in fact, was built out on boards over the water, and the man who fell out of the center field bleachers had nothing before him but an ignominious death in the ocean.

With the score a tie in the last inning "Jimmy Ryan came to bat. He hit the ball a ponderous swipe and it went sailing out over the center field fence into the vasty deep.

Ryan's hit and his ensuing home run were forgotten when one day, a month later, he got a letter and a small package by mail from Liverpool. The writer said he had sailed for Europe the day of the ball game and had been struck by the ball as he stood on the deck of the liner. After he got to Liverpool he read an account of the game in the New York papers and concluded that he had found the missing ball. "Jimmy" still has the much-traveled sphere to show as proof of his holding the record on long hits.

Pitcher Arthur Weber of the Houston, South Texas, league club, recently made a record in the game with Galveston. In the fourth, seventh and ninth innings he pitched only three balls, each, retiring the side. In the seventh he got three assists. In the fifth inning he retired the side with straight strikeouts and struck out the first two men in the sixth.

On Sept. 19, 1884, at Dayton, Ohio, Dayton and Ironton played a full nine-inning game of baseball in forty-seven minutes. This is at an average time of 5 2-9 minutes per inning, and 2 11-18 minutes for each half inning.

The days of the once famous race horse, Exile, winner of the Brooklyn handicap in 1889, were rather tragically ended at the establishment of his owner, E. C. Cowdin, Mt. Kisko, N. Y. The old horse became suddenly mad, and when Trainer Brennan and an assistant entered his paddock he became so enraged that it was necessary that they climb a tree to insure their safety. The men called for help from the tree top, and meantime the maddened stallion began biting away the flesh from his sides. Mr. Cowdin appeared upon the scene with a Winchester, and with a single shot put the aged son of imported Mortemer and imported Second Hand out of his misery. After his career on the turf Exile was sold to Charles Reed by William Lakeland for $15,000, and after service in the stud in Tennessee and Kentucky for several years he became the property of Mr. Cowdin. It is of record that he started in a race at Brighton Beach one afternoon, was defeated and was immediately walked over to Sheepshead Bay, where he won the future event of the afternoon, covering the mile and three sixteenths in 2:02, and setting a new track record. Exile was 21 years old.

In compliance with the conditions of the event the subscribers to the Saratoga Special, the big jack pot for which the youngsters will sprint five and a half furlongs at the Saratoga meeting in August, have named their entries as follows:

August Belmont, New York—Gallant, Orthodox and Beldame for first subscription; Lord of the Valley, Magistrate and Ninepin for second subscription.

S. S. Brown, Pittsburg—Conjurer, Broomstick and Scotch Thistle.

John A. Drake, Chicago—Ort Wells, Rudabek and Van Esher.

Phillips J. Dwyer, New York—Sherod, Sir Carter and Grand Commander.

A. Featherstone, Cincinnati—Komombo, Harangue and Shipshape.

Julius Fleischmann, Cincinnati—Panacea, Long Shot and Hello.

David Gideon, New York—Vanquisher, Blytheness and Hesperis.

James R. Keene, New York Kohinoor, Delhi and Palmbearer.

W. B. Leeds, Philadelphia—Revenue, Leocon and Julia M.

J. Grant Lyman, New York—Belle of Wakefield, Gay Lothario and Naughty Lady.

John E. Madden, Lexington, Ky.—Adbell, Raglan and French Matron for first subscription; Alliance, Aristocracy and Applause for second subscription.

Jay B. Morris, New York—Boxwood, Rapid Water and Precious Stone.

Michael Murphy, New York—Gettysburg, Baseful and James V.

P. H. McCarren, New York—Seymour, Ocean Tide and Lee Harrison.

Sidney Paget, New York—Waterford, Ormonde's Right and Consideration.

John W. Schorr, Memphis—Sweet Gretchen, Moharib and Molinos.

E. E. Smathers, New York—Dick Bernard.

The Pepper stable, Lexington, Ky.—Crown Prince, Briarthorpe and Coal Black Lady.

E. R. Thomas, New York—St. Valentine, Dimple and Vagary.

L. B. Waterbury, New York—Yo San, the St. Blaise—Gentility colt and the Pessara—Diana filly.

J. E. Widener, Philadelphia—Sir Lynnewood, Nutcracker and Panella.

William C. Whitney, New York—Mercury, Inflexible and the Hamburg—Rose of Hampton colt for first subscription and Reliance, Stalwart and Narcissus for second subscription.

R. T. Wilson, Jr., New York—Montreson, Longspur and Silverfoot.

H. M. Ziegler, Cincinnati—Wayfarer, Tippecanoe and Don John for first subscription; Shafer, Bobadil and Luxembourg for second subscription.

E. R. Bradley was the only subscriber who declared a forfeit, which cost him $500. From each three horses named each subscriber is entitled to send one to the post at a cost of $1000, so should each subscription be represented by a starter the winner will take down $29,500, besides a piece of gold plate valued at $1500. From the way the 2-year-olds are showing up it appears that there will be few subscriptions not represented. It will produce one of the greatest races for youngsters ever run. The best bred ones in the country are named.

There are some unusual facts connected with the match between Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett. Both are products of California, are almost the same height, have James J. for their given names, each has a brother named Tom, and both started out in the fighting game from San Francisco.

The match between Jeff and Corbett, by the way, is beginning to attract attention in the sporting world, and it will not be long now until the men get down to active training. Corbett has gone back to the scenes of his early triumphs in the city of San Francisco, and Jeffries will be there ere long. The champion will take Bob Fitzsimmons with him as a sparring partner, while Corbett will likely pick out one of the many heavy weights around 'Frisco to assist him in getting in shape.

There is one thing that is not quite clear to the wise ones, and that is how Fitzsimmons and Billy Delaney are going to get along as trainers. Delaney, as is well, known, is one of the easiest men in the world to get along with, but at the same time when he has an important duty before him he is not to be trifled with. Fitz will, of course, want to have something to say regarding Jeff's training methods, and if his ideas do not agree with those of Delaney there is liable to be a split-up in the champion's training family. Fitz had better make up his mind to either side with Delaney or simply act as a sparring partner to Jeffries. If not, there is apt to be no end of friction in camp. Fitz, unlike other fighters, has many peculiar training stunts, and he may want to work them in as a part of the champion's daily routine. Delaney will certainly not put up with any innovations, and that is where the trouble will come in. Jeff and Fitz appear to have formed a warm attachment for each other, and there is no telling how far the big boilermaker will go for the lanky Australian if it comes to a show-down.

THE MEN AND WOMEN

Who Enjoy the Choicest Products of the World's Commerce.

Knowledge of What Is Best More Important Than Wealth Without It.

It must be apparent to every one that qualities of the highest order are necessary to enable the best of the products of modern commerce to attain permanently to universal acceptance. However loudly heralded, they may not hope for world-wide preeminence unless they meet with the general approval, not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting, enjoying and learning the real worth of the choicest products. Their commendation, consequently, becomes important to others, since to meet the requirements of the well informed of all countries the method of manufacture must be of the most perfect order and the combination the most excellent of its kind. The above is true not of food products only, but is especially applicable to medicinal agents and after nearly a quarter of a century of growth and general use the excellent remedy, Syrup of Figs, is everywhere accepted, throughout the world, as the best of family laxatives. Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants known to act most beneficially on the system and presented in the form of a pleasant and refreshing liquid, but also to the method of manufacture of the California Fig Syrup Co., which ensures that uniformity and purity essential in a remedy intended for family use. Ask any physician who is well informed and he will answer at once that it is an excellent laxative. If at all eminent in his profession and has made a special study of laxatives and their effects upon the system he will tell you that it is the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after-effects. Every well-informed druggist of reputable standing knows that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative and is glad to sell it, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, because it gives general satisfaction, but one should remember that in order to get the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs it is necessary to buy the genuine, which is sold in original packages only; the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs and also the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Saved the Life of Mrs. Thos. Wileman, Bardsdale, Cal.

The Life Giving Compound That Wives and Mothers Most Need in May.

Paine's Celery Compound does a wonderous work for sick and half dead women in May. The conditions of winter have been detrimental to the health of women and girls everywhere; they have declined in nervous vigor, the blood is reeking with impurities, the excretory organs do not perform their work, and the digestive machinery is sadly out of gear. The human machine must be cleansed, repaired and strengthened in May. Paine's Celery Compound does the work surprisingly fast, and gives a guarantee of permanent health and long life. It is the one spring medicine that truly nourishes, regulates and invigorates the entire nervous system, from the brain to the minutest nerve filament. It gives a full, rich supply of energizing blood, it clears the muddy, unhealthy skin, it gives an increase in weight, and more refreshing sleep. Whatever be your condition, unhappy sufferer, we give you a blessed assurance of a new and lasting health through the use of Paine's Celery Compound. Mrs. Thos. Wileman, Bardsdale, Cal., writes for ailing and broken down women as follows:

"I began using Paine's Celery Compound about six years ago. I had severe attacks of sick headache, with sick stomach and vomiting. My friends thought I could not live long, but Paine's Celery Compound cured me. I am now able to do all my own housework duties for a family of nine, and I can recommend Paine's Celery Compound to any one suffering as I did with sick and nervous headache."

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Fable of the Thoughtful Wife Who Tried To Give Henry a Restful Vacation.

(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell.)

Once there was a great big Burly who had a Wife about the size of a Grasshopper. Usually she wore a gray Tailor-Made that looked as if it would have to be let out if she gained another pound.

Any one, to look at Jessaline, would have said that she was rather frail and weakly, while the be-end of the Sketch looked husky enough to pull a dray. It often happens that the heavy-draft Backer picks out a Midge and makes Love to her and she is so scared at the size of him that she hasn't got the Nerve to throw him down.

At any rate, the cute and dainty little Jessaline with a Waist Measurement of 11 inches was all hooked up with the human Mastodon who went by the name of Henry and looked the Part.

Now it happened that Hen and Jess lived in a nice little Town where there were a great many lonely Old Families and a great deal of Wealth, but it was pervaded at all Hours by a Cemetery Calm. The Social Gayeties of the Place revolved slowly around a Missionary Society. Any one desiring to mix a Cocktail had to pull down all the Blinds and disconnect the Telephone and also it was advisable to wear Masks at a Poker Party.

Jessaline would often become restless and champ at the Bit. She had attended a Select School for Girls, at which she had learned how to turn Handsprings and do other Parlor Tidbits. No wonder that she hated to play Dominoes all Evening and then turn out the Lights at 9:30 p. m., which, in Keen Society is the mere Edge of the Night.

Now it chanced that Jessaline had a Chum. They had eaten olives out of the same Bottle while attending the Select School for Girls. Chum had gone against the Matrimonial Game, the same as Jessaline, only, instead of fading in Sleepy Hollow, she was up in the City, taking in the Big Show.

She wrote to Jessaline, urging her to come up and put in a busy Week. After working on the Handwriting for several Days, Jessaline succeeded in reading the whole Letter and she began to lease Hours to knock off for a Week and take her up to the hoop-la Metropolis and let her burn a few Holes in the Track. She told Henry that he had been sticking to his Desk too closely and that he needed a good Rest.

Large Bodies move slowly and several Days elapsed before Henry came to her Way of Thinking, although it was a Pipe from the beginning that she would bring him around.

Jessaline got busy and put six Women to work building a new Evening Gown for her. It was a Pale Blue Cerise with Battenberg Insertion, yoked with Mayonnaise and Valenciennes, the Flounces being gathered in with Passamenterie and the Bodice hand-painted. When Henry got a Flash at the Bill he allowed that instead of taking a Vacation, it would be better for him to stay at Home and work about twice as hard. But winsome Wifey had everything packed, so she took him in Tow and they boarded the Flyer.

"Ain't this Grand?" asked Jessaline, as they sat in the palatial Parlor Car and watched the Scenery spin by. "We have a whole Week in which to rest up and nobody to keep Tab on what we do and then report us to the Methodist Minister. I'm sure that you will like Clara. She is a Holy Terror. She was engaged nineteen times before she finally hooked up and since she got Married, People come for miles to get her to pet as Chaperon."

"What is the Programme?" asked Henry, who was a mite Leary.

"There'll be something doing every Minute, all right, all right," said the Child-Wife. "Ask no Questions but follow little Bright Eyes. I haven't had a touch of Real Life since I crawled down the Lightning Rod at the Select School for Girls."

At that time Henry did not realize that a bright young Thing with a Boarding School Education can give the stalwart Business Man any kind of a Handicap and then leave him somewhere back of the Flag.

Clara met them at the Train with a Buzz-Wagon. She had framed up a List of Engagements that made the Roosevelt Itinerary look like Open Time. Clara had arranged to give them a little of Everything, except Sleep. Jessaline was tickled nearly to Death. She was waltzing all over the Track waiting for the word "Go."

The Getaway was a Dinner of 17 Courses at which Jessaline tackled everything without losing any part of the Conversation. After that they went to the Opera, which was a little too high for Henry, but Jessaline threw a Conniption Fit every time Signor Dagolini climbed up and hit a Top Note. They went back to the Apartment and ate Stuff out of a Chafing Dish until 3 A. M. When they turned in, Henry was on the point of Passing Away but Jessaline was just beginning to warm up and be Kittenish.

"We shall have Oodles of Fun tomorrow," she said. "First we have a Breakfast at the French Restaurant, then a swell Luncheon at the Club, then a Matinee, then a Dinner at the biggest Hotel on Earth and then a Show and then we are all going out Slumming."

"I drop out," said Henry. "One day has put me to the Bad."

"Don't be a Quitter," said Jessaline. "Stick to me and I'll give you the Time of your Life."

Next Day she took him over the Jumps and he followed with his Tongue hanging out. He did not like to admit that he could not keep up with a 90-pound Canary who was somewhat of an Invalid. But when he sat and watched her eating her fourth Hearty Meal and chatting gaily, he tried to figure out how any one with a Waist Measurement of 11 Inches could manage it, but the Problem was too much for him.

The third day of Rest included the usual number of Eats and wound up with one of those Dancing Parties that last until the Germans become peevish and refuse to play any more. Henry was off in a Corner eating Soda Mint Tablets and holding on to a Chair to keep from falling off. Jessaline was right out in the center of the Mix-Up, looking as fresh as a Dollar Bunch of Russian Violets. After every Dance she would tear out and get a few Glasses of Knock-Out Punch and eat a couple of Sandwiches, after which she would be ready to do some more two-stepping. When the Orchestra finally struck and she had to pull out, she found Henry in a Comatose Condition leaning against the Hat-Rack. She aroused him and told him the Glad News that they were to get an Early Start and go out to a nice Road House and have something to Eat. Whereupon Henry fell in a Heap and asked to be counted out.

All the way Home in the Carriage she toasted him and charged him with a lack of Appreciation.

"You act like a Dummy," said the Indignant Jessaline. "Why don't you cut in and have a Good Time, the same as I do? I don't want People to think that I married a Rube."

"I can lift 1200 pounds in Harness and I can play 72 holes of Golf without turning a Hair," said the fallen Giant, "but when it comes to eating little Birds and taking a new kind of Salad every twenty minutes and holding animated Conversation with Perfect Strangers, I am not in your Class. Send for a Trained Nurse. In a Week or so, I shall be able to Travel and get back to Hard Work and rest up. In the meantime, go it alone."

So Jessaline put the Weakling on the Shelf and went out and had a Happy Week.

TO WED BARONESS.

New York, May 15.—It is announced that Katherine Francesca Baroness Von Wolf, of Munich, Bavaria, is to become the wife of Dandridge Spotswood of Virginia next winter, in the Bavarian capital. The prospective groom is a lineal descendant of Major General Sir Alexander Spotswood, first governor of the Old Dominion. His fiancee is a niece of the minister of justice of Bavaria. Although of noble German family, she was born in Philadelphia. Mr. Spotswood met the baroness while she was visiting in New York and before she returned to her home they became engaged.

HOPE TO DO AS WELL AGAINST SUPERIOR

High School Baseball Men Anxious to Make Good Showing In Today's Game—Preliminary Field Day Next Saturday—The Oratorical Contest.

A battle between the high school team and the Superior Northern league aggregation is being sought at the Superior Driving park this afternoon.

The showing which Cummings and his men made in last week's game with the Duluth league team, when they wiped them up at the rate of 4 to 1, gave Manager Keefe of the Superior aggregation the idea that it would be interesting to see his own men lined up against them.

A comparison between the Superior and Duluth league teams could be drawn from the results of the two contests and the game is in every sense interesting to the fans who follow the league players.

High school enthusiasts are anxious to see the high school boys trim the Superior men as they did the local professional aggregation. Most of the Superior fans regard the victory of the high school team over the Duluth leaguers last Saturday as a mere fluke, and they have little fear that their men will not be able to hold down the students from this side.

Only two days of practice possible for the high school men this week, but notwithstanding that disadvantage the team went to Superior this afternoon in good fettle and the men felt capable of playing as good a game as they did last Saturday.

No high school team ever defeated a league or other professional aggregation here before, and the result of the game was a great credit to the school team, both at home and abroad. The other teams which Duluth is to meet this season have begun to look up and take notice.

With one of the best teams that the school has ever had, it is generally regretted by the high school students that they were unable, on account of financial difficulties, to meet any of the Twin City teams this year. Every high school in St. Paul and Minneapolis and Hamline university of St. Paul communicated with the local management for games, but they all wanted to play at this end of the line.

The baseball team cleared a neat little sum for the association on last Saturday's game, and it looks now as though the season would end with the financial standing of the association raised by the baseball team.

A mid-week game will probably be played with either the board of trade or the Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior, on either Wednesday or Thursday afternoon, but there will be no work for the baseball men on Saturday, as they will all attend the preliminary track meet.

PRELIMINARY FIELD DAY.

Students Urged to Take Interest In Track Events.

The preliminary field day of high school athletes will be held next Saturday. All of the men have been working hard for the event, but not as great a number have been making ready for it as usual on account of the number of athletic students whose services were required in the carnival held last evening.

A great number will be out for a little preparatory practice during the first of the coming week and the lists for Saturday will be quite as large as formerly, according to the present calculations of track Capt. Whipple.

The first two men to finish in each event will probably be entered in the track contest which is to take place between the Duluth, Cloquet and Nelson-Dewey high schools on June 6. The men will have two weeks in which to prepare themselves for the three-cornered struggle, after the best men have been picked out from the local bunch, and put on a raw beefsteak diet.

Most of the old track material, which did the good work for the local school a few years ago, has gone and none of the old record-breakers are now in school. No records were broken last year. So it is up to the lower classes to get their men out for the track events.

Unless the sport is given a decided impetus it is likely to die out entirely, and that would be very much to be regretted by all concerned. In '95 and '96, when Henry Meining and the old-time bunch frolicked sportively around the oval for the Duluth boys, there was not a better track team in the state.

There have been good men since and there will be more good men in the future, but it is up to every student interested at all in high school track and field sports to get men out for work and enter them in next Saturday's preliminary. It is the only way to develop a fast team, and a fast team for future seasons.

Manager Kane has done unusually well this year in planning and preparing for a three-cornered meet with outside schools. This should arouse enthusiasm and get boys who would not care to work for a little personal glory out to battle for the school. Teams of the last few years have not had such an inducement to get out men, and still there have been large numbers entered in the preliminary.

SOPHOMORE HEROES.

Adorned By Class Members With Red Buttons.

The sophomore class has adorned its heroes.

Red buttons, red as the symbol of anarchy, with '05 in silver, embellish their coat lapels. This is the mark of the legion of honor. They cost fully 3 cents per adornment.

This shows the pride of the class. They have beaten the freshmen—they say—in every test of strength and skill. They desire that their stalwart knights who have performed these feats be given the honor due them. Hence the buttons, red as anarchy and 3 cents per.

And no one who has the 3 cents to invest may wear them. It is the insignia of the brave to be worn only by the stalwart knights of the class. To overcome three freshmen in athletic combat are the requirements possessed by those who would be adorned. It will be noticed that the number of freshmen and an hundredth portion of the currency are identical—three freshmen, 3 cents. This may mean 1 cent per freshman. It is too cheap.

Honor on so false a basis cannot live. One cent for one freshman—it's below the union scale. During the week the suggestive badge of courage has been carried publicly, each by its hero. The freshmen have not realized, apparently, the very low price at which they are quoted. If they have, they have made no sign.

ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Much Interest In the Event of May 29.

The oratorical contest, to be held on May 29, promises to be unusually interesting. Those who are to take part have been rehearsing with Mr. Thomas for the past two weeks.

The seniors entered are Gransow, Lippit, Safford and Alice Conklin. The juniors will have Evans, Seobie, A. Fitzgerald, G. Fitzgerald and Michaud. The sophomores have a strong man in Strand, the winner of the declamatory contest, and also in Furni, their other entry. The freshmen, who seem a little backward in entering, will not be represented.

The junior girls will have the matter all their own, as the gentler sex of the other classes have not entered. The girls entered from '04 are Miss Smith, Miss Robinson, Miss Thompson and Miss Fink. The girls will be judged separately from the boys, as in the declamatory contest.

The points considered by the judges will be the delivery and subject matter of the oration. In the previous contest declamation alone was scored.

Lower Class Doings.

A baseball game between the freshmen and sophomore classes, which is to take the place of the annual cane rush which went out of existence with the tiger of '03, will be played in a couple of weeks.

The sophomore team organized recently, with Roy Deetz captain and E. Furni manager.

The lower classes have been practicing assiduously for the last two or three weeks, and their curves and slants would do credit to a trigonometry class. The forecast is that when the collision comes there will be something doing.

Statue Presented.

A large statue of Minerva, goddess of learning, has been presented to the high school by the class of '02. The cast is a mate to "Diana, Goddess of the Hunt," which was presented to the school by the organization which graduated in '01.

The two have been placed in the second floor corridor of the HighSchool and they add greatly to the appearance of the hall. They are mounted similarly. The base of the statue is inscribed with the motto of the class, "Carpe Diem," and the words, "Presented by the class of 1902."

Nearing the Close.

Only two weeks and a half of study remain for the seniors before they take their final examinations. Finals for the rest of the school will occur one week later.

Honor pupils and those who will deliver addresses on class night are hard at work on their papers, which will be carefully rehearsed for the next few weeks.

Reviewing has begun already in some departments, and it will continue rapidly until the "exams" arrive. A very busy time is in store for the graduating students.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Re-Survey of the District to Be Made.

Colorado Springs, Col., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the failure of congress to make a sufficient appropriation, the United States geological survey announced that it would be unable to make the resurvey of the Cripple Creek district, as originally contemplated. As soon as this was learned, the mining men of the district immediately set about to secure the necessary funds for this purpose, and the entire amount has now been subscribed. Accordingly the survey will be made by the government officials, but largely at the expense of the individual miners. The unlimited faith which the people of Cripple Creek have in their district is shown in a marked manner by the readiness with which they co-operate in the effort to have an official report made upon the actual conditions. The full monthly production is being maintained as usual, and values continue with depth.

Development of the new ore shoot opened at the 1400-foot level in Stratton's American Eagles on Bull hill shows that it is a large occurrence carrying high average values. Part of the pay streak is very rich. The strike is important on account of the great depth at which the ore occurs, and indicates fairly that pay rock will probably be found in other mines in that section of Bull hill when exploratory work shall be carried forward to the depth mentioned.

One of the most important strikes in the district was made Sunday night last, when a 20-inch vein of iron sulphide ore was opened in the 1250-foot level of the Last Dollar mine. This is the first strike in the district of iron gold values. The ore averages 42 ounces of gold to the ton, besides 50 to 100 ounces of silver, and is well up in copper.

The lessees on the Buckeye claim, belonging to the Old Gold company, have made their first shipment from the recent strike made by them. The ore was broken at a depth of 250 feet, where the vein is about six feet wide, all of which runs pay. A streak along the hanging wall runs as high as $450 per ton.

Sailed Without a Rudder.

One of Britain's battleships just recently accomplished the remarkable feat of sailing over 2500 miles without a rudder, and which reflects the greatest credit on her officers. The record of cures back of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters certainly reflects great credit on the ability of this medicine to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders, even after other remedies have failed. During its fifty years' experience it has never been known to fail in cases of dizziness, loss of appetite, insomnia, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles, or malaria, fever and ague. In view of such a convincing record we feel justified in urging you to try it at once. We know you will be satisfied with the result. The genuine must have our Private Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

And yet there is no need to suffer—
Sick kidneys are the trouble—and sick kidneys can be cured—
Are being cured right here in Duluth every day—

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

give the kidneys just the help they need—
Make them well and strong—
Cure the backache by taking away its cause.

Duluth Proof.

Mr. Henry Hibke, police officer at Lakeside, residing at 4511 London Road, says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone who is at all troubled with their kidneys or suffers from pains throug the loins, or from the effects of colds settling in the kidneys. An officer's work necessitates his being exposed to all kinds of weather. A few years past I had attacks whenever I caught cold and a heavy aching pain developed across my loins and the kidney secretions became irregular and unnatural. Otherwise I have always enjoyed the best of health. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and began using the remedy. The trouble was soon removed."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale at all drug stores.

SMALL BOY'S DESCRIPTION OF THE HERALD OFFICE

Eleven-Year-Old George Muhlbaur's Impression of Its Modern Plant, Written as an Exercise In Composition In His Class at Jackson School.

Pupils of the A sixth grade of the Jackson school have been undergoing some training in composition recently and were directed to write letters to some person of their acquaintance descriptive of the new Herald office, whose location is but two blocks distant. The best description, in the opinion of the teacher, was that of George Muhlbaur, age 11 years, of 907 West Michigan street. This is his idea of Duluth's modern newspaper office:

GEORGE MUHLBAUR.

Duluth, Minn., May 9, 1903.

Dear Friend Edgar:

I received your letter of recent date, and as I promised in my last letter, I would write you of another place of interest in Duluth. I will tell you of The Herald office, which I visited last Saturday.

Passing through a long hall, with doors on either side, we enter the "News Room," in which are four desks and typewriters. Leading off of this room, to the left, are three other rooms, the Associated Press room, the telegraph editor's room and the city editor's room. I entered the Associated Press room first as it was nearest to me. There is a man within that receives telegraphic messages from various cities and who quickly writes them down on a typewriter. A door from this room leads to the telegraph editor's office.

The telegraph editor's office is much like that of the city editor's office, both having men busily employed at desks.

Leaving the main floor we ascend the staircase and enter the type room. In the front part of this room are several composing machines, used for setting the type, and these can set type five times as fast as a man. After being put together the type is put in forms.

The Herald office contains the largest "ad" room in the state. The type is set in a piece of iron called a printer's stick. The type is picked on one side so as to show which way to set it in the stick. The type is of various sizes for headings, etc. The large size type is made of wood with a plating of copper on the top. The smaller ones are made of lead. The type is set in the negative form, i. e., if you stood on your head you would be able to read the ad that the printer had just set. When wanting to take the type apart the printer sponges it with water.

When a picture is wanted in the paper, they take a photograph, and instead of putting it on a glass, as the photographer does, it is put on zinc or copper plates. It is then carved in by means of acids. These are called cuts or electrotypes.

In the basement is to be found the press room. In the back part of this room a copy of the type that was set upstairs is made and laid in the press, on a large roller. In the press are several other rollers with a covering of glue and other things mixed together. Apparently it looks like a kind of rubber. These rollers are inked from a fountain and after being inked it inks the type and when the type comes in contact with the paper, it prints the news. After the paper has been printed it is cut into the regular size by a wheel that has a long dented knife on one end. One needs to see this establishment personally as a letter will not do it justice.

Closing I remain,

Yours Truly,

GEORGE MUHLBAUR.

THE WORLD OF LABOR

Thirty Delegates Will Represent Duluth at State Federation.

Meetings next week:

Lumber Pilers' union, Victor's hall, West Duluth.

Building Trades' council, Monday, 18 West Superior street.

Pattern Makers' union, Monday, 18 West Superior street.

Stone Masons' union, Monday, 302 West Superior street.

Painters and Decorators' union, Tuesday, 18 West Superior street.

Carpenters' union, Tuesday, 18 West Superior street.

Stationary Engineers' union, Thursday, 31 West Superior street.

Electrical Workers' union, Thursday, 221 West Superior street.

Federated Trades' assembly, Friday, 18 West Superior street.

Bartenders' union, Friday, 320 East Superior street.

Lathers' union, Friday, 18 West Superior street.

Longshoremen's union, next Saturday, Gilley's hall, West Duluth.

Bakers' union, next Saturday, 18 West Superior street.

The coming convention of the Minnesota State Federation at Little Falls is occupying the attention of Duluth unions at present. A delegation of thirty will probably represent this city.

The Federated Trades' assembly delegates will be: Henry Perrault, Cigarmakers' union; S. M. Kielley, Carpenters' union; Joseph Pratts, Cigarmakers' union; Fred McKelvey, Waiters' union, and Victor Johnson, of the Retail Clerks' union.

The Carepenters' union will be represented by Ed. Lowe, J. H. Baker, and Edward Heller.

For a rapidly growing union, the new organization of the bartenders is setting a pace seldom equaled. Last night there was an enthusiastic meeting of this new union. There are now twenty-two charter members and the list will be left open until next Friday evening, when the union will hold another meeting in Miller's hall, at 320 East Superior street.

The Steamfitters' union of Duluth will become affiliated with the United Association of Plumbers, Steamfitters and Gasfitters. Originally the local steamfitters were affiliated with the National Steamfitters, but there are many more benefits to be derived from affiliation with the national association. Local Organizer Fish says that this association now has 420 locals, and in the near future, Mr. Fish will give a concise history of its growth and general prosperity in these columns.

It adds spice to dreary life, encourages the human heart, lifts one out of despair, breathes new life and confidence. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. S. F. BOYCE.

A DEFENSE OF JUDGE SPOONER

Attorney McKusick Says His Injunction Was Perfectly Proper.

Attorney Chester McKusick, of breezy Bemidji, is in the city for a day or two.

He says that Judge M. A. Spooner, of Bemidji, the newly appointed judiciary in that circuit, has been misunderstood regarding the injunction issued against the custodian of the state park at Itasca.

"It is true that there was no order to show cause or no return upon the injunction, but that is merely a matter of practice, and in that circuit it is as it was here years ago, strictly proper practice to issue injunctions in that form, when properly jusified by the complainant.

"You see, instead of an order to show cause and return being attached, as is the practice here in injunctional matters, and also in some other parts of the state, a temporary injunction is issued upon sufficient showing made in the affidavit accompanying the complaint.

"The practice is not irregular and is the same as was used here for many years, until the supreme court, by a decision, made it the practice to use the present form of restraining order and order to show cause, accompanied by bond.

"As a matter of fact, Judge Spooner is a bright young man and is well liked in Bemidji and is giving excellent satisfaction as a judicial officer."

Mr. McKusick says Bemidji is booming and making great strides in its advancement, and the population is increasing materially every day.

THROUGH TRIP TO THE COAST

First Through Tourist Sleeper to Be Run There.

The first through tourist sleeper to run from Duluth to the coast will leave this city over the Omaha road Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

It will carry between twenty-five and thirty Duluth people bound for California, among whom is a party of twenty from West Duluth, who are going to file on lands.

The car will run out via the Omaha road to Omaha, where the Rock Island road will take it to Denver, and the Denver & Rio Grande and Southern Pacific will carry it through. The car will arrive Friday in San Francisco.

Besides the originnal party there will be seeveral more Duluth people make the trip. A rate of $6 for the tourist car accommodations has been made.

Frank Beach, traveling passenger agent of the Rock Island, and Assistant City Ticket Agent W. G. Ulrich of the Omaha secured the party over their roads. A large meeting was held at Wohlin's store in West Duluth last evening. Representatives of six or seven roads attended and made their arguments before the party, which finally decided upon the course announced.

It was one of the hardest fights over passenger business had in Duluth for a long time, and the successful men were elated over the coup.

Frank Smith and W. E. Kern, two of West Duluth's prominent business men, will head the party from that place.

Goes In Monday.

Maj. H. V. Eva, secretary-elect of the Commercial club, will assume the duties of his new office next Monday morning instead of today, as was previously understood. Maj. Eva has been in business for a number of years and has personal affairs that he wishes to close up before entering a new office to which he will devote his time. He said this afternoon that he would probably visit the club several times during the interval, but would not be ready to begin active discharge of his duties until Monday morning.

CALVE BETTER.

Paris, May 15.—Mme. Emma Calve, the singer, who was unable to appear in "The Damnation of Faust" at the Sarah Bernhardt theater last night, owing to having accidentally taken an overdose of aconite as a remedy for the grip, has entirely recovered, but her doctors recommend a rest and expect she will be able to resume singing Sunday.

COMING SHOWS AT DULUTH THEATERS

"Are You a Mason?" and the Flints at the Lyceum—"Graustark" and "The Man From Mexico" at the Metropolitan.

There seems to be no question whatever of the big hit made by "Are You a Mason?" which comes to the Lyceum this evening. It has made a reputation equal to "The Private Secretary" and "Charley's Aunt" as a mirth-provoker, and the company presenting it is headed by John C. Rice and Thomas A. Wise, two of the most skillful mirth-provokers on the American stage.

The comedy, which is an adaptation from the German by Leo Ditrichstein, tells the following story:

An elderly married female having arrived at the conclusion that the lodge room is the only safe place for a husband—his own fireside, of course, excepted—has decreed not only that her own husband shall become a Mason, but also that her daughter's worse half shall join. This decree from mother-in-law is sent via the wife to the young husband. Frank Perry, during Mrs. Perry's absence, with instructions that he shall join before she comes home. Unfortunately, so much time has been consumed by the husband in his fobs tempt to "be good" after his own ideas that he has forgotten all about the mystic order until a letter from his wife announcing her immediate return brings it to mind. Her unfriendly arrival forces him to assert himself a Mason in order to explain his midnight wanderings, which a brisk housemaid exposes. He seems quite safe under the protection of "inviolate secrecy," which the encyclopedia explains is the first essential of the order, until his father-in-law arrives with mother-in-law. According to current belief Mr. Bloodgood, the father-in-law, has been a Mason for twenty-two years and is way up 27 degrees high, hence his arrival fills the Logus Perry with fear of exposure. It appears, however, that Bloodgood is also bogus, and the meeting of the two men, each supposing the other to be the real article, is absurdly funny. The difficulties and embarrassments of the two frauds abetted by the arrival of a real Mason, who is in search of one of Bloodgood's daughters and anxious to be initiated into the lodge, constitutes the rest of the story.

Flints have always given a performance that is as funny as any farce comedy ever played, in fact there is one long laugh from beginning to end.

Mrs. Herbert L. Flint is said to be the only successful lady hypnotist. Her work is delicate and consists simply in suggesting to the subjects, who obey her every command. She is a great fun-maker and has the faculty of selecting most happily that which will convulse an audience with laughter.

LYCEUM SUMMER OPERA.

The summer season of opera will be inaugurated at the Lyceum Monday, June 8, by the Northwestern Opera company, and the engageemnt will continue indefinitely.

The company is composed of some of the best singing people on the comic opera stage today, among them being many well-known to Duluth people, for they have appeared here with different organizations. Some of them are:

Miss Maud K. Williams, Miss Amelia Gardner, Miss Bertha Hayden, Miss Sylvester Cornish, Miss Loulda Hillibard, Miss Lillian Hughes, Miss Harriet Packard, George Syding, Forest Hubb, George H. Jackson, Franklin Fox, Eugene Rogers, Harry Carter, Charles H. Drew, Stanley Felch, Tom Martin.

The above cast of principals is aside from a chorus of unusual excellence, and an enlarged orchestra, under the direction of Henry G. Hoffman. All productions are under the stage directions of Charles H. Drew.

The following operas will be presented during the season: Flotow's "Martha," Balf's "Bohemian Girl," Millocker's "Black Hussar," Wallace's "Maritana," Planquette's "Chimes of Normandy," Planquette's "Chimes of Normandy," Chassaigne's "Falka," Andran's "Mascotte," Gilbert & Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance," Gilbert & Sullivan's "Patience," Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado," Mascagne's "Cavelleria Rusticana," Jacobowski's "Erminie."

WILBUR OPERA COMPANY.

Commencing Monday, June 1, the famous Wilbur Opera company opens a two weeks' engagement at the Metropolitan. The Wilbur company this season is larger and has a better cast of principals than ever. Such names as Martin Pache, Gus Vaghn, Charles Vaghn, W. A. McGraw, Charley Van Dyne and the Misses Richardson, Langdon, Hunt and Wisdom as principals, are familiar to lovers of comic opera in every city. The chorus this season is composed of pretty and shapely girls, who can sing. A pleasing feature of the Wilbur performance is that no waits occur between the acts. As soon as the curtain drops on the different acts of the operas, the vaudeville artists claim attention. As a special feature in this line, Miss Ethel Hunt, the Australian beauty, has been engaged, and does a novel and pleasing act. Frank Paret, the musical director, has composed a new march which is to be used by Miss Hunt, who is assisted by the chorus with new costumes and pretty light effects, which make it a dazzling novelty.

AT THE METROPOLITAN.

"Graustark" and "The Man From Mexico" Next Week.

For the week beginning Monday evening the Ferris comedians at the Metropolitan will offer two great productions.

During the first half of the week Miss Grace Hayward, leading lady of Mr. Ferris' Minneapolis stock company, who made such a great hit in a production of "Sapho" at this theater a few weeks ago, will appear as Princess Yetive (Miss Gugenslecker) in her own dramatization of that popular novel "Graustark." This production will be an elaborate one, with all special and splendid scenery, beautiful costumes and elegant mountings. Miss Hayward will be supported by the full strength of the company, which has been in preparation for this piece during the past week.

"Graustark" was presented by the Ferris company some months ago to great business, and the demands for its repetition have been so numerous that it will be played a return, greatly strengthened and with Miss Hayward in the leading female role. As before, Gus Forbes will appear as Greenfall Lorry, the ideal American, and all in all the present cast is much stronger than was the previous one. This piece will be the bill Monday and Tuesday nights, Wednesday matinee and night, with no advance in prices.

Beginning Thursday evening the popular comedian, Dick Ferris, supported by his own comedians, will appear in Willie Collier's greatest comedy success, "The Man From Mexico," which is one of the funniest of legitimate farce comedies. Mr. Ferris made the strongest hit in this play that he has made in any comedy he has appeared in with his Minneapolis company, and holds the record of any comedy produced at the Lyceum, Minneapolis, this season. Although "The Man From Mexico" is not a scenic production, there is much special scenery used, and it will be given complete in every particular.

This play will be presented the last three nights of the week, with Saturday matinee. Seats for the entire week will be placed on sale at the box office Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

During the entire week there will be new and changed vaudeville offered between the acts, making this a feature in itself.

THE FLINTS COMING.

The Flints, the celebrated hypnotists, will hold forth at the Lyceum during all of the coming week and will doubtless repeat the success which they have formerly had with the Duluth public. The

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Eleanor Robson Is to Be a Real Star.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The long expected announcement that Miss Eleanor Robinson is to be a star next season has at last been made. Her work this year in "Audrey," and more particularly her remarkable success in the all-star production of "Romeo and Juliet," have fully warranted the elaborate arrangements made by Liebler & Co. for the tour at the head of her own company. A contract has been signed with Edwin Arden, who has been engaged as her leading man, and the two plays intended for her use have been decided upon. One of them is "La Valliere," a play written by Henri Battaile, the famous Parisian adapter of "Ressurrection," especially for Miss Robson, and from whom have lately come reports of progress which are not only satisfactory, but enthusiastically encouraging. The scenarieo was submitted, in accordance with prior arrangements, during George C. Tyler's visit to Paris in January last, and then accepted by him, and one of his first duties, after his arrival in Europe on June 1 will be to hear the completed play read by M. Battaile. Since January M. Battaile has given up practically his entire time to the writting of "La Vallere," and this devotion stands sponsor for the author's declaration that "La Vallere" is by far the best work that he has ever done. Of course, the play centers about the idointrous affection of the young Louise for Louis XIX, a devotion pure, constant and unwavering, and one in which self interest had no voice, when honor and love called for self-sacrifice. The other play accepted for Miss Robson is now being written especially for her by Mrs. Humphrey Ward and Louis N. Parker, and this has already advanced sufficiently to encourage the hope that it will prove a play of marvelous strength. It is entitled "Agatha," and will be an original English society drama, not a book adaptation, in which the characters will be drawn with the gifted English authoress' supreme skill, and to which Mr. Parker, the famous author of "Rosemary," will lend his best efforts as a playwright. "Agatha" will also be in readiness for hearing by the time of Mr. Tyler's arrival in Europe, and with these two at his disposal, and temporarily discarding all others, he will then conclude upon which his selection for first production will fall. Miss Robson's support throughout will be the best obtainable. Mr. Arden's selection for leading roles was made because it is believed that in both these plays he is ideally fitted for the character he will be called upon to portray.

According to all accounts the Weber & Fields organization is having a remarkably good time on the road; that is, so far as the members of the company are concerned, for the difficulties of transporting such an aggregation is well calculated to make life a perpetual burden to the management. To begin with, Manager Merrick had to face the problem of transporting 120 people, the leader of the orchestra, William P. Frances, and sixteen of his own men, eight stage hands and a vast amount of scenery, costumes and miscellaneous baggage. In fact, the only thing left on Broadway of the original production are the four walls and the seats which were fastened down. To carry all this over the country requires four Pullman sleepers, four sixty-foot baggage cars and one dining car. This special train is really a traveling hotel, for at almost every point all hands live on board rather than seek temporary quarters in the town. The principal Pullman sleeper had to be so arranged as to provide staterooms for Lillian Russell, Fay Templeton, Willie Collier and his wife, Louise Allen, Lete Daly and Charlie Bigelow. So far as Weber & Fields were concerned, it didn't matter, for they are quite content to put up with an ordinary berth in case all the staterooms are occupied. It is needless to add that this main car is the scene of some very jolly evenings after the show. The principals go there as soon as they can leave the theater, and a midnight supper and poker keeps them busy into the early hours of the morning. As one member of the company tersely remarked, "It's a case of Bigelow getting all the money and Lillian all the lobsters." Bigelow Inveighan his comrades into an eight-dollar limit game as the train was going out of Providence recently, and when he turned in at sunrise he had enough to buy a fair-sized country estate on Long Island not far from Miss Russell's summer home. It is when the company lands in a new town that the greatest difficulty for the manager begins, for there is a wild rush of the girls to get the best rigs in sight, and once or twice the stars had to travel in an ordinary trolley car. This caused so much dissension that now one man goes in advance to see that carriages are in waiting for the principals and to keep the buoyant girls at a safe distance.

There is a good story going the rounds about Ezra Kendall, who opened here last week in "The Vinegar Buyer." It seems that Kendall has among his large list of acquaintances a sleight-of-hand performer whose name for the purpose of the story is Smith. The performer is much better with his art than he is with matters of reading and writing, but on a certain occasion not long ago he was commanded, with several other vaudeville artists then in London, to give an exhibition before King Edward. The performer made good, and on his return to this country was highly gratified to receive a handsome scarf pin as his souvenir of the royal performance. It bothered him so much, however, that he sought Kendall out and confided to him, "Say, cull, I s'pose I ought to answer this, but, on the level, I don't know what to say, and I thought maybe you'd help a fellow out." Kendall grasped the situation sufficiently to inform him that he would do even more than that, he would write the answer himself, and the following letter of thanks was duly forwarded to St. James: "Dear King: I am sleight of hand and can't write. Thanks. Yours truly. Smith."

Mrs. Madge Carr Cook has signed a contract with George C. Tyler, of Liebler & Co., to appear as Mrs. Wiggs in the forthcoming production of that name. The dramatization includes not only Mrs. Annie Hegan Rice's story, "Mrs. Wiggs, of the Cabbage Patch," but also a portion of her later story, "Lovey Mary," and for this latter part Miss Mabel Taillaferro has been cast. Mrs. Cook has been winning golden laurels with Miss Amelia Bingham in "The Climbers," "A Modern Magdalen" and "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson," but in her new part she will be given an opportunity she has never before enjoyed. Louisville, where the scene of "Mrs. Wiggs" is laid, will witness the initial production of the play, the house being Macauley's theater, and the date early in October.

Dan Daly, as thin as ever, made his appearance on Broadway this week, full of confidence that his forthcoming tour in "John Henry" will add greatly to his laurels. He is to open at New Haven with a company full of pretty girls, and the part made for him by the dramatizer will, he says, "fit him like a bathing suit."

Miss Ada Rehan's determination to break away from Klaw & Erlanger's management was not much of a surprise, for she has been practically in idleness ever since she signed a contract with that firm. It is perhaps but justice to say that her former managers found it impossible to find a suitable play for her, and they did not care to undertake a revival of one of her former triumphs. The present arrangements made for her seem ideal in that with Otis Skinner she will have exceedingly able support, and every prospect of a successful season. Fifteen out of the twentyfive weeks arranged for will be spent in the Middle West and the South, where Mr. Skinner has a host of friends. In the East, especially New York, Boston and Philadelphia, Mr. Skinner has never succeeded financially, and here Miss Rehan is at the height of her popularity. Her first appearance in this city will be at Daly's theater, and with all the old Daly properties and costumes of the most elaborate productions ever given by that manager.

Miss Amelia Bingham, according to well-founded report, is to have her own theater in Thirty-ninth street, immediately opposite the Casino. For over a year this property upon which now stands an old apartment house hotel has been idle, but its recent purchase by a Philadelphia capitalist has been followed by the announcement than an up-to-date playhouse is to take its place during the summer. It is understood that Miss Bingham will intrust the details of management entirely in the hands of the Shuberts, and that she will play all her New York engagements at that house.

The leading character in the Spanish play by Guimera that Harrison Gray Fiske will produce at the Manhattan theater next autumn will be originated by Miss Corona Ricardo, who has been engaged by Mr. Fiske for that purpose. The character demands certain unusual qualities that it is believed Miss Ricardo possesses. It was originated in Spain, Marla Guerrero, who is called "the Spanish Bernhardt." Although born in Italy, Miss Ricardo has lived in this country almost continuously since childhood. Her first successes as an actress were won, however, in the London company of Wilson Barrett. For a time she was leading woman with Robert Mantell, and she was prominent in the company of the late Augustin Daly during the last year of its existence at Daly's theater.

When Stuart Robson appeared for the last time in "The Henrietta" at the Grand Opera house in this city, he remarked to some friends after the performance that this was the last time "The Henrietta" would ever be played. So jealous was he at the thought that any other actor should appear in his role of Bertie, that I understand he had a provision in his will that all the manuscripts connected with the play should be destroyed immediately upon his death. It was a favorite saying of his that, next to his wife, "The Henrietta" is the finest woman in the world. One point upon which Robson was particularly sensitive was his age. He was such a complete master of make-up that few who saw him in the role of Bertie ever realized how old he was. J. H. Stoddart was talking with Robson about "The Bonnie Briar Bush" shortly before he sailed for Nova Scotia, and remarked that he would use the same play next season. "By the way," said Mr. Robson, "there is a great opportunity in it for an old man. The part just fits you."

"That's no way to talk," replied Mr. Stoddart. "I'm not so very old."

"You are doing pretty well, though."

"Why," said the actor, "I had to ask my mother to let me go to see one of the first performances of Joseph Jefferson in 'Rip Van Winkle,' and I was just cutting my second teeth when you put on 'The Henrietta.' That isn't so bad for an aged man."

Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott, who will come to American next autumn under the direction of Klaw and Erlanger in a dramatic version of Rudyard Kipling's, "The Light That Failed," will bring over their original London company and complete scenic equipment.

The musical comedy, "Nancy Brown," which has been running at the Bijou theater, will close its long run at that house tonight. This closing is brought about by reason of Miss Cahill's health, which has not been particularly robust of late, and at the advice of her physician she and at the advice of her physician she will leave for Europe the latter part of this month, returning to open in "Nancy Brown" in Boston either late in August or early in September.

W. T. ("Biff") Hall, whose contributions on Chicago theaters have been a feature of the Mirror for some years, has been ordered to Colorado for his health, and last week resigned as a justice of the peace in the Windy City to carry out the order. Mr. Hall has orders of his physician, but perhaps as many friends in the theatrical profession as any one not directly connected with it, and all will read with regret the news of his illness.

Henry Irving quarreled with Sardou before "Dante" was produced in London because he deemed it proper to cut the pope out of the scene depicting hell. Now he has grounds for a much graver quarrel, for, from all accounts, "Dante" has proven the biggest failure the famous English player ever had on his hands. It is said that the production cost a snug fortune, and there is little chance for Sir Henry to recover his losses.

The late Stuart Robson was a free thinker, and it was a noticeable feature of the last rites over his remains that no stereotyped funeral service was conducted. There were flowers and a brief oration by Augustus Thomas, and thus ended the career of one of the most famous actors of the American stage's history.

Joseph Adler, supported by an English speaking company, is to try Shylock before English speaking audiences, as the American aheater has been secured for this purpose. Adler's Shylock in Yiddish has attracted widespread attention in New York, and it is believed that he will make a go of it in the new venture.

"The Admirable Crichton," which William Gillette is to play in this country next season, turned its two hundredth performance in London the other day and is going as strong naw os the first week it appeared.

England is to have a glimpse of Clyde Fitch's "The Girl and the Judge," which Annie Russell brought out in this country. Nina Boucicault will play Miss Russell's old part on the other side, and will be supported by Frank Mills.

Cecelia Loftus will join the stars next season, according to the latest rumor. She has a play and a manager, which is a fair start in that direction.

George Alexander seems to have scored a big hit in London with his production of "Old Heidelberg." The piece caught on the first night and has been running well since. Mr. Alexander as the Prince and Miss Eva Moore, his leading lady, in their respective roles proved exceptionally good. The English version promises to prove as popular in the British metropolis as did the original German drama, which ran there nearly the entire season.

Frank Moulan and his wife, Maude Lillian Berri, have lately turned their attention to song writing. Two have been already published under assumed names and have been successful enough to have brought them to the conclusion of putting their real names to them in future.

Oliver Doud Byron, the actor of sensational plays, will hardly feel the loss of his cottage by fire at Long Branch financially, for he owns some 30 others and is the wealthy. Outside of that he is very rich. Byron made his first big money in "Across the Continent," a play now quite obsolete.

Jameson Lee Finney's inability to exclaim, without stuttering, "The Black McDougal of Loch Lomond, he killed four men with one stroke of his broad claymore," has compelled George Broadhurst, author of "A Fool and His Money," in which the tortuous line appears, to change it to "bonnie broad sword," instead of claymore.

* * *

Friends of Maurice Barrymore have been greatly disheartened by reports that the actor's condition is very grave. Some of the reports come from the sanitarium on Long Island in which Mr. Barrymore is confined.

There is very little likelihood o. Jean de Reszke ever coming to this country again to sing. He evidently does not see any chance of coming, his terms being practically prohibitive, as he now asks $4000 a night. Herr Conried says he would hesitate to give him that in opera and would want to hear him first in any event. Duss's latest offer was $2500 a night for concerts. But Jean de Reszke has made $4000 in a night and more on some occasions. That was when he got $1750 a performance and a share of the receipts above a certain amount.

James K. Hackett, the restless head of the Independent movement, has offered W. H. Thompson a five years' contract to star under his management. Thompson does not care to bind himself for so long a time. The same proposition as been made to Miss Isabel Irving, who is Thompson's wife and now playing in "The Crisis."

MOTHER AND CHILD

Scott's Emulsion is cod liver oil made almost as palatable as milk. It is easy and soothing to the weak stomach; it checks the tendencies of children toward thinness.

Scott's Emulsion gives strength to weak mothers because it creates healthy flesh and new blood.

Nursing mothers will find a special value in Scott's Emulsion because it insures a flow of rich, nourishing milk for the baby. More and better than a medicine; Scott's Emulsion is a food.

We'll send you a sample free upon request.

The concert at the Red Jacket Congregational church was attended by a good house. Speaking of the concert in general it may be said that the numbers were all fairly well rendered. Some were excellent. Harry King's solo was in that pleasing mellow tone which characterizes his playing. Mrs. F. J. Kohlhaas's solo was well received. The chorus by the choir was spirited and evinced careful preparation on the part of the singers. Miss Mitchell's recitation was rather touching and much enjoyed. In regard to Charles Frink's solo it need only be said that Mr. Frink is called the best violinist in upper Michigan and his rendition established still more his right to that title. He has recently refused the position of leader of Mr. Cosgrove's orchestra which is to go on a trip to the Pacific coast during the summer season. After the concert refreshments were served in the parlors of the church. The choir, under whose auspices the concert was given, is to be congratulated.

Virginia.

Virginia, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth Stars, a crack baseball team belonging to our southern sister city, came over to Virginia all decked out in brilliant red uniforms, ready to "put it all over" our boys, Sunday afternoon. They were not expected. In fact, Virginia has no regularly organized ball team as yet this year, but it is no hard trick to pick up a fair team at a moments' notice. When some of our ball tossers heard that the Eveleth Stars were on the grounds ready for a game, they got together what could be secured and went over to see what the boys looked like. They looked cheap to them and before the game had progressed far they looked easy. They had two batteries along to make sure. The two were needed, while Harrington, the old timer, who has won many games with his south paw, was as fresh as a daisy at the wind-up. The score was 7 to 6 in Virginia's favor. It is expected a regular team will be organized here now and one that will be a winner. Jenkins, who played with Mountain Iron last year, caught Harrington, and did splendidly. The Stars did but little "yelling" on the way home, their intentions being otherwise, however.

Rev. J. H. Grotherin, of the Norwegian Lutheran church, is packing up his household goods this week and will soon move to Duluth with his family. He will retain his position with the above church here, however.

The West Duluths defeated the local ball team here last Sunday by a score of 3 to 2. Weaver, a 16-year-old lad, was tried by the locals in the box and made good up to the fourth innings, when he lost his head, giving eight men bases on balls, which coupled with an error of the right fielder and a two-base hit by C. Robison, netted 7 runs. Thomas, the deaf and dumb player, pitched the last five innings and allowed the visitors to score but once. Freimuths play here May 24, Grand Rapids May 30 and 31, Universal Millers, June 7, Big Duluths, June 11, Cloquet, June 21.

Walker.

Walker, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was an interesting scene Monday morning at the Minnesota & Manitoba depot when the several local saloonkeepers charged with selling liquor to Indians departed for Duluth, where the spring term of the United States district court will be opened on Tuesday. Deputy Marshal Frank Tufts was also on hand with about seventy Indians, who will be called as witnesses in the prosecution of the cases, and a special car had been provided for them in which they were to go through to Duluth without change. On the same train also came reporters from all the prosecution of these cases or with others to come up in court, were Chief Clerk Morgan and other clerks of the agency, Judge McGarry, County Attorney Delury, B. F. Hartshorn, James Canfield, ex-Village Marshal Ritchie and some others. Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. McGarry and Mrs. Canfield accompanied their husbands.

The Elks of Brainerd, St. Cloud and Little Falls are to be here June 17, and ball games between rival teams will be one of the great attractions. It needs the expenditure of but a little more money to construct a diamond that could be used for baseball purposes and stand accommodations for a large crowd.

The movement in village lots continues, and since the last report Powell Morgan, the Indian agency, has bought nine—six in the business district between the Chase hotel and the new court house, and three on the lake front. A. K. McPherson has purchased one for residence purposes.

Louis Krueger has sold out his butcher business to Lester McNeil and will go to the Canadian Northwest. Mrs. Krueger and sister left Tuesday for Staples, the home of their parents.

Mayor Kinkele left Monday for Pillager, going from there to St. Cloud and afterwards to St. John's college to bring home one of his boys.

A large number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Palmer gave them a surprise party last Friday evening and expended to them kind wishes, at the same time presenting a handsome book case and writing desk.

Albert Wolf, son of W. W. Wolf, and Miss Agnes Martin, were married at the home of the bride's parents in Motley a few days ago, Father Urbanke officiating.

Olaf Olson, county school superintendent, spent Tuesday in Walker on business pertaining to his office.

It is understood that Miss Lawrence, of Hackensack, is to be appointed to fill one of the vacancies due to the resignation of the Misses Feltus from the teaching staff of the Walker school at the close of the present term. She will probably be assigned to the intermediate department. There are several applications before the board which will hold its next meeting June 6 at Portdew. The departure of the Misses Feltus from Walker will be a cause of deep regret, both on account of the good record they have made as teachers and their popularity in social circles.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Displeased over the outcome of a case in Chadnnati police court, Mrs. A. E. Leland, aged 38 years, tried to blind Judge William H. Leuders in his office, late Friday afternoon, by throwing cayenne pepper into his eyes. He was hastily taken to the hospital, where the physicians stated that no serious damage had been done. Judge Lueders says he will not prosecute the woman.

An attorney in New York makes the announcement that Joseph Leiter, who figured in the wheat corner of 1897 and 1898, has made a proposition to his creditors to settle their claims against him for 20 cents on the dollar. It is understood that Leiter's father will guarantee that this proposition will be carried out.

Thet Memphis Commercial Appeal says: It may be stated on reliable information that the railroads entering Memphis have closed a deal whereby they secure a five-year lease on the cotton compresses of that city, two in number, and that hereafter the railroad companies will operate these compressors themselves. The two compresses leased handled over 500,000 bales of cotton thus far this season.

Walled in by fire, with no avenue of escape left open, Harry Platt, of Hillside, Pa., was compelled to run the gauntlet of flames. He was fatally burned. Platt was a member of the little army of men who are fighting the forest fires in the eastern end of the country along the Chestnut Ridge.

Col. James Guffey, the well known oil operator, today concluded a deal for the purchase of 100,000 acres of coal land in Tyler and Barbour counties, W. Va., for $1,200,000. The purchase again makes Col. Guffey the largest individual owner of coal in the United States.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Woman Travels From Paris to Sioux Falls After Husband.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Armed with a big revolver, and with threats of shooting her alleged recreant husband on sight, Mrs. Sarah Kanter, wife of I. Kanter, until about two months ago a well known business man of Paterson, N. J., traveled nearly 5000 miles, from Paris to South Dakota, to find her husband. Kanter, about six weeks ago, came to Sioux Falls for the purpose of establishing a legal residence in the state, so he could apply for a divorce from the frenzied woman who is now camping on his trail. She had been in the French capital about ten months when friends notified her of her husband's departure for this meeca for divorce applicants, and she, without delay, set out on her long journey to Sioux Falls.

South Dakota is to have a new charitable institution, a home for the crippled children of the state, which will be erected by two persons of wealth whose names are withheld from the public. This generous offer has been made to W. B. Sherrard, superintendent of the South Dakota Children's Home in this city. Of course the offer will be accepted. Superintendent Sherrard has been asked to permit the building to be erected on the grounds belonging to the Children's Home.

Centerville—Professor Ernest E. Ede of this place, who was a target for unpleasant criticism and almost mob violence at the recent state high school oratorical contest at Yankton, believes he is entitled to a fair presentation of the case, as wrong statement is going the rounds of the press. "The schools of the state," says he, "were united on the proposition that a high school contest must represent high school work; otherwise the contest would be a farce. Miss Jessie Edgerton, the Yankton contestant, was graduated from the Yankton College of Oratory, learned her recitation as a college student, recited it in public as a college student, and yet professed to represent the high school. The school men were unanimous in declaring that, as a college graduate, with a college prepared recitation, Miss Edgerton should not enter the contest. Hence a protest was filed."

Armour—The council sold the $10,000 water bonds voted at the last election to the state, through the county auditor, using the state school fund. Bids are now asked for the sinking of two tubular wells to the soft-water flow, and a standpipe will be erected in the course of time. While the city has water, it is without fire protection.

Pierre—The first heavy shipment of cattle to the range for this spring came in last night on a special train, Schamber & Bierwagen gringing in twenty-eight cars and the Toronto Cattle company five cars. Other heavy shipments are expected in the next ten days.

Deadwood—The teamsters are considering the organization of a union, and it is asserted that a paper is in circulation among them and that a meeting is to be held soon. They receive $2.50 a day and it is reported that if a union is formed a demand will be made for $3.

Tyndall—The commencement exercises of the high school will be held May 27. The class numbers five, Mary Burt, Connie Kiehlbauch, Marion Sunderlin, John Speth and John Kirk. The speaker will be Rev. Henry K. Warren, president of Yankton college.

Sturgis—Fred Bovee, of Cody, Neb., was arrested here on the charge of attempted criminal assault upon his stepdaughter. He will be taken to Belle Fourche to await the arrival of officers from Nebraska with extradition papers.

Salem—The Opera hotel, under the management of Mrs. H. J. Barnard for several years, has been taken in charge by H. Engleman, the owner.

NORTH DAKOTA.

La Moure—News was received of the death of Capt. Daniel Steele, of Marion, this county, at the Northern Pacific hospital at Brainerd, Minn., last evening. The captain was one of the pioneers of the county. He sailed the seas for many years, having been a Gloucester fisherman.

The Northwestern Telephone company of Minneapolis, is extending its long distance line from Lisbon to La Moure, which will place this town in connection with the Twin Cities and all points East. The company will also put in an exchange here. This service, in connection with the Dakota Central telephone lines, will connect La Moure with all points East, West, North and South. The Dakota Central company established a local service here last fall, and will at once extend its line north to Jamestown.

The funeral of Mrs. I. P. Lee, of Grand Rapids, took place Thursday, the interment being in the La Moure cemetery.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING.

Result of a Pistol Duel at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., May 15.—George E. Spencer, a clothing merchant, who came here recently from Birmingham, Ala., was shot and killed, and Stephen Flanagan, a policeman, was fatally wounded yesterday in a pistol duel in a house at 267 West Fourteenth street. Flanagan had gone to the house to arrest Spencer. There were no witnesses to the duel, and when people rushed to the room Spencer was dead and Flanagan was unconscious. By the side of each man was a pistol. A half dozen shots were exchanged. At the hospital it was said that Flanagan could not live.

Spencer had been visiting the family of George W. Cox, a news agent. He had been annoying women and children in the neighborhood and complaint had been made to the police. Spencer had been requested to leave teh house but refused to do so, and the Cox family had moved out and left him in possession. Flanagan lay in wait for Spencer, and Spencer, who had armed himself expecting trouble, began shooting as soon as he entered the room.

TIRED MOTHER'S STORY

Of Baby's Dreadful Suffering from Eczema Happily Cured by Cuticura Remedies

"Charlie was fretful and cross, but as he was cutting teeth, I didn't think much of that," said Mrs. Helen Rath of 821 10th Ave., New York City. "Even when a rash broke out on his face I wasn't frightened, because everybody knows that that is quite common with teething babies. But the rash on Charlie's poor little face spread to his neck, chest and back. I had never seen anything quite like it before. The skin rose in little lumps, and matter came out. My baby's skin was hot, and how he did suffer! He wouldn't eat, and night after night I walked the floor with him weak as I was. Often I had to stop because I felt faint and my back throbbed with pain. But the worst pain of all was to see my poor little boy burning and itching with those nasty sores, which the neighbors said was Eczema. A lady across the street gave me some Cuticura Ointment, I think the box was about half full, and a piece of Cuticura Soap. I followed the directions, bathing Charlie with the Soap and putting that nice Ointment on the sores. I wouldn't have believed that my baby would have been cured by a little thing like that. Not all of a sudden, mind you. Little by little, but so surely, Charlie and I both got more peace by day, and more sleep by night. The sores sort of dried up and went away. I shall never forget one blessed night when I went to bed with Charlie beside me, when I woke up the sun was streaming in. For the first time in six months I had slept through the night without a break. Yes, that fat little boy by the window is Charlie, and his skin is as white as a snowflake, thanks to the Cuticura Remedies."

PRICES: Cuticura Resolvent, 60c. per bottle (in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60): Ointment, 50c.; Soap, 25c. Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

New Things Strange and Curious

CARVED TO WHILE AWAY THE ARCTIC NIGHT.

The most wonderful specimens of ivory carving in existence have recently been executed by Max Roth, a Klondike miner, comprising a chess set made from a monster mammoth's tooth and a crib board fashioned out of the tusk of a huge walrus. Life at the Alaskan mining camp and throughout the Far North is vividly portrayed on the crib board.

Near the Arctic Circle the days get pretty short during the winter months and the nights become tedious. To while away time he undertook a novel plan. Providing himself with the tusk of a walrus he began his work on his crib board, carving on the top surface. In bold relief a polar bear, seldom a regular habitant of that Far North country. Not far off is the inevitable Eskimo, lying stretched out at full length on the icy ground in the act of shooting the bear, while a fox and its young, an Arctic owl and an Eskimo loiter well out of the way of the track of the rifle.

Desiring to round out the beauty and symmetry that became so prominent as he worked on in the Arctic midnight, Mr. Roth introduced a scene in which two miners are washing out gold from the sands of Nome Beach. The perspective is without a flaw. On the shores of Snake River, close by, miners' cabins are scattered about and mountains loom up in the distance. Mr. Roth has introduced two other miners at a game of cards, with all the paraphernalia that accompanies taking a hand at this jovial sport.

Then, to embellish it all, he very appropriately put a circle of Nome gold about his beautifully carved and finely executed crib board.

AUTOMOBILE HOUSE ON A JOURNEY.

This novel photograph depicts a scene which is quite common in California, where steam tractors are used for a variety of purposes. In many portions the surface of the ground is so level that buildings of large size can be moved without injuring them. Horses are sometimes employed, but such a large number are required that the tractor has been used as a substitute. The houses are placed upon wooden trucks and sometimes are moved a mile or more in a day. The motor shown in the photograph represents the power of over one hundred horses. It moved the house to which it is attached a distance of fifteen miles in all.

WHY JAPS ARE SMALL

Recently the editor of Chuo-Koron, a journal published at Tokio, determined to find out why the Japanese, as a rule, are of lower stature than the natives of other countries, and after spending considerable time at the task he arrived at the conclusion that the reason is because from time immemorial they have been accustomed to squat on mats in Turkish fashion, instead of sitting down on chairs, as Americans and Europeans do. The Japanese method of sitting, he says, interferes with the free circulation of the blood and naturally prevents the limbs from becoming thoroughly developed.

As a proof that he is right he draws attention to the fact that the boys in Japan at the present day are taller by five or six centimeters than their ancestors were at a similar age, and he maintains that the reason is because the former, when they attend school, are obliged to sit on benches, whereas the latter squatted while they learned their lessons. That the Japanese ought to be taller than they are is the editor's opinion, and he has appealed to the government to prohibit the use of mats, pointing out that until that is done the soldiers of Japan will neither be as tall nor as vigorous as the soldiers of other countries.

There are nearly four hundred recognized bowling clubs in Scotland.

THE OLDEST INN IN ENGLAND.

standing on one of the ancient sidestreets of Manchester is a tavern where the visitor can go in and get a glass of bitter or stout, and the barmaid will tell him that this was the room in which Guy Fawkes and his comrades drank a toast to the success of the Gunpowder Plot. The Seven Stars, as the inn is called, has the reputation of being the oldest house of entertainment to the traveler, in Great Britain, and perhaps is the oldest in the world. As indicated by the photograph, it bears a sign saying that it has been licensed to sell liquors for more than five hundred years. The records of Manchester show that customers were served around its quaint oak tables more than two hundred years ago, and the building has been but little changed since that time, with the exception of the roof, which has been renewed.

The curious windows are of a pattern common in the Middle Ages, and the oak beams, which can be seen in the dining-room and upper chambers, have been literally blackened by time. There is no question that the Seven Stars has been doing business for fully three hundred years, and possibly as long as its sign indicates. It no longer shelters guests, but the barmaid is kept busy serving the score of daily visitors who have heard of the place and drop in more to see it than to get refreshments. At the same time, however, it is noted for the quality of its brew, which is served in old time mugs and poured from the historic pitcher so associated with English history.

SNAPSHOT OF CHINESE EXECUTION.

This photograph shows the method of decapitation of criminals in China. It was taken by Captain Harold Hammond, Nineteenth Infantry, U. S. A., during the execution of nine members of a band of robbers, executed in Pekin during the foreign occupation of the city in 1900-1901.

The headsman is shown pushing the victim's head as close to the ground as possible. Two of his assistants are pulling back on each arm, and another, wearing the leather apron covered with blood, has fastened a stout cord around the back of the head and under the chin and is pulling the head forward.

These opposite forces stretch the neck to such an extent that the muscles are very tense and the head can be severed at one blow of the knife. The knife can be seen in the hand of another assistant just behind the headsman. The executions were public and were witnessed by large crowds.

When the Shah of Persia visited Drury Lane Theater, London, in 1873, he paid the record price of £500 for his box.

Electric Freak.

This is not a puzzle picture, though it bears every indication of being one, and, indeed, some sharp witted person might work it to a reasonable solution. It is no more than the photograph of an electric arc light, and it is a freak at that.

Ordinarily, if the camera is pointed at such a point of radiance the plate will show only white. It would seem from the photograph that the current does not travel in one direction, as has already been demonstrated in the wireless messages sent across the Atlantic, for it is well known now that the Herzian waves travel equally in all directions, becoming less and less the further they recede from the center, or the point of impulse. This, it would seem, is illustrated in the picture, for the center is the white spot, but it is not the purpose to go into a scientific explanation, especially as there is quite a difference between electric lighting and wireless telegraphy.

Germany has 21 universities, Italy 21, Austria 10, Russia 8 and Great Britain 11.

Odd Woman's Dress.

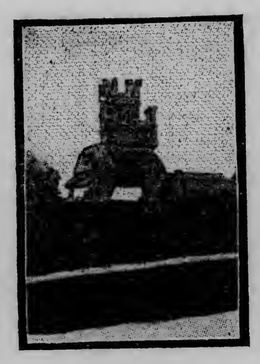
Though lacking in picturesqueness, the costume portrayed in the accompanying picture is decidedly useful. Take a trip to Fano, that little known island, which belongs to Denmark and can be reached in a few hours from Hamburg, and you will see almost any day many women attired in this unusual manner.

Young women they are, as a rule, though you cannot tell it from their faces, since they are covered with black cloth masks.

The reason is because they have beautiful complexions, of which they are naturally proud, and this is the only way in which they can protect them from the storms which constantly sweep over the island. During these storms great masses of sand are swept in every direction, and, as the women work a good deal in the open air, it will readily be seen that their fine, delicate skin would soon become rough and hard if it were not shielded against the inclement weather. Masks of this kind have been worn for a long time on the island, but not until recently was a photograph taken of one.

Extraordinary Hive.

Here is one of the most remarkable beehives erected in modern times. It represents an elephant carrying a castle on his back, and is the work of two young men who are employed in a stone quarry. This singular hive is made of stone, the elephant alone weighing five tons. The castle, also of stone, and nearly as heavy as the elephant, is fitted with glass windows, with small entrance holes at the bottom of each for the honey-makers.



He Ties Knots Quickly.

M. Duchemin, the assistant of the Mayor of Havre, has acquired the happy reputation of being able to perform the marriage ceremony more quickly than any other man in France. Recently he joined fifty-one couples in wedlock in the space of four hours, and it is said that such a feat has never been performed before.

ONE WAY OF PRAYING FOR RAIN.

No country subject to drouth is without its own peculiar method of supplicating for rain. That in Kumaon, Northern India, is not the least curious of them, although our own Kansas, at times, furnishes some sensational novelties in this line.

In a country where the population is almost entirely dependent upon grain as a means of subsistence drouth means famine and starvation. During a recent drouth in Kumaon a Hindoo fakir imposed a penance on himself, and was suspended by his feet from a wooden beam. In this position he was swung back and forth for a considerable time by means of a rope attached to his body and pulled by a fellow fakir. Both men were besprinkled with ashes and mud and were minus all clothing, except for a small cloth around the waist.

It is to be regretted that such pious zeal should have gone without the expected reward, for the chronicler sadly related that no rain fell until weeks after.

The Riviera yearly exports flowers to the value of $3,000,000. Two-thirds of these go to England.

APOLLO AS A HEADSTONE

In West Point, a cemetery for colored persons in Norfolk, Va., is a simple grave, unmarked by inscription, yet conspicuous above all other graves in the cemetery. It at once arrests the attention of the passerby, for in place of the usual stone at the head is a colossal bust of the Apollo Belvedere.

How happened such an incongruous decoration has oft been questioned. Several years ago a young artist of Norfolk, having occasion to dispose of studio effects, ordered the destruction of a much soiled plaster cast of the Apollo. An old family servant was appointed executioner. Apollo was placed in position, the uplifted axe about to descend, when it was suddenly arrested. The old man said, with emphasis: "Missus, I'll do most anything, but I ain't gwine ter kill dat ere man. It'll gimme bad luck."

With less compunction, however, he placed the Apollo in an ignoble ash bin, whence in course of time, along with the ashes, it was carted away and relegated to forgetfulness. Two years after this event another colored attache of the family, in annual call, volunteered the surprising information "that ere Mr. Apollo who used to sit in Miss E——'s studio was now a headstone in de called cimetery."

And so he was, and is today, while his majestic pose and lofty mien seem strangely undisturbed either by time, storm or circumstance.

Gas Baths For Trees

In California the business of waging war on insects destructive to vegetation has been regularly organized. They now have professional fumigators, whose outfit is scientifically complete in every particular, and whose services may be engaged, not by the day, but by the night, for the process of extermination by gas must take place at night, as sunlight or heat makes the gas used destructive to foliage as well as to insect.

The fumes of prussic acid gas—hydrocyanic acid gas—are deadly, and the tree must be enclosed in a gas tight receptacle during its application. The method used is to drop a tent over the tree, to generate the gas in a dish of chemicals under the tent and to allow the tree to remain in its gas bath for some time. While one tree is being medicated others are being tented, and so the work proceeds.

A number of men and tents are required in a single "gang," usually a half dozen workers and fifty tents, and there are about thirty professional outfits in Southern California. Each outfit costs about $1,500, including tents and wagons. One Los Angeles firm has $10,000 invested in the fumigating or "gassing" business. The cost of treatment depends upon the size of the tree, and contracts are made with growers at agreed rates—usually about twenty-five cents a tree. Operators have found it not only expedient, but profitable to secure the best machinery and materials, and the highest expert knowledge as well, in this merry and effective warfare upon the common enemy to the season's prosperity, the caterpillar.

Maypole Survivor.

Like most old English and American customs, which are gradually becoming extinct, the rearing and painting of the village Maypole has not escaped. In America the custom has been abandoned almost altogether, and its observance is now so rare in England that the few exceptions excite remark.

Naburn, a small village in the county of Yorkshire, England, still clings to its Maypole, which is the admiration of many American tourists. This tall shaft was last raised in 1847. Formerly it was taken down on the first of May in each year and repainted. Then, upon the twelfth of the month—the feast day—the young women of the village paraded the streets, dressed in white and adorned with flowers, singing songs appropriate to the season and occasion. The children, too, come in for much attention. They received gifts of money and then adjourned to the Maypole's vicinity to sing the following verse:

The Maypole is up,
Now give me the cup,
I'll drink to the garlands around it;
But first unto those Whose hands did compose
The glory of flowers that crowned it.

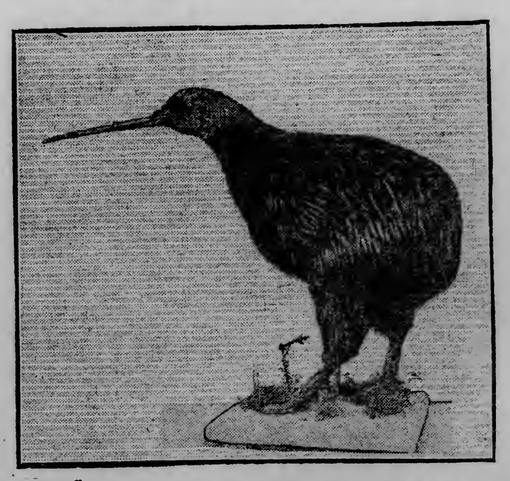
Probably the custom of rearing the May-pole arose in the beginning of the fifteenth century from the practice of "flower gathering." On April 6, 1644, the two Houses of Parliament forbade the carrying out of the Maypole feast, the petty constables and church wardens of all parishes having a fine of five shillings a week imposed on them during such time as the Maypole was allowed to remain up, but the Restoration brought them again into being.

A WINGLESS AND TAILLESS BIRD.



The above photo shows the bird commonly known as the "Kiwi," its scientific name being Apteryx Mantelli. It is the lowest form of bird which exists, but is so scarce that scientists are happy to get a specimen in any condition. It is absolutely without wings or tail; its legs are short, stubby, but very strong, and are used by these birds for digging.

The body covering is a cross between hair and feathers—a material which is very coarse. They can develop great speed and put up a desperate fight when attacked. A peculiar trait is that during the day they conceal themselves under rocks or roots of trees, and when at rest resemble to some extent a hedgehog when it is rolled up. Breeding them in captivity has utterly failed and only few museums can boast of a specimen.

They are now very rarely found in the forests and swamps on the north of New Zealand.

SHERIFF WARNS THE BRIDGEPORT POLICE

That They Must Not Interfere With Deputies.

Strike Situation Serious In Several Cities.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 18.—In view of yesterday's serious rioting, the officials of the Connecticut Railroad and Lighting company made no effort to start cars on their lines in this city early today, preferring to wait until the question of police protection was decided. To consider this matter a meeting of the police commissioners was held this morning. Mayor Mulvehill's alleged interference with two deputy sheriffs who were trying to arrest a stone thrower, was denounced by Sheriff Hawley, who informed the police commissioners that unless the police were able to cope with the situation, he would take the reins of authority today and summon state aid without further parley. All was quiet about the city during the early morning.

New York, May 18.—The police were called out today to quell a riot at Broadway and Sixty-eighth street, where several Italian women, evidently strike sympathizers, had been intimidating the men at work on the subway construction. Stones were thrown indiscriminately and the women flashed huge stilettos, one of which was two feet long.

The police in the Bronx borough, who were on the lookout all night for any signs of disturbance along the line

INDICTMENTS IN FEDERAL COURT FOR LAND FRAUDS

Charles P. Maginnis One of Those Indicted.

Is Charged With Subornation of Perjury.

Several indictments in connection with alleged land frauds in the Duluth land office district have been returned by the federal grand jury. All the names have not been made public, as some of those indicted are not yet in custody. The indictments are the result of investigations made by special land agents into charges that timber and stone claims were filed by a large number of persons in pursuance of contracts with lumber firms, instead of for the sole benefit of the applicants.

One of those indicted is Charles P. Maginnis, the well known attorney and a former receiver of the Duluth land office. He is charged with suborning Annie Stensland to commit perjury.

Several months ago Miss Stensland entered certain lands, described as lots 2, 3, 6, 7 and 8, of section 5-64-14, under the stone and timber law.

According to the laws of the land office it was necessary for her to take oath that she had not directly or indirectly made any agreement or contract with any persons whomsoever, by which the title to the land which she should acquire from the government should inure, in whole or in part, to any person except herself, and that the land was paid for with her own money and was for her own benefit entirely.

An abstract of the title to the land shows that it was deeded to George C. Stone, of this city, shortly after the patent was granted. It is claimed in the indictment that Mr. Maginnis subborned Miss Stensland to enter the above-mentioned land under the stone and timber act for the benefit of persons other than herself, and to swear falsely as to the manner in which she had secured the money to pay for it, and as to the ultimate disposal of the title and the ownership of the land.

The manner in which the matter was brought to light is interesting. Alfred Johndrow, of West Superior, claims that some years ago he made entry on the same lands that are covered by the patent granted to Miss Stensland, taking them under the homestead act. Having occasion some months later to ask certain questions concerning his land, he made application at the local land office, where he claims he found that a relinquishment to which his name had been forged had been filed with the local officials, and that shortly after application had been made for a stone and timber entry on the land. The land had been advertised and patent issued before he knew that application had been made. He immediately sought legal advice, and the secretary of the interior was communicated with. He directed Special Agent M. D. McEnIry, of Crookston, to investigate the matter.

The forged relinquishment has not in any way been connected with the indictment of Mr. Maginnis.

Mr. McEnIry, the special agent who is supposed to have had charge of the investigation and is one of the principal witnesses, when seen this morning, refused to discuss the matter further than to say that the indictment had been returned.

Mr. Maginnis was seen at his office this noon and asked if he cared to say, anything about the case.

"Nothing," he replied, "except that there is nothing in any of my dealings before the land office to be regretted or ashamed of. I have done no wrong there, and never will."

THE UNITED STATES CANNOT DISPUTE RUSSIAN OFFICIALS

They Say There Has Been No Trouble at Kisheneff and Department Must Accept That.

Washington, May 18.—None of the many resolutions relative to the Kisheneff outbreak, adopted yesterday at various places in the United States, have reached the state department and officials have nothing new before them on which to proceed. It is not known whether further instructions have been sent to the embassy at St. Petersburg. So far the department have only newspaper clippings regarding the massacre and it scarcely feels authorized to move upon that basis, even if it had the power to do so. Admitting a desire to investigate in disregard of the formal assurance of the Russian government to Ambassador McCormick, the department would probably have to content itself with the sworn statements of refugees from Kisheneff.

To procure information through the American embassy or the American consuls in Russia would probably render our diplomatic agents persona non grata in case they should cast doubt on the official Russian statements.

The recent cablegram from St. Petersburg might open the way for diplomatic action on the part of the United States in this matter. The statement said the Russian government had forbidden the Jews to arm or defend themselves with a deliberate purpose of forcing them to emigrate to the United States, for nowhere in Europe could they find refuge. Such action would be similar to that taken by the Roumanian government on which the state department laid down the doctrine that the dumping of hordes of emigrants likely to prove paupers upon our shores, was obnoxious to the United States. In this connection it may be worth nothing, but in spite of vigorous protests against Roumania's action contained in the state department's circular note to the powers, the Roumanian government never admitted our right to interfere even on the basis of immigration and conditions continue very much as they were, so far as the Jews in Roumania are concerned.

BAPTISTS IN SESSION

National Gathering From Northern States at Buffalo.

Buffalo, May 18.—The great national gathering of the Baptists of the northern states, from Maine to California opened in the Prospect Avenue Baptist church today with the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Womans Baptist Home Mission society, of which Mrs. J. N. Crouse, of Chicago, is president. The first session, workers' conference, was called to order shortly after 10 o'clock when a praise service was held followed by greetings and the announcement of committees. The meetings of this society will occupy two days and will be followed by meetings of the American Baptist Home Mission society, American Baptist Missionary union and American Baptist Publication society. Many delegates have already arrived. The attendance is expected to be unusually large. A number of important questions are to be considered, including a plan of co-ordination of national societies.

RAVAGES OF BUG.

Insect Pest Doing Great Damage In Arizona.

Phoenix, Arlz., May 18.—There is great alarm in the Upper Gila valley, in the vicinity of Solomonville, over the ravages of a new insect pest that attacks barley and wheat while in the milk and which has in the last few days damaged crops very seriously.

The bug is commonly known as the green stink bug. Officials of the agricultural experiment station know no remedy and advise cutting the crop for hay without taking the chance of maturing the grain. The bug is not a new visitor, but never before appeared in numbers sufficient to do damage. Thus far the bug has not appeared in Salt River valley.

KENT SENTENCED

To Twenty Years In Prison For Manslaughter.

Rochester, N. Y., May 16.—Leland Dorr Kent, who on Saturday was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree, was today sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment in Auburn prison. Kent was convicted of having encouraged and assisted Ethel Blanche Dingle to commit suicide.

MISSISSIPPI IS HIGH.

Father of Waters Is Again Rising Rapidly.

La Crosse, May 18.—For the second time this year the Mississippi has risen so high at this point, that the water has surrounded residences in the lower parts of the city. The river has riven a foot and a half in forty-eight hours, the stage now being 11.1 and is still coming up rapidly. The city is practically surrounded by water, cutting off traffic with farmers on several roads.

BRIDE'S CONDITION

Was Clear Title to Half of His Property.

Marion, Ind., May 18.—After deeding his property in trust to the attorney for his bride to be, Joseph Schuler was married in the office of Attorney Huffman to Elizabeth Baldwin. As soon as the marriage ceremony was over the property deeded to the attorney was then deeded to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schuler jointly, giving the wife a clear title to half of the property owned by her husband. This was the contract made by and between Mr. Schuyler and Miss Baldwin when they were engaged to be married. It was a business transaction, and there will be no trouble in proving the title in the future, as everything was placed on record and made legal before Miss Baldwin promised to love and obey Joseph Schuler until death does separate them.

TO CONVOY SHAMROCKS.

Glasgow, May 18.—Sir Thomas Lipton has purchased the tug Cruiser to convoy the Shamrock I to the United States. The steam yacht Erin will convoy the cup challenger. The yachts will be ready for the ocean trip May 30.

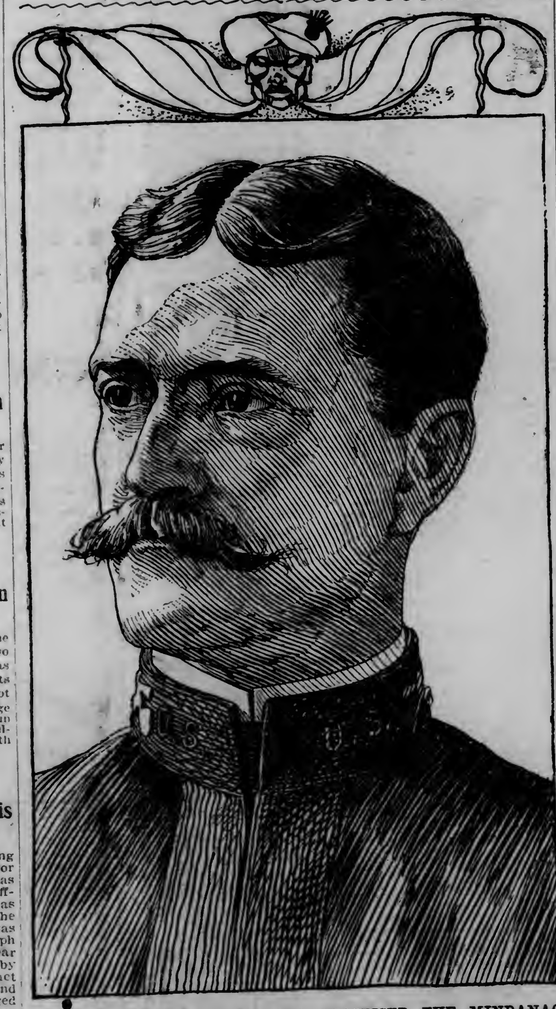
PRESBYTERIANS ARE MAKING READY FOR THEIR ASSEMBLY

Vast Army of Commissioners and Visitors Will Meet at Los Angeles on Friday For a Two Weeks Session to Discuss Important Matters.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 18.—Arrangements for the Presbyterian general assembly which will meet here next Thursday for a two weeks' session are about completed. About 700 commissioners are enrolled, one half of which are laymen. A vast army of visitors will come from east of the Mississippi. From the city of Pittsburg alone will come not less than 400, and all the cities of the West will send strong delegations. The attendance promises to be unusually large, and thousands of visitors who have no connection with the assembly are enrolled.

Many important matters will come before the general assembly. Latest reports show that of the 240 presbyteries, 220 have voted in favor of creed revision, and consequently the report of the stated clerk on the overtures submitted by the last general assembly is already anticipated, and the announcement will probably scarcely occasion a ripple on the floor of the assembly on Friday morning.

The first authoritative announcemen of the result will come from the moderator, Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, at the opening session on Thursday morning. This sermon by Dr. Van Dyke is the regular order at the opening of every assembly, and is the retiring moderator's discussion on the progressive of the church.



CAPTAIN PERSHING, WHO HAS CHASTISED THE MINDANAO DATTOS.

Captain John J. Pershing, who has succeeded in punishing every rebellious datto in his district in the island of Mindanao and has been commended by his superior, General Davis, as well as by the secretary of war, is himself datto of the Lake Lanao section of the island. His plan has been to demonstrate to the natives that it is his desire to be friendly, but that when there is any fighting to be done it will be done promptly and thoroughly. Captain Pershing scored his first military successes in the Geronimo campaigns. He graduated from West Point with the class of '86.

RUSSIANS DEEPLY HURT BY CRITICISMS OF AMERICANS

Say That Considering Former Friendship, Americans Should Have Ascertained the Truth of Manchurian News Before Commenting to Russia's Injury.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The Russian officials express themselves as being deeply hurt at the criticisms of the American press on the subject of Manchuria and say that, "considering the friendship extended forty years ago when America needed friends America might at least inquire whether the Anglo-Japanese news were not colored in anglo-Japanese interests."

The Manchurian incident threatened at one time to cause serious trouble in the bourse. When the excitement was at its height Finance Minister Witte visited Foreign Minister Lamsdorff and informed him that "under the influence of American representations and Japanese truculency and American newspaper attacks" in addition to the Balkin troubles the bourse was dangerously weak. The finance minister also declared that a continuance of the foreign attacks would threaten Russia's credit. There is a widespread belief here that M. Plancon, the Russian charge d'affaires at Pekin, represents the grand duke Alexioff and the war party.

SCIENTIST DISCOVERS RAYS OF LIGHT FROM HUMAN BODY

Prof. Goodspeed Finds That a Living Person May Shed Sufficient Light to Produce a Picture on Plate In Room Pitch Dark.

New York, May 18.—Rays of light emanating from the human body and visible to the eyes of some of the lower animals form the interesting scientific discovery announced by Professor A. W. Goodspeed of the Randal Morgan laboratory of physics of the University of Pennsylvania.

Divested of its technical terms, the discovery of Professor Goodspeed means that the rays of light shed from a living human body may have sufficient intensity, although invisible to the human eye, to produce a picture on a plat properly sensitized and in a room pitch dark.

The discovery was made while X-ray photographs were being taken. While an iron tripod stand, with a ring-shaped top as a support for a photographic plate, was being used it was observed that the plate, when exposed to the rays, was affected by the iron ring below. Puzzled at this seeming departure from the rules, the operator attempted to discover the cause. In so doing one of his assistants placed his hand below the plate. The result was an imperfect radigram of the bones of the human hand, like those obtained from the Roentgen rays when experimentation in that line was in its first stages.

It was so entirely new that Professor Goodspeed was perplexed. He tried again and again. Every time a human hand was placed within the proper focus the same phenomena followed. The experiments were continued for three months, and the conclusion of Professor Goodspeed was not announced until he had satisfied himself beyond all question of the correctness of his results.

THIRD STORY VERANDA FALLS; ONE KILLED, SEVERAL HURT

Fall River, Mass., May 18.—One woman has been killed and two persons severely injured by the collapse of a veranda on the third story of a house on King Philip street. Five others who were on the veranda at the time had miraculous escapes from injury or death. The dead woman is Mrs. Vitaline Vergernon and the injured are Mrs. A. F. Frenitte and Eugene Vergernon. The party were seated on the veranda when it collapsed without warning. Miss Josephine Croteau succeeded in clinging to a portion of the broken platform, but the other seven were precipitated to the veranda on the second story. The force of contact broke the rail on this balcony, and Mrs. Vergernon, Mrs. Frenitte, Eugene Vergernon and Alfred Vergernon, the last named aged 7 years, rolled over the edge and into the yard thirty feet below. Mrs. Vergernon's skull was fractured and she died while being carried to the house. Eugene Vergernon and Mrs. Frenitte were unconscious, but Alfred escaped without any apparent ill effect. The three who succeeded in holding on to the second veranda had nothing more than slight bruises, and Miss Croteau was rescued without injury whatever.

TRAMP IMPALED ON AN IRON PICKET

Newark, N. J., May 18.—Thomas Collins, a tramp, arrived here after a long ride on the bumpers of a freight train nearly dead from fatigue and weakness from hunger. To get something to eat he began to beg along the streets. After numerous refusals, with great effort he dragged himself up the porch of a large house in a fashionable portion of the city. Collins pushed the electric bell button. While he waited for the door to be opened he became suddenly dizzy and toppled over backward. He landed on top of an iron picket fence and was impaled upon one of its sharp points, which went deep into the upper part of his body and penetrated his left lung. He was taken to the city hospital, where the surgeons declared his injury to be dangerous in itself, but more so because of his weakened condition from lack of food and hard traveling.

"ARBITRATION BOARDS A HUMBUG"

Chicago, May 18.—Arbitration boards, employers' associations and labor commissioners were denounced in the Chicago Federation of Labor last night as being "snares, humbugs and industrial pitfalls, designed to crush labor unions." The members of the central body were indignant at the recent decision of the Chicago board of arbitration, which is composed of seven teamsters and seven employers, in the gas strike here. The boards finding was declared to be "unjust and detestable." The delegates refused to accept the board's finding as final and decided to ask all the unions of the city to bar out of the labor world hereafter "all self-constituted arbitration boards." It was agreed that a substitute may be found and the executive board of the federation was suggested.

MRS. BEDFORD HELD WITHOUT BAIL

London, May 18.—Mrs. Gunning S. Bedford, who was arrested on board the steamer Umbria at Queenstown, Saturday, was charged in Bow street police court today with making a false declaration of a child's birth. She was remanded and bail was refused. Mrs. Bedford was taken to Holloway jail. Her lawyer will make another application for bail as soon as he is able to do so and will lay all the facts of the case before the magistrate.

Mrs. Bedford's husband, who lived in London, died recently in Paris, leaving property estimated to the value of $500,000, to his wife and child. Relatives who are contesting the will, allege that Mrs. Bedford had no children and that she procured a child, pretended it was hers and deceived her husband for the purpose of securing his entire property. It is alleged on Dec. 18, 1902, Mrs. Bedford, representing herself as the infant's aunt, registered the birth of the child, Eugence, as having ocurred in London, Dec. 17. Two months later Mrs. Bedford is said to have gone to the United States to claim the money. Having failed in this she was on her way to Paris to prosecute the child's claim. The prosecution asserts that no child was born at the address given in Woborn place, London, for three years prior to the date given.

THINK CIESMAN WAS MURDERED

New York, May 18.—Two men have been arrested by orders of Coroner Goldencranz in connection with the death of Hirsch Ciesman, a baker, who was at first supposed to have committed suicide. Ciesman's body was found in the cellar of a building on First street, used as a bake shop. Around the neck was a rope, which was attached to a gas fixture. The body was in an erect attitude and the feet rested squarely upon the floor. If Ciesman took his own life by strangulation he must have thrown his weight upon the rope by drawing up his knees. His neck was not broken, although there were several scratches upon it. On the man's head was a fanstastic covering. A bandage had been drawn tightly over the forehead, crossed at the back of the neck and then brought around under the chin and securely knotted. Over the face was a woman's veil of light gray color and about the head was a covering of green mosquito netting. The body was maltreated in such a manner as to indicate that some one wrought upon it a savage revenge. Ciesman was employed by the owner of the bakery. He had been second man at the shop until two months ago, when the first baker, Louis Gavora, was taken ill and was obliged to go to a hospital. Ciesman then became the first baker and Kolman Jones was employed as his helper. Gavora came back a few days ago and tried to get his old position, but he was unable to do so. The coroner has been informed that Gavora had made threats against Ciesman.

STUDENTS ARE FINED FOR ASSAULT

South Norwalk, Conn., May 18.—Walbridge Taft, of New York, and Edward Lawrence White, of Lowell, Mass., students at a private school here, who were charged with assaulting John D. Milne, superintendent of the gas department of the Connecticut Railroad and Lighting company, were in the Norwalk town court today to answer the charges. Taft, who is a nephew of Governor Taft of the Philippines, was found guilty of assault and breach of the peace by Judge Lockwood, and was fined $1 and costs, amounting in all to about $25. White was fined $25 for committing a breach of the peace. Both students took an appeal to the next term of the superior court.

YOUNG WOMAN TREED BY A BULL

Lake Hopatcong, N. J., May 18.—Miss Mabel Marshall, Miss Louise Duncan, Miss Jennie Hoffman and Miss Clara Howland, of New York, who are visiting here, were attacked by a bull while bicycle riding. At the time the young women were wheeling along a path through the fields. They had not gone far when a large bull pursued them. In spite of their efforts the bull gained on them, and realizing they would soon be overtaken, the girls sprang from their wheels and ran to a large tree with low drooping branches and scrambled to places of safety just as the infuriated bull, bellowing and tearing the earth, reached the tree. Among the branches of the tree the young women were prisoners for nearly two hours. The bull nearly destroyed the bicycles at the foot of the tree.

AUTOMOBILES DO NOT FLOAT WELL

Chicago, May 18.—With brakes that failed to work a gasoline runabout, owned and occupied by Dr. A. K. Lowen dashed down a steep hill at Ninety-fifth street, last night, and plunged into Lake Michigan. For twenty or more feet it skimmed the surface of the water and then losing its impetus began to plow below. When it came to a stop it was forty feet out from the shore and was resting on the lake's bottom at a point wehre the water was eight feet deep. Dr. Lowen clamored to the seat and with his head barely out of water cried for help. A rope was thrown to him and the physician and his machine were dragged to shore. The machine was found to be practically ruined.

SALES OF LUMBER

About Four Million Feet Is Reported Sold Last Week.

Hines Lumber Company's Cut Said to Be Practically All Placed.

Lumber sales at the head of the lakes for the past week are said to have aggregated about 1,000,000 feet aside from the sale of stock which has been under option for some time. Manufacturers report prices strong and a little advanced, with a sharper demand along all lines.

A great deal of the product of the interior mills will come to Duluth this year for shipment down the lakes instead of by the all-rail route, as formerly, providing the shippers can get satisfactory accommodations and prices.

The volume of the sales of the local mills is small just now and the reason is said to be that the manufacturers are pretty well sold up to the saw. There is a small stock for early delivery and not a great deal of dry lumber on the docks.

The Peyton, Kimball & Barber mill in West Superior is expected to start up the first of this week. The Clark-Jackson mill will start up Wednesday on its cut of the Brooks-Scanlon and the Edward Hines Lumber company's logs. The mill is to be run day and night, sawing alternately for the Brooks-Scanlon people and for the Hines company. The former concern will have about 30,000,000 feet to be sawed and the Hines company has contracted for 20,000,000 feet.

The Hines company has now placed the remainder of the logs at the Scofield mill location. The mill that burned was to have sawed 50,000,000 feet this year on its large contract. Besides the 20,000,000 feet that will be cut at the Clark-Jackson mill the Red Cliff mill at the West End and the Peyton, Kimball & Barber mill in West Superior will divide the balance of 30,000,000 feet.

Some of the lumbermen predict that the fact that the Hines company has now placed its log cut means that the Scofield mill will not be rebuilt. Practically the only cut that the mill has ahead was that for the Hines company, and as the contracts for this season's cut are now placed with other mills, it is claimed that the prospect is not encouraging for the rebuilding of the plant.

The W. T. Bailey mill and the Plummer & Ash mill have started up, the former to cut about 4,000,000 feet and the latter probably 30,000,000 feet. The product of the latter mill is to be shipped to the Eastern trade and it is understood that as soon as the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road is completed through to the international boundary that much of the mills product will go over the Canadian Northern into the Canadian Northwest, where lumber prices are high and the demand is not equal to the supply.

The assessors at West Superior are said to be inclined to return a heavier tax this year on the logs banked on that side of the bay. It is likely that test cases will be brought against parties owning the logs, and living outside of the state, in the effort to see if the logs cannot be taxed and better collections made than heretofore.

The log rafting and river driving season is well opened. The rivers are running high and logs are coming out rapidly. On the Nemadji there are about 12,000,000 feet of logs, all old logs that are coming down. This year will probably witness the winding up of the driving operations on the Nemadji.

The Itasca Paper company at Grand Rapids, Minn., has closed a contract with Dunn & Marcia, of Cohasset for the delivery at the paper mill of 1,000,000 feet of cedar logs. The cedar is to be manufactured into shingles at the new shingle mill the paper company has recently started.

The case of the Clenmont Lumber company, plaintiff, against Theodore Roy, defendant, in error, a case which was appealed from the United States circuit court here, has been argued and submitted before the United States court of appeals at St. Paul. Roy brought an action in the Cass county district court to recover $10,000 for damages for injuries received in the lumber company's mill at Cass Lake before it burned down. The case was removed to the United States circuit court here and a verdict was returned for $890 for Roy. The lumber company then appealed to the court of appeals. The evidence in the case showed that Roy was steering logs in a trough leading to the saw carriage when he lost his balance and fell on the carriage, being carried against a band saw and losing three fingers on his right hand.

Spring Medicine

There is no other season when good medicine is so much needed as in the Spring.

The blood is impure, weak and impoverished—a condition indicated by pimples and other eruptions on the face and body, by deficient vitality, loss of appetite, lack of strength, and want of animation.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Make the blood pure, vigorous and rich, create appetite, give vitality, strength and animation, and cure all eruptions. Have the whole family begin to take them today.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has been used in our family for some time, and always with good results. Last spring I was all run down and got a bottle of it, and as usual received great benefit." Miss BEULAH BOYCE, Stowe, Vt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

THE STAGE

"Are You a Mason?" one of the merriest farces on the road, appeared at the Lyceum again Saturday night, and it was given a very creditable production by a company much stronger and better than that which presented it here last year. The play is full of the most absurdly funny complications, due to the devious devices of a couple of men who have been accounting for their late hours to their wives by saying that they were Masons, and had to attend lodge. Neither knows that the other is deceiving his wife, and when they are brought face to face their terror at what each thinks is his betrayal can be imagined. Out of this sort of a situation the playwright has worked a very funny play. With Thomas A. Wise and John R. Rice as the leading characters, and a thoroughly capable company to support them, Saturday night's large audience was furnished an abundance of amusement.

Beginning tonight at the Metropolitan, the Ferris Comedians, with Miss Grace Hayward in the leading role of Princess Yetieve, will present her own dramatization of that popular novel "Graustark." This production will be complete in every way and undoubted the most artistic success that company has as yet presented.

There will be an entire change of specialties by the Travis Sisters and Mr. Geo. FitzRe the celebrated Irish comedian. Chicago will sing some beautiful ballads as a special feature.

The latter half of the week Dick Ferris will appear with his company in "The Man From Mexico."

Tonight at the Lyceum the Flints will open their week of fun making, presenting their entertainment in hypnotism, of which they are the best exponents before the public. They give a performance that is well calculated to drive away the most stubborn case of the blues and it is pure fun from beginning to end.

GIVE UP ONE STORE.

Lundberg & Stone Abolish Superior Establishment and Will Devote All Their Time to Duluth Business.

Lundberg & Stone, who for the past four years have operated a store at Superior, have decided to give up the establishment at the other side of the bay and devote all their time to the business in Duluth. This step has been made necessary by the rapidly increasing business of the local store, which has materially increased in size within the past two or three years.

E. N. Stone, who has had charge of the Superior store, will now devote all of his time to the Duluth establishment, which now requires the combined efforts of himself and partner, O. N. Lundberg.

First Time In Print.

William A. Pinkerton, the world-renowned detective, enters the field of literature for the first time in the June issue of 10 Story Book. He writes a detective story entitled "$60,000 in Gold, or the Fatal Hand." The French sensationalists will have to look to their laurels, for Mr. Pinkerton weaves a plot of breathless interest and thrilling climaxes with remarkable cleverness.

When doctors fail try Burdock Blood Bitters. Cures dyspepsia, constipation; invigorates the whole system.

GOLD FOR EUROPE.

New York, May 18.—Lazard Frers have engaged $1,000,000 in gold for shipment to Europe today. Goldman, Sachs & Co. had ordered $750,000 for shipment at the same time. There is talk of other engagements.

THREE MINERS ENTOMBED.

Helena, Mont., May 18.—By a cave-in at the drain drift of the Engel placer, five miles from Helena, three miners were entombed. It is not known whether they are alive or not. Then men are Henry Miller, Tom Persall and one unknown man.

UMBRIA AFFAIR INFERNAL HOAX

New York Police Ascribe It to the Yellow Papers.

Chicago, May 18.—The New York and Chicago police, after much study and hard thinking, are beginning to see a vast light in the Umbria dynamite affair.

It is now the opinion of the sleuths that the infernal machine which was discovered a few days ago, with an accompanying plot, having large, thick roots in Chicago, was the work of somebody connected with the yellow papers that were spoiling for a sensation. It is now the idea of the police—and all the recent developments back them up in the theory—that the infernal machine was built solely and simply to create an uproar, and that the New York police commissioner, Gen. Greene, was given warning of the alleged dynamite plot to make the sensation larger.

"I do not believe," said Detective Sergt. Carey of the New York police, "that the machine was built to destroy property or to kill anyone. If anything really murderous had been intended the man who made the machine would not have omitted the necessary cap to cause the explosion, nor would he have written any warning letter to Greene telling him where the machine could be found."

Detective Howe of the Chicago force also thinks that no damage to life or property was intended by the bomb.

TRAINMEN'S MEETINGS

Conductors Have About Finished, Brotherhood Begins at Denver.

Pittsburg, May 18.—The members of the Order of Railroad Conductors have just about completed their twenty-ninth biennial "run."

At the session today all amendments passed finally. Tomorrow the election of officers will be held, and the choosing of the next place of meeting. In all but one instance the present officers will have no opposition for re-election. There will be a contest for one of the trusteeships, but it is believed that this will not cause much excitement. What will be the most interesting fight will be for the next convention. This practically now lies between Portland, Ore., and Boston, with chances favoring the former.

The question of the amount of increase to be made in the salaries of the grand officers, it is believed, will be made before the adjournment today.

Today the local divisions of the ladies' auxiliary gave an exemplification of the ritual work for the entertainment of the grand officers and members of their order.

Denver, May 18.—The National Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen met in convention in this city this morning. Between 600 and 700 delegates were present when Grand Master Morrissey rapped for order. The sessions of the convention are private, and it is expected they will continue over two weeks. The time was taken up today in organizing.

The trainmen have been put to considerable inconvenience on account of the refusal of the striking draymen to haul their baggage from the depot, but it was announced that this matter would be adjusted this afternoon and that the brotherhood would then get their trunks.

NORWAY'S DAY

Her Sons Celebrate Anniversary of Adoption of Constitution.

Patriotic Entertainment With Fine Program at Armory.

The eighty-ninth anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of Norway and the union of that country to Sweden was celebrated yesterday in an immense gathering at the Armory, where ceremonies in keeping with the event were carried out by the Norwegian people of this city and vicinity. The attendance was about 1500 and the occasion a great patriotic outburst. Those present wore the emblem of Norway usually in the form of a miniature Norwegian standard, the red field bearing a blue cross fringed with white. The hall decorations consisted of the flags of the United States, Norway and the Norweglan-Swedish confederation.

The address of welcome was delivered by Rev. C. H. Hjortholm, pastor of the Norweglan Lutheran church in the West End. The musical program was opened with a medley of Norsk folk tunes, Flaaten's orchestra rendering the selection. Norwegian songs were sung by the Normanna Singing society, led by J. H. Flaaten.

Editor John Erikson of the Superior Tidende delivered the address of the day. He dwelt upon the political conditions in the Scandinavian countries before the confederation, and demonstrated the influence which the French revolution and the American war for independence had on the civilized world at that time. Mr. Erickson held that every turn of political history has served to advance the cause of the people and divest monarchy of assumed rights. He touched largely upon European history and closed with a reference to the privilege of American citizenship enjoyed by the Scandinavian people in this country.

Roy Prytz rendered a solo and Rev. N. B. Thvedt, pastor of the First Norwegian Lutheran chuch, gave an interesting and comprehensive address on the educational system in Norway and Sweden, and the great progress that has been made along that line since 1814. The speaker earnestly advocated manual training, which is now an established factor in the Norway schools, and its salutary effect on the pupils.

Two more musical selections were rendered by the orchestra, and the meeting was brought to a close with the assemblage singing the national song.

AT WEST DULUTH

With a team weakened by the absence of Carey and Brotherton, West Duluth went down to defeat yesterday before the strong Grand Rapids nine. The final score was 7 to 5 in favor of the home team.

Wet grounds caused a number of errors, both teams being heavy offenders in this respect.

West Duluth tried out two pitchers, Young going in first and pitching five innings. He was hit for six runs and retired in favor of Larson, who held the Grand Rapids team down in good style until the end of the game.

West Duluth went after the home team in the first innings in a manner that was calculated to give the pitcher heart failure and knocked out three runs before the Grand Rapids men had settled down to work. They were unable to hold the pace, however, and in the fourth innings allowed the home team to gain a commanding lead.

The following is the personnel of the teams:

Coughlan	short stop	Peterson
Remfry	center field	Geitz
E. Robinson	second base	McAllister
Williams	third base	McBride
Faubister	left field	Hasche
Robinson	center	Ludwig
Larson	First and P.	Jorgenson
Bassett	right field	Doran
Young	P. and first	Roy

The score by innings is as follows:

Grand Rapids .....0 1 1 3 1 1 0 0 X—7
West Duluth ..... 3 0 1 0 0 1 0 0 0—5

The visitors were met by the town band and escorted to the grounds. The best of entertainment was provided for them and they are loud in their praises of the treatment accorded them.

The batting of the Grand Rapids team was heavy, three three baggers being secured by them. For the West Duluth team Faubister and Coughlan were the heaviest hitters, each securing three hits. Faubister also drew a round of applause from the onlookers by a magnificent catch of a long drive to deep left field. Ed Robinson played a pretty game at second base.

The losers also worked in a neat double play, Coughlan to Larson.

LAND-SEEKERS LEAVE.

The party of land-seekers which was organized by N. Gilman will leave this afternoon over the Omaha for San Francisco. The following is the complete list of those composing the party:

Martin Solberg, O. Olson, I. Chabot, W. E. Kearn, John Evjen, Oscar Peterson, Nels Christenson, Louis Beaurivage, E. Oettel, Mrs. J. T. Westlin, John A. Westlin, Richard Dolberg, Gust Noetzel, Edward Parry, Paul Morneau, Victor Carlson, P. L. Younger, Andrew Nordin, Andrew Holberg, George Gilman and J. P. Smith.

Of the twenty-one who compose the party fifteen are from West Duluth, one from Ogema, Wis., one from West Superior and the others from Duluth.

They will leave at 4 o'clock for St. Paul. From St. Paul they go to Omaha, from Omaha to Denver, and from Denver to San Francisco.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

H. R. Rix, of Salem, Ore., is in West Duluth today on a short business trip.

J. A. Hempton has taken a lease of the Phillips hotel. The building will be repapered and painted and in part refurnished.

James Thornton, of Bayfield, Wis., is in West Duluth today on a business trip.

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth Gordon will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Oneota church at 2 o'clock. Interment will be held at Oneota cemetery.

W. H. Brownrigg will fulfill the duties of cashier of the Merchants' bank during the absence of J. P. Smith, who leaves today for California.

Mrs. Dr. Budd and mother have returned from a visit to Two Harbors.

The funeral of Lawrence Hagen will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his parents, 308 Sixtieth avenue. Rev. O. M. Savig will conduct the services, and interment will be made in Oneota cemetery.

Mrs. L. Fargo left today for Des Moines to attend the wedding of her neice.

Lewis Mark has arrived from Princeton with a carload of fresh milk cows for sale. Apply at corner of Grand and Sixty-first avenues, or at 303 South Fifty-fifth avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Swingle, who were injured several weeks ago in a runaway accident, have recovered from their injuries. Mr. Swingle was able to leave the hospital yesterday, and will be able to attend to his business within a few days.

Mrs. W. E. Green and mother arrived from Chicago yesterday to join Mr. Green, the superintendent of the Duluth Crushed Stone works, who has been here for the past few weeks. They will reside at the corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Huntington street.

Lewis Mark, of St. Paul, a former resident of West Duluth, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. M. B. Abrahamson, of Fifty-fifth avenue west.

JEFFRIES IN CALIFORNIA

Articles For Fight Will Be Signed at Once.

Oakland, Cal., May 18.—James J. Jeffries arrived here yesterday from Chicago, in company with Al Smith, the bookmaker, and Kid Egan. He was taken in charge by Billy Delaney, his former manager and trainer. Jeffries will stay here until Thursday, when he will go to Los Angeles to visit his family. This afternoon a representative of the champion will meet Jim Corbett in San Francisco to sign the articles for the coming match and to pass upon two offers of the Yosemite club. One is a flat offer of $20,000 and the other 70 per cent of the gross receipts. Present indications are that the fight will be held about the middle of August. Jeff looks in good condition and declares that all of the stories circulated about his being on the down grade were without foundation.

BUT ONE DIED.

The Rest of Poison Victims Have Recovered.

Cincinnati, May 18.—William Daily and Luis Burbank, employes of the Adams Express company, left the hospital today for their homes. It is evident now that John B. Ficker, who died last Wednesday night shortly after drinking of the poisoned whisky sent from Memphis to Mrs. Nobbe in this city, will be the only victim as the other express employes who drank from the fatal bottle had previously recovered sufficiently to go to their homes. Advices from Nashville and Memphis today indicate that the detectives will likely bring Mrs. McCormick here on Wednesday for a temporary hearing on the charge of murder in the first degree.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Fargo Gets First Conviction For Perjury In Many Years.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The first conviction on a perjury charge that has been secured in Fargo for years was that of Oscar Thompson. The defendant made a complaint, charging Mme. Massey with selling liquor but could not substantiate it after the case came to a hearing.

David Paladue was found in the Northern Pacific yards in a critical condition. He says he is a Montanan and has relatives at Willmar. He started to Bismarck from the west to secure employment on some railroad work and was paralyzed on one side. At Bismarck he was placed in a car and started east. In Fargo he declare two brakemen took him out of the car and laid him on a pile of lumber and left him there in a helpless condition. Some hours later he was found by a night watchman and cared for till he could be sent to Willmar.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—Nineteen Russian immigrants who arrived here are held awaiting instructions from the commissioner of immigration at Montreal, and will probably be deported, all the members of the party being affected with trachoma, an infectious eye disease. The party came from Winnipeg and was held here pending the arrival of A. C. Duddleson, who represents the United States immigration department at that point. The immigrants came on without submitting to the customary medical inspection.

Wheatland—The barn of W. Hill of Erie burned together with eighteen head of horses, two cows, 2000 bushels of oats, fifteen tons of hay, harness, etc. The insurance is $900.

Walpeton—E. C. Estes returned from his farm a few miles west of here, bringing with him some specimens of coal which he found in boring a well on his farm. He was attempting to get a well which produced a surface flow of water, and was boring deeply to get a good flow. At 130 feet he struck a statum of very hard substance which was seven feet in thickness. He brought specimens to town which has been pronounced to be cannel coal. Estes received an offer for his farm by a local capitalist, which is greatly in advance of the price he paid for the farm when he purchased it last spring. He will refuse all offers until he knows exactly what he has discovered. North Dakota has vast fields of lignite coal, but this is the first cannel coal discovered in the state, and the first of any kind found near the Red river.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—At 10:15 o'clock Saturday morning Mrs. Roland B. Molineux became a legal resident of South Dakota, under the state statutes and can now commence her divorce suit at any time. The members of the local divorce colony have new food for gossip concerning Mrs. Roland B. Molineux and her alleged purpose to remarry after she is granted a divorce. That she contemplates remarrying at an early date after being freed would appear to be indicated by an interesting bit of gossip which is in circulation. Guests who have apartments on the same floor with her at the Cataract hotel report that for several days she has been busy superintending the making of stylish gowns. It is said that as many as fifteen new gowns are either finished or partially completed. From the color and style of the gowns, it is stated by the knowing members of the divorce colony that the new garments form a part of an elaborate wedding trousseau. Mrs. Molineux herself is not saying a word which could be construed as either affirming or disproving the gossip.

Bonesteel—A train of cattle belonging to J. Linsley arrived over the Northern from Sioux City. The cattle will be driven to Linsley's range on Bull creek in western Gregory county.

Horse dealers who buy for eastern markets have been here for the past week and bought several car loads of range horses which are being shipped.

The body of Henry Bachmann arrived from Sioux City last night. He was a prominent Gregory county farmer who lived near Bonesteel and went to a Sioux City hospital some time ago for treatment.

Bonesteel has Sunday mail service, the North-Western having put on a Sunday train.

Lake Preston—Several dogs have been poisoned, some of them being considered very valuable by their owners. The gun club has offered a reward of $25 for evidence to convict.

FUNERAL OF SANDERSON

Services Over Late American Opera Singer Largely Attended.

Paris, May 18.—The funeral of Sibyl Sanderson, the American opera singer who died in this city on Saturday from the effects of an acute attack of the grip, took place today at the church of St. Honore D'Eylau, and was largely attended by representatives of the operatic and theatrical world, including M. Saints Saens and Massenet, the composers; M. Moullerat, M. Delmas, Mlle. Jeanne Granier and M. Eugene Mandick, operatic artists; Sir Henry Austin Lee, of the British embassy, and Lady Lee; Admiral and Mme. De Jonquieres, representatives of the United States embassy, and many members of the American colony here. The floral offerings were so numerous that the casket was buried in flowers, and even the hearse was transferred into a floral chariot. The usual Catholic funeral service was rendered. The surpliced choir was augmented by an orchestra and several prominent singers. M. Tisserand, the tenor, sang the "De Profundis" and M. Reder, the baritone, rendered "Ego Sum." Crowds surrounded the church and many persons were unable to gain entrance to the building.

Among the floral offerings was a handsome piece from the Bohemian club, of San Francisco, and another from the artists of the Opera Comique.

The body was taken to Pere la Chaise cemetery, where it was cremated.

MANY WOMEN

Claim They Were Swindled By Moody Merrill.

New York May 18.—Among the many women who declare that they lost their fortunes through investing money with Moody Merrill the largest claimants now living are Mrs. Leon Harvier and her invalid sister, Mrs. Florence A. Clifford, who are in this city and whose aunt a member of the well known Burgess family of Boston, was the first wife of Moody Merrill. Mrs. Harvier instructed her lawyers today to take steps for the recovery of all or any part of $110,000, for which, as the heirs of the mother, a judgment has been issued to them in Boston against Moody Merrill.

"When he disappeared," Mrs. Harvier said, "it was found that we had little money left. My mother was so shocked and felt so worried about the future her health was undermined. She was an invalid until the day of her death, which was not long ago."

Another woman who suffered at the hand of Moody Merrill was Mrs. Bogardus, the wife of Capt. Bogardus of Newburyport. Mrs. Bogardus put her property into Merrill's hands, and died in the poor house. Her grand-daughter was obliged to go on the stage to earn her living, and is known as Daisy Lovering.

CAPTURES ROBBER

Watchman at Northwestern Boiler Works Has a Lively Fight.

Overpowers His Man and Finds Him a Former Employe.

During a desperate hand-to-hand fight a robber was knocked senseless last night by John R. McNeil, watchman of the Northwestern Boiler works.

The watchman was making his rounds shortly after 10 o'clock when he heard a sound in the office. He decided that the man on the inside had gained entrance from the rear of the machine shop and concluded that the thief would have good chances of escape if an attack was made from the front of the plant.

Mr. McNeil then rattled the front door and sped around the outside of the machine shops to the rear just as the burglar was breaking out a window in his efforts to escape.

The thief was informed that he was covered by a gun and told to cease smashing the window. He tried to kick out the sash and the watchman shot, the bullet going high.

The burglar then ran down the front of the building again, the watchman keeping pace on the outside, locating the position of the intruder from the noise he made in passing through the machinery and unfinished work.

The watchman secured the watchman of the Duluth Lumber company's plant and asked him to watch the rear of the machine shop while Mr. McNeil made an attack from the front, but the robber was busy, and when Mr. McNeil reached the north side of the shop he jumped through a window, carrying the sash with him.

There was a lively chase among the lumber piles of the Duluth Lumber company's yard, in which the watchman tried to use his revolver again, but it failed to go off. The thief then turned on McNeil and the two fought it out. The watchman finally hit the thief over the head with the butt end of his gun and knocked him down. He was up again in a moment, fighting fiercer than ever. Mr. McNeil finally got in two or three telling blows and the thief went down and out.

He was carried beak to the Northwestern office and there recognized as a former employe of the Northwestern works, named Dounahue. He had more than $100 worth of brass valves and other things in a sack in the office, and the authorities are of the opinion that he has been the thief that has been robbing local machine shops of many hundreds of dollars' worth of brass and machine material for several months past.

He was lodged in the central police station and says that he was so drunk he did not know what he was doing in the Northwestern plant. The watchman says he had been drinking some, but was anything but drunk when he was trying to escape.

IS INDICTED FOR FORGERY

James Williams In Under Charge From the Grand Jury.

James Williams has been indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of forgery. The case will probably be brought up in the district court this afternoon.

Two men by the name of James Williams reside at Brainerd. The one who was indicted received a postal order a short time ago from a person in Fargo. The order was cashed. Further developments showed that the order was intended for the other James Williams, and a complaint was laid.

The government, which is the complaining witness in the case, is prosecuting on the theory that Williams knew that the money was not intended for him. Williams, who was recently married, claims that he thought the money was intended for a wedding present.

Marshall Case, who was tried Saturday for selling liquor to Indians, was convicted on four out of five indictments. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and serve 75 days in jail on each of the four convictions.

Further illegal liquor selling cases are occupying the attention of the district court today.

LINEN AND BRUSHES

With Silver Backs Disappear From Belasco's New Playhouse.

New York, May 18.—When David Belasco built his own playhouse in West Forty-second street he was in a most enthusastic state of mined. His nights were dreams of filmy color harmonies and his days were very human struggles with carpenters and decorators and makers of changeable paints.

He carried his conception of the ideal home for the polite patrons of the drama into the smallest details. He set his artificers to straining sunsets to get a match for the Leslie Carter dresses, and toilers worked unceasingly to find the happy mixture of lights and shadows that best suited Blanche Bates. Even to the slight auxillaries of retiring rooms the Belasco intellect penetrated and gave light. Accordingly, when there was completed in the pure radiance of white and gold a spacious room where women playgoers might set their hats aright and catch up unruly wisps of hair, Mr. Belasco sought to furnish it fittingly.

Bric-a-brac shops here and abroad were searched for its adornment. Rugs were imported to enrich the floors and rare pieces of furniture were brought together from many marts. In the softened lights the room wore an appearance of mazy charm.

For his linens Mr. Belasco went abroad, and the dainty pieces on which the matinee girl dried her little hands were listed at $40 a dozen. There were combs of real shell, and brushes heavily backed with silver, and the little trinkets that are strewn over the dressing tables of the rich were there, shaped of rich metal.

Then the women came.

The towels were first seized on as cute souvenirs of the new theater, and they disappeared at the rate of $80 for each performance. When the precaution was taken of marking them with the identifying initials of the owner they went the faster. It seemed to add to their value in the esteem of the collectors.

One day the maid found a lady of elegant apparel stowing the clock away in one of her stockings. It was one of the choicest things in the room—the clock. It was a Marie Antoinette clock.

The maid didn't know whether it had belonged to Marie Antoinette at one time or whether it reflected her idea of what a clock ought to be. Mr. Belasco had imported it and it was inventoried among the properties of the theater at a high price.

"What are you doing with that clock in your stocking?" asked the maid.

The lady snapped the elastic of her silken garter viciously and, bushing, committed this hardened reply.

"I always wear stockings with clocks in them."

The maid reported the occurrence to Mr. Belasco.

"Did you recover the clock?" he asked, plowing his field of gray hair with his manicured fingers.

"Yes, sir," said the maid, "but when I came up here to tell you there was another lady fidgetin' around near it."

Maid and Belasco rushed downstairs. The other lady had fidgeted successfully. The clock was gone.

One by one the combs and brushes and silver toilet pieces went. For a season they were replaced regularly with others of the same kind. But now Mr. Belasco has seen the uselessness of the higher cultivation for the retiring rooms.

The gold leaf still clings artistically to the white enamel, but the original fittings of the room have been succeeded by commoner articles not so likely to be purloined. The towels of today are marked neither "L. C." nor "D. B." They can be duplicated along Sixth avenue for a few cents each, and you couldn't pawn the hair brush for the price of soda.

The women were not the only offenders. In the men's reception room the same atmosphere of culture and good breeding was at first established.

Turkish cigarettes that cost 6 cents each were there furnished free between the acts. It was a fair presumption that one might suffice a gentleman for that short period. But they took them in grabs, filled their pockets and made contests of which could carry off the largest number.

They filched the costly scented soaps and cast tobacco juice on polished floors, and but for the watchfulness of the attendants might have cut out the plumbing and carried it away.

As the daily reports of this lack of the finer qualities reached Mr. Belasco his theories began to ooze away, and they say that now he searches the market for bar soap at 4 cents a pound.

Mr. Belasco, it seems, has only learned the lesson that hotel keepers learned long ago. One large hotel now counts its lost teaspoons and small coffee spoons by dozens daily, and finds that one-half the napkins sent to room with meals never return.

John Tanko on Trial For Murder In First Degree.

Nine Jurors Had Been Secured Up to This Noon.

John Tanko, of Chisholm, is on trial in district court for murder in the first degree, the charge against him being the killing of George Bollich, a fellow Austrian, at his home, near Chisholm, on the evening of March 8 last.

Tanko is said to have gone with some companions to Bollich's home, but was ejected by the owner. It is claimed that Tanko, enraged by his treatment, went home, procured a shotgun and returned, opening up fire on Bollich's house and shooting the latter when he came to the door to note the cause of the disturbance.

Tanko, since his arrest, has told a different story, one to the effect that there was a struggle between himself and Bollich at the time the gun was discharged.

Up to this noon but nine jurors had been sworn out of sixteen called. It was expected that the full jury would be obtained by 3 o'clock this afternoon and the case opened by the state, Judge Edson, Frank Crasswelle and T. J. McKeon were appointed triers.

The jurors accepted this morning were as follows: David A. Come, furrier, 102 West First street; George W. Martin, tie and timber dealer, 1512 London road; Percy J. Dow, grocer, 104 East Fourth street; Frank L. Barrows, purchasing department Oliver Mining company, 12 North Nineteenth avenue east; Albert Overton, farmer, Smithville; William Harbour, builder, Smithville; Frank I. Breeze, clothing salesman, 1012 East Second street; Arthur E. Prudden, grain inspector, 16 West Third street; G. Hood Thompson, stone cutter, Glen Avon.

Several jurors were excused this morning on the ground of decided prejudice against capital punishment. One of the range jurors examined this morning caused a little stir in the court room while being questioned, by his answer that there were so many men shot on the range that the people there do not pay much attention to it. He was excused from serving on the Tanko jury.

Tanko, who is defended by R. J. Dowdal, shows traces of his confinement. He has a pallor induced from his several weeks' stay in jail, and his eyes are red and rather swollen, indicating that he has at times given way to emotion. He is a strongly built man of medium height, fair-haired and with a long brown mustache. Tanko is far from appearing the bloodthirsty-looking customer that he was described when first brought to the county jail here.

Tanko does not speak English, having been in this country only a short time before the shooting affray occurred.

POSTPONED

The dance which was to be given last evening at Columbia hall by Beta council No. 2, M. S., is postponed until Monday evening, May 18. All tickets sold will be good for this date.

ADMITS THE TAKING.

Stevenson Mining Company Answers to Trespass Suit.

The defendant has filed an answer in the action brought by Arthur Rogers against the Stevenson Iron Mining company, in district court. The plaintiff charged the defendant with the illegal cutting and appropriating of cedar ties on lands claimed by the plaintiff in sections 7 and 8-57-21. The defendant answers, admitting the cutting of the ties, some 2378, in February of this year, but alleges that the ties were taken in good faith, the defendant supposing it had the right to do so. Defendant claims that ties are worth but 5 cents each, and asks the court to give a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in accordance.

NEWS OF THE STORES

Silbersteln & Bondy Co.—Great sale of tailored suits and wash goods. Fine furniture at reductions of from 10 to 33 1-3 per cent.

Freimuth's—Ladies of First M. E. church keep store tomorrow. Big reductions in every department.

Forward & Co.—Three-day bargain sale of go-carts and baby carriages.

Ericson—A clean-up of broken lots in spring suits.

Gately's—Clothing for the entire household on easy payments.

Lundberg & Stone—Office supplies and stationery at right prices.

Transvaal Dimond Co.—Grand introductory sale of the famous Transvaal diamonds.

An Important Sale of Fine Furniture.

Beginning with tomorrow, Tuesday, May 19, and continuing throughout the week, the Silberstein & Bondy company offer some of the most important values in fine furniture that the head of the lakes has seen in some time.

A readjustment of their furniture stock preparatory to purchasing their next fall's stock necessitates the clearance of many of their finest pieces.

The reductions are anywhere from 10 to 33 1-3 per cent, and since there are no old or shop-worn pieces in their stock, the reductions can be looked upon as extraordinary. Everything in the stock will bear some reduced price ticket, some 10, some 15, some 25, some 30 and some 33 1-3 per cent.

The sale which begins tomorrow morning will continue throughout the week. While the stock is full and complete, still those desiring to get the choicest pieces had better call early enough before they are picked over.

of the subway, arrested two batches of Italian strikers early today, who were loitering along the excavation. One of them had a loaded revolver in his pocket.

Chicago, May 18.—By their action voting to strike in sympathy with the colored waiters of the same firm, the bakers working in the wholesale plant of H. H. Kohlsaat & Co. have precipitated a lockout. The big bakery and the one remaining restaurant were closed today for an indefinite period. More than 700 employes are thrown out of work.

Toronto, May 18.—After three weeks of practically fruitless negotiations matters now appear ripe for another strike on the Toronto street railway. The company has flatly refused the men's demands for 23 cents an hour and a grievance committee, though certain minor points were conceded. The men are determined on the grievance committee or some form of recognition of their union and trouble seemed inevitable. The men will present a final ultimatum to the company today and a strike may be precipitated at any time.

New Haven, Conn., May 18.—Union labor and Yale student interests have come into conflict by the adventure of six undergraduates of Yale, who recently took the places of striking truck drivers.

Committeemen from the trades' union have asked President Hadley to call the students from the trucks. Yale's president has declined on the ground that the constitution permits any man to sell his labor and now threats intimating that union labor at work on Yale's new halls may be called out in a sympathetic strike are heard among the strikers.

Melbourne, Victoria, May 18.—The railroad strikers by ballot decided today, by an overwhelming majority, to resume work on the government's terms.

Schenectady, May 18.—Two hundred punch press operators of the General Electrical works went on strike today, demanding the reinstatement of seven of the leading members of the union who, it is declared by the men, were discharged because of their aggressiveness. The men assert that the company is trying to disintegrate their union. The 160 men in the night gang, it is asserted, will also refuse to work. There is a strong probability that the molders in the employ of the company will strike tomorrow to enforce their demand for a 10 per cent increase in wages.

At 11 o'clock the company started cars on the line to Stratford, but did not attempt to open any other line. It was announced, however, that the Barnum avenue line, on which the riotting occurred yesterday, would be reopened for business during the afternoon. Sheriff Hawley will swear in 100 extra deputies during the day.

In the court today, two of the men arrested in yesterday's rioting were held in bonds of $1000 each for the superior court.

Denver, May 18.—The state board of arbitration and committees of the chamber of commerce and the allied printing trades continued their efforts today to bring about an agreement between the citizens' alliance and the labor unions, but, apparently, with little prospects of adjusting matters as the general committee of organized labor adheres to its determination not to recognize the alliance. The number strikers today is estimated to be 6539 by the labor committee.

WAITRESSES QUIT.

Say the Women Guests Never Tip Them.

New York, May 18.—Because the patrons of the Martha Washington hotel, which is exclusively for women, would not tip the waitresses, the latter revolted, and now men are serving the customers. When the hotel was opened last March Manager Case decided it would be an excellent idea to have the young waitresses dressed in frocks of the colonial period.

It was also planned they should address the guests with "Prithee, what wouldst?" or "What shall I communicate to the chef in your behalf?" All went well for a few days until several waitresses began to complain that the guests never gave tips. One hinted that the taxes on her Harlem property was overdue, while another remarked that in all probability she would be compelled to spend the summer in the city. Case grew weary of the tip-seeking of the girls and let them out.

SWITCHMEN'S UNION

Begin Annual National Convention at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, May 18.—The national convention of the Switchmen's Union of North America opened today in Tomlinson hall with an open session. The convention was called to order by O. C. Williamson, of the local lodge.

The addresses of welcome were made by Daniel E. Storms, secretary of state, and Mayor Charles Bookwalter, and they were responded to by Frank T. Hawley, of Buffalo, grand master of the organization. William B. Wilson, secretary and treasurer of the mine workers, also delivered an address. One of the chief subjects that will come up during the meeting is the question of joining the American Federation of Labor. The feeling is divided. It is believed there will be no opposition to the re-election of Grand Master Hawley.

UNITARIANS

Begin Celebration of Anniversary Week at Boston.

Boston, May 18.—With a program covering seven days, the American Unitarian association began its "anniversary week" here today.

The meetings are expected to prove of unusual interest both on account of the attractions offered by the program as well as by the fact that the convention will close on Sunday with a general observance by all Unitarian churches of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Ralph Waldo Emerson.

SET FIRE TO PALACE.

Berlin, May 18.—The new heating apparatus which was on trial at the new palace, Potsdam, set fire to the apartments of the Crown Prince Frederick William today and destroyed the silk hangings, carpets and furniture. As the walls were fireproof, the flames were prevented from spreading. A report on the subject was sent to Emperor William.

GREATEST DAYLIGHT STORE.

The Ladies Invite

All to be with them tomorrow. The object of this benefit sale is worthy, and the prices are such as will appeal to your pocketbook interest. Be sure and come.

'TWILL BE A GALA DAY!

For one day we will rescind the management of the store and turn it over to the Ladies of the First M. E. Church—not only Management, but the entire Organization of the Establishment, will be in their hands. They will have their regular staff of Floor Walkers and Floor Managers—will have a well appointed force of pleasant and courteous Salesladies of their own choosing—in fact, will attend to every duty which good storekeeping demands. This is our second attempt in giving over our store to the sole charge of the Ladies, and, if our first experience is any criterion, we can bespeak in advance, that this will be the MOST SUCCESSFUL AND MEMORABLE STORE KEEPING DAY ever recorded in Duluth. No one ought to be absent from the store tomorrow—it will be a day that will possess many interesting features. It will be a day of instruction and a day of benevolence. You can study the well known ABILITIES OF AMERICAN WOMEN of being capable to adapt themselves to every position of human utility—you can observe how well society belles and dutiful housewives can discharge mercantile duties—you can also be benevolent by patronizing the Ladies liberally, as every cent you spend with them tomorrow will swell the amount that will go to the cause of their work. The Ladies will RECEIVE A PERCENTAGE FROM OUR TOTAL SALES, which will go to assist them in their benevolent work.—In addition to the regular store accommodations special arrangements have been made to to serve NOON-DAY LUNCH IN THE DAYLIGHT BASEMENT FROM 11:30 TO 2 O'CLOCK for 25c. Home cooking, well served, presided over by the Ladies, will tempt the business men and office employes to luncheon here instead of going home. MARION PEOPLE

Disturbed By the Howling of Prize Dogs.

New Bedford, Mass., May 18.—The natives of Marion will be greatly relieved when Richard Harding Davis gets home from Europe. They are anxious for his return and hope that the disturbances in the balkans and in Manchuria will be settled at once.

The kennel of prize dogs owned by the author and his wife are really at the bottom of this anxiety for Mr. Davis' return Ever since the Davises departed the pet dogs have disturbed the slumbers of the Marionites. The canes evidently miss their master sorely, for every night, beginning at dusk, the howling begins. The yelping continues until the break of day and the Marion people are growing hollow eyed through loss of sleep.

They hesitate about appealing to the town authorities to abate the nuisance for fear of bringing down the wrath of Mr. Davis upon them. They consider that the author is good to them because he reads his books to them and brings troops of real actors and actresses to Marion to perform his plays.

OFFICERS ELECTED

At Convention of Order of B'Nai B'Rith.

Omaha, May 18.—The annual convention of the Sixth district Jewish order of B'Nai B'Rith today devoted itself to matters coming up by resolution and to reports. The following officers were elected: President, J. L. Strelitsky, Grand Rapids, Mich.; first vice president, I. J. Levinson, Peoria, Ill.; second vice president, I. Goldberg, Kalamazoo, Mich.; secretary, E. P. Hamburgher, Chicago, re-elected; treasurer, David Fisher, Chicago.

The new court of appeals is composed of Simeon Bloom, Omaha; Charles Nassbaum, Petersburg, Ill.; William Sempliner, Bay City, Mich.; Charles Larons, Milwaukee, and William S. Newberger, Chicago.

TO EXTEND ROAD.

Guthrie, Ok., May 18.—The Colorado, Oklahoma & Texas Railroad company today filed amended articles of incorporation providing for the extension of the proposed route to a total distance of 600 miles from Pueblo to Denison, Texas. Capital stock $2,500,000. The following incorporations are E. E. Colby, Springfield, Mo.; L. E. Smith, Cleveland, O., and Frank Irwin, Fort Smith, Ark. The road, it is said, will be a feeder of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad and will cross the main line of that road at Wolf, Oklahoma.

KING'S THIRD LEVEE.

London, May 18.—King Edward held the third levee of his reign at Buckingham palace today. Ambassador Choate and other members of the United States embassy were present.

KILLED AT BULL FIGHT.

London, May 18.—A special dispatch from Madrid announces that during a bull fight yesterday at Algeciras, the amphitheatre collapsed and twelve persons were killed and fifty were injured. Several women and children were gored by the bulls.

SALARIES RAISED.

In fact, every conceivable kind and style of Jewelry, all set with BEAUTIFUL BRILLIANT

TRANSVAAL DIAMONDS

These goods have every appearance of pieces worth from $25 to $250 each. Experts cannot tell the Transvaal Diamonds from old mine stones by any test of sight, acid, heat or alkali. To all intents and purposes they are Diamonds, and can be treated just the same as the real gems in every way. All mountings are warranted and Transvaal Diamonds are guaranteed forever. In hardness, fire, color, brilliancy and lustre Thansvaal Diamonds are not surpassed by the genuine.

For this week we have made a 25% Reduction on all our goods which range in price from 50c to $50

What Are Transvaal Diamonds?

TRANSVAAL diamonds were first brought to the country by Mme. Fannie Reitz, the noted English actress, daughter of Secretary of State Reitz of the Transvaal Republic. The customs officials seized her jewels, supposed to be worth $100,000. She declared that they were but clever imitations and worth less than one-fiftieth the estimated amount. Every known test was applied, and eventually her statement was affirmed. The most expert jewelers were employed by the United States government to make this test and the only way they discovered the truth was by weight. Shortly afterwards we secured the right to Transvaal diamonds in this country and our success in their sale has been enormous. Diamonds that fool government experts are certainly clever enough to deceive anybody else, and countless wealthy women now have their valuable jewels duplicated with Transvaal diamonds as a protection against thieves in public. We have hundreds of designs space forbids us to show.

Transvaal Indestructible Pearls

Will not crack, break or discolor, and are sold only by us. In beauty of coloring and iridescent brilliancy they are not surpassed by the genuine Oriental pearls. We only mount these in solid gold—rings, pins, earrings, necklaces, etc. We sell these as low as $7.00

THE WEST LIVELY

Geo. H. Crosby Reports Healthy Conditions In Coast Cities.

After All, He Says, There Is No Place Like Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Crosby and children returned yesterday morning from the Pacific coast. Mrs. Crosby and her two children have spent the winter in California and with Mr. Crosby they have been touring the coast during the past month, going from Seattle to Old Mexico and returning by Salt Lake City and Omaha. All return much benefited in health by their trip.

"Healthy conditions prevail throughout the West," said Mr. Crosby this morning. "Seattle and Portland are particularly prosperous and lively. At Portland the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, which is doing a fine business there, is preparing to build a large branch house as a home for its operations. In Seattle the work of changing the railroad yards from one side of the city to another is making a lot of work. Portland is the center of an immensely rich country, and is the most attractive city in the West, to my notion. Seattle, however, is probably a livelier town just now. People that talk about high real estate prices and high rent in Duluth ought to look into conditions there. It costs $50 a month to rent a flat one can get for $30 in Duluth, and a Superior street business place that costs $175 a month would cost $375 a month out there.

"I looked up several mining propositions out there, but I came back satisfied to do the rest of my work along that line close to Duluth, on the Mesabi range. Usually the propositions about which a man is approached out there do not show up so well when examined personally as they do when examined through the spectacles of the man that wants to sell. I do not mean to say by any means that there are no good mining propositions, but the good ones are usually taken up by men of means close at hand.

"California is a pleasant place to spend a vacation of a month or so, but its charms have been over-estimated. To hear it talked about one forms a picture that does not last after one goes there. It has its drawbacks, just as any other place, such as the dry weather and dust. All along the coast there are cold, damp, penetrating winds from the ocean that make our lake breezes feel like the softest zephyrs. Not ten days ago, in the middle of the day, it was so cold in Del Monte that I not only needed an overcoat but an Indian blanket to keep me warm.

"Los Angeles is having a real estate and building boom. During January its building permits amounted to $1,500,000. Buildings, both for residence and business purposes, are going up on every hand, and they are platting and selling property twenty miles out of the city on the various electric lines. It is nearly all on Eastern capital. Eastern people are leaving $1,000,000 in California every four days.

"I saw a number of Duluth people out there, especially at Riverside, Redlands and Pasadena. Hulett Merritt is there, and he controls most of the electric power of Southern California. F. T. Buneman, who uesd to live here, is vice president of his company. The Webers, who used to be in the crockery business here, and A. A. Ammerman, who made money out of Consolidated stock, are at Los Angeles.

"There are people out there from all over the country, and they all know Duluth and have a good word for her. All of them believe she has a great future. Of course, we Duluthians all know that, and I return from my trip better satisfied with Duluth than ever, and with the full determination to handle Duluth real estate as I never have before. I am thoroughly satisfied there is no place like Duluth."

MAY ENTER NAVY.

George Joerns Will Take Annapolis Examination.

George Joerns, the son of W. G. Joerns, this morning received a telegram from Congressman J. Adam Bede notifying him that he had named him as a candidate for naval cadet.

He will go to Annapolis for examination June 16. Mr. Joerns is 20 years of age, and he is at present employed in the American Exchange bank.

NOTICE!

MR. F. J. BLUMKIN has resigned as manager of the White Barrios Diamond Co. Any contract that he may make for advertising, etc., we will not be responsible for.
WHITE BARRIOS DIAMOND CO.

LIEUT. G. A. DEISS TRANSFERRED

Will Open Army Recruiting Office at Fargo, N. D.

Duluth men who want to get jobs soldiering for Uncle Sam will have to hurry, for there will be no recruiting office here after Wednesday. Lieut. George A. Deiss, who has been here with a recruiting detail for the past seven months will remove Wednesday to Fargo, where he will open a recruiting office Thursday.

"I have had very good success in recruiting men for the various branches of the service in Duluth," said Lieut. Deiss this morning, "and I am very sorry to have to leave, though the service demands it. Duluth is a good recruiting town, for we get a better class of men here than we do anywhere else. We get a large number of woodsmen, who make excellent soldiers. They are strong and hardy and used to outdoor life, and they show up particularly well in camp. The office will be open at Fargo during the summer, as harvesting work calls to that section the class of men among whom we get a large proportion of our recruits. I hope to be back here in the fall."

Lieut. Deiss has made many warm friends during his stay in the city who will regret to learn of his intended departure.

All Members of the Y. W. C. A.

Are invited to the membership supper on Wednesday evening. Price, 15c. Election of board members will follow at 8 o'clock. Members desiring supper will notify the secretary by Tuesday evening.

PURIFYING THE CITY.

Mayor Todd of San Juan at Work.

San Juan, P. R., May 18.—Mayor Robert W. Todd is conducting the purifying process in municipal circles by wholesale discharges of city employes. Last week he dismissed five men because it was learned that four of them, all laborers, had served terms in prison. The fifth refused to prove his capacity to undergo an examination. Mayor Todd said today:

"I propose to reduce the city pay roll by cutting off twenty to twenty-five names very soon. They can be spared, and while I am alcade I propose to practice wise economy. Governor Hunt has put me here to serve the people and not the politicians and I shall do my duty."

The Republicans, who are in control of municipal affairs, are displeased by the attitude of Mayor Todd, who is a Republican, and the Federals applaud his independent stand.

EXILES FROM FRANCE.

New York, May 18.—The French liner La Champagne, which arrived today from Havre, brought sixty-four religious exiles from France, four sisters and sixty brothers, the latter, with two exceptions, being young students. Forty-six of the latter go to Metuchen, N. J., the others will go to Montreal.

No man can cure consumption. You can prevent it, though. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma. Never fails.

MISSING IS FOUND

Cleveland Young Man, Supposed to Have Killed Himself, Here.

Says He Simply Tired of Working and Came Away.

R. F. White, the son of one of the prominent business men of Cleveland, Ohio, who has been reported missing to the police of that city for ten days, is in Duluth.

The young man arrived here yesterday from the Twin Cities and registered at the Spalding hotel. He said he was worried and tired of work and left home to be away from his troubles.

When he left home he didn't tell anyone about it. He was working in the office of his father, and he took his leave unceremoniously and without explanations.

The disappearance was reported to the police a day or two afterwards, when no tidings could be secured of the boy by his relatives, and the Cleveland papers advanced the theory that he had committed suicide, or at least had tried to bury his troubles in the bosom of Lake Erie.

Constant watch has been kept by the authorities at Cleveland for any clue to the whereabouts of the young man, and the family has been greatly distressed over his disappearance.

When seen at the Spalding hotel this noon he had nothing particular to say, excepting that he had wired home and has received no replies as yet.

White is about 25 years of age, and his father is a wealthy business man of Cleveland. The boy had been in his father's employ since leaving college, and up to the time he left was not known to have been afflicted with any troubles.

He is engaged to marry a society girl of Washington, D. C., and it was believed by the Cleveland police that he might have gone there to see her, but when inquiry was made to her she denied any knowledge of his whereabouts.

"I wired home," said Mr. White this noon, "but haven't seen any reply to my telegram. The situation is not so serious as the newspapers in Cleveland have made it out to be. I got tired of working and was worried over some matters, so I thought I would go away where I wasn't known and keep out of everybody's way for a few days.

"I was at St. Paul and Minneapolis for a few days and didn't think it was necessary to inform anyone of my whereabouts, so I didn't wire home till I wanted to communicate with members of the family.

"The newspapers have made the incident very much greater than it actually is. There is nothing serious about my leaving home. I was tired of working and so I went away. They must know where I am if the messages were received at home."

Mr. White is of youthful appearance, and was recognized by several of his acquaintances from Cleveland when he arrived here, among which were Price McKinney and W. L. Lamson, both of that city.

He will remain in Duluth till he hears from home, and then he will probably proceed immediately. This noon he expected to be able to leave on the 5 o'clock train this evening.

Intimations from Cleveland were to the effect that he had become so seriously affected through a love affair that he decided to end his worries. He has been with friends in the Twin Cities for several days.

PUBLIC ASSEMBLAGES

Have Been Prohibited In Province of Saratoff.

St. Petersburg, Friday, May 15.—All public assemblages in the province of Saratoff have been prohibited under pain of heavy penalties. A proclamation of the governor has been posted in all the towns and villages and has been published in all the newspapers forbidding all public gatherings in warning the people against interference with the police while in the discharge of their duties, ordering crowds which may collect in contravention of this order to disperse on first summons of the police. By disobeying any provisions of the proclamation anyone is liable to a fine of $250, or three months' imprisonment. This stringent order is the result of renewed popular agitation. Disturbances in several localities in the province of Saratoff are feared in St. Petersburg.

ENDOWED THEATER.

Many Problems to be Solved, Says Jefferson.

New York, May 18.—A meeting in furtherance of the plan for the establishment of a National Art theater was held last night in the Garrick theater. Joseph Jefferson made the principal address in the course of which he said that while he was in favor of an endowed theater, there were many problems to be solved. "I believe," said Mr. Jefferson, "it is much better to call attention to the stumbling blocks before the project is under way than after. Forewarned is forearmed. The people who subsidize the theater will be very exacting in their demands of the actors and very critical. The authors will be severely criticized. If a theater can be established with a saving of rent and a continued subsidy, it is sure to be a success. It will be able to present more finely the drama. The drama is better than ever today. Not only commercially, but artistically and it is better acted. It is far better represented than ever."

DR. AMES' SENTENCE.

The sentence imposed upon Former Mayor Ames of Minneapolis must be regarded as entirely just. No doubt his friends and sympathizers—who are still numerous, despite the evidence of bribery and corruption which was produced at his trial—think that Judge Elliott was too severe when he imposed a sentence of six years in the state's prison. But the judge would have failed in his duty had he been more lenient; had he inflicted the full ten years' penalty allowed by the law he would not have been justly chargeable with severity. Dr. Ames was the chief of a gang of corrupt officials and to have given him a lighter punishment than was inflicted upon the subordinate members of the gang would have been a travesty upon justice. It is true that Dr. Ames is an old man and apparently broken in health, and that he possesses some admirable traits that have gained him the devoted friendship and sympathy of many honest men, but it not infrequently happens that the basest criminal has some good qualities which command admiration and behind the shelter of which he is able for a long time to carry on his wrong-doing without suspicion.

It is to the credit of Judge Elliott that he resisted the influences of influential men who appealed for clemency for the former mayor who betrayed the trust reposed in him by the people and used his office for shameful purposes. As the judge said, when pronouncing sentence, his duty was to administer the law with respect to the crime committed and without regard to the personality or previous good record of the convicted man, and that any appeal for clemency should be addressed to the proper quarter—the board of pardons, which has power to reduce the sentence or even grant a full pardon. No doubt an appeal will be made to save the doctor from going to prison. Whether his imprisonment would, on account of his age and broken health or impaired mentality, involve cruel and inhuman punishment, is a question which the board of pardons must determine. The court and jury in Minneapolis have done their duty, and the hands of justice have been strengthened thereby.

THE PIECEWORK SYSTEM.

Labor unions are rapidly getting into disrepute with the navy department on account of the refusal of mechanics to accept the piecework system recently put into practice. The officials do not like this stand of the men and it already has had an effect in the distribution of work by which the Brooklyn yard has suffered materially. The department has recently adopted the practice of sending warships to private yards for repair work, ignoring the navy yards. This was done with the battleship Maine, and also with the Olympia, both of which were sent to the Newport News Shipbuilding company's plant for some important repair work that was needed in a hurry. It was formerly the custom to have all work of this character done at the navy yards, and Brooklyn has heretofore been looked upon as one of the best stations available for this purpose. But the fights there in connection with the employment of non-union men in the installation of the traveling crane for the battleship Connecticut created a bad impression at the department. This was augmented by the more recent trouble over the rejection of the piecework system. If this thing is carried along much further it will be only a question of time before the navy yard will have to cut down its force on account of lack of work. The men at the yard should take notice of these warnings and come to some sort of an agreement with the department. Officers who helped frame the wage scale for men on piecework on the Connecticut say that it is as liberal as any in effect at private plants. They declare that an energetic laborer can earn double his usual pay, and that it is just in every respect.

There is no reason why men should not be willing to do piecework. It enables the smartest to profit by their ability, and works no injustice to the less capable man. Where possible piecework should be the rule in every industry. It is well to know that the navy department will not abolish the piecework system until after a full trial. For the time being the department proposes to go ahead regardless of the displeasure of the labor unions. If the unions are wise they will not antagonize the system as long as the rates are equitable.

The Springfield Republican says: The theory about Gen. Miles is exceedingly singular. Although he was sent to the Philippines on an inspection tour, objection now arises because he reported what he saw and heard. The business of inspection is to inspect, and then to tell the truth about it. But the other idea is that an inspector should inspect and say nothing.

The Washington Post says that the prettiest girls are found in Washington, which is proof positive that the editor has never visited Duluth.

The French commissioner who went to sleep in St. Louis and awoke in San Francisco now knows what mint juleps will do.

The American quick lunch has been introduced in London. This opens a new field for American digestion pills.

Chicago is going to try the voting machine. If it works well there, no other city need hesitate to adopt it.

The tails of the shah's horses are dyed a deep red. This suggests a new fad for Newport "society."

And now a peanut trust is announced. How it will be roasted!

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

It is the intention of the Republican leaders of congress to present a financial measure at the next session which will provide an emergency currency to meet the frequent demands for greater circulation of money, which occur at stated periods. The committee of senators which met at Hot Springs, Va., outlined a plan and it will be put in shape for presentation. Senator Aldrich has the matter in charge and will arrange the details which will include some of the features of the Aldrich bill as well as the best of the Fowler measure. As described by those who are in a position to know the features of the bill, it is a plan to permit the national banks to issue "emergency" circulation, aside from the usual bond-secured circulation, up to within 20 or 25 per cent of the capitalization. Such emergency circulation is to pay a heavy tax, not less than 3 per cent, the object of which will be to force the retirement of these notes when the emergency that caused their issuance shall have passed. This circulation would in effect be based upon the assets of the various banks, and to this extent may be termed asset circulation.

At the present time the capital of the various national banks aggregates $735,000,000. If the banks were authorized to issue 20 per cent of this in the shape of emergency circulation it would add something like $140,000,000 to the volume of money outstanding. While the capitalization of the national banks is only about $735,000,000, they hold the enormous sum of $340,000,000 in the shape of surplus money. It is pointed out that this could easily be converted into capital also, which would add about 50 per cent to the total amount of money that could be used as the basis for the issuance of emergency notes. It is pointed out that while this plan involves something new in the way of currency legislation, it will be necessary to adopt an experimental scheme if anything is to be done to afford relief to the country in the event of a money stringency. The treasury department has exhausted every condition of law in past efforts to assist the business communities in times of money panic. In fact, it is generally admitted that Secretary Shaw overstepped the law when he accepted state and municipal bonds as security for government deposits last fall. This instance is cited to show that if a really beneficial law is to be placed on the statute books it must be something radical and experimental in character.

If the committee of senators can induce the house committee on banking and currency to favor the measure, there is not much doubt of its success. The committee, however, is a peculiar one, and it is hard to get it to agree on anything. With the opening of a new congress, there will be some changes in the membership of this committee, and Speaker Cannon may name a committee that will agree to report some measure similar to that now being prepared by the Republican members of the senate finance committee. There is urgent need of legislation of this character.

THE FOOD TRIALS.

Uncle Sam's boarding house in which young men connected with the various departments have been fed on boraxed food has proved so successful that it will be continued for an indefinite period. The "poison squad" seem to have thrived on the preservatives and they will be fed with other chemicals until their harmlessness is assured, or the digestive apparatus of the boarders gives out. The experiments with borax have been running on for six months. Professor Wiley will end them in a few weeks and get into shape the data that has been gathering since the inauguration of the trials. He expects to complete his report, embodying the result of the experiment, early in September. It goes without saying that the outcome will be awaited with a great deal of interest. It is believed that the conclusion will be favorable to the American contention, which is that boracic acid and borax used in reasonable proportions as preservatives are not harmful. One argument in favor of this conclusion is the fact that the experiments are to be continued. If it were found that the members of the squad drooped and faded under their diet of deadly compositions, the experiments would have been quickly abandoned. So much comment was occasioned by the unique trials that Secretary Wilson some time ago issued a stringent order that no information in regard to them should be given out. He thought that too much attention was being attracted to the fact that artificial preservatives were generally employed in American food products. Since the issuance of this order it has been difficult to learn of the progress of the experiment. When Professor Wiley was asked how his subjects were holding out under their strenuous food trials, he replied, with a twinkle in his eye: "Well, I can't talk about that, but I can tell you that the coroner has not yet been around to investigate the causes of sudden deaths in this vicinity."

After the end of the boracic acid and borax tests Professor Wiley will take up another branch of the food inquiry. This will cover the use of preservatives and coloring matters of all kinds and will naturally take in a wider range of subjects. He proposes to find out what effect is produced on the individual by eating food that has had added to it foreign articles for the purpose of giving extra weight, a pleasing color, body and consistency and for preserving. This will cover every class of preservatives except salt, pepper and vinegar, the effects of which are well known already. Among the chemicals that will be fed to the "poison squad" are salicylic acid, sulphites and sulphurous acid, fluorides, mineral colors such as coal tar, sulphate of copper, sulphate of zinc, vegetable colors, etc. Professor Wiley has mapped out a program of experiments that will occupy three or four years and, if he can induce congress to give him the money each year, he will keep up the present work until he has gathered all the information that is needed.

One thing is certain, and that is, that the only certain way of determining just what effect these chemicals has on the human system is to try them. Thus far no injurious effects have been encountered.

Congressman Bede's efforts to secure a readjustment of the land district boundaries have been successful, and the Duluth district gets back 1,000,000 acres in Northern Minnesota. It is a good thing for Duluth and for the settlers, and Mr. Bede deserves congratulations.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

J. O. Quinquist, who comes from Evansville, is at the Spalding hotel, while in an investigating trip to Northern Minnesota.

Mr. Guinquist is in this part of the state, he says, for the purpose of starting a hog and chicken ranch, and is looking over property in various sections of the county, with a view of making some purchases in the near future.

Mr. Guinquist is an expert poultry raiser and has established institutions of this kind near several of the larger cities in the East. He says that if there is tillable land in this vicinity he will build the farm this year.

It is the intention of the visitor to send some expert farmers and cultivators of the chicken and hog raising here, and, like the company he represents, does in Chicago and several cities, will have an automobile line to give the farm a short distance from the business center of the city.

Arrangements are being made to take the refuse from the hotels for hog-fattening purposes, and some new fangled electric locomobiles will be brought here for that purpose.

Mr. Guinquist has not selected the piece of property he believes desirable as yet, but has had several offers and will close his deals within a few days.

Price McKinney, of Cleveland, who has been in this city and vicinity for the past four days will leave for home this evening. He is accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. S. Burke, and the party has been up on the range in a special car looking over the Corrigan-McKinney properties.

George B. Alton, one of the state school officials, who was at the Hotel McKay Saturday, returned from making a land purchase that may be of some interest in Duluth, at Grand Rapids the latter part of last week. Mr. Alton has purchased 240 acres of land and intends to build up a large model farm upon the grounds.

Richard Ferris, the owner of the Ferris Stock company, at Minneapolis, sent word yesterday that he was headed for Duluth in an automobile.

Mrs. Ferris, who will be seen here this week, preferred to travel by train, and reached here yesterday morning, but the masculine portion of the family, saw a chance to get the bracing northern atmosphere, and exercise for his machine at the same time, and decided to take advantage of the pleasant weather of yesterday and come up in the electric machine.

Mr. Ferris sent no bulletins and there was no chance to know where he was or what become of his party during the rain of yesterday afternoon.

This morning there was no word from him, though Mrs. Ferris at the Spalding hotel was expecting him every minute.

Mr. Ferris has recently become quite a fancier of racing machines, and has traded and bought until he has a fast sleek looking auto, and though it is city broke and can go on the asphalt of Minneapolis, there is some speculation as to how it will behave traveling over the country rough roads between the Twin Cities and Duluth.

President W. F. Fitch of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway arrived in Duluth yesterday, and registered at the Spalding. Mr. Fitch has been in the East and has just returned from a tour of inspection over his road.

F. Marc, who has been in Duluth for the past two weeks, studying the metal trade for a Paris house, will go to Chicago this evening, and before his return will probably be in possession of facts which will permit an announcement as to the intentions of the company regarding an investment in the Lake Superior iron country.

The Yesterdays of Nations.

"The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap."—Isaiah xvii, 1.

Broken pillar and crumbling stone
Tell of her yesterdays,
Tell of the time when she stood alone
Mighty in all her ways,
Trackless stretches of heaping sand,
Real in the wasting heat,
Breathe of sinuous serabaud
Tripped by the joyous feet.

Fallen temple and shattered tomb,
Tumbled and gaping wall,
Tell of clambering vine and bloom—
Beauty that covered all.
Silent, solemn and echoless,
Under the brooding sky—
Where the profit to them that guess,
Asking us when and why?

Once the trumpet in brazen glee
Sang at the palace gates;
Once the masters of minstrelsy
Babbled of loves and hates;
Once the sword in the jeweled sheath
Clamored along the way—
Dead today, with the crumbling wreath
Worn in that yesterday.

So the glamour and so the pride—
Marble and brass and gold—
Dust of ages to come will hide
Tombs of the years will hold.
We, unknown and overvain,
Strong in our sweep and sway,
Hug the baubles that mark our reign—
Living our yesterday.

Seton's "Hall of Fame."

Pittsburg Post: When Ernest Thompson Seton, the naturalist, recently suggested the adopted idea for a hall of fame at the St. Louis exposition for fifty worthies connected with western development, he named in his list Mr. Des Moines, presumming that the founder of Iowa's well-known city was a pioneer. Now fun is raging furiously over that proposal to put in bust form Des Moines, and the suggestion is seized as confirming the charge by John Burroughs that Mr. Seton's animal anecdotes are from his imagination. The paper at Des Moines says there is no pioneer by the name of Des Moines, but that the words mean "The Mounds." But an authoritative encyclopedia says Des Moines is French for "of the Monks." However, there should be no difficulty about securing a bust. Ethan Allen stands heroic in Statuary hall at Washington, and it is well known that no portrait of him was ever extant. Of course, "storied urn or animated bust" cannot call back to his mansion Mr. Des Moines, but he can be symbolized.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), May 18.—Showers fell over the Middle Mississippi valley, upper lake region and Northwest, and rain or snow in the Rocky mountains. The barometer is low over the Dakotas and British Columbia and high over Atlantic and Pacific states. Temperatures continue moderately warm to high in districts east of the 100th meridian, wes of that line it is cool with freezing temperature in the Rocky mountain region. In the lake region the winds are mostly southerly and light to fresh except brisk at Chicago.

FLASHES OF FUN.

Puck: Mrs. Trotter—I don't know what's the matter with these slippers.

Her Husband—Perhaps they're large enough.

Yonkers Statesman: "Try one of our new sofas," said the man in the furniture shop; "they're very healthy. Every one is stuffed with a new breakfast food."

Chicago Tribune: Mrs. Lakeside—Is she fickle?

Mrs. La Salle—It seems not. She has been married to the same man three times in succession.

Chicago Tribune: Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, do you believe there's anything in palmistry?

Mr. Chugwater—Yes: I have been told that some palmists get as high as $100 a week out of it.

Washington Star: "Do you recall that famous scene in which the tragedian cries, 'A horse, a kingdom for a horse?'"

"No," answered the man with plaid clothes; "I never cared much for the racing melo-drama."

Philadelphia Press: "You don't mean to tell me he is a pugilist?"

"Not at all. I said he was a 'light-weight boxer.'"

"Well, he's a packer of strawberries."

Brooklyn Eagle: Mrs. Gabbler—That dentist stopped my mouth with wax today, so I couldn't say a word.

Mrs. Gabbler—Great Scott! I wonder what it would cost to engage him permanently?

Somerville Journal: It takes the man who hasn't much mind a long time to make it up, and as long as it takes the man who hasn't much hair a long time to part it to his satisfaction.

Philadelphia Press: "Gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Nannie Goat, "look at that Kid of ours!"

"What's he doing?" demanded Mr. William Goat.

"Look at him. There he is now, standing on his head."

"Ah! I'll bet a juicy gum shoe against a bunch of tin cans he's been eating a circus poster."

The Poet In Action.

York Republican: One of the most beautiful sights ever seen in Nebraska was the army of tender shoots, with their green leaves encased in a glistening armor of ice that sparkled and scintillated in the morning sun as the gentle breeze from the north swept them to and fro in the early morning. Every one of them was standing rigidly up for the state. They were in a state where everything had to stand up.

Casualties on the Rail.

Springfield Republican: American railroads have not of late been improving their record of casualties. During the last half of last year, according to a statement made by the Interstate Commerce commission, no less than 163 passengers were killed in railroad accidents and 1969 injured. This is as bad as a whole year's record of calamity is. Congestion of traffic, overworking of employes and the strain put upon the whole mechanism of railroading probably explain, if they do not excuse, the very bad showing made.

Game Protection In the West.

Casper Whitney in Outing: Game protection!—there indeed is where I found a new understanding from end to end of the whole country. Not only have excellent new laws been enacted in the last three or four years, but what is fully as important, the spirit of the majority of the people is entirely in sympathy with them. This is not only important; it is literally vital; for a game law is a dead letter unless supported by the local community. Wherever I went I found sentiment strongly in favor of game protection, and particularly emphatic and outspoken against spring shooting. Here again the West shows the way to the East.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Nagging has driven more men to crime than all the vices in the world.

The trouble with present-day humanity is that it is being coddled into wreck and ruin.

A girl can blush so easily that she will do it even when she is reading in a novel where the heroine begins her honeymoon.

The more a man explains a thing to a woman, the surer she is she could understand it better without the reasons being made clear.

It is very thoughtless of a girl who deserves to be kissed to wear one of those big hats that act to a man the way a battleship's torpedo net acts.

Similar In Form Only.

Philadelphia Record: There is something in the phrasing of Lord Lansdowne's declaration in the house of lords with reference to British policy in the Persian gulf which recalls the pronouncement of President Monroe on the integrity of republican America. "I say without hesitation," remarked the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, "that we should regard the establishment of a naval base or a fortified port in the Persian gulf by any other power as a very grave menace to British interests, and we should certainly resist it with all the means at our disposal." The resemblance between the two "Monroe doctrines," however, is merely in the form thereof. In substance they are as wide apart as the poles. The intent of the genuine Monroe doctrine is to uphold the right of the governed to decide who shall govern them; the object of the Lansdowne variant is to maintain in security the rule of European Britons over Asiatic Hindoos without the leave of the latter.

A FAIR LEVEE CUTTER

By Edwin J. Webster.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Like most disputes the Harrison-Peyton "feud" started over a trivial matter. Squire Harrison claimed possession of a little neck of land which jutted out into the Mississippi. Old Archibald Peyton said the neck of land in question belonged to him. The Mississippi is so constantly shifting its banks that boundaries are confused and it was hard to tell which was in the right. The courts finally decided that the land belonged to Archibald Peyton. And, of course, Irascible Squire Harrison vowed vengeance and declared that all intercourse between the Harrison and Peyton families must cease. Archibald Peyton was more than willing it should.

Both were obstinate old men and accustomed to having their own way. But in this case the edict against friendly relations between the two families was vigorously opposed by Jack Harrison, the son of the old squire, and by pretty Isabella Peyton. The young people also had an ally in the great, muddy Mississippi, which flowed in a resistless stream in front of both the Peyton and the Harrison plantations. And when Cupid and the old Mississippi are in alliance it makes a coalation hard for the sternest parents to defeat.

The little neck of land which had caused the trouble was worth at the most $5. Jack Harrison calculated that Isabella was worth an incalculable number of five to him at least. He proposed to his father that as the land was practically valueless he should give it up and allow amicable relations between the two families to be resumed. The irascible squire greeted this with a snort of disgust.

"What! Give up my land to that scoundrel of a Peyton? Never while I'm alive. Not that I have anything against the girl. She's a nice girl. If she could only manage to push her father into the river some day I'd receive her with open arms."

But of course this wasn't a proposition which appealed very strongly to anyone but the squire.

Then the Mississippi began to take a hand in the game. First it bit a piece off the extremity of the neck of land and carried it down the river. Then it began to eat into the banks on the north side. Then, as the river rose from the effects of heavy rains far to the north, it began to creep steadily up on the little isthmus which connected the neck of land with the mainland.

It was plain that the big river would soon settle the dispute as to the ownership of the land by silently eating it away and carrying it down stream. That would never do, thought Squire Harrison. So he turned in with his son and a force of men and built a levee along the northern side of the neck of land, where it was most exposed to the assaults of the river. The building of this levee cost many times what the land was worth, as Jack Harrison pointed out to his father. But the squire was obstinate. He would spend a hundred times what the land was worth rather than have it swept away and give Archibald Peyton a chance to gloat over the practical uselessness of the decision which made the land the squire's property.

The building of the levee protected the neck of land, but made things harder for the young lovers. Old Archibald Peyton gave vent to numerous sarcastic remarks about the business sense of a man who would build a $500 levee to protect a $5 piece of property. Mutual friends reported these gibes to Squire Harrison. The squire said things unbecoming his age and dignity and was more than ever determined that there should be no intercourse between the families.

But, as if enraged at being checked by the levee, the Mississippi rose higher and higher. It swirled and bubbled around the end of the neck of land. It formed little eddies which ate away the banks on the south side. It hurled the full strength of its mighty current against the little levee on the north side. Even if the levee fell no damage would be done to the mainland. But with the river at almost full flood it was certain that the slightest break in the levee would mean the sweeping away of the feud-causing neck of land.

And one night the break came. It was a tiny one at first, but as the current rushed through it became larger and larger. An alarm was given and Squire Harrison and his son rushed to try and stop the break. But the river had been given a chance and meant to take it. The rushing waters seemed to laugh at the efforts of the squire and his forces to check their flow. Larger and larger grew the break; swifter and swifter the current. By dawn half of the little neck was under water and it was evidently only a question of a few hours when the mighty river would cover all the small piece of property which had been productive of so much hard feeling.

But the breaking of the levee had one good effect. It stopped the Harrison-Peyton feud. Both the obstinate old gentlemen recognized that it was rather absurd to be at swords points over the possession of a bit of land which was covered by twenty feet of muddy Mississippi. Little by little the two families resumed their friendly relations. Before the breaking of the levee both stern fathers would have torn what was left of their hair at the thought of a marriage between the younger members of representatives of the families. Yet, in the end, the announcement of the engagement met with the most amiable approval from both old Archibald Peyton and Squire Harrison. Though, of course, the squire did not dream that brown-eyed Isabella had been guilty of one of the most serious crimes in the state penal code.

Soon after the announcement of the engagement Isabella made her confession.

"If you were a judge," she asked Jack Harrison rather shyly, "and some one was convicted of cutting a levee, what sentence would you impose?"

Now among the river planters levee cutting is regarded as a most serious offense. So Jack responded promptly:

"Imprison the culprit for life."

"But," pleaded Isabella, "that old neck of land wasn't worth anything and was doing a great, a very great deal of harm. And then," she added in explanation, "I only made a very little cut in the levee. The good old Mississippi did the rest."

But Jack decided that sentence having been legally pronounced must stand.

"In view, however," he added in his most judicial tone, "of the extenuating circumstance that it 'was only a little cut' I think I had better act as jailer as well as judge."

And for once a self-confessed culprit seemed to have no wish to appeal from a life sentence.

Should Be Properly Attired.

Hutchinson Leader: In a lecture here some time ago the Rev. E. C. Clemans—who has just been appointed presiding elder of the Duluth district—said, in speaking of a burial at Chickamauga Park while he was a chaplain in the army, that he didn't propose that any of his "boys" should show up on the resurrection morn in their shirt tails. It behooves the good people of the North country to go properly attired when contemplating a trip with Sharon over the river Styx.

A MAN'S VIEW.

The girl's spring hat
Is broad and flat.
It has no rim,
But is all brim.

Girls tall or short
This pancake sport;
Girls thin or fat
All wear this hat.

Far o'er their eyes
Its monstrous size
Protrudes and nods—
A sight for gods.

Of khaki hue
This hat is, too;
Its straw is tough
And coarse and rough.

'Tis big and plain.
It gives one pain;
The girls' spring hat,
Broad, fierce and flat.

The Dolly Var-
Den hat was far
More fetching than
This shapeless pan.

HIS SPECULATION.

Brooklyn Eagle: "Now, young man," said the old gentleman, "it's time you did something for yourself."

"I know it, dad," replied the hopeful, "and I have a great scheme."

"You've always had great schemes."

"But this is a real one."

"I thought it was a real one the time I got you into a law office."

"This is better than that."

"Yes; it was going to be better than that when I bought you an interest in a brokerage business, but you failed there, too."

"I know I did, dad. I wasn't cut out for that business, but this is a speculation that promises big returns."

"So was that deal in wheat."

"Well, I wasn't cut out for that line, either."

"I can't find that you're cut out for anything that pays."

"Yes, I am, dad. You don't think that my education has been entirely wasted, do you?"

"It ought not to be, if one judges by the cost."

"Well, it isn't. I've got it all planned out, and it's just the speculation that suits me. I'll win sure."

"Well, state your plan."

"It's very simple, dad. All you have to do is to stake me for a trip to the seashore this summer, and I'll marry an heiress sure."

The old gentleman looked at his son for a few minutes thoughtfully.

"By thunder! I believe you're right!" he exclaimed at last. "You know just enough to make a fine impression on people who don't know you. And yet—"

"Don't you think I'll succeed?"

"You've never succeeded in anything yet, but I concede there is a good chance in this—a very good chance, if you pick out an orphan."

"Why an orphan, dad?"

"Because, if she happens to have a wise old father, I'm afraid he'll sue me for unloading a gold brick on his family. Still, it's a good speculation if you're careful."

THE DREAM OF WOMAN.

This is the dream of the woman,
Ever since time began,
Or ever since first, like a flower, she burst
Full blown on the vision of man.

She dreams of a realm of pleasure,
Of music, and bloom, and mirth,
(Yet sorrow lies curled in this rose of a world,
Or where were her mission on earth?)

She dreams of a man-ruled region,
And ever the ruler is just;
The rights of her sex do not worry or vex,
For the dream man is worthy of trust.

She knows he is stronger of muscle,
He knows she is stronger of soul,
And always they seem in this wonderful dream
Two halves of a beautiful whole.

And ever he worships her beauty
And ever he bows to her worth,
Beside, not above her, protector and lover,
He walks to the ends of the earth.

She toils in the vineyard of duty,
But knows not the wage-earner's strife,
Her work is but pleasure and sweeter than leisure—
The labor of mother and wife.

Now this is the dream of the woman,
And why has it vanished away?
The wage-earning throng through the land moves along—
Who welcomed the dreamer? I say.

—ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Financial Strength of Britain.

Philadelphia Ledger: If any one has entertained the idea that Great Britain had been impoverished by the South African war he will need to review his opinion, in view of the popular subscriptions to the Transvaal loan. Not only are the offers of the bankers sufficient to cover the loan many times over, but it is said that the individual subscriptions not exceeding a hundred pounds will more than make up the whole amount. This is the most interesting feature of the whole transaction, since it indicates more distinctly than the large offers of the bankers the wealth that is widely diffused among the people. The interest on this new loan is higher than has been usual, which will account for the eagerness of small investors, but the success of the loan is not the less significant of the financial strength of the country.

WINS WITH EASE

Duluth Defeats Stillwater In a Finely Played Game.

All Positions Played Well —Big Duluths Win From Superior.

Duluth played a spicy, fast game at Stillwater yesterday, defeating a heretofore unconquered aggregation with the greatest ease.

With the bases full in the first inning Gehring smashed out a home run and from that time on Stillwater rooters were exceedingly sad.

Mueller pitched for Duluth and, with the exception of the eighth he had the finest kind of speed, curves and control. Only two hits were made off him in seven innings. He struck out ten men.

It was practically an errorless game for Duluth as Shepard was responsible in making the only miss—he and Lambert colliding in their efforts to get a difficult short fly.

Lagger was brought in from outfield and stationed at second and he played the fastest fielding game despite this shift from his regular position. He accepted six hard chances without an error.

McCoy set the pace in the way of hitting, having a double and two singles out of four times up. Gehring's home run, however, was the feature of the day and is said to be the longest drive ever seen on the Stillwater grounds.

"Lookie" Kline was in his old time form and caught Mueller without an error or misplay of any kind. He scored two of Duluth's runs and placed a nice single when it was most needed.

Lambert and Shepard both played fast ball, the former making a catch out in center that was well worth the price of admission. Moran failed to reach Stillwater and Leonard, the extra catcher, played first, accepting thirteen chances without a miss.

Dellar, who pitched for Stillwater is a brother of the famous twirler that Duluth traded to Crookston for Mueller. Both pitched a good game and was the only player able to steal a base on Kline.

The score was as follows:

DULUTH.	R.	H.	PO.	A.	E.
Lagger, 2b	0	1	2	4	0
Shepard ss	1	1	0	3	1

The Duluth team has gone to Fargo for the opening of the league season. Kennelly, first baseman, and Whalen, second baseman, and Volz, pitcher, will report for duty there.

* * *

The Big Duluths played ball all around the Superior Northern league team yesterday and apparently the only thing that saved Tim Keefe's contingent from a tremendous drubbing was a convenient rain storm. In five innings the league players made only three hits off Lovell while the amateurs touched up Davis and Daniels for ten including three two baggers, a triple and a home run. In addition to this the Big Duluths rang in a thriller in the shape of a triple play in which Lovell, Irvine and Palmer participated.

The score by innings:

Big Duluths	2	3	1

With Lowe pitching the Universal Millers of this city defeated Cloquet yesterday by a score of 10 to 9. The Millers put up a very fast game.

The E. A. Patricks won the first game of the Jobbers' league season Saturday defeating the Govan-Peyton-Twohy team. The score was:

Patricks	5	0	1	3	0	4	1	0	1—15
G.-P.-T.	0	2	1	2	3	2	0	0	4—14

Batteries—Moe and Lears.

Yesterday morning the team from Fletcher's boarding house defeated the Penney boarding house team by a score of 4 to 3 in a nice seven-inning game.

The Court House and First National bank teams played a tie game at Lakeside Saturday. The score:

Court House	2	0	2	0	0	3	0	0	0—7
First National	1	0	0	0	0	0	2	1	2—7

Batteries—R. Butchart and Halbert.

The Winnipeg Telegram says that there will be little something doing Wednesday, the twentieth day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and three, and that little something will be done in the city of Winnipeg. It is the day of the opening of the Northern Baseball league, and on it the Maroons will throw the hooks into Mr. Keefe's little bunch of longshoremen from the ambitious burg of West Superior. Incidentally there will be the little ceremony consequent on the raising of the pennant and a parade in which the two ball teams and a band of brazen and wood wind instruments will cut something of a figure. After these preliminaries there will be a ball game and the faithful will have an opportunity of clearing their lungs and sending up joyous roars to cheer the Maroons along to victory.

The game which the high school boys played in Superior with the Northern league team of that city last Saturday, resulted in a victory for the league men by a score of 12 to 3.

The game was a rather bad one. The work of the high school boys was at no time up to the standard which they played against the Duluth team last week.

Cummings was wild and did not pitch anything like his usual game. The infield played a game replete with errors. The students played as good a game as the leaguers could and would have won but for the slump they took in the fourth inning when five men scored.

Summers, the high school third baseman, knocked a clean home run over the fence and into a nearby swamp. Winters also got home on a ball which found its way over the fence but he was aided by errors by the Superior infield.

Superior tried out three pitchers. Davis walked everybody for two innings and then in his third and last fanned three straight. Keefe's inability to throw anywhere near second base was apparent at every stage of the game and it gave the high school several extra runs.

The Superior team as it lined up against the high school is weaker than the aggregation which lined up against the boys in Duluth uniforms. And since the Duluth team has been strengthened it must easily be a much faster team than the white uniforms of Superior.

The line-up:

Superior league—	Central high school.
Keefe	catcher	Potter
Gordon and Davis
and Daniel	pitcher	Cummings
King	first base	Cranmer
Blair	second base	Winters
Spellicy	shortstop	Scobie
Durall	third base	Summers
Hall	left field	Clayton
Foster	center field	Oppel
Thomas	right field	St. Clair

Umpires—Dash and Bennett.

Scores:

	R.	H.
C. H. S.	1 0 1 2 0 0 4 1 0—9	7
Superior	1 1 0 5 2 1 0 2 0—12	19

FITZ'S NEXT FIGHT

Probably Will Be With Gardner of Lowell.

New York, May 18.—Bob Fitzsimmons' next opponent in the ring will, in all probability, be George Gardner, of Lowell. Ever since Fitz declared that he would agree to meet any heavyweight at San Francisco during the same week of the mill between Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett, the Cornishman has been flooded with challenges from aspiring pugilists. Among the defis received was one from Gardner.

A MILLION ACRES

Duluth District Is Returned Much of Its Land.

Arrangement Is Effected Whereby Northern Itasca County Remains Here.

More than 1,000,000 acres of land have been taken away from the new Cass Lake land district and given back to the Duluth district, as the result of the efforts of Congressman Buckman and Senator Nelson.

The land is in the northern part of Itasca county, and includes some of the best land that Duluth stood a chance of losing under the recent order leaving this district only a tier of townships at the eastern border of Itasca county.

This insures that the Duluth office will continue in the first class for years to come. It also relieves the settlers of Northern Itasca county, who would have had to go through Duluth anyway to get to the Cass Lake land office.

It will also continue Duluth in her position of the leading land office in the country, which would not have been true had the original arrangement being continued.

Official notice of the change was received Saturday afternoon by the local land office officers, in the following terms: "Exclude from the report called for by letter of May 2, the land north of the line between townships 64-65, Fourth principal meridian, and townships 152-153, Fifth meridian, as it is proposed to transfer said lands to your district."

This news was a source of great satisfaction to everybody concerned, and it was also something of a surprise, as when the order dividing the districts was received it was supposed that all hope of a better arrangement was gone. Congressman Bede wrote to a Duluth friend about ten days ago, however, that he was quite certain that the change announced Saturday would be made. Congressman Buckman joined him in making the request that it be made.

Considerable disappointment was felt when the original arrangement was announced, particularly as the Cass Lake people had promised that the dividing line should be farther west than it was fixed when the division was made. Every effort was put forth to bring about a different arrangement, but the land office people gave it out that the change was final. The suggestion that the northern part of Itasca county be replaced in the Duluth district was offered by Mr. Bede as a compromise, and it was accepted in that spirit and the change was made accordingly.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington Saturday night gave the following account of the change:

"Congressman Bede had a conference with Land Commissioner Richards today, and as a result the commissioner issued an order which will be forwarded to the president for his signature, restoring to the Duluth land district all that part of Itasca county north of the line between townships 64 and 65, Fourth principal meridian, and between townships 152 and 153, Fifth principal meridian. This comprises the Rainy river country, whose settlers under the original order would have to reach the Cass Lake land office through Duluth. A very great hardship to the settlers is thus removed.

"Considerable feeling over the new land district boundaries has been manifested in Duluth and among the settlers. Congressman Bede was in receipt of many personal letters and petitions of protest. He took the matter up quietly but effectively with the department, and has secured such a modification of the original order as ought to give entire satisfaction to all concerned.

"Congressman Buckman was in entire accord with Bede, and when here last week endorsed this modification of district lines. The change was based on the right of the settler to do business at the most convenient land office."

The land that has been returned is in the Rainy River, Big Fork, Little Fork and Black River Valley districts. Deer River and Grand Rapids remain in the Cass Lake district. The land ceded back to Duluth includes fifty townships of about 23,000 acres each, or more than 1,000,000 acres altogether.

FOR BREAKING GAME LAWS

Warden Philip Captures Five Offenders Last Week.

Game Warden Archie Philip was busy last week and as a result of his industry the county is richer by $65, and five breakers of the game laws are sadder and wiser and poorer men.

These are the first convictions in this county under the new game laws, which provide that fines collected under them shall go to the county for the use of the general revenue fund.

Four of the five men fined last week, after being arrested by Game Warden Philip, were convicted of fishing with gill nets, and the fifth was caught dynamiting fish.

At Tower Gust Berquist and Peter Holop were caught using two gills nets on Lake Vermillion, ten miles from Tower. The nets were seized and Gust and Peter put up $10 and costs each.

At Ely Joseph Miksala and Herman Klinnea were found using eight gill nets, and they and the nets were taken into court. They left $10 apiece and costs and the gill nets behind them when they went forth. They were fishing in Long Lake.

In Burntside lake, at Ely, Mr. Philip caught three Austrians dynamiting fish. He had a fight with them, during which two of the men got away. The third, Frank Kogeyasen, was arrested and paid $15 and costs. This was an error on the part of the justice, as the minimum punishment under the law is $50, and culprits caught hereafter will get more severe doses.

A FORGER OF TIME CHECKS

The Real Character of an Alleged Private Detective.

A "private detective" who secured his sleuth education as cookee in a lumber camp, has been arrested by Detectives Irvine and Schuite and charged with forgery on a wholesale scale.

His name is G. W. Rentscheler and he is scarcely 21 years of age, despite the fact that his business cards say he is "a private detective of twelve years' experience."

His specialty is forging time checks. Friday afternoon he went to the Van Guard Clothing store, purchased a suit of clothes and tendered a time check for $63, purporting to come from the Scott-Graff Lumber company.

I. Leiberman, proprietor of the Van Guard, became suspicious, and finally offering the young man $19.59, saying he was short of cash and advising him to come around next day for the balance.

Mr. Leiberman then made investigations regarding the time check and found that it was fraudulent. He notified the police. Detectives Irvine and Schuite waited for him to show up at the Van Guard. He sent a messenger boy instead. The detectives followed the messenger boy and saw him hand an envelope given him by Mr. Leiberman to a young man standing in the doorway of the Criterion restaurant. The detectives took him in charge and the authorities are now confident that they have a man that has been passing many forged time checks on Duluth merchants.

Young Rentscheler says he is not guilty, and looks upon his arrest as one of the funniest jokes imaginable.

IS BEATEN AND ROBBED

Robbers Attack John Olson on His Own Door Step.

At an early hour Sunday morning John Olson was beaten, gagged and robbed at his home, 1124½ West Michigan street.

Mr. Olson lives alone and he had just returned to his home after an evening down town, and was in the act of lighting a lamp, when the door was pushed open and a man with a revolver confronted him with a demand that he throw up his hands.

He threw up his hands so suddenly that it knocked the gun from the robber's hands and Mr. Olson made a jump for the door. Here he was knocked down by a second robber, and after a short struggle the thieves succeeded in gagging him and getting away with his spare change and a $100 certificate of deposit on the American Exchange bank.

Mr. Olson drew $145 from the Omaha Railway company on Friday and had exhibited his roll in a number of places Friday evening, but Saturday morning he deposited $100. The supposition is that the thieves had seen him flash the roll and still thinking he had the currency followed him home Sunday morning.

Mr. Olson's face and hands are badly cut and bruised as a result of the encounter.

TO HIGHER COURT.

Buffalo Company Case Against Hugh P. Stroug Appealed.

The defendants in the case of the Buffalo Land and Exploration company against Hugh P. Strong et al have appealed to supreme court from the findings of Judge Cant, for the plaintiff, in the lower court. The appeal was taken to supreme court from an order entered April 16 denying a new trial.

The case involves 147 acres of what is believed to be valuable iron ore land in sections 29 and 30-62-10 and has been hard fought by the several parties interested. The land was covered by scrip issued by the land office to one Pettijohn. W. H. Adams, one of the defendants claimed title to the property under power of first attorney. The plaintiff claimed title under second power of attorney, while H. P. Strong and others claimed the land under regular homestead entry, made after the scrip was cancelled.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. HORRIBLE RESULT Marian Padgorski Did Not Know the Gun Was Loaded.

Blew the Head Off a Prattling Two-Year Old Baby.

"I'll shoot you," prattled a 2-year-old baby, playfully pointing a piece of gas pipe at Mareau Padgorski.

"I'll shoot, too," laughingly replied the man, reaching for a shotgun, aiming it at the baby and pulling the trigger.

The horror of the next moment can never be described. The gun was loaded and the discharge literally blew the baby's head off.

This sickening tragedy occurred about 8 o'clock yesterday morning in the home of Frank Paezkietzage, on West Ninth street, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth avenues.

The child was little Stens Paezkietzage, and Padgorski was a friend and neighbor of the family who had called at the house on his way to church.

It was another instance of "not-knowing-the-gun-was-loaded," and the result is almost too grewsome to contemplate.

Following the explosion of the gun the room was filled with smoke. When this pall of burning powder lifted it revealed the headless body of the baby quivering in a pool of blood.

The slayer of the child looked on the scene for an instant and then fled from the house. The child's father, who had been working in the door yard, looked in, saw what had happened, and then pursued and caught Padgorski, surrendering him to Officer John Hagberg, of the West End force.

Later the father seemed to realize what had happened and urged the police to surrender the man to him again that he might get a rope and lynch him.

The authorities told Mr. Paezkietzage that the law would have to take its course. He became greatly excited and again demanded that justice be meted out immediately, but later left the police station and went home.

Padgorski spent a sleepless night in the central police station, and apparently is as grief-stricken as the dead baby's father. He cannot speak of the shooting without breaking down, and from appearances he is a man that, under ardinary circumstances, could not be moved to tears.

He was arraigned before Judge Windom in the municipal court this morning and charged with manslaughter in the second degree. He was not permitted to enter a plea and the examination was set for next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. It is supposed that when he is brought into court again he will waive an examination and be bound over to the next grand jury, which does not meet until next September.

The body of the dead baby is at Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms, and this morning Coroner Boyer impanneled a jury and held the inquest there and the jury returned a verdict that the child's death was caused by a gunshot wound resulting from the criminal carelessness of Padgorski.

At the inquest it developed that there had been some feeling between the Padgorskis and Mr. Pazkietzage on account of a bill of $15 which the Padgorskis claimed he owed them for the care of the children.

The Padgorski family also intimated that the shotgun was loaded by an 11-year-old brother of the dead baby, without the knowledge of Mr. Padgorski and that the last time he had handled the gun it was not loaded.

The boy showed that he could do it, and admitted doing it once, but that was a long time ago.

A neighbor of the Padgorskis said he thought that there had been considerable drinking of pure alcohol prior to the shooting, but was not positive.

The coroner's jury consisted of D. S. Forgy, D. McPherson, D. Kennebrook, M. Fitzgerald, John Ragan and A. McDonnell.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Albert Palmer, aged 31 years, shot and instantly killed Mollie Breck, aged 30, Sunday, at Johnstown, Pa., and then killed himself. Palmer had been paying attention to the woman, and a number of times demanded that she marry him and stop going with other men. Each time she refused. This was the cause of a number of bitter quarrels between them, and a violent quarrel ended in the shooting.

Miss Clara Sherwood, of Connelsville, Ind., daughter of a saloonist, was found in a grove near there Sunday suffering from the effects of carbolic acid. She told where the body of Van Moore could be found, and it is supposed that they took poison together. Moore was a married man.

No further disorder is reported from Hartford Ky., where fears of a race war were entertained Saturday night on account of the killing of a negro by the town marshal. The extra police force remains on duty, but the danger of an attempt on the part of the negroes to lynch the officer is apparently over.

Charles A. Stone, of Chelsea, brother of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missionary, said that he did not credit the report that his sister had filed with the government at Washington a claim against the Turkish government for the outrage perpetrated on her in that country. Miss Stone has been at her home in Chelsea, but left Sunday night to visit Mrs. Tsilka, her companion in captivity, who lives in New Jersey.

Reports from Butte tell of a general snow storm prevailing throughout Montana. In the eastern sections of the state the snow is wet, and unless the temperature should fall the storm will benefit the crops and the range. In the north, however, a blizzard has been raging, and the Great Northern company experienced considerable difficulty in the operation of its trains. Stock is suffering greatly and considerable loss among the sheep is threatened.

PRESIDENT IN THE YOSEMITE

Is Having a Most Delightful Time In California Woods.

Yosemite, Cal., May 18.—President Roosevelt, John Muir and Rangers Leidig and Leonard were encamped in the Bridal Veil last night, near the banks of the Merced, in a grove of pines and firs, almost within the spray of the beautiful Bridal Veil falls. The quiet executive is resting after one of the most memorable days of this life.

Although the party had been hovering above the Yosemite since early morning, first at the heights of Glacier Point, then above the great panorama walls near the Vernal falls, and later at the Nevada and Vernal falls, this was their first entrance to the floor of the valley. There were but few here to meet him, because his point of entrance was not known to anyone, not even the members of his party. He spoke kindly to those there, and then came down the valley via Camp Curry, and to the Sentinel hotel.

Shortly before 4 o'clock the party was seen approaching the Sentinel hotel. A few moments later they had arrived at the hotel, and were greeted by President Wheeler and others. The president alighted and for a few minutes he spoke pleasantly to a few members of his party.

"We were in a snow storm last night, and it was just what I wanted," said he, smiling.

The president was dressed in a khaki suit, army hat, and around his neck was a dusty-looking handkerchief, much the worse for wear.

In a few minutes he mounted his horse, and, with John Muir and President Wheeler, proceeded to the Jorgensen studio, two hundred feet up the river, where only one he was in while they were there. The party was joined by Mr. Jorgensen, who remained here over half an hour, and here the president expressed himself fully about the Yosemite and the Sierras.

"This is the one day of my life," said he, "and one what I will always remember with pleasure. Just think of where I was last night. Up there pointing to—ward Glacier Point) amid the pines and firs, in the Sierran solitude—in a silver firs, in the Sierran solitude—in a snowstorm, too, and without a tent. I passed one of the most pleasant nights of my life. It was so reviving to be so close to nature in this magnificent forest of yours."

His host conducted the party through the rooms of the studio, the president remarking: "Had I not wanted the complete rest that I have had, it would have been one of the greatest pleasures of my life to have spent the time in this building."

When shown the dining hall, with its beautiful Dutch finish and furniture, his eyes fairly glistened, and he said:

"You know I am Dutch, myself."

When Mr. Roosevelt came out of the studio, accompanied by the others of the party, he walked back to the bridge, and then held an informal reception lasting ten minutes. A book descriptive of the valley, and the key of the valley made out of manzanita, were presented to Mr. Roosevelt.

"Here is a good Republican," said a Democrat, presenting his wife. The president smiled and warmly greeted both. A little baby was brought to his in its father's arms. He shook its tiny hands, and, with a merry twinkle, said: "I have a half dozen, myself."

THE PEAVEY ACCIDENT

Engineering News Publishes Letters With Reference to It.

The Engineering News has been paying considerable attention to the breaks in the Peavey concrete elevator on Rice's Point, and in its last issue are two letters from C. A. P. Turner, a Minneapolis engineer speculating on the cause of the accidents.

The writer, under date of May 6, states that he had been advised that the exterior and interior bins were filled to about the same depth, and that there had been a certain amount of unequal settlement of the foundation which, if yielding in the least under the great weight of the varying loads would cause enormous sharing strains in the walls, tending to gradually crack the concrete vertically and loosen the straps. The tensile strength would then be carried wholly by the steel, and as the 1½x⅝-inch straps were but indifferently spliced, failure might result from grain pressure in the circular bin.

The objection to joining or grouping the bins, as was done in this design, was called to the owners' attention shortly after the failure three years ago, with the suggestion that independent bins were more suitable for the location.

Later, under date of May 11, Mr. Turner writes as follows: "On May 9 I visited the scene of the accident at Duluth and was advised that at the time of the failure on April 16 the grain in the interior bin and the circular bin was approximately the same level, which seems to upset the theory that the accident was caused by having part of the bins empty and part of them full.

"About a week after the failure referred to another bin failed; this time an exterior circular bin, the break being outside of connecting link to the interior bins and impossible to attribute to their influence.

"Since the failure in 1900, due care has been taken to keep the level of the grain in the interior bins not greatly above that in the circular bins, I am informed. The failures, then, must be attributed to the combined effect of the stresses set up by the varying loads on a somewhat yielding foundation and the considerable temperature stresses due to the objectionable feature of connecting so many bins together."

AWFUL DEED OF A MANIAC

Drives Nails Through the Head of Asylum Companion.

City of Mexico, May 18.—At the San Hipolin insane hospital asylum Amproslo Samun o Campa, one of the most danegrous inmates, succeeded in evading the vigilance of the guard. He induced another inmate to remove his straightjacket. When this was accomplished he asked his companion to don the garment, which he did without protest. Then, laying his victim on the floor, Campa proceeded to drive a large spike through his head into the floor. With a shoemaker's knife, which by some means he had contrived to secure, he tried to shave his victim, but, finding the latter's position inconvenient, removed the spike and nailed the man's head to the floor in a different manner. This operation he repeated four times.

The dead man was a brother of Manuel Marron, prosecuting attorney in the Belem criminal court and a well-known litterateur. When news of the tragedy was conveyed to the lawyer he was summing up the case in the trial of Jorge Lezama, who was finally sentenced to death for murder. As the attorney asked the terrible penalty for Lezama tears were streaming down his cheeks.

Samano Campa, who has been in the asylum for nine years, was a powerful man. He believed himself to be God on earth. Once he grasped a man who refused to worship him by the throat and struck his victim's head against the wall, fracturing the skull. Two years ago in a fight with another inmate, who also claimed to be God in heaven, Campa secured a club and killed his opponent.

WROTE TO HERSELF.

Butte Woman Is Arrested For Criminal Libel.

Butte, Mont., May 18.—Mrs. Annie Stork, wife of a well known mining man and proprietress of a fashionable apartment house, was arrested Saturday on a charge of criminal libel.

It is asserted by the prosecuting attorney and Mrs. Stork's alleged victims that she has been writing letters to herself, to which the names of many prominent persons and professional men were signed, making indecent proposals to her and appointing a rendezvous for immoral purposes. Large sums of money were offered in the letters and she was warned to be careful that her husband was kept in ignorance.

Whether purposely or accidentally, several of the letters were lost and a dreadful scandal became imminent, but the man involved, placed the matter in the hands of detectives, who shadowed Mrs. Stork and procured some of her handwriting, which was compared with the scandalous letters and her arrest followed.

Mrs. Stork's friends plead for her that she must be mentally deranged.

FOURTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

Epworth League Day Celebrated at the Methodist Churches.

The fourteenth anniversary of the foundation of the Epworth League society was generally celebrated in the Methodist churches of the city yesterday. Fourteen years ago in the state of Maine the first branch of the society was organized. Since that date the organization has expanded until at present there is scarcely a city or town in the Union that has not a branch of the Epworth League society.

All of the branches of the society in the city held special services yesterday, and in many cases the regular church service was replaced by one in commemoration of the anniversary.

At the Lester Park M. E. church there were three services in honor of the anniversary. In the morning the pastor, Rev. Charles Fox Davis preached a sermon suitable to the occasion. At 6:30 there was a special meeting of the society which was in the nature of an informal reception. At the evening service there was an elaborate program, including addresses by several of the officers of the league on the work and history of the society. Miss Nina Burbank gave an address on "The Origin of the Epworth League," and Miss Hollister gave a short talk on "What Our League Stands For." "The History of the Lester Park Epworth League" was given by Miss Francesse Baldwin.

At the First Methodist church the pastor, Rev. Samuel P. Long preached an anniversary sermon in the morning. His subject was "Thy Kingdom Come." He gave a short history of the society since its foundation, and told of the work it has accomplished and of what may be expected of it in the future. A special service was held by the league in the evening.

"The Power of Youth" was the subject chosen by Rev. John W. Powell of the Endion Methodist church for the subject of his anniversary sermon last evening. A special musical program was given in connection with the service.

Asbury, Oneota and Grace churches also celebrated the event with special musical programs and anniversary sermons by the different pastors.

THREE MEN SHOT.

Muscogee, I. T., May 18.—Trainmen coming from Westville, tell a story of a fierce fight at that place Saturday night. Three men were shot and probably will die. The men who did the shooting went into the railroad yard and forced an engineer and brakeman to cut their engine loose from a local west-bound passenger train. They climbed on and started to run the engine out of the town and into brakes of the Ozark mountains along the track twenty miles from this city. Officers and citizens intercepted them at a cut on the Pittsburg & Gulf, however, and captured them.

LULU BRINGS SUIT

For Damages Because Her Telegram Was Opened.

Indianapolis, May 18.—A suit has been filed against the Western Union Telegraph company and the Indiana Hotel company by Louisa Hadley, asking $5000 damages. The plaintiff is also known as Lulu Spence, her maiden name, and she is the former chambermaid at the Hotel English, from where she was discharged because she refused to make a bed that had been occupied by Booker T. Washington.

Her grievance is the direct outgrowth of the popularity she is enjoying with people of some of the Southern states who are insisting on making a heroine out of her because of her action in the Washington incident.

A man at Houston, Texas, read her story and telegraphed her an offer of a position. The message was taken to the Hotel English, where she had been employed. It was opened there, she maintains, by the hotel people.

She now claims that the contents of the message were made public before they were known to her, and she thinks that $5000 would about compensate for the "great uneasiness, anxiety and humiliation" she suffered on that account.

FEMALE GRAFTER

Nearly Worked President's Wife For Fifteen Dollars.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 18.—A designing Buffalo woman nearly succeeded in getting $15 from Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, the wife of the president. The Buffalo woman represented herself as being of one mind with President Roosevelt on the subject of race suicide. To back up this statement she wrote that she was the mother of twelve children and soon expected to be the mother of thirteen. She said she was in destitute circumstances and needed $15 immediately. Mrs. Roosevelt sent her a check for that amount and then communicated with the local charity organization asking that it assist the woman. An officer of the society was sent to investigate.

He found the woman in a well furnished home, her husband earning over $3 a day. When asked where the twelve children were the woman could produce only two. Payment on Mrs. Roosevelt's check was stopped.

SHORT IN HAY ACCOUNTS.

Lieut. Meyer to Be Prosecuted at San Juan.

San Juan, P. R. I., May 18.—The war department has ordered District Attorney Pettingill to prosecute Lieut. Arthur Meyer, of the insular police, who formerly resided in Brooklyn, and who was at one time quartermaster of the Forty-seventh United States volunteers, for an alleged shortage of $3000 in the regimental hay accounts. Lieut. Meyer has in explanation that the recipients of the hay failed to receipt for it. Secretary Hartzell has revoked Lieut Meyer's permission to visit Washington pending the settlement of alleged irregularities in Lieut. Meyer's police accounts. Many policemen and merchants are lodging complaints against the lieutenant. He is still serving with his regiment, awaiting Governor Hunt's return.

DISAGREEABLE REFLECTIONS

The mirror never flatters; it tells the truth, no matter how much it may hurt the pride or how humiliating and disagreeable the reflections. A red, rough skin is fatal to beauty, and blackheads, blotches and pimples are ruinous to the complexion, and no wonder such desperate efforts are made to hide these blemishes, and cover over the defects, and some never stop to consider the danger in skin foods, face lotions, soaps, salves and powders, but apply them vigorously and often without regard to consequences, and many complexions are ruined by the chemicals and poisons contained in these cosmetics.

Skin diseases are due to internal causes, to humors and poisons in the blood, and to attempt a cure by external treatment is an endless, hopeless task. Some simple wash or ointment is often beneficial when the skin is much inflamed or itches, but you can't depend upon local remedies for permanent relief, for the blood is continually throwing off impurities which irritate and clog the glands and pores of the skin, and as long as the blood remains unhealthy, just so long will the eruptions last. To effectually and permanently cure skin troubles the blood must be purified and the system thoroughly cleansed and built up, and S. S. S., the well known blood purifier and tonic, is acknowledged superior to all other remedies for this purpose. It is the only guaranteed strictly vegetable blood remedy. It never deranges the system or impairs the digestion like Potash and Arsenic and drugs of this character, but aids in the digestion and assimilation of food and improves the appetite. Being a blood purifier and tonic combined, the humors and poisons are counteracted and the blood made rich and pure, and at the same time the general health and system is rapidly built up and good health is established, and this, after all, is the secret of a smooth, soft skin and beautiful complexion.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Cartersville, Ga., R. R. No. 2.
I suffered for a number of years with a severe Nettle-rash.
About twelve years ago I started using S. S. S., and after taking three bottles I felt myself cured and have since taken a bottle occasionally, and had little or no trouble along that line. My general health has been better since. I recommend S. S. S. as a good blood medicine and all round tonic. Yours truly,
Mrs. M. I. PITTARD.

Some two years ago I suffered a great deal, caused on account of bad blood. Small rash or pimples broke out over my body and kept getting worse day by day for over a year. Seeing S. S. S. advertised in the papers and having heard also it had cured several people in this city, concluded to give it a fair trial. After using the medicine for some time, taking in all six bottles, I was entirely cured.

FELL INTO A NEST

Cruiser In Woods Jumps Into Family of Wild Cats.

Luckily Had Magazine Rifle But Was Badly Torn and Bitten.

H. W. Richardson, of the local weather bureau, has received from Attorney W. W. Browne of Biwabik a claw from the foot of a wild cat. It is a souvenir of a notable adventure.

Mr. Browne was in Duluth last week and was telling the story of an adventure which befell an acquaintance of his in Biwabik, who is employed as a cruiser for a lumber company. The cruiser, while engaged in his duties, was walking through the woods not far from Biwabik recently when he became somewhat fatigued and looked about for a suitable place to rest himself. He picked out a fallen tree which was resting on its branches, the trunk being about three feet from the ground. He seated himself on the trunk of this tree and lighted his pipe. After a short rest he decided to continue his walk, and turning leaped down on the opposite side of the tree to that by which he had arrived. He landed in the exact center of a nest of wildcats. There were four large cubs, their mother and a vicious old Tom.

Mr. Browne's letter describes the situation:

"I send you under separate cover by this mail one of the 'hooks' from one of the bob-cats of which I was telling you the other day. The owner of this engine of war was supposed to be possessed of at least four paws, and each of these was mounted with at least a pair of these sacrificers; then there being six of the above-mentioned owners, makes the sum total of ninety-six entertainers into whose company our cruiser friend landed. Our friend says the family was not particularly sociable but very entertaining."

Luckily for the cruiser he had a magazine rifle with him and lost no time in making use of it. He secured the whole family before he left the spot, and he has and the skins dressed as a souvenir of a very exciting ten minutes. The claw received by Mr. Richardson is fully an inch and a half in length and as strong and hard as if made of steel. One of them used by such an active and vigorous opponent as a bob-cat would make it exciting for a man, but his condition when attacked by ninety-six is better imagined than described. His thick clothes and mackinaw prevented the cats from inflicting any fatal wounds during the course of the short, vicious fight, but his hands and legs were in a terrible condition when he reached the town.

Mr. Richardson intends to preserve the claw in his possession as a curiosity. It is of an exceptional size and was doubtless taken from the father of the family.

A Horrible Crime.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The reported burial alive of her illegitimate child by a poor girl on a lonely marsh reminds one of George Eliot's story of a kindred sin. But as we read the story in the papers with the glaring head lines of "Horrible Crime" and the reprobation of anger at the woman with threat of full penalty, one is led to ponder the strident cry for justice to the woman.

That a shameful crime has been committed, none will deny. It makes one creep to read of the little foot sticking up through the soil of earth, and the forcing the poor girl to confess to her unnatural act by the elder woman on the ranch, who knew of the coming of the little one, and demanded to know what had become of the baby. Does not that hasty burial and incomplete covering of the frail point to a maddened brain from blind grief and insane fear? Does not the story emphasize again, for all, the story of woman's hopelessness and man's brutishness? Not for a moment would we lighten the consequences of crime, but we do plead for an appeals for a more inclusive justice. Should not man's justice, social and judicial, include in the penalty not only the betrayed and despairing woman, but the cunning, cowardly and brutal beast, who used the arts of seductive persuasion to persuade the trusting girl to submit to that intercourse which clothes an lunent life with shame, and then drives a frightened and despairing woman, his victim, to her unnatural deed? Thus would be God's justice, and would satisfy our inherent instincts of right.

There are times when one wonders how long honorable manhood and pure womanhood will submit to this travesty on justice. Why should the brute, whose passion is more pitiless than the desire of the wolf, be shielded by the law, while the full penalty of legal punishment and social ostracism is visited on the one who, ninety-nine times in a hundred, is the unsuspecting victim of the male brute's lust? There is no crime in the calendar more worthy of man's legal wrath and woman's social scorn than this. No crime is so cowardly, so cruel, so ruinous, so far-reaching in its results, and yet there is no crime so lightly punished by law if the chief criminal can prove consent. That refuge of scoundrels is a damnable subterfuge by which the guiltier one escapes, and the one, in most cases innocent of intent to do evil, receives the full penalty. It is a shame for men to seek to lay the blame at the door of women. Rare as white blackbirds is the woman seducer. When found, she is one who as a rule is barred from the hope of redemption by society, and leaving him who ruined her welcomed with cordial greetings to the respectable avenues of life, becomes at once hopeless and revengeful, so she preys on those who wrought her damnation. Nature and God have guarded the holy portals of life with the angels of the most painful agony and the sweetest bliss. The reason for this is as obvious as the planting the flaming cherubim at the gate of Paradise. But it is forgotten that He also has pronounced the most terrible woe to him words, who shall protect those portals while offering to him joys too deep for words, who shall protecta those portals from profanation with a noble manhood. For the one is the haunting forever of memories' demons which make happy fatherhood impossible. For the other angels come and go through those portals with messages of delight whose fatherhood knows no dishonor at the gates of pearl. So it should be with our laws and life. Punish both with impartial administration. I think of the laws made by men, putting the age of condemnation for the woman at an average of fourteen years, and the limit of responsibility for the lewd beast, masquerading in the form of a man, and pushing the counterfeit coin of true manhood to deceive and destroy an innocent girl and blast the happiness of her family, at the same age limit! Is a woman's honor and a girl's innocence so cheap amon American men, whose proud boast it is that they jealously guard these priceless gems with their manhood, that a forged note for ten dollars receives more consideration at the hands of man's judiciary? Can any man claim immunity from penalty because he induced another of any age to sign his name to a forgery on the plea that he consented to do it? Horrible crime! True.

Economizes Labor
GORHAM SILVER POLISH
Cleans as well as polishes
Admits of no waste
All responsible jewelers keep it
25 cents a package

But for me the horrible crime is the act of men who make it possible for the brute to escape from the consequences of his diabolical deed because he can prove consent! Such a creature is lower than a murderer. He is guilty of the basest deception for the basest purpose. And share of the calumny and burden of his act. It is said thieves have some honor. The seducer and bastard father has not a spark of the original fire with which God and nature made a man. Therefore let law and social sentiment see that he receives his share of the penalty, full measure, overflowing. Then will law and society be guiltless of participation in the committing of a "horrible crime."

COMING IN FAST.

Immigration Continues on Increase In New York.

New York, May 18.—Immigration continues on the increase. For the seventeen days of May this year 50,077 aliens passed through Ellis island, as against 45,486 last year and 36,371 in the same period of 1901. This is an increase of 5221 over the same period last year and 23,000 are expected this week, and the last week in May promises to be unusually large. It is predicted that the month will show fully 100,000, as against 84,000 last year.

CAN A MAN EMBEZZLE

From Himself, Is Important Point In Case.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 18.—Whether a man can embezzle from himself will be an important question at issue in the case of Edwin C. Kelly, now on trial before Judge Dissette on a charge of embezzling $25,000 from the B. K. Enamel Brick company. Kelly's case is attracting much attention on account of the standing of the man and the prominence of the parties concerned. He is a member of the chamber of commerce and a well-known promoter, having organized half a dozen large companies, of which he is secretary and treasurer.

A contract between Kelly and the B. K. Enamel Brick company was introduced in evidence. By this contract the company transferred to Kelly all its stock, 600 shares, in return for services and valuable property and contracts. Of what this valuable property consists the attorneys would not say, but they claimed that Kelly, being owner of all the stock, was entitled to all the proceeds of the sale of stock, and, as the money was his, he could not embezzle from himself.

H. W. Pond, secretary and treasurer of the Economy Building and Loan company, testified that he had audited Kelly's books and found that Kelly was charged with $60,000 of the company's money and property. Of this $10,250 was paid in commissions, and $10,000 in stock was paid for land containing brick clay. Kelly was therefore responsible for $39,250 cash. His books and check stubs showed he had paid out $18,251.95. There were entries. Pand said, to show what the money was expended for.

FORTUNE OFFERED

For Patent to Prevent Spreading of Rails.

Zanesville, Ohio, May 18.—Wealth beyond his fondest dreams is, it is said, within the grasp of one of Muskingum county's poorest citizens, Clark H. Riggle, of Pleasant Valley, eight miles west of the city.

Riggle has for years eked out a living by working on the section for the B. & O., but he is a genius, and while working has been studying and solving problems that the greatest railroad men of the country have been trying to solve for years.

The result is that today he is the owner of a patent for which it is stated he has been offered $120,000.

The product of Mr. Riggle's ingenuity is an improved combined fish plate and rail brace, made entirely of steel and adjustable to any gauge of track. By its operations the joints of the rails are securely fastened by a heavy clamp, which is secured in its position by a set screw. A corresponding clamp fastens to the opposite rail and the two are connected by a heavy bar, working as a compound screw, which draws the rails to the proper gauge and absolutely prevents their spreading.

BOUNDARY DISPUTE SETTLED.

Santiago de Chile, May 18.—It is said here that the boundary dispute between Chile and Bolivia has been settled by an amicable treaty.

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Hyomei Cures This Common and Disagreeable Disease.

Hyomei cures catarrh by the simple method of breathing it into the air passages and lungs. It kills the germs of catarrhal poison, heals and soothes the irritated mucous membrane, enters the blood with the oxygen and kills the germs present there, effectually driving this disease from the system.

If you have any of the following symptoms, catarrhal germs are at work somewhere in the mucus membrane of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or tissues of the lungs.

offensive breath
dryness of the nose pain across the eyes pain in back of the head pain in front of the throat hawking to clear the throat pain in the chest a cough stitch in side losing of flesh variable appetite
low spirited at times raising of frothy mucous expectorating yellow matter difficulty in breathing frequent sneezing huskiness of voice discharge from the nose stoppage of the nose at night aching of the body droppings in the throat mouth open while sleeping tickling back of the palate formation of crusts in the nose dryness of the throat in the morning loss of strength
spasms of coughing cough short and hacking cough worse nights and mornings loss in vital force
a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest

Hyomei will cure the disease, destroy activity of all germ life in the respiratory organs, enrich and purify the blood with additional ozone, and after a few days' use of this treatment the majority of these symptoms will have disappeared. In a few weeks the cure will be complete.

Catarrh or catarrhal colds cannot exist when Hyomei is used. This is a strong statement but S. F. Boyce emphasizes it by agreeing to refund your money if Hyomei does not cure.

AN UNIQUE CITIZEN

Was Capt. William F. Norton Who Died Recently In California.

Incidents of an Odd Life —Novel Funeral Arrangements.

Louisville, Ky., May 18.—William F. Norton, Jr., who died in California last Friday, was a unique figure. Capt. Norton suffered a collapse in health several months ago. He left this city on the advice of his physicians. Upon first arriving in California he showed perceptible improvement and was much encouraged. He started the building of a palatial home at Coronado, and announced his intention of spending the rest of his life there. The building has been about one-fourth completed.

Few men have lived in Louisville who were better known than Capt. Norton. At times almost prodigally generous with money, he always retained his strong business sense. His plaything was the Auditorium theater, and as manager and owner of this he was known as "Daniel Quilp."

He entered the theatrical business in 1885. He rented the ground on which the Auditorium now stands and in conjunction with James B. Camp gave fireworks displays. He signed a contract for the rendition here of Pain's great "Last Days of Pompeii" display. He received information that others were endeavoring to secure part of the ground for building purposes, and so Mr. Norton bought the whole plot. Thus he acquired the Auditorium ground. Pain's great display was given Aug. 10. The same day Mr. Norton's father was stricken with paralysis. The display ended Oct. 22, and on that day the older gentleman passed away. It was a severe blow to Mr. Norton He prided himself on being a "non-churchman," though his parents were devout Baptists. He did not content himself with saying he did not belong to any church, but he required that his friends speak of him as o "non-churchman." He loved to read Dickens' works. He finished reading "Old Curiosity Shop" and then he announced that he wanted himself known as "Daniel Quilp." It is said that one reason for this act was that his parents had never known of his taking part in the theatrical business, and that he wanted to keep them ignorant of the fact because of their objections. He told his friends that he took the nom de plume because everybody else was ashamed to do so, inasmuch as Dickens makes the character altogether repulsive.

Soon after becoming of age he entered the banking house of George W. Norton & Co., where he remained in various capacities for a number of years. Since the death of his father, in 1886, he has transacted his entire business other than caring for his estate.

Capt. Norton's home on Fourth avenue, just south of Broadway, was noted for the exquisite care with which the lawn and grounds were kept up. He was a lover of flowers and gave the plants in his yard personal attention. He made his home with his mother, to whom he was ardently attached, and was never married. Mrs. Norton died about two years ago, and it was a great shock to Capt. Norton, his illness dating from that time. The only deeds that he seemed to find pride in were those of devotion to his mother. He talked about her a great deal. For years before her death he never failed to remain at home each night after supper until she had gone to sleep. Then he would go quietly out of the house and down town, he being unable to sleep as soon in the night. He would read to her or bring up subjects in conversation that most interested her. His patience never exhausted and his friends could never induce him to leave home before she had gone to sleep. Her death affected him to an extent that was generally noticeable.

His kindenss towards friends never abated, even in his most intense suffering. Albert W. Parfitt, who has charge of the Auditorium, had been a faithful employe of Mr. Norton and the reward came in the shape of a check for $10,000 before Mr. Norton left for Coronado Beach. All the other employes of the Auditorium recently felt Mr. Norton's generosity. He mailed to them a month ago checks for three months' salary in advance. "I may be dead before another pay day rolls around, and I want to have you all settled with in full," he wrote. Consequently, each employe already has salary for the next two months. But with all his liberality he detested any effort to secure money from him unjustly. Two years ago he was sitting in a restaurant with friends. He treated to cigars for the entire crowd, and the waiter brought a bill for several dollars in excess of the proper sum. Mr. Norton gazed at the bill and then inquired: "Which one of you ordered a meerschaum pipe?" He disliked to feel that there was an effort to deceive him. His management of the Auditorium was unique. No matter what the attraction, his rules could not be disregarded. In every contract for performances he had it stipulated that his complimentary admission tickets should be recognized. This applied to every performance, every entertainment of any kind, held in the Auditorium. On frequent occasions there were discussions arising from this insistence by the owner of the building. Visiting managers declared they would not submit to such terms. Mr. Norton always told them quietly they could not show in the Auditorium and the complimentaries were always recognized.

Mr. Norton had long been ranked as one of the wealthiest men in Louisville. His holdings in this city are enormous, and he had the highest assessment for personality on the city's books. In addition, a great deal of real estate at Duluth, Minn., is in his name. He owned enormous amounts of real estate and land in Texas and in Missouri. In Russellville and in Paducah he had large holdings. His fortune is carefully estimated at $2,000,000, but there has never been a definite calculation of his financial affairs. He inherited a large fortune from his father, and the total has grown under his control. He inherited a great amount in addition from his mother's estate.

It was in conformity to his temperament that Mr. Norton, always so ready to help Louisville and lend aid in movements requiring public spirit and action, should never admit that he liked the city. He contributed such references as "Deadtown," "Deadville," "the Graveyard" and "our beloved and defunct city." Just a year ago he hit upon a new name and he used it always interrupting his friends when they used any other term. He selected 'Calamity Gulch" as the term most appropriate. Withal, Mr. Norton was devoted to Louisville, and it is said that he was never willing for out-of-town residents to be in the least uncomplimentary. He told theatrical people that Louisville was a "dead" town, but if they said so he told them they were misinformed. The only order he ever entered was the Louisville lodge of Elks. He never attended the meetings, though contributing always and paying his dues, and few people knew of his being a member. When he began calling Louisville "Deadtown" his friends wanted to know what he wanted himself called.

"I am the Duke," responded Mr. Norton, and thereafter he was called the Duke of Deadtown. He invented more desirable references.

Mr. Norton loved to talk of his own "hard luck." He said on one occasion that things had grown so bad that if he were to start a hat store the people would decide to go bareheaded. He said people bothered him with all their troubles when they might as well stop and chat with the corner policeman. He thought seriously about the matter for a few months and over a year ago he ordered a full outfit of a policeman. He posted a notice in the ticket office of the Auditorium on Fourth avenue to the effect that people with troubles would be received each Friday morning from 9 o'clock until noon, and not at any other time. Regularly thereafter Mr. Norton, uniformed as a policeman and with helmet and club, sat in his office and awaited callers. It pleased him wonderfully, and the story went all over the country. All Mr. Norton's friends called regularly on Friday morning of each week and told him troubles. He would not hear them any other time, always reminding his friends that Friday morning from 9 to 12 was the appointed time.

Mr. Norton was a firm believer in cremation, and on this belief he made arrangements for the most unique funeral procaily ever devised. It was for his own funeral and he inserted in his will, then standing, a full set of arrangements. He directed that his body should be sent to Cincinnati for cremation; that a special train gally decorated should be secured; that Weber's band should be aboard playing ragtime airs all the way; that "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" should be one of the tunes, no matter what others were selectou; that the choicest wines should be provided for consumption by those who accompanied the body. In closing he designated those who were to be allowed to make the trip. He always said that he wanted no tears at his funeral, but, instead, wanted his friends to have "a good time."

Personally, Mr. Merton was exactly what was expected of a man of his actions. He paid little attention to his appearance, though he bought clothes of the most expensive style. He never put on a new suit until he had completely worn out the old. This caused the casual observer frequently to feel that Mr. Norton was careless about his clothes. When he saw a piece of goods he liked he ordered a suit. He paid no attention whatever to the seasons. A light-weight suit in winter and a heavy-weight suit in summer were frequently worn by him. When a new suit arrived he put it away without opening the box. Then when the old suit in use became utterly worn out Mr. Norton got out the new garments and wore them until they, too, of necessity, gave way to something new. Hence he would frequently discard a light-weight suit in summer and don one of heavy material.

If there is one time more than another that a woman looks like a real angel, it is after completing a course of Rocky Mountain Tea. Brings back that girlish beauty.

COMMERCE OF WORLD

Annual Value of Manufacturers Is Four Billion of Dollars.

United States Furnishes Ten Per Cent of the Total.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four billions of dollars is the estimated annual value of the manufactures which enter into the international commerce of the world. Of this sum the United States furnishes $400,000,000, or 10 per cent of the total. This is the conclusion of the treasury bureau of statistics from an analysis of the international commerce of the principal countries of the world, an analysis which it has made for use in conjunction with its forthcoming volume on our commerce in manufactures.

The rapid growth in the exportation of manufactures from the United States—an increase of more than 100 per cent since 1895—has led the bureau of statistics to the preparation of an elaborate statement of the distribution of manufactures, showing the value of every important manufactured article exported in each year from 1790 to 1902 and every important manufactured article exported in each year from 1892 to 1902, also the total value of American manufactures sent to each country of the world in each year during that term. In considering the question of the distribution of our manufactures, the consuming power of the various countries and the production and exports of the other manufacturing countries of the world are subjects of interest, and the bureau of statistics therefore presents in conjunction with its statement of our own exportations of manufactures, statements of the importations, production and distribution of manufactures by the principal countries of the world.

The imports and exports of manufactures into and from twenty principal countries of the world are given, and estimating the remaining countries, the bureau states the grand total of manufactures entering into international commerce at about $4,000,000,000,000 per annum. Of this the United Kingdom supplies $1,000,000,000, or 25 per cent; Germany supplies 20 per cent; France, about 12 per cent; the United States, 10 per cent and the Netherlands about 6 per cent. Curiously, the nations which are the largest importers of manufactures, this being due in part to the fact that much of the material which they use in manufacturing is produced in other countries and imported in the first stage of manufacture, while other manufactures imported are composed of articles produced in other parts of the world and not produced in the countries in question. In the case of the United Kingdom, for example, which imports $725,000,000 worth of manufactures annually, $56,000,000 represents the value of copper, chiefly imported from the United States in the form of pigs and bar, the first process of manufacture; $65,000,000 manufactures of silk, of which the material is not produced in the United Kingdom; $63,000,000 wool, much of which is imported in the first stage of manufacture; $57,000,000 foods and drinks, chiefly in the first stage of manufacture, and $52,000,000 leather, which after importation becomes a material for use in manufacturing.

Exportation of manufactures exceeds importation of manufactures in the United Kingdom, Gremany, France the United Kingdom, France, Germany, the United States, Austria-Hungary, Belgium and Switzerland, respectively, while in all other countries of the world importation of manufactures exceeds exportation of manufactures. Manufactures form 80 per cent of the exports of Switzerland, 78 per cent of the exports of the United Kingdom and Germany, respectively; 62 per cent of those of France; 50 per cetn of those of Belgium; 48 per cent of those of Austria-Hungary; 47 per cent of those of Japan; 41 per cent of those of Sweden, and 20 per cent of those of the United States.

Turning to the import side, it is found that manufactures form 76 per cent of the importations into Australia; 68 per cent of those into Argentina; 57 per cent of the imports of Canada; 52 per cent of those of Japan; 38 per cent of those of the United States, and 28 per cent of those of the United Kingdom and Germany, respectively.

The following table shows the total value of manufactures imported into and exported from the principal countries of the world and the percentage which manufactures form of the total in each case:

KILLED BY PRISONERS.

Captain Overton Did Not Leave Sufficient Guard.

Manila, May 18.—Capt. Clough Overton of the Fifteenth cavalry and Private Harry Noyes, who were killed May 15 at Sucatlan, Mindanao, met their death at the hands of insurgent prisoners whom they were guarding. Their companion in the duty, Private Hartlow, was wounded at the same time.

Capt. Overton's troop of the Fifteenth had been scouting in the department of Misamis, Mindanao, on the trail of the insurgent leader, Flores. The cavalrymen captured fifty of Flores' followers and confined them in a house at Sucatlan. Capt. Overton and three men remained to guard the prisoners, while Lieut. Cameron continued in pursuit of Flores. The prisoners suddenly broke out of the house where they were confined, secured bolos and rushed the four Americans on guard. Capt. Overton was slashed with a bolo and bled to death. After escaping the insurgents gathered and renewed the attack on the Americans. The cavalryman, who was not wounded, repulsed the enemy and defended his dead and wounded companions until the return of Lieut. Cameron. Capt. Overton is criticised for having kept only three men to guard fifty and for having neglected to destroy the insurgents bolos.

Flores is a Visayan and the majority of his followers are Paganos, living in the Isamis mountains. No Moros were concerned in the affair.

TULLOCH'S STORY

About Postal Irregularities at Washington Made Public.

Prefers Charges Against Many Leading Officials.

Washington, May 17.—The full text of the formal charges of irregularities in the administration of postal affairs preferred by Seimour W. Tulloch former cashier of the Washington city postoffice, was made public by Mr. Tulloch. The charges are embodied in a letter to Postmaster General Payne in response to the latter's request to be furnished information that would substantiate published statements of Mr. Tulloch. Some of the matters complained of, will be investigated immediately by inspectors.

Mr. Tulloch in his letters says he is at the service of the postmaster general in rendering any further assistance that may be desired. He says in all instances of irregularities and favoritism the public documents, records and vouchers were most carefully executed and kept and little information can be ascertained by their investigation that the facts behind the allowances and vouchers are not of record, and are known to few—those interested who will not and others, clerks, who dare not talk.

"For upwards of nineteen years," the letter recites, "the conduct of affairs between the Washington city postoffice and the postoffice department was regular, then came the first break, the precurser of a system of allowances to the Washington postoffice on account of departmental expenditures which afterwards led to irregularities, abuses, extravagance and my removal as an obstacle on June 20, 1899.

"Maj. Shepherd, then chief of the salary and allowance division of the postoffice department, desired a file case for the use of his office. His requisitions were turned down by his superior officers. Later vouchers were presented to me for a file case, accompanied by an allowance for its payment out of the funds of the Washington office made by Mr. Shepherd and signed by the first assistant postmaster general. I directed the contractor to obtain a certificate of delivery of the goods. Mr. Shepherd refused to acknowledge the receipt of the goods, fearing exposure during the audit of the vouchers, and I refused to pay for the case, until some one fathered the affair.

"Soon after the McKinley administration came into power, the first assistant postmaster general sent his clerk down to me with a voucher for a lump sum for traveling expenses, accompanied with an allowance for their payment from the funds of the Washington office. Such a demand was irregular on its face, but the official became very angry at the idea of a mere cashier attempting to make any suggestions to him, and refused to amend and revise his voucher.

"The postmaster explained to him that I had only asked for what was required by the auditor and according to precedent. The postmaster upon his return stated to the official that said, 'look here, now, this is a new administration and a new crowd and we intend to made our own precedents.'

"The auditor of the postoffice department finally sent word through the postmaster that on account of the feeling shown in the matter, it would enclose all the vouchers in my next account its formality would be overlooked. An inspection of the Washington accounts will show many similar and subsequent payments of traveling and other expenses on account of departmental officials without the usual departmental checks.

"The Washington office was surprised one day to receive from the salary and allowance division of the first assistant postmaster general's office, a printed circular stating it was intending to require all postal employes at postal stations to give a bond direct to the department, said bond to be furnished by a single bonding company, irrespective of the fact whether such employe could furnish good personal bonds or might desire to avail himself of competition in premiums between other bonding companies. A similar blanket bond was, I believe, to be required of the letter carriers. The postmaster had a conference with Comptroller Beavers, then chief of the salary and allowance division and reported that Mr. Beavers had said that Senator Platt, of New York, would appreciate the fact if he would select the latter's company. The original circular was subsequently modified by allowing employes to select their own bond or bonding companies.

"Considerable feeling was manifested towards me in the office of the first assistant postmaster general because I would not pay vouchers for service or supplies upon personal request or by direction ever the telephone. J. Holt Livingston presented vouchers for payment one afternoon amounting to several hundred dollars for postal furniture. I refused to pay until the allowance had been received. I was informed that it would be sent down by private messenger as soon as it was signed by the first assistant postmaster general. I again refused. Mr. Livingston departed quite angry and some time afterwards returned with the allowance properly signed. It was for a piece of furniture as I remember for Cuba or Porto Rico. No one had receipted for the goods, and I called the attention of Mr. Livingston to the omission. He explained it would be all right and he needed the money. I declined to pay unless some responsible official would acknowledge the receipt of the goods whereupon Mr. Livingston became confidential and told me his company did not have very much capital but work had not even yet began upon the furniture but George had agreed to advance him the money in payment. It is needless to add no payment was made."

Mr. Tulloch says payments were authorized to Mr. Livingston amounting to about $2500 on May 5, June 3, and June 19, 1899. That of June 19, was for $1725, for Porto Rico and was rendered in a lump sum. An intimate friend of Mr. Hearth's, M. De Helm, was the vice president of the company. It is stated the company shipped $800 to $10,000 worth of supplies to Cuba on orders from Mr. Rathbone and Mr. Neely and fitted up the American postoffice at the Paris exposition. Mr. Livingston was also in charge of the Washington office of the Kitts Lock company.

Extensive purchases of furniture for Porto Rico, amounting to over $1500 and involving some wash stands at very high prices, Mr. Tulloch says were purchased by order of the first assistant postmaster general, April 15, and May 22, 1899, from George W. Cobb, Jr., New York city.

Mr. Tulloch says that the postoffice inspector in charge, William B. Smith of this city, made an inspection of the Washington postoffice and during that inspection received word from an associate of the first assistant postmaster general that he had better be careful or he might lose his own head. Mr. Tulloch adds:

"I was creditably informed at the time the matter prepared with proofs attached was laid before Postmaster General Smith by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow who requested the postmaster general to investigate the office of the first assistant postmaster general. Mr. Smith refused this, looking upon it as another manifestation of the relations existing between Perry Heath and Mr. Bristow."

Continuing, the statement says:

"Residents of Washington remember receiving a few years ago an official letter from the postmaster at Washington recommending and seemingly requesting the purchase of an expensive house collection and delivery mail box to be attached to the front doors. Many persons bought this box. This box was the property of individuals or an individual company. It was always supposed that certain departmental officials took more than a passing interest in it, in connection with certain prominent personages. It was a regulation of the department that under no circumstances could a postmaster or any employe request or address recommendation to any resident of the city. Yet the office of the first assistant postmaster general directed the turning over of the letter carrier route books to the agents of this company. The postmaster vainly protested against the unauthorized use of his name."

Mr. Tulloch then cites the endorsement by Mr. Beavers and Mr. Machen of the economic postal card as an investment proposition.

Mr. Tulloch said: "On account of the intimate relations between the department and the Washington office verbal directions often accompanied the written order and were far more interesting. For instance, the postmaster one day brought me an allowance for the first assistant postmaster general's salary and an allowance for the division Aug. 1, 1898, appointing Emma Jeans and Fannie Wymes as clerks or charwomen for one year from July 1, 1898, at $800 per annum. Handing the allowance he stated it was the intention of the department that the names of the women should not appear on any pay rolls that the parties designated should not know that the other was in receipt of any money or had any connection with the office. He also stated that neither of them was expected to report for any duty."

Complimentary roll was added to later.

Mr. Tulloch says the emergency measures to provide mail facilities during the Spanish war presented great opportunities for favoritism and irregularities.

Mr. Tulloch refers to the inspection of the accounts of the Washington postoffice late in April, 1898, by T. W. Gilmer, an expert accountant of the comptroller of the treasury, following which inspection the comptroller disallowed between $39,000 and $40,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1898. The receipt of the letter was immediately acknowledged and certain action requested was taken. The postmaster was out of the city, but on his return, being told of the action in his absence, was very much worried and said he had strict orders from Gen. Heath to bring all papers received from the comptroller immediately to him and that his office would dictate all replies.

The receipt of this letter from the comptroller brought about a crisis.

Mr. Tulloch said enough irregularities had been presented to the comptroller to warrant his ordering an investigation into the quarters ending Dec. 31, 1898, March 31, 1899 and June 30, 1899, to ascertain the continuance or extent of these same irregularities.

Later Mr. Tracewell ordered: "Mr. Gilmer, you may take up for examination any postmaster's account for fiscal year 1899, except New York city and Washington." Subsequently Mr. Gilmer was removed.

Mr. Tulloch charges Postmaster Merritt of this city with nepotism and says that during the past four years Mr. Merritt's household has drawn for their services about $40,000 from the local postal revenues.

WANTS A DIVORCE.

Walter Vrooman Is Sued By Angry Wife.

Kansas City, Mo., May 18.—Walter Vrooman, founder of the People's Trust, the Western Co-operative company and other gigantic Utopian schemes, in which he spent hundreds of thousands of dollars, is the defendant in a divorce suit at Trenton, Mo., brought by his wife, who supplied him with $250,000 to carry on his plans. Mrs. Vrooman was formerly Miss Annie Graffiin, an heiress, of Baltimore. She gave her husband one-third of her fortune of $750,000 to be used in furtherance of his schemes, being fascinated with the idea of his uplifting humanity. In time he founded Ruskin college and his People's Trust and Western Co-operative company, operated from Kansas City as headquarters. When the two latter concerns failed last fall, Vrooman bought up all the stock and saved all investors in it from loss. Mrs. Vrooman, in her petition for divorce, charges her husband with infidelity.

A STARTLING TEST.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at all druggists.

KILLED BY OUTLAW.

One Constable Dead, Another Wounded at Douglass.

Douglas, Wyo., May 18.—Deputy Constable Yoland was instantly killed and Constable Graham seriously injured Saturday night by an outlaw named Smith, who is being pursued by a posse. The officers attempted Smith's arrest on the ground of being a suspicious character. As they were about to search him he drew a pistol from his hip pocket and began firing. Before the officers could pull their pistols both were senseless on the sidewalk. There were no witnesses present and Smith made his escape into the darkness. Smith it is believed is wanted for several murders and other serious crimes.

KLOB RETURNS HOME.

New York, May 18.—George A. Kolb, general manager of the Marine Engineers' association, who mysteriously disappeared on May 4, has returned home. He was the representative of the engineers in the recent controversy with their employers. Kolb says that after leaving his home to go to work everything became a blank. When he recovered his senses he was in Los Angeles, Cal. How he got there he says he has not the slightest idea. He says he was ill when he recovered his memory. His watch and keys were gone. He had friends in Los Angeles who sent him home again.

WHEAT IS LOWER

Market Rules Dull and the Price Declines Moderately.

World's Shipments Are Large—Flax Fairly Active and Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 18.—The wheat market was weak and lower at the opening this morning but gained some strength later and recovered the loss, but later again weakened. Rains in Manitoba and disappointing cables had a bearish effect at the start, and the statement by the French government that the import duty on wheat will not be reduced depressed prices. The small receipts had a strengthening effect. The world's shipments were heavy and the visible supply decreased not quite as large as was expected. New York reported 20 loads of wheat worked for export, but local shippers were doing nothing. St. Louis reported sales of flour to sections of the continent with which millers there have been unable to do any business for at least five years.

The Liverpool market closed ½d lower to ¼d higher. Paris was ½c to ¾c higher and Antwerp ¾c lower.

The world's shipments last week were again heavy, aggregating 10,882,000 bus, of which America furnished 4,695,000 bus, Russia 3,128,000 bus and Argentine 2,104,000 bus. The previous week the total was 10,922,000 bus, and last year 9,465,000 bus. The amount on passage increased 840,000 bus.

The visible supply last week decreased 1,791,000 bus, and is now 30,055,000 bus, against 28,577,000 bus last year at this time. Primary receipts of wheat were 2,236,000 bus, last year 4,065,000 bus. Shipments 414,000 bus, last year 326,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 372,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 36 cars, and at Chicago, 17, a total of 229 cars, against 245 last week and 282 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market ¼@¾d lower. July corn in Chicago ⅛-⅜c lower, and July oats ⅛-⅜c up. The world's shipments of corn last week were 3,452,000 bus, against 3,854,000 bus, the previous week and 3,725,000 bus last year. The amount on passage increased 371,000 bus. The visible supply of corn decreased 985,000 bus, last week and is now 5,212,000 bus, against 1,870,000 bus last year at this time. Primary receipts of corn were 414,000 bus, last year 326,000 bus. Shipments 384,000 bus last year 202,000 bus. Clearances were 104,000 bus.

In the Duluth market trading in wheat was dull and the market lower early, but strengthened later, slipping off again later. After that it sold off to 78c at 12:15 and closed at 77⅞c. This was a decline of ⅛c May declined ⅛c and September ⅜c. In the Chicago market May was ⅝c and July ⅜c lower. In Minneapolis May was unchanged and July ⅛-¼c lower. New York May advanced ¼c and July declined ⅛c.

Cash sales were 10,000 bus and prices continued at May price for No. 1 northern and 2c under for No. 2.

Flax was fairly active, July sold 1c up to $1.13½ and fell off to $1.16 and closed at that price. There was an advance of 1c in the October bid price.

Following the closing prices:

The closes: Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 80¼c; No. 1 northern, 78¼c; No. 2 northern, 76@c; May, No. 1 hard, 80c; No. 1 northern 78⅛c; July, 77⅞c; September, 77½c. Flax in store $1.14½; to arrive, $1.15; on track, $1.15; May, $1.14½; July, $1.16; September, $1.17; October, $1.17; November, $1.16. Oats to arrive, 34½@35c bid; on track, 34½@35c bid. Barley, 50@56c. Rye, to arrive, 50c; on track, 50c; May, 50c; barley, 35@51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 21, last year, 19; corn, 1; oats, 9; rye, 4; flax, 4.

Receipts: Wheat, 11,978; flax, 8002.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Considerable Wheat Sold at Slightly Lower Price.

Chicago, May 18.—There was considerable selling of the distant deliveries in wheat at the opening today due to rains in Manitoba and rather disappointing cables and July opened a shade to ⅜c to ¼c lower at 75¾@75¾c. Commission house and liberal quantities for sale and with little support the market declined still lower, July selling off to 73@⅜c steadying again at 73¾c. Small receipts had a strengthening influence on the May option and gave some support to the other months. The announcement made by the French minister of agriculture to the effect that the price of wheat did not warrant a reduction in the import duty had a depressing influence on price. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 360 cars which, with local receipts of 17 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 220 cars, against 345 cars last week and 252 cars a year ago.

The market was easier late in the day and July closed 8c lower at 73½@¾c.

Corn opened easier on increased receipts and lower cables, July being off a shade to ½@¾c at 41½@41⅝c. Trading was dull and featureless and prices showed only slight changes. Local receipts 131 cars, eight of etharact grade.

Corn held steady throughout the day and July closed ½@¾c lower at 41½c.

Oats opened easier along with other grains with July a shade to ½@¾c lower at 33½@¾c. There was little interest manifested in trading, a fair demand for the May delivery being the only feature. Local receipts were 79 cars.

Liberal receipts of hogs and lower prices at the yards caused an easier tone in provisions at the start, but trading was light and prices showed little change the early part of the session. September pork opened 5c lower at $16.57½. September lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $9.92½@9.95, while ribs were off 2½c at $9.15.

Close: Wheat—May, 79⅝c; July, 73½@¾c; September, 76¾c; December, 71⅛c. Corn—May, 42c; July, 44½c; September, 44⅝c. Oats—May, 36⅝@⅞c; July, 33½@¾c; September, 30½@⅝c; December, 30⅜c. Pork—May, $18.85; July, $17.15; September, $16.57½. Lard—May, $9.85; July, $9.45; September, $9.37½; October, $8.75. Ribs—May, $9.25; July, $9.37½; September, $9.17½@9.20; October, $9.02½. Flax—May, 50c; July, 50½c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.16; May, $1.13; May, $1.11; July, $1.14. Timothy—May, $3.60. Clover—May, $11.50. Barley—Cash, 42@66c. Cash wheat—2 red, 80c; 3 red, 75@77c; 2 hard winter, 79@77c; 3 hard winter, 72@77c; 1 northern spring, 80@81c; 2 northern spring, 80@81c; 3 spring, 73@80c. Corn—2, 45c; 3, 44½@44c. Oats—2, 33c; 3, 32c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was dull. Cables failed to respond to our strength Saturday and Paris advices were to the effect that the duty on wheat will not be reduced. St. Louis continues to send a few bad crop reports from that state and southwest, but so far details are to some extent lacking and advices generally from Kansas and the southwest continue favorable. No great activity developed in cash markets and general tone was disappointing. The Pacific markets were firm with no rain reported so far. When a market is only fed on crop damage reports, they need to keep coming. Estimated cars, 45.

Corn—Market was rather quiet and steady. Country acceptances were again liberal, and the cash situation is not much changed—that is the demand is fair. Local speculative feeling is rather bearish in anticipation of large movement from farmers' hands in the near future. Weather is generally favorable for a good start to the crop. Whatever complaints there are, are scattered and local. Estimated cars for tomorrow, 310.

Oats—Market here was quiet. There is enough complaint about the growing crop to encourage some buying and to prevent much selling. While rains are needed in some sections, weather conditions are mainly favorable at the present time. Cash situation is a dull one. There seems to be some congestion in the May oats and this rather tends to strengthen the futures. Estimated cars 79.

The John Miller company, the grain company of which former Governor John Miller, of North Dakota, is the head, makes the following reports of an investigation of crop conditions in the Northwest:

Investigation as to Northwestern crops shows conditions very satisfatory. About seventy-five of our correspondents have reduced their estimates to actual figures and these pertain principally to North Dakota and Northern Minnesota.

Reports are almost unanimous as to splendid weather conditions and prospects, and all report seeding well advanced, with the ground in good condition for what is yet to be seeded, and a great many reporting increased acreage in corn and Speltz macaroni wheat. The important item to which we would call attention is the very heavy decrease in oats and barley, and some increase in wheat.

The estimates we are using come from well-distributed points in the territory mentioned, and, using the actual figures received, they show a decrease in flax acreage of 11 per cent, an increase in wheat of about 16 per cent, and in oats and barley of 21 per cent, as compared with last year.

The late advance in flax prices may encourage the seeding of a larger acreage as the season is not yet too far advanced, but otherwise, we believe these figures approximate the actual conditions.

San Francisco wires: This morning's Examiner says: Fresno, May 17. Discouraging reports concerning the grain crop of Fresno county are coming in from all sections and indications are that the yield will only be about half the normal. The acreage is about the average of several years past, but the dry weather has cut the yield beyond hope of recovery. There has been no rain for over a month the development of grain being arrested at the most important time. A smal lpercentage of the crop would be benefited by rain at events date but the most favorable conditions could not produce more than 60 or 65 per cent of average yield.

• • •

Houston, of Chicago: The following comes from Kansas City: "McPherson, Kas.—The wheat seems to be damaged some by Hessian Fly, and looks yellow in places. However, I don't think it is damaged to any great extent, and in fact look for a very good crop, on the average. Very few places have been plowed up and I don't think much will be plowed up."

"Canton, Kas.—There is no doubt but what the fly is hurting wheat, and how much is hard to tell. Farmers differ in their reports. Some wheat looks fine, while some looks yellow."

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The general stock market was a trifle more active today, but at declining prices. As it stands it offers little encouragement to either bulls or bears, being too low to sell and too heavy to buy. Coppers showed improvement in spite of the general weakness. The increase in the Calumet & Hecla dividend to $10 per share was taken as a bull point. It shows the effect that 15 cent copper is having on the earnings of all the producing mines. The metal was higher in London, purchases of best of coppers at these prices ought to show profits in near future.

Paine, Webber & Co.: The London visible supply of copper on May 15 was 11,444 tons, a decrease of 1264 tons since May 1.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The directors of the Calumet & Hecla Co. have declared a dividend of $10 per share. Three months ago over $5 was paid and a year ago $5 was paid.

OPPOSED TO JAPANESE.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The Novoe Vremya today prints a dispatch from Seoul, Corea, saying the governor of Quelpart island, a penal settlement at the entrance of the Yellow sea, is threatening to imprison Coreans for selling land to Japaneses, or for buying Japanese goods, and also threatening to behead Corean scholars who may be found in Japanese schools.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Representative Stocks of All Kinds Dropped Under Pressure.

Engagements of Gold For Export Induced Active Selling.

New York May 18.—Opening prices moved narrowly and in an irregular way. Missouri Pacific lost ½ and St. Louis & San Francisco second pfd ¾. Pennsylvania advanced ¾ but dipped again to below Saturday's close. The market was moderately active.

Prices favored a monetary lower level but as losses and offerings were equally small, shorts covered and there was a pretty general rally to Saturday's close or above. D. & H. declined 1¼ and recovered fully. Northwestern lost 1⅝; Pipe pfd 2¾, St. Louis Southwestern pfd 2⅜ and Iowa Central pfd 3⅜.

Engagements of $1,760,000 gold for export and of $200,000 for transfer to New Orleans, induced active selling throughout the list. Active stocks which sold a point or more under Saturday were New York Central, Norfolk & Western, Colorado Southern, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Colorado Fuel and Pressed Car pfd. Biscuit pfd dropped 2⅜ and Colorado Southern second pfd 2. Bonds were heavy at noon.

The pressure against the market increased and representative stocks of all classes were forced down a point or more. New York Central and the Rock Island stocks lost 2 to 2¼ and their vulnerability accentuated the weakness at other points. Amalgamated sold to 64¾ in marked contrast to the general liquidation. The market steadied at 1 o'clock.

The market hardened in a dull way for a time, Northwestern rallying ⅜. New York Central a point and others a large fraction. The whole market crumbled again and prices of many stocks went lower than before. St. Paul, New York Central and Missouri Pacific lost 2¾, Reading 2 and Baltimore & Ohio and Sloss-Sheffield Steel 3½. A sharp rally followed again reaching a point for New York Central, but trading fell into extreme dullness at the recovery.

There were some sudden drops during the final hour in stocks belated in the downward movement but prices generally were slightly above the lowest. Texas & Pacific land trust certificates declined 1½c, St. Louis & San Francisco, Third Avenue and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred, 3, Hocking Valley, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Colorado & Southern, Sugar, General Electric and Grass Twine, 2 to 3¾ and United States Steel preferred, 1⅜. The closing was active and easy and within a fraction of the lowest.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is heavy and lower. The market is heavy in its active. It seems to only change in it is active. It seems to come from liquidation, this is the result of many days of dragging prices. There is not much feature to the buying and there still seems to be plenty of stocks for sale on the rallies. The illness of Mr. Harriman and gold exports are the only specific features. There is undoubtedly a tidy short interest and this may cause rallies, but on any fair reaction we would continue to sell stocks.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Bank reserves decreased $ million, loans increased nearly six millions. If this increase of loans is due to syndicate buying of stocks, or to paying off debts in Europe it is all right; otherwise it don't look good. The statement was taken badly and further fractional declines were scored. I have no news to give. Good rallies are overdue, but whether they will come I do not know. There are no sound reasons that I can see for stocks to go lower, but the market seems to be in the hands of professional traders and they do about as they please with prices.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The views expressed by professional traders show that Wall street is living up to its recently acquired resolution as "the bluest spot in the country." Speculators who have clung tenaciously to the long side for weeks and many brokers who have held optimistic opinions since the handling down of the adverse New Northern Securities decision two months ago, believing that even that is discounted, are in a state of discouragement which is beginning to make pessimists of them. The tone of the financial columns in the press are almost universally skeptical. Now it is remarked that all signs fail in dry weather, but if the time to buy stocks is not within, their exists a speculative situation such as is described above when the rank and file are bears and the bull is the rare specimen, then precedent counts for naught. Those observers who believe a favorable turn in the market is at hand, take the position that hteunderlying conditions are as strong now as when stocks were thirty points above their present level and plainly far stronger than a year ago, when the market was on the ere of a great advance. They point out that the reduction in iron and steel which has led to a quite general belief that business at large is on down grade may be no more trustworthy as an index to the future than was the memorable slump of three years ago when J. W. Gates gave out an interview that was followed by a sweeping cut in steel prices. That was an incident which marked a reaction in the trade and it is believed that this month's set-back has about the same significance.

• • •

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Sun and Herald are conservatively bearish. At the end of the week there was some little liquidation, nothing to speak of, unfortunately the market has no support and without this, prices are gradually forced down on limited offers. The best thing that could happen would be a violent break, calling attention to the tremendous declines which have occurred in Wall street. Unfortunate labor considerations and uneasiness over the future of the money market is commencing to create distrust.

• • •

Town Topics: The pessimistic tone of the newspapers this morning in their financial articles, combined with the heavy decrease Saturday and other conditions lead us to believe that the bears will again attack prices today. A rally is due, but a small break in prices would clear the atmosphere very much, and we advise traders to prepare themselves for a break in order to be on the safe side. Harriman is much better and there is no new disturbing factor. We expect to see a continuance of the London buying in addition to purchases by large interests on a scale down. We recommend the purchase of Missouri Pacific and Wabash preferred on a scale down.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 18.—Close: Money on call steady at 2½@3, closing 2½@3 per cent. Time money, steady, sixty and ninety days, 3¾@4; six months, 4½. Prime mercantile paper, 4½@5¼. Sterling exchange, firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.88.05 for demand, and $4.85 for sixty days' bills; posted rates, $4.85½ and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84¾ @7⅞. Bar silver, 54⅝c; Mexican dollars, 42c. Government bonds, easier; railroad bonds, weak.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 18.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balances $22,060,166; gold $105,748,823; U. S. notes, $5,283,391; treasury notes of 1890 $122,035; national bank notes $10,430,995; total receipts this day, $2,319,585; total receipts this month $25,911,048; total receipts this year $429,330,549; total expenditures this day, $2,620,000; total expenditures this month, $26,140,000; total expenditures this year, $457,139,855; deposits in national banks $155,901,631.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 18.—Renewed activity marked the opening of the cotton market today. First prices were at an advance of 6 to 13 points and notwithstanding fine weather, large receipts, continued reports of curtailed demand were rushed still further up while during the first half hour to a point 20 to 25 points over Saturday's close on the near months. The Liverpool cables were again sensationally strong. After starting at 1 to 2 points lower, the market there advanced before the opening of the local market to a level net 5½ to 11 points higher with spot cotton once more reported in good demand at an advance of 12 points. Private cables attributed the gains to bull support.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 45 points higher. Middling uplands, 11.85; middling gulf, 12.10. Sales 12,300 bales. Cotton futures closed steady: May, 11.55; June, 11.18; July, 11.17; August, 10.86; September, 9.82; October, 9.06; November, 8.91; December, 8.90; January, 8.91.

DESPONDENCY HAS CEASED

Striking Change of Feeling on The Stock Exchange.

New York, May 18.—Henry Clews says in his weekly financial review: There is a striking change of feeling on the stock exchange. Twelve months ago we were near the crest of a wave of wild speculation. Six months ago we were on the verge of despair, and in fear of a crisis or panic. Now we are settling down to more normal conditions; despondency has ceased, and confidence should soon commence to regain its accustomed sway. The reasons for this are easy to discover; liquidation, improved monetary conditions and brilliant wheat crop prospects being the principal causes. The speculative leaders, however, apparently realize that the market requires further rest and therefore remain inactive at present. The present supply of securities, including the new issues, is really all the market can stand under existing conditions. Nevertheless as just stated, there has been a moderately favorable change of temper in Wall street, which is justified by new conditions, and which if allowed to develop on natural lines without artificial interference should later on lead to improvement in values.

Some uneasiness was shown at gold exports, which are usual at this season, and have not yet been sufficiently large to cause alarm. The European markets are generally well supplied with funds; and the financial situation in England, France and Germany is improving rather than otherwise. There seems to be no occasion to expect large demands upon us for gold. The enormous applications for the Transvaal loan, making allowance for oversubscriptions, show a surance for enormous applications, show a surplus abundance of capital abroad awaiting investment. Money is known to be very plentiful in Paris, and the strain in Germany has been greatly relieved by the improved industrial situation. The most likely cause of gold exports is the falling off in merchandise exports, which April left us a trade balance of only $21,800,000 against $33,200,000 April, 1902, and $44,000,000 in 1901. This is one continued shrinking trade balance is one of the most unwelcome signs of the future that cannot be overlooked. For the ten months of the fiscal year the excess of exports was the smallest in several years, being only $59,000,000 against $35,000,000 in 1901 and $84,000,000 in 1900. This shifting of the balances is entirely due to heavy importations. Our exports are almost up to record figures, while imports have far surpassed all previous levels in consequence of the great trade activity at home and of our temporary inability to supply the demand for some manufactured articles.

In the crop situation there is little change. The season is very backward for cotton, corn and other crops, which can hardly be considered favorable; but it is early, and there is plenty of time in which to recover. A bumper wheat crop is practically certain and this is a factor of much importance, especially to railroads in the wheat belt, some of which have shown an undercurrent of strength in the stock market in consequence.

The money situation is easy, as usual this season, when legitimate demands are at a minimum. The steady expansion in loans during the last few weeks is hardly a welcome feature, and the bank reserves, though larger than for the past two years at this time, are comparatively low. Still, the supply of funds has been somewhat augmented by liquidation operations, and the withdrawal of trust companies from the clearing house agreement will prevent the locking up of $5 to $6 millions for reserve account, if all the companies take the same course as it is rumored they will. It will be remembered that about 15 millions was required on June 1 which will not now be withdrawn.

Speculation is dormant. Active fluctuations are mostly confined to specialties and until crops are fully assured it is likely to be simply a traders' market. Making good stocks a purchase on the sharp declines and equally good sales on the rallies. From present appearances we are likely to have just such a market for some time to come, until money or crop prospects warrant a change of operations. The market, however, is subject to the control of the big operators, and should their plans or deals call for more activity such may easily come when least expected. Fortunately, there is less reason to apprehend tight money this fall than there was on January 1st.

The attitude of the public towards investments is likely to become more hopeful. Thinking powers are at last now brought more into use, and purchases hereafter will be of an entirely different character from the recklessly indiscriminate ventures of 1901 and the early part of 1902. Such an exercise of judgment will do more even than the Sherman law to check unwise combinations, and in it lies the hope for an improved market for standard, uninflated securities. That there is money awaiting safe investment in considerable amounts it attested by the oversubscription ten times over of the latest New York city loan of $3,000,900.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

Maunaloa Cuts Tug Gillen In Two at Superior Entry.

J. A. Sandercock, Tug's Cook, Drowned—Occurred In Fog.

The steamer Maunaloa, of the Pittsburg Steamship company, and the tug Edward Gillen collided a short distance outside the Superior entry at an early hour this morning, sinking the tug and drowning J. A. Sandercock, the cook.

The accident occurred shortly after 7 o'clock this morning. The tug was bound for the dumping ground about three-quarters of a mile from the entry, with a loaded scow in tow. The tug was fastened to the side of the scow. The Maunaloa was bound for the entry, coming up light for ore. Both vessels were blowing their fog whistles at the time. The captain of the tug said this morning that he thought the Maunaloa was some distance to the right, but the fog was so dense he could not see her. When about 1000 feet from the entry the Maunaloa suddenly loomed up through the fog scarcely 100 feet away. There was no time to get out of the way with the laden scow and the sharp prow of the steamer crashed through the side of the tug, which was opposite the scow. Crushed between the heavy scow and the vessel, the little tug was cut completely in two and sank almost immediately.

All of the men were thrown into the water.

A boat was lowered from the Maunaloa and the men were rescued with the exception of Sandercock. He was seen struggling in the water after the tug sank and consequently did not go down with her, but he sank before he could be reached. The other men were taken on board the Maunaloa and brought to Duluth, afterwards returning to Superior.

The tug is in about fifty feet of water. From her position when the accident occurred, it is likely that she is cut completely in two.

The body of Sandereock had not been found at a late hour this afternoon, although the life saving crew was on the scene endeavoring to recover it. Sandercock was a Canadian by birth and a native of Manitoba, having come to Duluth but a short time ago.

The Maunaloa is a steel steamer 430 feet long of 4591 gross tons.

The Edward Gillen is a tug of 58 gross tons, 68 feet in length, 18 feet in beam and 10 feet in depth. She was built in 1891 and was owned by the Lake Superior Contracting and Dredging company.

KEEFE IS UNLUCKY.

Several Accidents Since She Went Into Commission.

The new steamer Keefe, of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company, which has but recently come out of the shipyards, seems to be pursued by a hoodoo. Within the week that has elapsed since she went into commission two accidents have happened to her.

The Keefe was originally bound up with coal for Duluth, but an accident to one of her boilers near Pointe aux Barques compelled her captain to put back to Detroit for repairs.

When just abreast of the Grosse Pointe lightship on the way back to Detroit, she shouldered into the steel trust pig No. 130, in tow of the steamer Clarence Black, which was bound up for Duluth.

It is claimed that the steamer Sauber was responsible for the accident. The Sauber, bound down, passed to starboard of the Keefe without checking, it is said, and the suction of her wheel threw the Keefe out of her course. She crashed into the pig just abaft the snout.

Neither of the two vessels were too much damaged to navigate, and the whaleback continued to Port Huron and the Keefe to Detroit.

A survey on the damage done the Keefe was made at Detroit and it was found that the stem of the boat was broken, her deck plates bent and the plates forward pushed back several feet.

The Keefe was one of the fleet of ten

David G. Black to Take Position With Great Northern Railroad.

General Agent at Pittsburgh, One of Best Traffic Positions.

David G. Black, traffic manager of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, has resigned his position to accept the office of general agent for the Great Northern Railway company at Pittsburg.

The announcement of Mr. Black's change was a great surprise to his friends and acquaintances in the city, where he has been in the traffic work for twelve years.

Mr. Black expects to assume the responsibilities of his new position June 1 at Pittsburg, and will leave here for that city this week.

For eight years Mr. Black was a rate clerk and employed in the freight department of the Northern Pacific company's local offices, and five years ago left the Northern Pacific road to go with the Marshall-Wells company as traffic manager.

During his time of service with the Marshall-Wells company he has done much toward the proper adjustments of rates and differentials on freight in and out of Duluth, one of the most notable of which was the settlement of the suit of the business men of Duluth, St. Louis, Chicago and St. Paul, against the Pacific coast terminal roads, in which the claim was made that coast concerns were getting a long way the best of it over Middle West jobbers and wholesalers on the delivery of freight of all kinds at the coast. Mr. Black solved the problem and his solution was accepted as the compromise.

For the past five years Mr. Black has worked hard for his firm, which has a wide traffic interest. He has built up the traffic department of the Marshall-Wells company, until he has made it a power in the freight business of this part of the country. He is recognized in the West as an able and rising young man in the freight business.

Aside from his business connections, Mr. Black is well-known in society, and a singer of some excellence. He is a member of a leading quartet, and an interested worker in the musical circles of the city.

The position of general agent for the Great Northern at Pittsburg is considered one of the two best agencies in the East for that road, Chicago has the largest office, but excepting that, more business originates at the Pittsburg office for the Great Northern, than at any other place in the East.

Mr. Black will have traveling freight and passenger agents under him, and will have full control of all the Pittsburg business. He will move his family there shortly.

The only Eastern official who exceeds the general agent at Pittsburg in authority, is the general Eastern agent, who has offices at New York city.

AN IMPORTANT POINT.

Grave Issues In Twentieth Avenue Station Case.

The inquiry into coal rates now being made by the state railroad and warehouse commission dovetails into the suit over the Twentieth avenue west station of the Northern Pacific in an interesting manner.

The question of whether the state has jurisdiction over coal rates from Duluth depends upon the outcome of the Twentieth avenue case. The inquiry on rate is based on the assumption that the traffic is not interstate, else the Minnesota commission would have no jurisdiction. This applies only to the Northern Pacific which runs over the old St. Paul & Duluth, as the Omaha and Great Northern both run through Wisconsin.

The point in the matter is that the Northern Pacific is trying to make out that its traffic is also interstate. In the Twentieth avenue depot case is involved the question of whether the road is keeping its compact with the state in Minnesota, when it runs trains to West Superior before leaving Duluth. Should the state lose this case, it will probably lost its injunction over coal rates, and as Duluth is the distributing point for coal and the Duluth rate fixes the price over the Northwest, the proceeding now on before the railroad and warehouse commission would be useless.

The United States supreme court has recently decided that if a railroad haul from one point in a state to another point in the same state, it is interstate traffic if the stuff goes outside of the state in transit. This lets the Omaha and Great Northern out, and if the Northern Pacific wins in its claim that it can run over to Superior, the state commission will have no voice whatever in coal rates.

The decision which makes Duluth-Minneapolis traffic interstate was only recently handed down by the supreme court of the United States. It was in the case of the railroad commissioners of Arkansas against the Kansas City Southern railway company, 23 Supreme Court Reporter, page 24. The decision was handed down Jan. 5, 1903, by Justice Holmes. The case rose over an attempt of the commissioners to regulate rates between two points in Arkansas, when the road ran outside for a part of the distance, through Indian territory. The decision reasoned that if Indian territory were a state, it would claim control over the mileage in its borders. It could not control the traffic referred to, because it ran partly in Arkansas and was interstate. It it was so declared to be interstate, then Arkansas had no claim on its control. The same line of reasoning would compel Minnesota to relinquish control over the Duluth-Minneapolis lines which pass through Wisconsin.

NO SATURDAY HOLIDAY.

City Passenger Offices Will Not Close Up.

The city passenger agents' association turned down the proposition of Saturday half holidays, this morning.

The suggestion has been before the association for several weeks, and final action was reached at the regular meeting this morning.

While all the passenger agents were desirous of having a half holiday Saturdays, they were governed in their action by the fact that many important trains leave Duluth Saturday afternoons, and it would therefore be injudicious to close the city offices.

The association consumed a long time in the discussion of the proposition, but when it was finally turned down, the action was the unanimous expression of the members of the association.

The meeting took no decisive action on other matters up, which were of a routine character.

THE SHINGLE HEARING

Bringing Many Prominent Railroad Men Here.

Railway superintendents and freight men have been wiring to local railroad representatives today that they would be here tomorrow, to attend the hearing on the shingle freight rate complaint tomorrow.

General counsel for the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and the Omaha, Wisconsin Central and Milwaukee roads will be here, besides dignitaries and experts in the rate departments of the traffic end of these roads.

There will probably be some eastern ment to attend also, thought who will represent the big eastern roads which have connections into Duluth, cannot be ascertained at this time.

The members of the commission are epected to arrive here tomorrow morning, and the hearings will commence shortly after their arrival.

ESTABLISHES HEADQUARTERS

Carnival Company Opens Its Offices In Manhattan Building.

The Duluth Carnival and Amusement company has started out its campaign for a mid-summer fair under encouraging auspices. Today the headquarters of the carnival company were opened in the suite of rooms 107 and 108 Manhattan building, and by tomorrow evening a big banner across Superior street will announce the fact. The various committees have already made excellent progress and by tomorrow the headquarters office will be an exceedingly busy place. The lithographing and advertising matter is beginning to arrive and will be scattered broadcast throughout the Northwest.

The extent of the enterprise can hardly be estimated by those who are not familiar with the immense preparations underway. Over 500 men will be actively employed about the carnival grounds during the progress of the fair and arrangements are underway for at least 1000 incandescent lights and fifty arc lights, which will illuminate the carnival grounds almost as well by night as the sunlight will by day.

Owing to the fact that some who have not fully understood the dates of the carnival as already given out, the advertising matter from now on will state that the fair will be held from July 6 to July 11, inclusive. Previously it was announced that the fair would be held from July 6 to July 12, the management having no intention of prolonging the entertainment into Sunday. The big carnival will positively close Saturday evening, July 11.

A start will be made this week on the project to hold a big industrial and mechanical parade in connection with the carnival and several million feet of lumber will be used to provide suitable booths for the use of intending exhibitors. Manufacturing and jobbing concerns about the city will be asked to enclose with every shipment of goods out of the city appropriate advertising matter, similar in import to that which the Minneapolis jobbers are sending out to advertise the carnival in that city next month.

WARNED TO BE ON LOOKOUT

Commissioner Richards Sends a Letter Received From Minneapolis.

The officials of the local land office received a letter today from Commissioner Richards of the general land office at Washington, enclosing a communication from an unsigned writer in Minneapolis. The communication reads as follows:

"A man here named Farmer has persuaded a number of school teachers to take up timber claims in the northern part of the state. The understanding is that a lumber company is to pay them $400 on their bargain. This seems a direct violation of the regulations. He has admitted that he is to get $100 on each of fifty persons whom he has persuaded to take up claims. He is the principal of a school here."

The letter from the commissioner says that the information is too indefinite for the office to take action on, but warns the local authorities to be on the lokoout for all such entries.

Summers-Ruedy.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Mary Summers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Summers, and William M. Ruedy, to take place Tuesday morning, June 2, at 9 o'clock, at the pro-cathedral. There will be an afternoon reception at the home of the bride's parents at 115½ West Second street, and a dancing party at Odd Fellows hall in the evening.

FROM THE BENCH.

A Judge Commends Pure Food.

A Judge of a Colorado court said: "Nearly one year ago I began the use of Grape-Nuts as a food. Constant confinement indoors and the monotonous grind of office duties had so weakened and impaired my mental powers that I felt the imperative need of something which neither doctors nor food specialists seemed able to supply.

"A week's use of Grape-Nuts twice each day convinced me that some unusual and marvelous virtue was contained therein. My mental vigor returned with astonishing rapidity; brain weariness (from which I had apparently suffered) quickly disappeared; clearness of thought and intellectual health and activity which I had never previously known were to me the plain results of a few months' use of this food.

"Unhesitatingly I commend Grape-Nuts as the most remarkavle food preparation which science has ever produced so far as my knowledge and experience extends." Name and address furnished by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

The judge is right. Grape-Nuts food is a certain and remarkable brain builder and can be relied upon. There's a reason.

IMPORTANT AFFAIRS

Commercial Club Meeting Wednesday Will Have a Number.

Committees to Report Upon Subjects Assigned to Them Recently.

The next regular meeting of the Commercial club will be held Wednesday evening of this week at the club rooms, beginning shortly after 8 o'clock.

A number of committee reports of importance are expected to be made at this meeting, and the members are being urged to spread the notice as far as possible.

At the April meeting of the club President McGonagle was instructed to appoint a committee to confer with the Minnesota commission in the Louisville Purchase exposition, to be held in St. Louis next year, with a view of getting up the best possible exhibit from Duluth, St. Louis county, and Northern Minnesota. Since the meeting the president has appointed on the committee the following: Alexander McDougall, chairman; C. A. Duncan, L. W. Powell, R. E. Denfeld, F. A. Patrick, Ward Ames and I. Frelmuth.

The committee has already taken important steps in the way of investigating the situation with a view of getting up a splendid exhibit of the various resources of this part of the state, and it is expected that some report of the progress made will be given the club Wednesday evening.

Another committee appointed since the last meeting by President McGonagle, was the public affairs committee, comprised of: George W. Welles, chairman; F. P. Cox, W. R. Peyton, A. M. Miller, Jr., and B. Silberstein.

At the April meeting there was considerable discussion over the scope of the work of this committee, which consists principally of looking after and entertaining of excursionists, advertising the city and the bringing of new manufacturing enterprises to Duluth. The work already accomplished by the committee and that which is planned for the ensuing year is among some of the most important projects that the committee will undertake itself this year and a report is likely to be made as to the progress already made.

A report is expected at the meeting Wednesday evening from the committee comprised of G. G. Hartley, chairman; Watson S. Moore and J. A. Ferguson, who were appointed to investigate the proposition of getting the Duluth-Superior harbor company to put on its lines at the head of the lake during the summer tourist season, observation cars to be provided with guides and run in the morning and afternoon to various points in the city for the benefit of visitors. The project has been adopted and worked with great success in Denver, Colo., and other western cities over the country are now advocating. The Minneapolis Commercial club is to take up the same proposition at an early date. Hubert V. Evans, the new secretary-elect of the Commercial club assumed the active duties of his office today.

HAS BEEN VERY BUSY PENMAN

Bentscheler Leaves a Great Trail of Forged Checks.

A bad man is G. W. Bentscheler, arrested Saturday for passing forged time check on the Van Guard.

Other forged time checks executed by him are turning up at police headquarters and attorneys representing many swindled firms are working overtime serving orders and garnishee papers on Chief Troyer.

When the young forger was arrested he had about $80 on him and up to noon the papers that had been served on the chief by various swindled concerns amounted to several times that amount. Naturally the chief is as much puzzled as the chap that had eight wives and was ordered to pay each one of them one half of his salary as alimony when they were all divorced from him.

It also develops that young Bentscheler stole a suit of clothes, a pair of patent leather shoes and a hat from A. W. Anderson, of the Colson House.

One of the checks that turned up today was for $53 and cashed by the Great Eastern. Another was for $17 cashed by Joseph Vincent.

IN SELF DEFENSE

Jury Said Young Sache Killed His Father.

St. Paul, May 18.—A Glenwood, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: The coroner's jury this morning rendered a verdict in the Sache's shooting case, finding that the father, Herman Sache, came to his death by revolver shots fired by his son Richard on May 1 in self defense. At the hearing today, on motion of District Attorney Dean, the son was ordered discharged for lack of evidence to sustain the charge.

OUT OF THE WOODS.

President Roosevelt Returns Once More to Civilization.

Wawona, Cal., May 18.—President Roosevelt and party arrived here at 10:40 this morning and after luncheon left for Raymond, where the president's train is awaiting him. The president spent last night in the vicinity of Bridal Veil falls and joined his party shortly before 7 o'clock this morning. He is in splendid health and enthusiastic over his short outing.

SURRENDERED BY BONDSMEN.

Springfield, Ill., May 18.—In the case of Johnny Conners and Alex. McCarren, brought here from Milwaukee to answer a charge of conspiracy to defraud, by means of "fake" foot races, and larceny, their bondsmen, George Reisch for Conners, and Ben Kirlin for McCarren surrendered them to the court today and retired from the bond. Judge Creighton fixed Conners' bond aggregating $14,000 and also the same bond in McCarren's case. Conners gave bond with Joseph Reisch as security and was released from jail. McCarren has been unable to furnish bond and remains in jail.

ADVANCEMENT OF HEARING

In Northern Securities Case Formally Asked Of Court.

Washington, May 18.—Solicitor General Hoyt today presented in the United States supreme court a motion for the advancement of the hearing in the case of the Northern Securities company against the United States, now on the docket on appeal from the division of the United States supreme court of the district of Minnesota. Attorney General Knox joined in the motion, and Mr. Hoyt stated that he was authorized to state that the legal representative of he Securities company were also favorable to the motion. He stated that counsel would be satisfied with any date which might be named early in December next. The court took the motion under advisement.

The motion is a brief statement of the points involved in the case, and among other suggestions which it contains is the following: "The interesting question in this case is whether the holding corporation created to take over the stock of companies competing in interstate commerce, and thus pool their earnings, consolidate their control and remove all inducement for effective competition between them, escapes the prohibition of the law."

THREATENED BY MOROS

Demonstrations Are Made Against The American Troops at Pintar.

Manila, May 18.—Numerous bands of hostile Moros from Mindanao island have appeared in the vicinity of Pintar, north of the lake, and have made threatening demonstrations against the American troops. A clash is expected. Major Bullard, who with a strong force is at Pintar, and is capable of dealing with the rebels. Ninety per cent of the Lake Moros have accepted American sovereignty.

Col. Taylor, with a force of constabulary, defeated several bands of fanatics in the interior of Cebu Island, May 14, killing twenty and wounding several of them. A few of the constabulary were wounded. Lieut. Walker is missing.

A hurricane devastated Santa Maria, Batangas, Luzon, on Saturday. Earthshocks were felt and the stone barracks collapsed, killing one and injuring seven native scouts.

The conviction of Messrs. Dorr and O'Brien, respectively the proprietor and editor of Freedom, on the charge of libelling Benito Le Garia, a native member of the Philippine commission, has been confirmed by the supreme court.

Collector Shuster has been fined $500 for contempt of court of first instance. Mr. Shuster attempted to fine the British steamer Ling Sang and when the court enjoined him he disregarded the injunction. The collector will appeal.

Horse Ran Unhitched.

A chemical engine responding to a fire this afternoon made a thrilling run for several blocks with one of the horses unhitched. It was impossible for the driver to stop the animals until the horses had gone some distance beyond the fire, which was a little affair of no consequence in a building back of the Wolvin building.

Chief Black says the horses were hitched all right when they started, but the street crossings which are not in proper repair dislocated the breast chains.

Pays Her Rent.

Minnie Eastman, a sizzling blonde, was arraigned in the municipal court this afternoon charged with sundry frivolous things not calculated as high moral endeavor.

"What is your plea, guilty or not guilty?" she was asked.

"What am I going to plead for, that's what I wants to know. Sure I always pay my room hent. What's it to you?"

Later she changed her mind and entered a plea of guilty. She was fined $15.

LAUGHED TOO HEARTILY.

Caused Death of Miss Summers, Aged Eighty-Four.

New York, May 18.—Miss Minnie Summers, 81 years old, is dead at her home in this city, as the result of laughing. While entertaining friends she laughed so heartily at a funny story that the others present were as much amused by her enjoyment as by the story itself. Suddenly Miss Summers ceased laughing and her head dropped forward on her breast. She was unconscious and died in a few minutes.

HAVE BEEN CAMPING.

San Juan, P. R., May 18.—Governor Hunt, Capt. Crabbe and Col. Buchanan have returned from a ten days' camping trip in the mountains. The governor was much benefitted by his outing. Important decisions in the matter of the Mayaguez scandals, the prison investigation and other public business are expected this week.

A CRUCIAL TEST

By Horace Glass.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

When Duncan Taylor was compelled to give up his college course at the end of the Freshman year he was bitterly disappointed. From his boyhood he had looked forward to a political career with all the enthusiasm of his ardent nature. He had gone in for political economy and all the allied studies and his head was filled with ideas and ideals. He knew that his father was not wealthy but had supposed that his business was on a sound basis and would stand for his education and a start in the law.

Hence it came as much of a shock to him as to the rest of the family and the outside world to learn after the sudden death of his father that the business was badly involved and only by the closest and the most faithful and intelligent application could the entire property be saved from being swept away. Being the only male member of the family of mature years, this task manifestly fell on him. In any event there was no money available for his further education.

So bravely and without complaint he bade farewell to college and his dreams and took up the family burden. Being a young man of intelligence and industry he was fairly well equipped for the work and although his heart was not in it he succeeded in preventing a crash and got the business in shape where it yielded an economical living for the family and tended toward the up grade.

Of course he did not lose his interest in politics—the leopard does not change his spots, but his vision was changed from congress, the senate and the presidency to the closer duties of good citizenship and participation in ward and precinct organization.

It was not long before he became a thorn and a menace to the gang who controlled his party in the city and county. When he first surprised the managers of the "organization" by heading an independent delegation from his ward in the county convention and fighting the pre-arranged slate, they laughed at him and were satisfied by the victory of their slate. But when he attacked their methods and plans by persistent talk with people with whom he came in contact and by communication to the papers as well, they became uneasy and when a year later he cleaned them out again in the ward in an open fight in which they used all their resources, and headed another independent delegation which was joined by others in two other wards they became alarmed and realized that he must be dealt with as a positive factor.

In the meantime a new factor had come into Duncan's life. He fell in love and when a man of his temperament falls in love it is a serious matter. He was practically alone in his family. His mother and sisters had always esteemed themselves in comfortable circumstances and the truth so suddenly thrust upon them at the father's death had been hard to realize. The rigid economy insisted upon by Duncan when he undertook the task of re-establishing the business was not taken to kindly and there was an atmosphere almost of complaint and discontent at home.

And so when Alice Morton crept into his life and he realized little by little how the breadth of her mind and the deep sympathy of her nature if came as balsam to his worried mind and heart he sought her companionship more and more and confided in her and lay down upon her hopeful mind the problems that confronted him. As his attentions came to be more and more marked his people came in revolt.

"Why Duncan," said his mother, the Mortons have neither money nor social position. You must not become involved with them. Our only hope is for you to make a good marriage—which you can easily do with your name and personality."

"By a good marriage you mean a rich marriage, I suppose," he replied with more feeling than he often displayed in family conferences. "Well, I must disagree with you. Our only hope is to live within our income and make the business go. I hope I am not a mercenary sort and brother, but I declare myself here and now that come what may I will not be a fortune hunter and matrimonial adventurer. All else will I do for the family, but not that."

And his intimacy with Alice Morton continued and increased until she became the brightest spot in his life. And came the brightest spring evening carried then one soft spring evening carried away by the poetry of his nature, the tenderness of her sympathy with him and his aspirations and something he saw in the depths of her brown eyes he declared his love for her and asked her to be his wife.

"Why, Duncan," she replied with surprise and pity in her face and voice, "what are you saying? You know it is impossible. You already have more of a load than you can carry."

"But I need help to carry it," he replied. He went on in passionate appeal plying her for an answer to the question as to how she could, until she broke down under his ardor and admitted that she loved him—but as to the matter of an engagement she was adamant.

"No, Duncan," she said, "I will not tie you but I will wait for you. I love you too much to be a drag on you. When you have solved your problem and achieved a career worthy your ambitions if you want me I will come to you, but not now," and he could not shake her.

In the meantime the politicians had been discussing Duncan's appearance in politics with more gravity than he dreamed it warranted.

"He's got to be headed off or he'll bust the combination," assented Maj. Buck, with profane emphasis.

"Well, you can't frighten him off," replied Dr. Jackson, apparently," added Tom Lurch.

"No," said Judge Belknap, the real "boss" of the county. "We've got to take care of him. Being a business man gives him a standing that is hard to knock. I've been thinking that it would be a good scheme to have Dustin appoint him commissioner of public works."

"Heavens," exclaimed the major; "that's too good a job. It's worth $3500 a year in salary and five times that in graft in ordinary years, and this year 20 times as much with the new water works to be built."

"That's just it," replied the other quietly. "You studied the man. He won't take a cheap office. We've got to sacrifice something to get him—and I'm convinced he can't be depended on after we get him. He's too ambitious. He'll take the commissionership. He needs the money. Then we'll see to it that he is offered enough on the water works job to tempt him and then we'll raise a row, have an investigation and pose as purists and reformers and he'll be eliminated from politics forever even if he escapes the pen."

"John, you're a genius," exclaimed the major enviously.

"But it is a blanked shame to let go that water works graft after all the work we have done to get it framed up."

So the plot was laid and Maj. Dustin offered Duncan Taylor the newly created commissionership. It was a very different line of public service than he had looked forward to, but he was flattered by the recognition and recognized the opportunity for service to the community. Then, too, the salary was a great temptation. He had his business organization so it would run along with what digized so he would be able to give it and the salary for a couple of years would put things about clean up matters and put things on an easy basis. He consulted Alice, but she would not advise. "You must figure out your own career, Duncan," she said gently.

He accepted the appointment and plunged into the added work with enthusiasm.

Then came the great temptation. When the bids for the new water works came up he was delicately shown where he could clean up $50,000 by favoring a certain contracting concern in a way that apparently no hint of crooked work could leak out. Moreover, there would be another $50,000 in sight in allowing of extras, permitting the use of material "equally as good," but not technically the same as specified and in other ways where he was assured the city would get the best possible results and would not have to pay any more than if a rival concern got the contract.

Then indeed did Duncan wrestle with the evil one. The price was so high, his necessity so great and his desire to achieve some sore of independence so he could marry Alice and begin a career apart from the business he despised so heartily that he was swept off his feet.

After a long wrestle with his conscience wherein he succeeded in downing the troublesome member, he went to call on Alice. Of course he said nothing of the matter to her, but when he left the house he was all at sea again. The conversation had turned on ethics and the high stand she took and the glimpse she gave him of her great soul brought it home to him that he never could lay down to her the spoils of corruption.

The next day the "gang" was astonished to learn of his refusal of the office. The situation then became desperate, because the construction company played an important part in the plans of the party leaders, that if the company went elsewhere their hold on party workers would be weakened to an extent that their supremacy would be weakened and every party success imperiled. Another card must be played and played quick. So the mayor was again called in and Taylor was summoned to his office and informed that the contract must go to this company in order to "keep things together." Duncan was told that whispers of the disgraceful offer made him reached the executive and he was complimented on his integrity. The bid now to be made, however, was to be absolutely "on the square" the mayor had been informed, and must be accepted for political reasons. And his honor pointed out that Duncan's political future was identified with that of the administration and hinted at high honors ahead for the young man if he were "wise."

"It's just as well this way," remarked the mayor in talking it over. "We will get the dough and throw the blame on him."

But when Duncan thought it over he decided that he would not be a party to the deal and would run his own office. So he informed the mayor in a note in answer to which he received a prompt request for his resignation. This aroused his fighting blood and he promptly published the correspondence in the newspapers, together with a statement of the case and his determination to retain the office until the water works were built, unless he was removed. This took the underpinning from the "gang," for they knew the council would never dare approve of a change under the circumstances.

"Well, that's about all there is to it. The waterworks were honestly built. The powers behind the construction company threatened the overthrow of the party and the dominant faction were so impressed that they evaded the nomination. Duncan saw his opportunity, went after the nomination and got it easily, as the "gang" saw an easy way to eliminate him from politics through the defeat that they shied at. But they reckoned without the people and Duncan's level head. He was elected and on the reputation and notoriety acquired during the events here narrated and the record he made as mayor captured the nomination as governor two years later, cleaning out "the organization." In the meantime he had sold the business most favorably and adjusted his father's estate so the family was in comfortable circumstances. And shortly after his election as governor there was a wedding at the capital in which the entire state took interest, and Duncan had always near him the counselor and conscience which had saved him from degradation and ruin and who shone in a new career to which she came as she did in the yet higher one to which Duncan afterward took her at the national capital.

VETERANS OF CONFEDERACY

Gather at New Orleans In Annual Reunion.

Enthusiastic Welcome to the Aged Soldiers.

New Orleans, May 19.—The thirteenth annual re-union of the United Confederate veterans opened at noon today under most favorable auspices. The great auditorium erected in the center of the race track enclosure at the fair grounds was filled with a cheering, enthusiastic multitude long before the hour set for the formal opening of the exercises and when at noon Gen. J. B. Levert, commanding the Louisiana division called the convention to order, there was not a vacant seat in the hall, which easily holds 10,000 people in addition to the 2000 delegates and hundreds more were standing around the doorways unable to gain admission. Rev. J. William Jones, chaplain general of United Confederate Veterans, invoked the divine blessing and the Hon. E. B. Kruttschnitt, of New Orleans, chairman of the local executive committee, under whose direction the auditorium was erected, spoke words of warm welcome to the delegates and their friends and concluded his address by tendering to the old soldiers the auditorium erected for their especial use.

As commander-in-chief of the veterans it was the province of General John B. Gordon to reply, and as his soldierly form and battle-scarred visage came to the front of the rostrum, the delegates rose en masse and gave him cheer after cheer. The general repeatedly vowed his acknowledgements of the loyal and affectionate greeting and when the tumult had subsided he replied as follows:

To say thought it is best fitting that this proud and patriotic organization should again meet in this historic city which gave it birth. The meeting of such men as you welcome today, whose past deeds will remain forever an inspiration to American valor and to future sacrifices for constitutional freedom, is an auspicious event in the country's history, whenever and wherever it may occur; but how peculiarly inspiring is this reunion in Louisiana, on this fifth anniversary of her new birth into governmental alliance with American states. A Roman eye would have discovered in a meeting of such men, at such time, an omen of good to the cause of liberty, and, American eyes should see in it nothing but good to the whole republic. It must of necessity be beneficent and only beneficent.

We will not indulge on his centennial—this political millennium morning—nor at other times, in any bitterness. We feel none. We pity those who do. We have long since drawn the curtain of oblivion over the regretful and unseemly things of the past; and we cherish as Americans the valor and noble deeds of both armies and of all sections. We are satisfied with our record, and the power that would attempt to make us blush for it, would be both stupid and blind. We are heirs, joint heirs with the republics children in the inheritance of freedom left by our sires. We are proud of all the past. Moreover, we are now facing a future pregnant with tremendous possibilities, but we face it with a strength of hope and assurance, born of an unswerving purpose to discharge our every duty to all races, and to the whole country. We are growing old, but we still stand firmly on the narrow strip of land which separates us from a boundless ocean.

And, as we go hence, we will calmly drop our mantles on the shoulders of

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD WINS CASE FROM WESTERN UNION

Court of Appeals Says That Poles and Wires Must Come Down From Railroad's Right of Way.

Philadelphia, May 19.—The United States court of appeals today held that the Pennsylvania railroad had a legal right to remove the poles and wires of the Western Union Telegraph company from the right-of-way. The decision today affirms a judgment of the West Pennsylvania United States court and reverses a judgment of the New Jersey United States circuit court. The Pennsylvania court refused to grant the petition or an injunction sought by the Western Union company against the Pennsylvania railroad, and the New Jersey court granted the injunction.

The opinion is written by Judge Dallas. It states that the litigation is before the court on two appeals. One of them upon a writ of error relating to an order of the circuit court of Western Union Telegraph company sought to acquire by condemnation the use of the right-of-way of the Pennsylvania company and its branches for the use of the telegraph company's line.

The other upon a decree of the circuit court of New Jersey awarding an injunction restraining the railroad company and others from interfering with the telegraph lines along the right-of-way of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. Judge Dallas says the decree of the New Jersey court was not made on the merits of the case, but upon the ground that it would result in irreparable injury to no one and might soon be reviewed upon appeal, whereas, an order refusing the injunction might have entailed much loss to the telegraph company. The opinion quotes the contract of the Western Union company with the railroad company, dated Sept. 20, 1881, which contained a provision that after a period of twenty years, upon written notice given by the railroad company, the telegraph company would be bound to remove its lines whenever required. After quoting numerous authorities, the opinion says:

"As it was not asserted that the telegraph company had the right independently of contract to maintain its lines upon the railroad, and in view of the settled construction of the law, we cannot permit such a contention to be recognized as the basis of jurisdiction."

The opinion concludes as follows: Having reached the conclusion that the fundamental position of the telegraph company in each of these cases is untenable, the circuit court of Western Pennsylvania is affirmed and the decree of the New Jersey court is reversed. In each case costs are imposed.

PEOPLE TOOK TO CELLARS

Tornado Visits the Town of Merrill, Iowa.

Several Injured In Blow at Horton, Kans.

St. Paul, May 19.—A Sioux City, Iowa, special to the Dispatch says: A tornado with force enough to twist one of the main elevators of the Frank Hoese mill from its foundation, demolish small buildings and crush in plate glass fronts, visited Merrill, fifteen miles north of here, last evening. The storm came up with an ominous roar and people took to their cellars. Hail accompanied a heavy downpour of rain, some of the hailstones falling in Sioux City being two inches in diameter. J. R. Elder's greenhouses and plants were damaged $2000 and garden truck was pounded into the ground for the second time this spring.

Topeka, May 19.—News reached Topeka this morning from Horton, Kans., of the visitation of a tornado at that place at midnight. The Union hotel was unroofed and the livery stable of George Sprague and the blacksmith shop of Moose Bros., were blown away. Several small buildings near, of little value, were also destroyed. One or two persons were injured, but it is not thought fatally.

BENJAMIN F. JONES, SR., DIES SUDDENLY AT PITTSBURG HOME

Was For Many Years the Head of Jones & Laughtin Steel Company—Was Chairman of Republican National Committee In Blaine Campaign.

Pittsburg, May 19.—Benjamin F. Jones, Sr., member of the advisory board of Jones & Laughlin's Steel company, limited, and for many years head of their immense manufacturing interests, died at his residence in Allegheny at 2:25 this morning.

The end came unexpectedly. Mr. Jones had been ill for the past week or ten days from nervousness, but no serious results were apprehended.

Yesterday noon Mr. Jones was up and about, and expressed his confidence of speedy recovery and return to health.

Last night the members of the family noticed that Mr. Jones was becoming weaker, though he did not complain. Physicians were summoned, but their efforts were in vain, and at the hour mentioned death ensued.

Mr. Jones was 79 years of age, and previous to April 29 was in rugged health. On that date he was seized with an attack of indigestion. Later neuralgia set in on the right side of the stomach, and the acute pain caused considerable suffering at times.

Physicians were summoned at the outset and soon the patient seemed to be on the road to recovery. But the worry attendant on his illness caused Mr. Jones so much nervousness that his constitution was undermined, and when the fatal attack made itself felt yesterday his vitality was at too low an ebb to withstand the shock. Death came peacefully and painlessly, and when he passed away he was surrounded by all the members of his family.

Mr. Jones had been one of the foremost contributors to the wonderful industrial development of Pittsburg, and for years has exerted great influence on the public affairs of Pennsylvania.

His life has always been filled with responsibilities. His wise foresight and indomitable nature made him a conspicuous figure not only in the state but in the nation. He was chairman of the Republican national committee during the Blaine campaign in 1884, and was known throughout the country.

While making no pretense as a writer or public speaker, Mr. Jones wrote an article on protection in the North American Review which has become a classic, and his speech in calling to order the Republican national convention of 1884 evidenced his ability as an orator. One sad feature of Mr. Jones' sudden death was that only yesterday it was announced that he and Mrs. Jones would observe on Thursday, May 21, the fifty-third anniversary of their wedding. No funeral arrangements have as yet been made.

RAILROADS DO NOT WANT TO HAUL COAL FOR SMALL MINERS

The Pennsylvania Declined to Furnish Cars For Man Who Brought Coal to Siding and Loaded It on the Cars By Hand.

Pittsburg, May 19.—The complaint of Charles A. Thompson, of Irwin, Pa., against the Pennsylvania Railroad company, involving the alleged failure of the railroad to furnish cars for coal shipments when other shippers were receiving cars, was taken up by Hon. Judson C. Clement, of the Interstate commerce commission, in the United States court rooms, this city, today.

The complainant is engaged in mining coal at Irwin and Penn station and ships to various states. It is alleged that the complainant, desiring to make interstate shipments of coal from mines at Irwin, Johnstown, Jeanette and Marchand at divers times, notified the railroad company to furnish the cars needed; that the cars were not provided, but at the same time cars were being furnished to competitors.

In its answer, the railroad alleges that the plaintiff is not regularly engaged in mining coal, but is a druggist.

During the anthracite coal strike last year, it alleges that the plaintiff and others purchased the right from farmers to dig coal and after hauling it to some siding of the company, loaded it by hand from wagons into the cars. At first, it is claimed, the railroad granted requests for cars for such service, but realizing that if this plan became more general, injury would follow not only to the railroad, but to the public, the railroad determined to refuse to furnish cars for such loading. It denies, however, that it furnished cars to competitors of the plaintiff similarly situated. The case is the first to bring up the point of a railroad's right to stipulate just how material shall be loaded.

Reparation amounting to several thousands of dollars is asked for by the plaintiff.

The railroad company has been requested to produce the books and papers, showing the distribution of cars among the various coal mining companies.

SENSATIONAL DENUNCIATION

Made By Grand Jury Against Colorado Springs Police.

Colorado Springs, Col., May 19.—The grand jury, which has been in session investigating city and county affairs, has been discharged by Judge Louis W. Cunningham in the district court after presenting a large number if indictments and a report sensational in its denunciation of the police department, which it accuses of being not only corrupt but inefficient and the protector of criminals generally. The report urges that another grand jury be immediately called, as there has come to light important matters connected with the public funds and offices demanding action. The report, without going into detail, intimates that general corruption prevails in local public offices. Additional indictments were returned against four bunco steerers and confidence men, now under arrest in the county jail. Other indictments are said to be against public officials.

FIREMAN SENT TO HOSPITAL RETURNS TO HIS DUTY TWICE

Hot Blaze In New York Renders Work of the Firemen Particularly Dangerous—A Number Were Seriously Burned and Otherwise Injured.

New York, May 19.—At a fire in a business block on Worth street last night a number of firemen were more or less severely injured. Soon after the fire was discovered a second alarm was sent in. The first company to respond was No. 77, every member of which was hurt. Six firemen seized a line of hose and rushed into the burning building to the third floor rear, occupied by the Automatic Vending company. Hardly had they begun to play the stream on the fire when the flames turned and almost overwhelmed them. Some were unconscious for minutes, overcome by the terrible heat and stifling smoke. Comrades dragged them out.

Meanwhile other companies had arrived and were pouring tons of water on the fifth floor. The wooden trimmings to the building were of pine, and they burned so fiercely that the water boiled as it was poured on the resinous stuff.

Of the injured a probationary fireman named Ferguson, William O'Keefe and Walter Beck were the worst off. All were taken to the hospital. O'Keefe, when he found himself unobserved, slipped out and returned to the fire. A second time he was overcome and again was sent to the hospital, but again he escaped and went back to duty. A third time he was overcome and the hospital received him again. He was put to bed and a watch placed over him.

After an hour of hard work the fire was gotten under control. The property loss was small.

BLOWING OUT OF CAR FUSE WRAPS WOMAN IN FLAMES

Victim Lies at Point of Death at a Brooklyn Hospital—Fire Breaking Out In Another Car Causes Panic Among the Passengers.

New York, May 19.—Mrs. Ida Depert is lying at the point of death in a Brooklyn hospital as a result of the blowing out of a fuse on a trolley car.

Mrs. Depert was on her way home in a car when a loud report was heard and flames shot up about the seat. The clothing of Mrs. Depert immediately caught fire, and before the men on the car and those on the sidewalk could reach her she had fainted.

She was quickly dragged from the car, her clothing still burning. A driver of a furniture van jumped from his wagon with a horse blanket and, throwing it about her, succeeded in smothering the flames.

Surgeons at the hospital to which she was taken have little hope of her recovery. Thomas Flannery, who aided Mrs. Depert, was severely burned.

New York, May 19.—In a wild rush of frightened passengers to escape from a burning street car, near Cypress Hills, Long Island, Michael Murphy, of Jamaica, was pushed through a window and so badly cut by the glass that his condition is critical. The car was on its way to Jamaica when a flash of flames shot from the trucks and the motorman brought the car to a halt. Before the passengers were aware of the danger, fire worked through the floor and caught the trimmings on the seats. The twenty-five passengers jumped to their feet and started toward the rear door. Two fell in a faint on the floor, but the crowd was too intent on saving themselves to pay any attention to them. It was in the jam that Murphy was crushed against the window with such force that the glass broke and he was shot out onto the ground. As he fell fragments of glass cut his face and hands in a dozen places, and a ragged edge caught his foot. The weight of his falling body sent the sharp edge through his clothing and severed an artery in his ankle.

Two policemen helped the crowd out of the car. Murphy was sent to a hospital.

ALLEGED COLLECTION AGENCY SWINDLES MANY MERCHANTS

A New Scheme Is Reported to District Attorney Jerome By Which Some of the Largest Business Organizations Have Been Robbed.

New York, May 19.—Facts have been laid before District Attorney Jerome concerning a new method of swindling which is said to have been successful in its operation and to which the largest business sorganizations in the city have fallen victims.

It is declared that there have been formed in this city two alleged collection agencies which are believed to be operated by the same individual. Their plan is simple. An agent of one of them visits a business man or the general office of a corporation, having first learned of some outstanding indebtedness due "o the individual or company visited. This indebtedness stands against some firm or person who has failed in business, or who for some reason has avoided payment.

The statement is made that his agency has come into secret knowledge of the fact that the judgment debtor had come into possession of certain property. Then the proposal is made that for a reasonable sum the debt will be collected with interest and costs. A fee is collected in advance, the amount being governed by the apparent willingness of the creditor to have the collection of the debt attended to. In some cases a large sum has been paid to have the judgment refiled in court and to have the claim placed in shape for collecting. The payment of the fee is the last heard of the case by the creditor until a request is made for a report, when the invariable reply is, "favorable progress is being made."

Not fewer than 100 of these cases have been reported to the New York Credit Men's association, and complaints have been received from merchants in Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Baltimore, Pittsburg, St. Paul and Cincinnati.

TWO-YEAR-OLD TROTTER RUNS RACE FOR LIFE WITH TRAINS

Terrified By the Glare of Headlights and Noise of Whistles, a Blooded Horse Races In Front of Engines Until Exhausted.

New York, May 19.—Princewell, a 2-year-old trotter belonging to David Lee, while being led to the Empire City track last night, broke loose and had a stirring race for life in front of two trains, one of them the Buffalo express.

Terrified by the glare of headlights and whistles, the blooded trotter tore along between the rails straining every muscle to outrun the express, until he fell exhausted at a siding after a six-mile dash.

Frank Ferris, a hostler employed by Mr. Lee, started from the stable leading Princewell to the track he was entered in several races.

Ferris led the horse up Broadway as far as Kings Bridge. Here he turned into the Albany post road, where he jumped into a passing wagon, holding the halter and letting the horse fall in behind.

Frightened by an automobile Princewell suddenly pulled the halter from the hostler's hands turned and bolted across the tracks of the New York & Putnam railroad at the Riverdale crossing. He tried to cross the adjoining tracks of the New York Central, but the bars were down and Princewell turned and started southward just as a train left the Kings Bridge station on its way to this city.

Morris Heights, the next station was three miles below, but the horse kept on.

When only 300 yards ahead of the train and within a quarter of a mile of the Morris Heights station, he was frightened by a big headlight ahead of him. It was the Buffalo express from New York. The trotter turned and ran northward on the adjoining track in front of the express. For three miles back the race was run until the horse fell exhausted in the Broadway cut. A veterinary surgeon revived him and he was led back to his stable.

LOST A TEN THOUSAND DOLLAR BILL

Philadelphia, May 19.—Carmine Cammorata, a bootblack, found a $10,000 bill on the sidewalk at Twelfth and Market streets. He returned it to the loser and received $10 as a reward.

A few minutes later Policeman Volner picked up at the same corner a pocketbook containing $850. He also restored it to the owner and his recompense was "thank you."

As no one saw Cammorata find the $10,000 bill he might have kept it. A moment or two after he had picked up the bill a young man, shaking from nervous fright, hurried up to the bootblack's stand and asked if the note had been found. When it was given to him he gasped and fainted.

NEWSPAPER MEN POOR MARKSMEN

Durango, Col., May 19.—David E. Day, editor of the Democrat, and Frank Hartman, a newspaper writer, exchanged thirteen shots at each other on the main street of this city, without serious results. Hartman received a slight flesh wound in the leg. The shooting was the outcome of a fight Day has been making against union printers. The latter started an opposition paper on which Hartman was the principal writer. The personal references of the editors to each other in their respective papers have been very caustic, and when they met shooting was commenced hardly without warning. Each claims the other began the duel. Day used two revolvers. No arrests have been made. It was reported that Day had previously challenged Editor Higgins, of the Evening Telegraph, to mortal combat, and when the shooting began it was thought that these two had met.

G. A. R. PRIZE ESSAYS.

St. Paul, May 19.—Miss Daisy L. Comstock, of Janesville, Minn., has received the first prize for the best essay on Memorial day, which the state G. A. R. offered some time ago.

The decision of the judges was rendered yesterday. The other two prizes will go to Miss Elizabeth Rich, of the North high school, Minneapolis, and Cassius E. Gates, of Janesville.

A remarkable fact in connection with the awarding of the first and third prizes to pupils from the same school is that the principal of the Janesville schools, V. G. Pickett, had each member of his school write an essay upon the subject, "Memorial Day," and then allowed those which were the best to be sent to this competition.

The essays were well written, and the final selection was a difficult one.

Judge Hicks of Minneapolis, Governor Ives of St. Paul and Mrs. Mary Starkweather, of Minneapolis, were the judges.

The three best papers will be printed in a Memorial day souvenir, to be distributed throughout the state, and the reading of the essays will constitute a part of the exercises in each of the G. A. R. camps of the department of Minnesota.

INTEREST INCREASING

Seagirt, N. J., May 19.—The top notchers among the expert marksmen using the United States regulation military rifle, who are eager to serve as members of the all-American team that will be sent to England next month, were out early today, preparing for the shoot. The weather and atmospheric conditions were satisfactory. The firing began at 10 o'clock, nearly two hours earlier than was the case yesterday, thirty-seven trained sharp shooters lining up at the 800 yards range. As the competition proceeds the interest in it increases.

"OLD CARIBOU BROWN" IS DEAD

Tucson, Ariz., May 19.—With the death last night of "Old Caribou" Brown, one of the most picturesque characters in all the frontier history of the great Southwest, passed away. Henry F. Brown, famed in sporting circles of the Southwest under the soubriquet of "Caribou Brown," was for a quarter of a century one of the most notable figures in the gambling circles of this section of the country. He died at the age of 87. "Caribou Brown" was a native of County Limerick, Ireland, and in his early manhood followed the sea as captain of a merchantman. For a quarter of a century he made his various homes in Tucson, Tombstone, Prescott and Phoenix. He made and lost a dozen fortunes over the gaming table, but throughout his varied career he maintained a reputation for honesty.

STILETTO NOT MEANT FOR FEDCHI

New York, May 19.—Capt. Formosa, in charge of the Brooklyn detective bureau, reports that Armonde Fedchi, former secret service agent of the Italian government, who was stabbed probably in a fatal manner a few days ago, was not the victim of a Mafia plot, as has been intimated. Dominico Calabur, who stabbed Fedchi made a mistake in identifying his victim. He though he was stabbing the man who testified against a friend in Italy a few years ago. Police Inspector McCluskey has learned that the Mafia had absolutely nothing to do with the crime.

TRIAL OF TANKO

Brother of the Dead Man Appears as a Witness.

Story of the Tragedy Told By Him and Other Witnesses.

John Bollich, a brother of George Bollish whom John Tanko shot and killed at Chisholm, March 8, was the principal witness for the state this morning in the Tanko murder trial.

The witness Bollich talked a little English, but on account of the unfamiliarity of most of the witnesses with any other than the Austrian language, the trial is proceeding very slowly.

Bollich said his deceased brother was about 43 years old and had been married. He had been living with George Bollich for about two weeks up to the latter's death. He claimed the first time he ever saw Tanko was when he entered his brother's home the fateful evening with two companions. He further testified that one of the men with Tanko told George Bollich that Tanko should be put out, that he was a bad man and looking for trouble.

Witness said that George Bollich then took Tanko by the shoulders and pushed him out of the kitchen door, where he stood making threatening gestures when the door was shut and locked.

About half an hour after Tanko was ejected, witness claimed he came back and began shooting at the house, some of the bullets striking the corner of the building. He also testified that George Bollich, himself and one other went outside to investigate the shooting and found Tanko across the street from Bollich's house. Bollich asked Tanko what he was shooting, who replied that he shot because nobody in the house dared to come out, that while Bollich himself was out he, Tanko, would shoot him. Witness claimed that George Bollich started toward Tanko when he made that threat, but the latter fired almost immediately, and Bollich fell to the ground.

Witness said he ran over to his brother and found him lying on the ground bleeding from the mouth and he died shortly afterward. Tanko had, in the meantime gone away.

The weight of the testimony of Bollich tended toward the presumption that Tanko, after being ejected from Bollich's house was angry and went home for his gun, lying in wait for the first people that came out of the house to have his revenge.

Mark Petrusich, an Austrian boy was among the guests in Bollich's house at the time of the tragedy, was the first witness called by the state this morning. He did not witness the shooting outside the house but went to Bollich's side directly after he was shot. Petrusich says that there were several men in Bollich's house that evening gathered around the table drinking beer and singing. This was about 10 or 11 o'clock. Tanko and two companions, Frank Painter and Frank Cozer entered by the back door. He says Painter and Cozer were given seats at the table and invited to drink, but that Tanko told them they better go out and home with him. According to Petrusich's story, George Bollich then took Tanko by the shoulders and pushed him from the house. He did not hear any conversation between Tanko and Bollich. Witness also heard the two shots that Tanko is said to have fired at the house, and the shot which afterward killed Bollich.

Mike Zekovich, another of the men present in Bollich's house testified for the state yesterday afternoon, his story being, in the main, similar to that of Petrusich.

SHE TAKES POISON

Rosa Vaughn, Arrested For Theft, Swallows Bed Bug Exterminator.

Prompt Administration of Emetic Prevents a Fatal Result.

A serious gastronomic performance caused by swallowing bed bug poison nearly ended the joyless tenure of Rosa Vaughn's young life this morning at the central police station.

Miss Vaughn is a wistful brunette and was arrested last evening while in the midst of a blithe creation of glad clothing stolen from another woman.

In some manner she secured some bed bug poison and swallowed it on her way from the county jail to police headquarters this morning, preferring to die than be arraigned in court.

Owing to the remodelling of the jail she was taken to the private office of Chief Troyer to await the hour of arraignment and it was there that the bug killer became active as a surcease of sorrow.

The chief was busy at his desk when the girl asked him to get her a glass of water. He went out into the detectives' room to get the water and when he returned Miss Vaughn was writhing in agony.

She said that on leaving the county jail she had taken several tablets, but refused them to say whether or not she took them with suicidal intent, but later made a clean confession.

Dr. Boyer was summoned and administered a strong emetic. The girl was relieved of the pain almost immediately and went to sleep for several hours.

This afternoon she was almost over the effects of the poisoning and was being watched carefully to prevent a repetition of the performance.

Miss Vaughn was employed as maid in the home of Joseph Brown, 410 West Fourth street, for about twelve hours yesterday. She disappeared and during her absence it was discovered that a trunk had been broken into and considerable clothing stolen.

A description of the girl and the missing clothing was given the police and Detectives Schulte and Terry detailed on the case. While walking along Superior street Detective Schulte recognized the girl and Detective Terry simultaneously recognized the clothing, so they both made the arrest.

TWO BROTHERS WOUNDED

In a Sunday Shooting Affray at Ironwood.

Ironwood, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas and Arthur Preston, two brothers, are confined to their rooms in the Dixon house and the whereabouts of John Hastings are at present unknown, as the result of a shooting affray that occurred Sunday afternoon near the street car barns in this city. It seems that the three men had been drinking hard all Sunday and the two brothers began quarreling with Hastings, who drew a revolver and began shooting at the brothers. Arthur received a shot in the body and is thought to be seriously injured, and Thomas received a shot in each leg. Hastings left the city immediately and has not yet been found, although a vigorous search is being made for him.

FARM LANDS FLOODED.

High Water On Mississippi Doing Much Damage.

La Crosse, Wis., May 19.—Reports received in this city from surrounding towns and villages were to the effect that inestimable damage has been done to farm lands by a big rise in the Mississippi and its tributaries. The Root, La Crosse and other small streams are raging torrents and several feet over their banks. Thousands of acres of farm lands are flooded and crops will have to be replanted. Several bridges have been washed out and roads flooded to the depth of three and four feet.

Winona, Minn., May 19.—The Mississippi river here has come up a tenth of a foot since yesterday and quite a little more rise will be needed before any great damage will be done. The predictions of the weather bureau of continued rise, have caused some apprehension.

BAD FIRE AT MILWAUKEE

Several Plants Destroyed With Aggregate Loss of $125,000

Milwaukee, May 19.—Fire today destroyed Jacob's cooper shop, the plants of the Milwaukee Commutator company, the Milwaukee Automobile works and the Milwaukee Brass company. The Marine hotel was badly scorched. The plants were located near Nineteenth and Canal streets.

Fifteen families were compelled to desert their homes on account of the intense heat from the flames. The total loss is estimated at about $125,000.

The fire started shortly after noon in Jacob's cooper shop, which was wiped out in short order. It spread quickly to the Milwaukee Commutator works and the Milwaukee Automobile and Brass plants. These buildings with all their contents were soon destroyed. At 1:15 the fire was believed to be under control.

John Brier had his hands badly scorched in fighting the flames and two coopers were seriously injured. One report had it that several men in the cooper shop lost their lives, but this was later denied. The heaviest loss is on the cooper shop, $75,000, the other losses aggregating between $40,000 and $50,000.

TO APPOINT RECEIVER

For Bay State Gas Company Of Delaware.

Wilmington, Del., May 19.—Judge Dallas, of the United States court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, has ordered that a receiver be appointed for the Bay State Gas company of Delaware. The appointment will be made in Philadelphia, on May 26.

This order is the result of an action brought several years ago by Jacob Edwards of New York, and others, who asked among other things, the appointment of a receiver. There were hearings in this city and Philadelphia and testimony was also taken in New York and Boston, various interests being involved. A supplement bill of complaint was filed on April 25 of this year and it was on the strength of this bill that Judge Dallas issued the order. None of the officials of the Bay State Gas company of Delaware are in Wilmington today and their wishes as to the selection of the receiver are not known. United States Senator J. Frank Allee is president of the company.

SPANISH WAR PENSIONS.

Pension Bureau Is Being Flooded With Applications.

Washington, May 19.—Over 22 per cent of the men who enlisted in the army early applied for pension. This is shown in a brief special statement just prepared by Commissioner Ware. The statement shows in detail that the number of applications under the head of "invalids" is 57,046 and those under the head of "widows and dependents" is 8250. There have been allowed 981 invalid pensions and 2360 of the widows and dependents' class. A total of 18,185 claim have been rejected, leaving 34,240 claims pending May 1, the date to which Commissioner Ware brought down his figures.

New applications are coming in daily by the hundred and the indications are that at the end of the year nearly 50 per cent of the men who were enrolled on the army lists during the war with Spain will have applied to the government to have their names placed on the pension lists.

Greater precautions were taken in the mustering out process of the volunteer army in 1898 and 1899 than ever before, to guard against just the condition that is now threatening the pension bureau. Wherever it was practicable surgeons of the regular army were detailed to make the examination of the men mustered out and those surgeons were extremely careful to state the exact physical condition of the men examined, with the view of preventing a too ready and indiscriminate resort by discharged soldiers to the usual methods of pension seekers.

MINNESOTA INVENTORS.

Washington, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following patents have been issued: Herman E. Krupke, of Paynesville, powder blower; Bud Smith, of Austin, weed exterminator.

BREACH OF MONEY GIANTS

P. A. B. Widener and W. L. Elkins End Their Long Friendship.

Philadelphia, May 19.—After many years of close association in huge financial deals and a personal friendship which has resulted in intermarriage between their families, P. A. B. Widener and William L. Elkins have apparently reached the parting of the ways. A breach in the bond between them, which began last winter over a bill in the legislature, has widened, and now Widener has sailed for Europe, leaving his old-time friend and financial associate behind him.

It has been their almost invariable custom in former years to journey abroad together, and the present failure gives point to the stories of their break already circulated. Just how wide the divergence is and what effect it will have on the future financial relations of the two capitalists is matter of interesting speculation among financial men.

The breach had its origin in a curious way, and involved no matter of friction directly between the two men. It came out of the financial relations of other giants in Philadelphia business life, John M. Mack and Thomas Dolan. Lolan dislikes Mack, who is a person of aggressive will. In the recent sessions of the legislature a bill was introduced which was aimed at the United Gas Improvement company, in that it opened the way to break its lease on the city gas works at the expiration of the present holding. Mack was actively interested in the measure. Dolan, Widener and Elkins were powers in the United Gas Improvement company, and when Widener turned in with Mack to support the bill there was trouble at once.

Dolan felt there was nothing in the situation but warfare between himself and Widener. When a count of noses came Widener found himself hopelessly in the minority, and at the election he was dropped from the board. Among those who gave their proxies over to Dolan was Elkins, which did not tend to keep close relations between the two.

The situation then was that Dolan had triumphed over Mack, who was Widener's financial associate and friend, and Elkins had helped him do it. The bill was killed at Harrisburg. Prior to the United Gas Improvement election Elkins was said to be against the bill and as criticising both Mack and Widener. Mack, it is said, does not like Elkins any more than Dolan likes Mack, and as Widener and Mack are great friends it is likely that the hand in glove alliance between Widener and Elkins is over, in a great part at least, and that new combinations are looked for.

That there will be any open warfare is doubted, for the Widener and Elkins families are bound by marriage. But there may be fewer enterprises taken up together and this is something financial men are quite prepared to expect. Elkins is not believed to have entirely appreciated in recent years the dominance of Widener in their mutual association. It is said that he would have been better pleased had the newspapers chronicled a few less Widener-Elkins deals and a few more Elkins-Widener deals.

TO PROTEST TO RUSSIA.

San Francisco, May 19.—A mass meeting will be held tonight at the Temple Emanuel to protest against Russian inhumanities inflicted upon the Jews. All the rabbis of the city will be present and many laymen will address the meeting. A collection will be taken up which will be applied to the relief fund now being made up for the sufferers by the massacre. Judge M. C. Sloss will preside.

MADE DEATH CERTAIN.

Sharon, Pa., May 19.—Thomas A. McMasters, wealthy and a burgess of Jamestown has committed suicide by shooting himself three times and then hanging himself with a halter. He was a brother of W. A. McMasters, a banker and president of the Conneaut Lake Navigation company.

MONITOR MAY MOVE.

Rising Waters In Mississippi May Release Arkansas.

St. Louis, May 19.—It is believed by river men that the monitor Arkansas, which is barred at St. Genevieve, Mo., about fifty miles south of here by low water, will be able to proceed on her way to the gulf this evening or tomorrow. Since Saturday the river has risen four feet, and an additional two or more feet is expected by tonight. The sudden rise of the water was unexpected and comes from the Missouri river, which is being fed by the Osage and Gasconade.

SILVERMAN LANDS.

Deal For Them Is Reported to Be On.

It is said that there have been parties after the Vermilion range lands owned by Lazarus Silverman, of Chicago, again, and that Mr. Silverman is in town now to negotiate with people who claim them.

Mr. Silverman very earnestly denies all these rumors, but is in Duluth and has been at the Spalding hotel for three days.

Reports that a big offer had been made him weeks ago were denied by him, but it was understood later that there were local men who desired to get leases on the property near Ely and do the exploring.

Up to the present time there have been no papers signed, but Mr. Silverman was in conference with Duluth mining men yesterday afternoon for several hours in his room at the hotel.

Mine Owner Here.

Arnold J. Lonstorf, of Milwaukee, arrived in Duluth this morning. He is one of the members of the family which is heir to the Lonstorf interests in the mining country of the Lake Superior district, and is here to look up a few things regarding the section 30 explorations, a quarter interest in which is part of the estate of the elder Lonstorf.

WAS DIFFERENT HERE.

Traveling Man Arrives With Hot Weather Clothes.

B. Kulper, of New York, who travels for a black diamond house, made a discovery in Duluth last night.

The discovery was that it is not the same temperature in the torrid zone as it is in the arctic circle.

Mr. Kulper caused an epidemic of heart disease and paralysis last night when he strolled into the lobby of the Spalding hotel clad in a neglige shirt, no vest, but a panama hat on his burning brow.

He started to walk from the elevator to the desk, when general notice was attracted his way. Consternation was on every face and the lobby was crowded. The expressions visible from his viewpoint looked like one of Charles Dana Gibson's studies of a theater gallery.

By the time he reached the desk a long, low rakish breeze crept into the south doorway, and when it reached him, he turned his collar up.

Then he borrowed an overcoat from the clerk on watch, and traded his panama, temporarily, for a felt hat. This noon he purchased a heavy suit of clothing and a fedora hat and is recovering from his shock.

"It was 90 degrees above in the shade when I got on the train at St. Louis, and I forgot that it would be a shade cooler when I got off the train here," he said.

HEARING IS HELD

Interstate Commerce Commission Taking Testimony In Shingle Case.

Involves Rate on Shingles to Chicago—Other Railroad News.

Charles A. Prouty, of Vermont, a member of the interstate commerce commission, and a number of attorneys and railroad men, are engaged today in Collector Willcuts' private office in the federal building, trying to determine whether or not it is unfair to Duluth shippers of shingles to have a 13-cent rate on shingles to Chicago, while lumber and its finished products pay only 10 cents, and while shippers of shingles in other territory pay the same rate as on lumber.

The hearing is in the complaint of the Duluth Shingle company against the South Shore, Omaha, Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Milwaukee railways, alleging discrimination in the shingle rate. The hearing began at 10 o'clock and continued to 12:30, when an adjournment was taken to this afternoon. It bade fair to continue throughout the afternoon. Commissioner Prouty is simply here to take testimony, which will be considered by the commission later.

The complainant was represented by H. H. Phelps, the commission by P. J. Farrell, of Washington; the South Shore by W. W. Walker, the Omaha by William D. Bailey, of the firm of J. L. Washburn & W. D. Bailey; the Northern Pacific by C. W. Bunn, the Great Northern by M. D. Grover, and the Milwaukee by Burton Hanson, of Chicago. H. M. Pierce, general freight agent of the Omaha, and other traffic men, were at the hearing in the capacity of witnesses for the defense.

Charles Niemeyer, manager of the Duluth Shingle company, was the first witness. He said the company was in the business of buying and selling shingles at wholesale, but it did not manufacture. It shipped its goods over the roads named in the complaint. The freight charges were, to Chicago, 13 cents per 100 pounds, which he considered too high, because the roads handle other articles that are lighter and less conveniently carried than shingles for lesser rates. The 13-cent went into effect Jan. 15. Lumber and many of its manufactured products, such as mouldings, baseboards, fruit boxes, lath, etc., are carried at 10 cents per 100 pounds. Most of these things are harder to carry than shingles, because they do not fill the cars so compactly and take up more space according to weight. The rates beyond Chicago are the same on lumber and its products as they are on shingles, and in competitive territory there are places that get the same rate on shingles as they get on lumber. This, he believed, constituted discrimination both against shingles and against Duluth shingles as against shingles from other points.

D. C. Thompson, a lumber shipper, testified that lumber is less easily packed than shingles, and leaves more vacant spaces in the cars. In reply to a question by Mr. Hanson, the witness said that the competition between lake and rail freights is stronger on lumber than on shingles.

This was the complainant's case, and H. M. Pierce, general freight agent of the Omaha, took the stand for the defense. He said that the increase of 3 cents on shingles went into effect Jan. 15 because the roads wanted to get the same relative revenue from timber products. Perhaps 80 per cent of the shingle business is composed of Pacific coast shingles, and they weigh less than lumber, relatively. An average of the contents of lumber and shingle cars was 31,000 to 32,000 pounds for shingles and nearly 41,000 pounds for lumber. So at the same rate shingles would bring less than lumber. Therefore the shingle rate was raised. The white pine shingles that Duluth ships are heavier than the Western cedar shingles, and the difference would not be so great, but the rates had to be based on the larger proportion of business furnished by the Western article. An attempt was made to discriminate in rates between the two kinds of shingles, but it was found impracticable. In Duluth, however, there was another reason for the difference, and that was that the 10-cent rate on lumber was made because of the competition with lake freights. Lumbermen wanted a steady rate on lumber, and they were given the 10-cent rate, which had created a large increase in the amount of lumber shipped by rail. It it were not for lake competition the rail freight on lumber to Chicago would be 15 cents per 100 pounds.

When Mr. Pierce had concluded an adjournment was taken to this afternoon, when the hearing was resumed.

GOING TO HOUGHTON

Duluth Passenger Men To Be G. W. Hibbard's Guests.

Kitchell, Blanche and Martin Adson—Thompson, Bryan and old MacFadzean—

Will demonstrate to Houghton, Mich., That Du-luth members are not fish.

George W. Hibbard, general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway, has invited the Duluth and Superior local office officials to a "time" at Houghton.

The invitation was received and accepted at the meeting of the local Passenger Men's association yesterday.

The start for Houghton will be made on the evening of June 5. The reception, or whatever it may be termed, at Houghton, under the management of Mr. Hibbard, will be held June 6. If the "among those present" are lucky they will get back June 8.

Anyway, there is a subject for speculation, and the local railroad men are living in high hopes, and training so as to be in fine fettle for the function.

The wording of the invitation of Mr. Hibbard was somewhat misleading, as it requested the members of the association at the head of the lakes to hold their next meeting at the Douglas house in Houghton, as his guests.

No arrangements have been made as yet for a special train, but it is likely that the regular train will be taken down, and the implied challenge of the Houghton men may result in an hospital train being utilized to bring the members back.

The entertainment, it is expected, will consist of a trip around the city and in the vicinity of Houghton, and a banquet of some kind at the Douglas house, with a meeting at the beginning, where the members of the visiting party may, if they see fit, pass resolutions of a highly colored character, to compensate their guests for the privilege of the work as an entertainment committee.

There are several of the railroad men at the head of the lakes who have never been at Houghton, though in constant business connection with the place, and the invitation is highly appreciated.

LARGE MAY RECORD

Cars Hauled Will Run Into High Figures.

The reports of car movements at the head of the lakes this month will probably break records for May since the establishment of the car association at the head of the lakes.

The reason for the big movement at the head of the lakes this year, and the showing that will result on the report sheets, is that the lumber movement from Cloquet will be included in these reports.

Up to last fall the Cloquet lumber movement did not come in the scope of the local car association's work. Superintendent Kelly, of the association, said this morning he believed this month would hold all records for the month of May.

ARE GLAD IT CAME.

Railroad Officials Happy at Getting a Certain Shipment.

The Northern Pacific railroad has had a reputation of being prompt for the delivery of freight consigned to its care, but it has fallen down badly, and if a certain piece of freight had not arrived this morning, there is no telling what the road might have suffered.

Guy A. Eaton received the machinery for his forty-foot yacht that is nearly ready, down at the Pearson boat works.

He was there when it arrived, and he was there several times before it arrived, and General Agent T. E. Blanche, of the Northern Pacific, said that life had been a burden to him for the past several days.

Mr. Eaton was "tickled to death" this morning when he found that the machinery had arrived, and the employes of the Northern Pacific are doing a little rejoicing themselves.

SMALL BOYS' HEROES.

Circus Bill Posting Cars Reach the City.

The first visible portion of the Forepaugh-Sells Bros.' circus arrived in town this morning, under the direction of H. O. Aitkin, and the vicinity will be plastered with gaudy bills within twenty-four hours.

The members o fthe party stopped at the St. Louis hotel this noon and will assume their duties as out door decorators and general heroes of the small boy contingent this afternoon.

There are eight in the party and they will work out from Duluth. They have the special circus billing cars, which arrived this forenoon.

THE SEASON OPENS

Three Games Open The Season of Northern Baseball League.

Duluth Team Will Play The Fargo Nine at Fargo.

Duluth at Fargo.
Superior at Winnipeg.
Crookston at Grand Forks.

This is the program for the opening of the Northern league tomorrow.

There will be big doings at Fargo, with a parade and other interesting ceremonies, and incidentally a hard game for the Cardinals.

Fargo's work during the preliminary training has been sensationally fast, and the team has been working together for nearly a month, while the Duluth men got together for the first time at Stillwater on Sunday.

However, the Cardinals expect to win and will play ball from start to finish. Volz will pitch for Duluth, and possibly Julian or Harris for the Fargoites. A number of local fans leave tonight to see the game, and they are carrying such rolls of money that it is probable the railroad companies will charge them for excess baggage. They proposed to use this money in a way that will show their confidence in the Cardinals.

Reports from Fargo today were to the effect that the men were all in good condition and ready to put up a stiff game. Volz and Kline are getting accustomed to each other, and the other members of the team are endeavoring to get team work down to a fine art.

Davis, a left-hand pitcher from the St. Paul American association team, is to be given a try-out by Duluth, and will probably pitch the first game at Grand Forks. Volz may twirl two games against Fargo, and Mueller and Gehring one each. Mueller will be called on to pitch two of the Winnipeg games and Gehring and Davis will be depended on in the Grand Forks series, when is the last of the first Western trip.

Superior does not seem to have much of a chance of winning the game at Winnipeg. The champions are stronger than ever and the fans that have seen Superior working will be surprised if Tim Keefe's aggregation wins a game on the present trip.

* * *

The Crookston-Grand Forks game looks like the next closest after Duluth and Fargo. Crookston, with Martin pitching, looks a little stronger on paper, but "dope" books are not to be depended on at all times.

The Crookston rooters will go to Grand Forks on a special train and will take a band with them. Slette or Sessions will pitch for Grand Forks.

The Duluth management has decided to have one day each week during which women will be admitted to the games free. The ladies' day has not been determined delimitely, but Friday may be selected.

* * *

Second Baseman Ruhland, formerly with Baltimore, has overlooked the fact that he is expected to report for duty at Fargo.

* * *

Whalen, the Duluth second baseman, is lost, strayed or stolen, and if he does not turn up in time for tomorrow's game at Fargo, a young Canadian player named Solon will don the cardinal socks and play second.

* * *

Leonard will probably be released. This reduces the list of original candidates to just two—Gehring and McCoy.

* * *

Duluth has a line out for Jones, a speedy left-hand pitcher that has been on the Detroit extra list.

* * *

Walter Wilmot has reconsidered his retirement from the baseball field and will manage the Butte team for the remainder of the season.

* * *

"Loole" Kline is said to be catching Mueller, Volz and Gehring as if he had worked with them all his life.

PRESIDENT IN NEVADA

Makes Stops at Carson, Reno and Other Places.

Reno, Nev., May 19.—The presidential party arrived at Reno at 7:30 this morning and ten minutes later was on the main line of the Virginia & Truckee road, on their way to Carson. While the president's train stopped here he came out on the back platform of his car and pleasantly greeted the immense throng that had assembled to give him a true Nevada welcome, the crowd cheered and was kept in god humor by the president talking to them. He did not attempt to make a speech, but talked first to one, then to another. When his train started he kept waving his hand and saying, "Good-bye, good-bye."

The president's train returned from Carson at 11 o'clock. His party was soon seated in carriages and driven to the court house, where the president made an address.

After his speech he was driven about town for about ten minutes, spent ten minutes in the chamber of commerce and was then driven to the State university, where he spoke to 400 students.

He was then driven to his train and started for the West again.

Among the pleasant incidents of the president's visit to Reno was when H. J. Barlow, of Battle Mountain, one of the Roosevelt Rough Riders, who smelled smoke with the president in his famous charge up San Juan Hill, sent his card in to the president. "Show him in," was the president's command. On Barlow's appearance the president greeted him cordially and asked him several questions.

TWO MEN CREMEATED.

Charleston, W. Va., May 19.—News comes from Campus, W. Va., that a log house in which lumbermen for Cole, Crane & Co., of Cincinnati, were quartered was burned, two men being cremated and five badly injured, some probably fatally. The fire imprisoned the men, who could be seen vainly trying to make their escape. Despite efforts to rescue them two met death in the flames.

HE CAME TO GRIEF

Dick Ferris And His Automobile Trip to Duluth.

A Mud Hole at North Branch Finished The Trip.

"I love to walk," the coy maid said,
"'Tis so romantic, don't you see?"
"Then surely you," the lad replied,
"Ought to go auto-ing with me."

Richard Ferris and his three-ply, low-necked, juggernautic auto, met his Waterloo at North Branch yesterday.

To his Thespian intellect came those thrilling Richardian words, with forceful rush: "A horse! A horse! My kingdom or this auto for a horse!"

As it was, he took a train.

Mr. Ferris thought that he would have a short vacation this week, as he didn't have to do anything in particular the early part of the week, except to study his part for the last of the week at the Metropolitan here, audit the accounts for his three theaters, hire several new actors and read a few million mash notes.

With activity worthy of the strenuous young actor, he decided he would have time to squeeze in an automobile ride between his several duties and St. Paul and Duluth.

So to his trusty (up to that time) automobile he went and soliloquized thusly:

"Thou art my pride, the only three-cylinder, French racing, running geared, japaned tied, $5000, all-round hot proposition in automobiles in the Northwest, and we'll give you the honor of a chance at a trip to Duluth."

The poor machine trembled with fright and shivered with cold.

But it was finally rolled out and the actor and some company and a few cold bottles started on the expedition.

Chickens, small children and stray teams scurried off the track as the big machine tore along on its journey to Duluth, and Mrs. Ferris sat at the southwest corner of the sun parlor at the Spalding hotel here, looking anxiously for that spot of dust which would tell of the coming of her husband.

She waited far into the night.

For at North Branch the innocent-looking road developed into a slough of real Minnesota mud, and the machine went into it hub deep.

The currents were turned on full force, but all that happened was a great spattering of mud.

Then horses were secured and the machine was finally pulled out, though the storage was used up.

Now, Mr. Ferris is a man of determination, and that machine is coming to Duluth.

It is now being placed on a train of cars, and it will be shipped here by rail and reloaded when it gets here—but it's got to come, and Mr. Ferris will be along tonight or tomorrow morning.

FINISHES WORK

Federal Grand Jury Completes Labors and Is Discharged.

Jury In Williams Forgery Case Is Out Many Hours.

The federal grand jury completed its work this afternoon and was discharged. It has been in session just a week and has returned a large number of indictments, several of which are not made public.

In the district court the case of John McCabe against whom four indictments for selling liquor to Indians were returned, is still being heard. The testimony will probably be completed this afternoon and the case go to the jury.

In the case of John Williams, of Brainerd, acused of forgery the jury has not yet returned a verdict. He is accused of having a postal order cashed by means of forgery. There were two men by the name of John Williams in the town and the defendant received an order for $10 which it is claimed he knew was meant for the other man. The jury was out all night on the case and will probably be discharged today, unless some decision is reached.

A mandate from the supreme court has been filed with the clerk of the United States circuit court, reversing the decision of the circuit court in the case of P. H. Kirwan as United States surveyor general against Simon J. Murphy et al. The decision thus rests with the plaintiff, who is allowed the costs of the case.

H. B. MOORE SELECTED.

Will Be Secretary of Duluth Board of Trade.

The directors of the Duluth board of trade have elected H. B. Moore as secretary, to succeed S. A. Kemp, who resigned recently

Mr. Moore is not now in Duluth, having been in Louisiana for some time. He is to return here and take the position June 1. Mr. Moore was weighmaster at Duluth under the John Lind administration, was collector of the port of Duluth under the Cleveland administration, and was at one time mayor of Duluth.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

Third Anniversary of Raising American Flag In Tutuila.

Natives From All Over Islands Showed Great Enthusiasm.

Washington May 19.—Fitafitas headed the list of events at the recent celebration in Tutuila of the third anniversary of the raising of the American flag in that island, says Commander Underwood, commandant of the Tutuila naval station, in a report received at the navy department from Pago Pago. This consisted of native guard drill and siva dances by native organizations, the Star says. Natives from all over the islands assembled at Pago Pago to witness the sports and showed great enthusiasm. The day—April 17—was made a general holiday.

Accompanied by the secretary of native affairs, Commander Underwood recently proceeded in the gunboat Wheeling to Tua, of the Manau group. There he held a conference with District Governor Tuimanuaa and his principal chiefs, to whom he communicated the messages of interest and sympathy to the Samoan people sent them by President Roosevelt.

"The feeling in this district toward the government is of a friendly character," says Commander Underwood. "The hurricanes of Jan. 1, and, to a greater degree, that of the middle of February, have caused considerable damage. The church at Ofu, the largest of the six native churches in the district, was partly unroofed. Over twenty-five native houses in the group were blown down and the government bathhouses. Hurricanes severely damaged the crops, blowing down cocanuts, breadstuffs and bananas, and uprooting many of the trees. Because of the scarcity of copra, the dry kernel of the cocanne, in which taxes are paid, a reduction in Tutuila's assessment will be necessary. Underground crops are reported in good condition but the scourge of the caterpillar is continually feared."

Acting Secretary Darling of the navy department has made arrangements with the secretary of agriculture for the delivery of a quantity of seeds and plants suitable for cultivation in Tutuila in exchange for seeds and plants occurring in that new island possession of the United States, which the department of agriculture may desire for introdnetion elsewhere.

Since the publication in these dispatches of the probable position which Grover Cleveland will assume in the presidential contest of next year a number of articles have appeared in the newspapers in various sections of the country which have attempted to make it appear that the former president has expressed himself openly upon the subject of the next Democratic nominee. One of these articles under a Cleveland, Ohio, date line intimated that Mr. Cleveland might possibly allow his name to be used in the Democratic convention. The article referred to while guardedly worded was designed to convey the impression that the former president is in the hands of his friends." It is a fact that Mr. Cleveland has at no time intimated to even his most intimate friends that he will permit his name to be used under any consideration, and he certainly would not be likely to authorize a reporter whom he met casually during a fishing trip to make the announcement which he has universally declined to make through those whom he knows best.

The fact is that the ex-president is not likely under any circumstances to commit himself for some months to come. Newspaper correspondents who have written to him asking for an interview have recently been advised that Mr. Cleveland will be very pleased to see them at any time they may visit Princeton after the twentieth instant, provided they will not expect him to talk upon political subjects for publication. It may be set down as absolutely certain therefore that all alleged interviews with him upon the subject of the Democratic nomination next year are neither authentic nor authorized.

Public Printer Palmer hopes to get into his new office building within the next three months. To accomplish this object, however, he has a herculean task before him. The public printer has four or five thousand compositors, pressmen, binders and folders, to say nothing of laborers and clerical assistants under him, and tons and tons of machinery to move. His right hand man at this time is Capt. Brian, recently appointed chief clerk, who was for a score of years foreman of printing. If Capt. Brian were not already gray-headed as the result of many years of service for the government, his hair ought to turn gray in one night because of the strain which is put upon him during these days of preparation for removal. It is no uncommon thing to find him acting as a sort of Pooh Bah of the printing office. The other day he was public printer, chief clerk, foreman of printing, financial clerk and paymaster all at one time, and yet he performed his duties so admirably that no one, unfamiliar with the workings of the office, would have imagined that one man was filling all these positions. Those who sat in his office for half an hour awaiting to see him upon business voted him entitled to a golden crown and a halo because of his patience when listening to a half dozen people and noticed how admirably he refrained from throwing inkstands and various other missiles at the head of subordinates who bothered him with minor affairs which they could so readily have attended to themselves had they used the slightest discretion. Capt. Brian's long connection with the printing office has fitted him to occupy any place within that vast hive of industry, from compositor to public printer, and it will be a sorry day for the service when his connection with the office shall cease.

AT WEST DULUTH

Mrs. Regina Olson, a widow, who has been residing at the corner of Fifty-eighth avenue and Nicollet street, has disappeared from the neighborhood and her whereabouts are unknown to her friends.

Mrs. Olson's husband died about three years ago and her children were taken in charge by the county authorities. Mrs. Olson was sent to the poor farm, but refused to remain and returned to West Duluth. For the past two years and a half she has resided at the corner of Fifty-eight avenue and Ramsey street. The house in which she was living was sold by the owner and she was dispossessed. The furniture and household belongings have remained on the sidewalk since Saturday afternoon, but some friends of the woman are planning to have it taken to a store house.

Mrs. Olson has not been seen by her friends since she was dispossessed and some fears are entertained as to her safety as she was known to be subject to attack of insanity.

Friends who were interested in the case applied to Justic Stone, but it was not within his jurisdiction and they were referred to Mr. Cook, the superintendent of poor.

If she can be found she will probably be taken in charge by the county authorities.

FAIRMOUNT PARK.

Improvements to West Duluth's beautiful public ground, Fairmount Park, are contemplated by the park board.

A party composed of Mayor Hugo, Aldermen Barnes and Sang, Park commissioners, Luther Mendenhall, B. Silberstein, Dr. L. T. Burnside, Secretary H. C. Helm and C. H. Martz, of the board of public work, came out on the private car St. Louis yesterday afternoon and visited the park.

It was announced that among the immediate improvements that are to be made will be a pavilion and a suitable entrance. The pavilion will have a floor adapted to dancing.

Fairmount park is a very popular resort for picnic parties and pleasure seekers during the summer months. It contains many beautiful driveways, but is difficult of acess on account of lack of entrance. The announcement that improvements are to be made is very welcome to West Duluth citizens and their families.

BOY IS ACQUITTED.

In Justice Stone's court yesterday Arthur Enberg, the young lad who was accused of breaking into a boathouse and removing certain boat fixtures, was acquitted and dismissed. The evidence of the witnesses was found to be conflicting and insufficient to justify the authorities in keeping the lad in custody longer.

John Davis a barber, whose place of business is at 3901 Oneota street, was arraigned on a charge of keeping his shop open on Sunday. He pleaded guilty and was assessed $5 and costs.

ACTIONS FOR DAMAGES.

Trials of Two More Are Taken Up.

The trials of two more damage actions were begun this morning in district court. In Judge Cant's room, George H. Craig, as administrator, seeks to recover from the Benedictine Sisters' Hospital association damages in the amount of $5000 for the loss of his son who was killed in an elevator accident at St. Mary's hospital some time ago. The case is really on for a new trial, a judgment having been rendered for the defendant at the previous trial and the plaintiff obtaining the new trial on the grounds of bias of the court at the first trial.

In Judge Ensign's room, John Manwaring is seeking to recover $1999 from the Drake & Stratton company that operates large stripping contracts on the range, for fingers which the plaintiff alleges to have lost while coupling the plaintiff's cars.

The regular panel of jurors for the May term having been exhausted this morning, Judge Dibell ordered a special venire made for eighteen more jurymen. The venire is returnable tomorrow morning.

PAYS HIS FINE.

Postmaster Who Sold Fitger's Ginger Ale Admits Guilt.

M. L. Cunningham, postmaster, justice of peace and general merchant at Burnett, Minn., who was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of selling intoxicating liquors without a license, appeared before the court this noon and entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $100 and costs, which he paid. Cunningham has not been in custody since his arrest, bonds having been furnished by his friends in this city. It was charged that he sold liquor in bottles marked ginger ale, but which had "A. Fitger & Company" blown in the glass.

VERDICT IS HEAVY

Brisson Is Given $7500 Against Company Operating Virginia Road.

Lost a Foot Through a Locomotive Tender Jumping Track.

Fred Brisson has been awarded a verdict of $7500 against the Minnesota Land and Construction company. The jury in the case came to an agreement about 12 o'clock last evening, and the sealed verdict was opened in district court this morning. The plaintiff was injured on Taber's spur of the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road over a year ago during an accident when the tender of the locomotive on which he was riding jumped the track and he sustained a crushed foot, which was afterward amputated.

An action for damages in the amount of $36,000 was brought against the Minnesota Land and Construction company and the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake Railway company, but was dismissed as to the last named plaintiff as it was shown the road is still being operated under the control of the land and construction company. The case was a hard fought one, the trial occupying over a week.

Brisson was formerly a brakeman on the Duluth, Virginia & Rany Lake road and after his injury was taken to Dr. Bates' hospital in Virginia, and there the amputation took place. The defendant attempted to show that the loss of the foot was due largely to the treatment that the plaintiff received while in the hospital.

The plaintiff was represented by S. A. Anderson, of St. Paul, and the defendant by Howard T. Abbott and Bert Fesler.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Tables Turned In a Divorce Case at Sioux Falls.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The courtroom was the scene of the trial of a sensational divorce case, that of Jane Hamill vs. Charles W. Hamill of Terre Haute, Ind. The plaintiff is related to the Farwells of Chicago. The defendant is a leading attorney of Terre Haute. Mrs. Hamill, who is worth $250,000 in her own right, asked that she be granted a divorce on the ground of non-support. The defendant, who is of moderate means, determined to resist the attempt of his wife, and brought a counter suit against her on the ground of desertion.

The testimony showed that she deserted him about a year ago and went to Mexico, where she remained until she came to Sioux Falls last fall for the purpose of procuring a divorce. Judge Jones granted a decree to Mr. Hamill instead of the plaintiff.

George F. Earl who was arrested on the occasion of President Roosevelt's visit for picking the pocket of a Sioux Falls man, was sentenced to one year and six months.

Waubay—The village council has issued orders closing all the saloons at 11 o'clock in compliance with the state law and has ordered all gambling places closed. Slot machines were ordered out and dice shaking prohibited.

The board of education has engaged the teachers for the following year: Professor Jolley, principal; Miss Lettie Crosby, assistant; Miss Agnes Bowler, intermediate; and Mrs. Joseph Marshall, primary.

Sturgis—McGrath, the soldier who broke into Anderson & Son's hardware store, received one year and five months. The man Brown, who cut up John Bullis last fall, pleaded guilty to assault and received one year.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—A deputy sheriff from Bismarck was in Jamestown on his way to Normania county, with a subpoena for State Senator Kirkelde, wanted as a witness in a blind pig prosecution at Bismarck. Ex-Auditor Carlbloom of Forman and other prominent politicians will be taken to Bismarck as witnesses in the cases. There is a bitter political warfare at Bismarck, and the reform forces are sparing no effort to secure convictions. Landlord Patterson of the Northwest, incensed at the prosecution of Editor Rolling of the Palladium on a charge of illegal voting, threatens to bring disbarment proceedings against City Attorney Ed Allen of Bismarck.

Jamestown will expend $12,000 in extensions to the sewer system this summer. Bids for the work will be advertised for at an early date.

For several months there has been a scarcity of houses in Jamestown, and twenty-five new residences are being built. Many more are planned and will our sons, who will worthily wear them, and in no crisis of the republic whether in forum or field, will they be found wanting.

At the conclusion of his address Gen. Gordon introduced Governor W. W. Heard, of Louisiana, who, in behalf of the state, extended a formal welcome to the delegates and their friends.

Hon. John H. Rogers, judge of the United States district court, the orator of the day, said in part:

Why are we here? No fanatical religious crusade prompted this immense concourse. Here are to be found all creeds and faiths and beliefs, in perfect peace with each other, freed from antagonisms to excite the passions of men. In yonder sky are no angry clouds of pestilence or war. No impending danger threatens our land, demanding consultation and means of protection from enemies within and without. We are at peace at home and abroad. Neither are we weary pilgrims to a Holy Mecca, seeking absolution of our sins. Nor are we aspirants for social or political preferment. This is no vast political convention or mass meeting, assembled for purpose of considering grave matters of state or seeking to confer honors on favorite sons. Nay, nay, none of these. What is it that has brought us together? This great assembly hall, festooned with bunting and flags, emblems of liberty and power, its ampitheater filled with the grave manhood and lovely womanhood of the South; these venerable men, the survivors of the tremendous conflict of the '60s—all these things tell of a deep, underlying cause. This great sea of upturned faces, glowing with life, intelligence and sympathy—if not with joy unmingled with sorrow—proclaim that the purpose of our assembling has made a deep impression upon our hearts. We need not repress the devotions by which we are agitated. Whenever and wherever these re-unions occur, we are standing amid the sepulchers of our dead. Every foot of our beloved Southland is distinguished by their courage, their sublime fortitude, their self-denial, their unwavering devotion and patriotism and sanctified by the shedding of their blood. Time and nature have had their course in diminishing the numbers of those who surrendered at the close of the great civil war, but neither time nor nature can relieve those who survive of the duties they owe to the memory of our recorded dead, to our posterity, to our beloved Southland and to ourselves. We are here today to discharge as we may, those duties, and to renew old friendships forged in the white heat of common conviction, that in the hour of trial and peril, we were true to the constitution as it was framed and handed down to us by Washington and his compatriots. We are here also to pay tribute to the noble band of Southern women, the mothers and daughters of the Confederacy.

If we would not have our very children in the near future, if not ashamed and apologizing for us, then unable to defend us, we must not be idle in preserving, recording and teaching the real facts upon which the righteousness of our actions must depend.

I find no fault with the New England states that, from the moment the Pilgrim Fathers touched foot on Plymouth rock, they began and have continued day by day to record their own deeds; but it cannot be truthfully said that their writers and statesmen have always been as just and faithful in their interpretation and treatment of the actions of others, as they have been diligent in recording their own deeds, and afterwards escaping their responsibility and logical consequences. It is a misfortune to the South that her sons, if not indifferent, then carelessly neglected to preserve for historian, like records. The true record of the South, if it can be related with historic accuracy, is rich in patriotism, in intellectual force, in civic and military achievements, in heroism, in honorable and sagacious statesmanship, of a proper share in which no American can afford to deprive himself. So much genius in legislation, in administration, in jurisprudence, in war, such great capacities, should expel partisan and sectional prejudices.

The South is reproached for dis-union, secession. It is the basis for the charge of treason, of disrupting the Union, of violating the constitution, of rebellion. The South made war on states remaining in the Union. Secession meant disunion so far as the seceding states were concerned, but it neither meant war nor rebellion. It meant a union intact so far as all the states were concerned, which did not secede, and a union, too, under the constitution. As the states entered the Union each under acts of ratification of its own, so secession meant the resumption by each state of its delegated powers, by repealing the acts under which it entered the compact; but the repeal of such acts did not and could not affect the acts by which the remaining states entered into the Confederation.

I affirm, if odium is to attach to the South for the act of secession, it must attach also to the great North and East, where it was for political, economical and industrial reasons, sedulously agitated and inculcated up to the Mexican war, and 1860. History ought not to allow them to slip, this odium, if odium it be, from their shoulders, to the shoulders of the South.

Our children should know that the Confederate states, by the act of secession, made no war on the United States; that the war between the states was not a rebellion. It was the result of an effort by the United States to coerce states against their will to remain in the Union, a power not to be found in the constitution, a power entirely inconsistent with the right of secession, which it is believed all parts of the country recognized when the constitution was framed and for many years thereafter.

If the Southern states had the power, notwithstanding the constitution, to withdraw from the Union in 1860, 1861 and 1862, as New England statesmen then affirmed, they had the same power in 1861. No change of the constitution had been made and the relations of the states to each other were unaltered. If that power existed at all, the expediency of withdrawing was one solely for each state to decide for itself.

It was not a question of the control of the government or an economical or industrial question; it was not a question of preserving the balance of power or the equilibrium of the sections, such as was felt in New England when the Louisiana and Florida purchases were made, and Texas acquired. It was a question of civilization, or constitutional liberty, of the preservation of the principles of the constitution; and the South when the alternative was presenting of abandoning the principles of the constitution, or giving up the Union, with alacrity, but with deepest reluctance that the necessity existed, chose the latter. She was overcome; she has suffered, but she ought not to be maligned or misrepresented.

I must not be misunderstood. This whole question of secession and disunion has been forever settled, so far as the New York in which the addresses of all the creameries in the state are asked. The commission man declares that the results have demonstrated that the North Dakota butter has a better body and carries longer in cold storage than any they can secure. The industry is on a big boom in this state.

The Hoo-Hoos of Fargo are planning a big concatenation on May 29.

The Elks held an interesting meeting Saturday night in which a large class was put through. United States Senator McCumber was one. A social program followed the initiation.

The first death at the local pesthouse from smallpox was Thomas Hegland, who had been employed on a farm south of Wheatland.

In the contest of Jacob Vink vs. James Martin for a quarter section of land in LaMourse county, the land office officials have decided in favor of the contestant on the ground that the homesteader did not comply with the law regarding the permanency of his residence.

The case of John W. Creekmur vs. George E. Kreese is attracting some attention here. Kreese gave his note to the treasurer of the Illinois Medical and Surgical Institute. It was later transferred to Creekmur who is suing to recover the amount. The justice holds that the medical organization was not organized under the laws of this state and had no regularly appointed officer upon whom service could be made, hence the contract was void. An appeal will be taken.

Slavery perished, like secession, as one of the incidents and results of the war. Thank God it has gone forever, and that we have a reunited country under one flag, the emblem of a free people in an inseparable Union of co-equal states, and never dreamed, we pray God, to become the emblem of imperial power at home or abroad, or to float over vassal states and subject peoples anywhere against their will.

We are assembled here for no ignoble ends. We are here to revive no issues settled by that unhappy conflict. We are not here to defame others or pervert or warp the truth. We are not here to exaggerate or magnify the glory and virtues of one section of our common country at the expense of the other. We are here that mankind may not forget, nor falsehood nor calumny cloud or tarnish the calm judgment of prosperity, as to the sincerity of the motives, and the honorable conduct of the Confederate soldiers. We affirm our desire that our children may understand these things, that they may the more reverence their ancestry; that they may know of their sufferings and sacrifices, and be able to defend their good names, and, proud of their achievements, emulate, in the great struggles of the future, if such await our country, the fidelity, patriotism, love of home and country attested by the veterans of 1861 on an hundred bloody battle fields.

Who would have them forget the Lees, the Johnstons, the Jacksons and the Hills? Who would have them forget the Bragg, Beauregard, Hardee, Price, Polk and Hood? Who would have them forget that great wizard of the saddle, Bedford Forrest, and our own little Joe Wheeler, Pat Cleburn, the lamented Walthall, and innumerable others? Who would have nus forget the grand old man (Gen. John B. Gordon), yet with us, and others still spared to us and the hosts who made for them names that can never perish from the earth as long as genius and courage and patriotism challenge the admiration of mankind.

Did any other people ever face and overcome adversity as did the Southern people? The same spirit which gave her armies unity, power and endurance followed the survivors back into civil life to point the way of a new birth such as no other country has ever experienced. The South gave to her sons as all of her male population, including beardless boys and gray-haired men, and they went from every walk, profession, calling and station in life. Neither the bench, the pulpit, nor the institutions of learning were spared. All answered with alacrity and determination the call to arms. When the war closed there were none upon whom to rely but the ex-Confederate soldier. He it was who took up the new problems which the changed conditions of his desolate land presented. Standing by the graves of his comrades, inspired by their noble deeds, chastened and disciplined by the horrors, self-denial and sufferings of war, encouraged by the high achievements of his revolutionary sires, and loving veneration the traditions of his ancestry, interwoven as they were with the history of his beloved South, undismayed, but hampered by the prejudices and passions which the war had left behind, he began the work of rebuilding her shattered fortunes and rehabilitating her dismantled commonwealth. But as the South had fought for the principle of local self-government and lost, so in the disjointed logic of the time, she was to be denied its application in the re-establishment of her state government. The great North sent the carpet-bagger, who, aided by those who had never exercised the simplest rights of citizenship, were expected to set up and administer such governments as were fit for a people who, for nearly three-quarters of a century had, in the main, guided and directed the splendid progress and development of the great republic. The riotous and debauched condition into which a helpless and defenceless people were plunged by this characterless horde of insatiable cormorants who assembled at our state capitals, to blaspheme the very name of civil government, and plot schemes to oppress a fallen foe that they might prolong their opportunities for peculation, must be left to the future historian, in the interest of truth and as a lesson to prosperity, and as a warning to us all that there is freedom where one man is permitted to govern others against their wills, to drag away the sheet that covers the things it could not endure.

With the South's overwhelming problem still unsolved, she has, nevertheless, under the auspices of her own people, fallen and safe and peaceful, if not happy and prosperous times. Her sons and daughters have resumed their rightful station, and whatever the future has in store of good for her, must rest upon the trains and characteristics of her people. She will be patient; she will be prudent. To all the knightly and queenly virtues she will hold fast, trusting in God and the future for the noble and the good. The South will not dispair.

Greed of gain and lust of power, culminating in plutocratic usurpation of all the branches of government, has never found favor or encouragement here. Our population, Anglo-Saxon still, has never been dominated by foreign elements, ignorant and careless of the principles of our government and the practice of our fathers. We still have our splendid inheritance except as modified—let us believe for the better—by war. I believe as I live, that if our institutions are to be preserved, much, so much, will depend upon this goodly South of ours. Our deepest concern should be for a better and more righteous national character. All the bounteous elements of earth and sky beckon us away from the base fascination of self which rishonors and destroys our country.

Let us invite all her people into paths of law and order, inculcating peace, and keep alive our sense of justice and human freedom, and let all our advancement and growth be characterized by such a recognition of the rights of man as shall make her people feel that the blessings of Providence are theirs, under a government of just and equal laws.

May our beloved Southland build all her temples, not upon the shifting quicksands of selfish expediency, but upon the everlasting principles of right. Let us not forget, that, in the great Armory of Divine Providence, justice forgets her weapons long before her battles are fought; that in the everlasting courts of heaven every man must suffer the penalty of his disobedience, and all nations the penalty of injustice and wrong. Whatever may be our burdens or calamities, let us bear them with that courage and fortitude that becomes a just and a great people, and may our children and our children's children be inspired to walk along the very mountain ranges of an enlightened Christian civilization, always in the paths of duty, and preserve and keep sacred the same great qualities that made their ancestry respected and beloved of mankind.

While the veterans were assembling at the fair grounds, the convention of the Sons of Veterans was called to order in the Crescent theater by J. D. Nix, commander of Camp Beauregard. After an invocation by Chaplain General Bishop Gaylor, of Tennessee, there were several addresses of welcome. Memorial services in honor of Jefferson Davis were held in Christ church at 10 a. m.

SOLVING A SOCIAL PROBLEM.

How to provide social recreation for the residents of the tenement districts in the large cities is a question of great importance. At present such facilities are confined mainly to the saloons and social halls controlled by the liquor dealers. Manifestly it is extremely desirable that this control of the social life of the poorer quarters by the liquor interests should be broken up. An interesting experiment in this direction is about to be tried in New York city. The Nurses' Settlement on the East Side will open next October a social hall for the benefit of the people of the neighborhood. The enterprise will be conducted on a basis of combined business and philanthropy; it is expected that at least 4 per cent will be earned on the investment. The building will have five stories besides a basement and a roof garden. There will be two restaurants, in one of which smoking will be permitted; a hall, with special facilities for dancing and dramatic entertainments; parlors suitable for weddings and assemblies; clubrooms for labor unions and other organizations.

The most interesting feature of the plan is thus described by Rev. Raymond Calkins, writing in the Congregationalist: "Needless to say, there will be no bar. But neither will the attempt be made to conduct the place on a strictly total abstinence basis. It has been decided that the best way will be to allow patrons to order light wines and beer at the table, if they desire, in the same way in which an up-town club man would be privileged to order wine with his dinner, but of course there will be no general or excessive drinking permitted. The progress of this experiment will be watched with the deepst intrest. It is a wise attempt, the result of long observation and experience, to solve a serious social problem. It is sure to meet a great need. If, in addition it proves, as there is every likelihood of its proving, financially successful, it ought to open a new era for the social life of the poorer residents of our large cities."

There have already been a number of experiments of this kind principally by employers of a large number of men, and as a whole they have been successful. The main point is not to shut off entirely the acquired tastes of men, but to modify them, and the plan is proving successful.

AFTER THE PALMA TROPHY.

Competitive tests are now going on at Seagirt, N. J., for the selection of a team to represent the United States in the international rifle competition to occur in England in July. The Palma trophy is the main prize and the friends of the American marksmen are confident that they will recapture it. This is an American emblem, having been purchased in 1876 by subscriptions on the part of the people of the United States. For five consecutive years it was hung up for international competition and regularly won by teams from the United States. The foreign cracks then got tired of their unsuccessful attempts to win it and for twenty-two years there was no competition for the trophy, though lack of candidates. Three years ago it was resurrected by the National Rifle association, and interest revived in another contest. In 1901 Canada sent a team here and won the prize. Last year it was shot for again at Ottawa, the winner being a team from Great Britain, the American team being a close third, while the Canadians were last. It is believed that the chances of the Americans in the coming meet will be better than they were last year. None of our crack men will be lost to the team, while the victorious combination of Great Britain of 1902 will be badly broken up. The war department is doing everything possible to stimulate interest in the coming meet. Secretary Root has agreed to have 15,000 rounds of selected ammunition put up at the Springfield arsenal for the use of the members of the American team. This ammunition will be prepared with great care. The department will also furnish twenty rifles for use by the firing team.

There is no doubt that Americans are the best marksmen in the world and every encouragement should be given to the riflemen to go in and win back the famous trophy. There is no doubt they can do it.

A wealthy New York church is to establish and maintain this summer a 100-acre farm for the benefit of the poor in its neighborhood. The farmhouse will accommodate about fifty persons who will be sent there for a week or two at a time. A unique feature of the work will be that mothers will be sent with their children, as it is found that the former are often in more need of an outing than the latter. There will be no distinction made as to creed. This is an admirable example for other churches.

One of the colonels on the staff of the governor of Georgia is the owner of four saloons. Of course he will see that the commissariat department is well provided for.

The Republican state committee of Alabama has endorsed President Roosevelt's administration, but it has not promised to give him Alabama's electoral vote.

A women's barbers' school in Pennsylvania offers shaves for 1 cent and haircuts for 2 cents. The number of cuts is not limited.

Mrs. M. N. Breeden, of Manassas, Va., is only 30 years old and has nine children, five of whom are less than 2 years old. This is a case that should interest President Roosevelt.

Some dyspeptic officials at Washington ascribe the prevalence of suicide to eating strawberries. What absurd notions some people have.

THE JEWISH MASSACRES.

The shocking stories which come from Southern Russia, reminding one of the awful happenings of the dark ages, are hard to believe, but they have been confirmed by so many letters and dispatches from the scene of the barbarities that there can be no doubt as to their truth. The frightful massacre of the Jews at Kishenieff are a disgrace to the twentieth century and show that ignorance and bigotry still fill a large section of the Russian empire. The blood-thirsty Bear has lost none of his barbaric instincts. The ignorance of the peasantry in Bessarabia and other Russian provinces is appalling. It has long been reported to them that the Jews are in the habit of slaughtering Christian children as propitiatory sacrifices of the Jewish "Easter." So the superstitious peasants have retaliated, just as would have happened four or five centuries ago, and with the most shocking results. That such things can happen in this enlightened age is hard to believe. There are plenty of troops in Russia, and there is no reason why the ignorant peasantry might not have been restrained from their bloodthirsty work. But the reports of the outrages, which were attended by acts of the most fiendish cruelty and torture imaginable, show that no attempt was made by the authorities to stop the wholesale murders; that, on the contrary, the soldiers encouraged the mob of butchers and some of the minor officers were participants in the brutal assaults on helpless women and innocent children.

Hundreds of Jews were killed and their houses and shops were looted and destroyed, while the police and soldiers made no effort to stop the shocking work. It is said now that the Russian officials have been notified from St. Petersburg that a stop must be put to the outrages, and the czar is reported to have notified the governors of the provinces that they will be held personally responsible for failure to prevent any such acts in the future. But what of the barbarities that have been perpetrated upon these inoffensive people? Is no punishment to be meted out to those who participated in the butcheries? Does not the czar intend to make an example of the provincial governors who permitted the carnival of blood and terror in the Jewish villages of Bessarabia? The czar is supposed to be a humane man. He has now an opportunity to show that this estimate of his character is correct. The civilized world stands aghast at the shocking stories of the fiendish deeds of the ignorant and superstitious peasantry and it looks to the czar to put a stop to these acts and to punish those who are guilty of the horrible massacres.

THE ALASKAN COMMISSION.

The tribunal to decide the Alaskan boundary question on the side of the Dominion of Canada, is greatly strengthened by the appointment as the British member of Lord Alverstone, chief justice of England since 1900 and better known as Sir Richard Everard Webster. He was born in 1842. He became a barrister in 1868. Sir Richard Webster's law practice was one of the largest and most valuable in England. He was attorney general of England, 1885-1886, 1886-1892 and 1895-1900 and fifteen years in parliament. Three years ago he became master of the rolls, and was appointed a member of the royal commission on historical manuscripts. Lord Alverstone was one of the British representatives in the Bering Sea arbitration case in 1893. The second member of the tribunal, Hon. John Douglas Armour, is a Canadian, the son of a Church of England clergyman, and was born in Otonobee, Ont., Canada, May 4, 1830. In 1900 he became chief justice of Ontario, and last year a member of the supreme court of Canada. Justice Armour has declined knighthood more than once. In his earlier life he was a Conservative in politics, but later he changed his political views and became a Liberal. He is said to hold the opinion that the political independence of Canada would tend greatly to promote her best interests.

The third member of the tribunal is a French Canadian, Sir Louis Amable Jette, LL.D., lieutenant governor of Quebec since 1898. Born at l'Assomption, Que., in 1836, he was educated at the college in l'Assomption, where he was a fellow student with Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He became editor of La Revue Critique de Legislation et de Jurisprudence du Canada, a corresponding member of the Societe de Legisl. Comparee de Paris, and correspondent of La Revue de Droit International de Grand (Belgium.) For a time he gave his attention to the political press and was editor of L'Ordre. A Liberal in politics, he was returned to the Canadian house of commons for Montreal East in 1872, which constituency he continued to represent until appointed a puisne judge of the superior court, P. Q., in 1878. In this same year he was appointed professor of civil law in Laval university. In 1887, he was named one of the commissioners for the revision of the civil code, province of Quebec, and in 1891 he was appointed on another commission, viz., that providing for an inquiry into the Baie des Chaleurs railway matter. In 1898 he was made commander of the Legion of Honor of France, and in 1901 he was knighted. Sir Louis Jette is a Roman Catholic.

The tribunal as a whole, embracing all its members, is a distinguished one and there is no doubt that this vexed question will be settled finally and in justice to all.

The age of chivalry has not departed. "This is whisky, I believe," said Cardinal Gibbons during the St. Louis club reception as a glass containing the dark-brown taste was handed to him. "If I am right," he continued, "is there an experienced gentleman here who will relieve me of it?" Instantly a score of hands reached out for the booze and the cardinal was saved.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

When a good-natured man and a good man and a man with some originality of thought and a way of his own is apprehended by newspaper men, he is likely to be "worked to death" as material. Especially is this true if the said valuable person is light of build and rather not athletic. For he can't or won't start a rough house under circumstances which would cause same to froth at the mouth.

Price McKinney, of Cleveland, has been here for three or four days. He went home last evening to put in a day or two at St. Paul. Assistant General Superintendent D. M. Philbin, of the Great Northern road, went with him, as did his nephew and party of relatives whom he brought up to look at the mining property owned and controlled by his company.

He has figured as the subject of a newspaper yarn every day. Perhaps once or perhaps twice. And he doesn't like it.

But he knows a great many cute things which he tells, and though he claims authorship of none of them, he generally illustrates any point in a story he is telling with a quotation or reminiscence.

In the presence of one or two ladies at the Spalding hotel, within a day or two, he was telling some little happening of his own experience. He was much interested in his story, himself, and being a man who is generally buying a mine or talking with men about something of the kind, becomes vehement in his expressions occasionally.

"Yes," he was saying, "he had the nerve to tell me that I would either produce or I'd pose as the central of a daylight function, where a half dozen of my old friends, if I had that many, would pick up the white man's burden, and my old acquaintances would say: 'Don't he look natural.'"

"What did you do?" was the breathless question.

"Why, I told him," said the speaker, drawing himself up and inhaling, the far-away look in his eyes slowly fading. "I told him to go—I mean I told him that, er—well—er—say, here's a little verse I saw somewhere one time that seems to cover the ground.

"I didn't write, but I remembered it, and it just covers the expression I wanted to use here.

"This was it: /

"'Go ask papa,' the maiden said.
The young man knew papa was dead.
He also knew the life need led.
"So he understood what the maiden meant
When she said,
'Go
Ask
Papa.'"

"Of course I didn't have time to tell that man all the verse, but he knew what I meant, and it went, too."

A small collection of the most tempting brook trout imaginable, were left at the St. Louis hotel, marked "Pearson." It was on account of this that a burning legal question has arisen in the minds of several who are prone to epicurean tendencies, and who believe that it is a crime to permit the little trout to be sacrificed to the elements, simply because the owner can't be found.

"Could the house be held responsible," asked one, "if the package should be found missing?. I don't see how, because if they staid much longer, they would spoil, and then none could have the benefits they can confer if properly utilized."

This morning there was a raid prepared, and it would have taken place with some stealth and rapidity, had it not been for the untimely finding of a clue to the owner.

The clue is being followed up, but if the person, who is supposed to be the person designated on the cover of the box, does not show up by this afternoon, there are several persons who will shake dice for the trout.

Reservation requests are coming in by the score to the local hotels for the United Commercial Travelers' convention, and some of the hotels have refused to accept any more of them, saying that the guests will all be taken care of without trouble, and the chances for the better selections will be given to the first arrivals.

The Spalding hotel will be fitted out with room telephones shortly. The Duluth Telephone company has contracted to build the system in the hotel, and when it is completed the guests will be able to talk to any part of the city or the United States and part of Canada from their rooms. The system is the same as in the West Hotel at Minneapolis and the first class hotels throughout the western country, and in general use throughout the East.

The telephone central will be installed in the house and connections will be made with the 105 rooms in the hotel.

Work will begin within a few weeks.

PITHILY POINTED.

Baltimore American: Undertaker's Assistant—Hadn't you better go right away to lay old Skyduflynte out?

Undertaker—I ought to, but I have to eat my dinner first. Business before pleasure, you know.

Brooklyn Life: "What interesting sermons you preach!"

"Yes. The time I should have been in a theological seminary I spent in sowing my wild oats.

Columbus Dispatch: Lady (after singing a few rusty notes)—Don't you think my voice should be brought out?

Manager—No; pushed back.

Philadelphia Press: "After all," remarked the man who was given to moralizing, "experience is the greatest of all schools."

"That may be," replied the grumbler, "but very few of us live long enough to graduate."

Philadelphia Ledger: Copley—That's a pretty good cigar you're smoking.

Popley—Yes; that's a 10-center you gave me.

Copley—I gave you? I guess you're mistaken.

Popley—Oh, no. The only dime I found in our baby's bank this morning was the one you put in yesterday.

Kansas City Journal: Munson—Crawley says he has been offered $150 for that old plug of his. Why, that horse in his best days wasn't worth more than $50.

Benson—Oh, he wasn't offered $150 all in a bunch. What he means is that all the offers he ever had for it would add up that amount.

Washington Star: "You can't allus judge a man by de 'mount of fame dat 'taches to him," remarked Uncle Eben. "De pussen dat does his plain duty doesn't attract nearly so much public notice as de one dat goes to a pahlor social an' flourishes a razor."

New York Sun: Wellington was asked how he liked the title of Iron Duke.

"I guess it's all right," he said, "but why didn't they call me a Mailed Fist, or something like that?"

Being assured, however, that all Europe gave him the glad hand, he was somewhat consoled.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Bridget," said Mrs. Hires, sternly, "I met on the street today that policeman who sat in the kitchen with you so long last night. I took advantage of the opportunity to speak to him.

"Oh, ye needn't think that'll make me jealous, ma'am," replied the cook. "Oi have got him cinched, all right."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Lend money and you borrow trouble.

Few women have the humor to understand a queer story; none to tell it.

The Garden of Eden was good enough until Eve got a secret which she had to go out to tell.

Baltimore American: If Ponce de Leon had ever seen a sixty-year-old American at a circus he would never have wasted all that time and money looking for the fountain of perpetual youth.

Selecting a Sure Thing.

Atlanta Constitution: Of all the beautiful and telling epigrams Governor Odell got off at St. Louis, we believe our favorite selection is: "The future is before us."

Some Cases Should Be Let Alone.

New York World: It is reported that Dr. Kemp, of this city, "will soon try to raise the dead." The doctor ought to be very careful in the selection of his subjects.

Tramp Citizens Abroad.

Philadelphia Press: United States consuls are frequently greatly annoyed over the demands made by alleged American citizens who cannot speak the English language and who have not been in this country for many years. Consul Lawson, who is stationed at Quito, Equador, tells of a naturalized citizen who has resided over forty years in the land of his nationality without even visiting the United States, and who cannot speak English, and yet claims to be an American citizen. There should be no "citizenship" in this republic a mere shield to enable the person concerned to escape just responsibilities at home.

His Case an Exception.

Chicago News: Peter Stanley, aged 110, died yesterday in Ohio. He waited as long as he could, but the presidency did not get around to him.

HE DID NOT UNDERSTAND

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Hartridge stood for some time cursorily studying the titles of a calf-bound set of Balzac. Then he quitted the bookcase abruptly and sat down opposite Mrs. Beresford.

"I want your advice," he said, frowning slightly.

After an instant's hesitation he went on:

"I find," said he, "that these matters are much harder to decide from a personal standpoint than a general one."

"Most things are," she commented, with a little smile.

Hartridge paused a moment, meditating.

"After all," he said presently, "I almost dislike to open the subject—to you."

"Don't mind me," she returned quickly and with an odd little laugh that held much of bitterness in its transience. "It won't bruise my petals."

"No, I suppose not," he replied musingly; "you are too sensible to be mock-sensitive, but—" He broke off and rising walked over to a window and looked out.

Mrs. Beresford was eager to know, but she diplomatically refrained from pressing a confidence.

Hartridge came back and tossed his cigar into the grate.

"A certain good fellow has asked my consent to his suit—he wants to marry my sister," said he, slipping back into his chair.

Mrs. Beresford was tactfully silent.

"There's just one obstacle," he pursued, reflectively. "He's a divorced man."

Mrs. Beresford winced, though almost imperceptibly, and recovered herself swiftly.

"I belong in that category," she said, half bitterly.

Hartridge bit his lip and made haste to apologize.

"Had I known this," he said, regretfully, "I—"

Mrs. Beresford cut in with a deprecatory laugh. "Don't," said she, "it doesn't make the least bit of difference in the world, really."

Hartridge regarded her in silence for awhile and his disquietude vanished.

"It all commenced seven years ago," he resumed, reminiscently.

The woman drew a deep breath and looked at him, not searchingly, but with earnest attentiveness in her wide gray eyes.

"His name is Alvord—Tom Alvord," he continued, then paused. He did not look at Mrs. Beresford, and she resolutely withheld her eyes from him.

After a moment he went on again:

"Tom told me all about the—the affair himself. He had a pretty rough time of it."

Neither spoke for several minutes.

"Why don't you go on?" said she, presently; "you mean to tell me—everything—do you not?" Her gaze met his unflinchingly, despite the strange oddness of her voice.

Hartridge crossed his hands on one knee.

"It wasn't his fault," he submitted, tentatively.

Mrs. Beresford caught her breath quickly and rose. She stood for some time with her elbow on the mantel shelf, looking absently through an open window.

Hartridge kept his eyes from her face; he felt the emotion in it and was mute.

After awhile he glanced up and said, precipitately:

"You approve of this?"

"That depends." Her tone was cold, but alert.

The man's lips parted in a little sigh of relief.

"I felt you would agree with me."

She questioned him with her eyes.

"The evidence is entirely in his favor," he explained.

Mrs. Beresford did not stir a muscle, though the color left her cheeks.

"Tell me," she said, steadily.

"They were married just six months; then the—the tragedy."

Mrs. Beresford clasped her hands tightly before her.

"Yes?"

"She was—that is—wasn't all—"

"I see," she interposed hurriedly, "and he?"

"Found it out—that's all."

"Found it out?"

The other nodded.

"How?"—she leaned forward breathlessly—"how did he find it out?"

Hartridge looked at her curiously.

"Why, really, I couldn't say," he answered slowly.

"And the woman—his wife?"

"He left her, of course—went away somewhere."

"And she—what did she say?"

"Nothing—what could she?"

"Damning evidence, all that. Did he give her a chance?" Her eyes flashed almost black.

Hartridge cast a quick look into them.

"There wasn't any doubt."

"He told you that?"

"Every one thought so."

Mrs. Beresford tightened her lips.

"Because she was a woman?" She looked at him with a grim smile.

"It was the truth."

"You are certain of that—quite certain?"

"Entirely so. He told me—everyching."

"But a man, unreasonable—jealous, perhaps—"

"Alvord isn't that sort."

Mrs. Beresford's lip curled faintly.

"It is a wonderful thing—man's confidence in man," she said, with a queer little smile that did not hide the bitterness.

The silence became oppressive. After a long pause Mrs. Beresford spoke again.

"Do you think it just fair to—to the woman?"

Hartridge shifted a trifle uneasily.

"How so?" he asked.

"You heard only the one side."

He shrugged.

"I admire your loyalty," he remarked presently, "but I wouldn't take this case if the American are hopelessly distanced in comparison. Evidently Asia is in no danger of racial suicide.

"I admire your loyalty," he remarked presently, "but I wouldn't take this case if I were you. She isn't worth it—believe me." He bent toward her, so that his warm breath fanned her cheek. "I shouldn't have bothered you with this affair," he went on, with a peculiar glance into the downcast eyes.

After awhile he stood up and looked down at her.

"You won't advise me, then?" he queried, with a slow smile.

"I dare not."

"Why so?" pointedly.

No response.

"Why?" he reiterated.

Mrs. Beresford rose and stood beside him.

"I lack the necessary qualifications," she returned, enigmatically. "I am a divorced woman myself."

He frowned deprecatingly.

"That's an entirely different matter," he returned with swift conviction.

Mrs. Beresford smiled at the grim irony.

"You have never questioned me about that—my other life," she said, slowly.

The man's glance rested on her face with a strange sort of tenderness.

"My dear little woman," he said, with great gentleness, "I don't want to know."

"Not really"

"Upon my honor. Of your own stainless life I am more than sure."

Mrs. Beresford pondered for a moment, her head bent.

"You do not even know my husband's name," she said, looking away from him.

"Your own, of course."

"Is my father's—his—"

"I don't want to know," Hartridge repeated, emphatically.

"Then how do you know that—"

"I only know that you are the one woman in the world—to me," he broke in passionately, his arms outstretched.

Mrs. Beresford drew back sharply.

"You mustn't," she said with white lips. His hands dropped limply to his side.

"I don't understand," he said dully. "I thought—"

"No—you did not understand," she interposed, coldly.

Hartridge's hand went to his head.

"There must have been some mistake," he faltered.

"A terrible mistake," Mrs. Beresford, for the moment excited, sank down in her chair, cold and reserved again.

Hartridge took his seat opposite.

Presently he flushed and started toward her with sudden determination.

"I love you," he said, earnestly, doggedly. "You know that?"

Mrs. Beresford looked at him eagerly, but her lips refused to speak.

"Is it all a mistake?" he asked after a pause, his voice softened.

She shook her head in a tired little way. She was composed, but a low fire burned in the yellow-gray eyes.

Hartridge looked at her wearily. A great heaviness was upon him.

"I beg your pardon," he said humbly, "I did not know. I fancied that you cared—just a little."

The woman's face was averted, but the white of her neck grew whiter. "I'm sorry," she said vaguely, "that you did not understand."

After a constrained silence she turned and looked at him with a pity through which trembled something that he could not fathom.

She leaned toward him and touched his arm lightly. He started at her touch and the tenseness of his hands relaxed. He looked eagerly into the brilliant eyes. She laughed lightly and the forced smile came back to her lips.

Hartridge drew back and set his teeth; the light died from his face.

"Goodby," she said, in a low voice, "you could not understand—that's all."

He bent his head over the white fingers. A minute passed. He rose abruptly and left the room. In a second the front gate clicked. She heard the sound and went to the window. The darkness fell fast and hid him from view. Mrs. Beresford stood motionless and listened till the last footfall died away. Then she walked back to her chair and sat down mechanically. Her eyes, full of horror and sorrow and pity, closed wearily. Presently she started up and looked about her hopelessly.

"God help me, and I—I love him!"

A Dearth of News.

The papers are prosy today,
With nothing at all to say,
Except of a stabbing affray,
And scandals a few,
A financial review,
A murder or two,
A political stew,
A threat of a war,
You can't tell what for
The wreck of a car,
The success of a star,
A holdup that's bold,
An ordinance sold,
The plans for a fair,
A car for the air,
A trust that is new,
Some railroads to sue,
A strike that's begun,
With three others done,
A roseate scheme
To get rich—in a dream,
A yacht built to beat,
A flurry in wheat,
The cruise of a fleet,
Epidemics to fear,
Inventions to cheer,
A peacemaker killed,
A prize fight just "billed,"
And a few other thing
Of society's flings
Or political rings.
That's all that the papers display!
They really have nothing to say
That's worthy of notice today.

A Mean Advantage.

Brooklyn Eagle: John Bruce and Clint Pease were chums. Their stores adjoined, and when business was dull the two young merchants visited back and forth. One cold, blustery day, when customers were few, Clint sat behind the stove in John's store. A young woman came in, and John stepped forward to wait on her.

"I am soliciting subscriptions for an organ for our church," said she.

Now, solicitors of this character were numerous in that town, and merchants used to try to dodge them, since it was not deemed good policy to refuse to contribute. So John was considerably pleased with himself with a happy way out of his present difficulty suggested itself to his quick mind.

"You will have to speak to the proprietor about that," said he, politely. "You will find him a very liberal man. He is back there by the stove."

John grinned as the young woman approached Clint and stated her case.

"How much are the merchants generally giving?" Clint asked, with grave interest in the cause.

"Some are giving as much as a dollar," she answered, "but we are grateful for any sum, however small."

"John," said Clint, with an air of authority, "give the young lady $2 out of the drawer."

And John, of course, had to do it.

China's Immense Population.

New York Tribune: The current reports that census in China including Mongolia, Manchuria, Tibet and Turkestan—shows a total population much above 400,000,000 exceed the highest estimates which were generally accepted in earlier times. Europe's entire total falls far short of such an aggregate, and both the Americas are hopelessly distanced in comparison. Evidently Asia is in no danger of racial suicide.

Tendency of Legislators.

Chicago Chronicle: And now it is a Wisconsin legislator who rises to announce that he is in possession of evidence which will send half his colleagues to the penitentiary. This latest evidence of a tendency to lind all legislators in state's prison suggests the advisibility of abolishing state legislatures altogether and turning the lawmaking industry over to gentlemen who are already enjoying the state's hospitality in striped garments.

Mother Goose Revised.

Mary, Mary, quite contrary;
How does your garden grow?
A table green, a slot machine,
And five beers in a row.
Tom, Tom, the judge's son,
Stole a pig and away he ran,
Tom was a pet; judge said, "I'll bet
He goes to the legislature yet!"

MAKES STRONG NERVES.

Headaches, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Have Never Troubled Rev. A. L. Brantley Since Taking

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

The prompt, effective and honest results that are always obtained by the users of Paine's Celery Compound, call forth the grateful and unstinted praise of clergymen of all denominations. In every parish and district of our land, clergymen are quietly but surely spreading the joyful intelligence that Paine's Celery Compound banishes ill health and makes sick people well.

Like men and women in other professions and in the ordinary callings of life, church ministers are victims of the same ailments and diseases. When oppressed by sufferings and agonies, it is cheering to note that our clergymen have implicit confidence and faith in Dr. Phelps' life-giving prescription, Paine's Celery Compound. Rev. A. L. Brantley, Summertown, Ga., tells how he was raised from a condition of suffering and great danger:

"Before using Paine's Celery Compound I was continually suffering with sick and nervous headache, and it was a common occurrence for me to sleep little or none at night. Often have I arose in the morning with a severe headache and inactive mind, prostrated with nervousness from the loss of sleep. Now I can sleep well at night, have an active mind, and can study ten hours a day, while before I could study but a short while at a time. I certainly feel grateful for such a medicine as Paine's Celery Compound."

THE STAGE

The Flints are well and favorably known in Duluth and they added to their reputation last evening at the Lyceum.

Mr. Flint in opening gave a brief address explaining the principles of the science of hypnotism and calling off subjects to volunteer. Fourteen responded and from these eleven were found to be 'good subjects'. Mrs. Flint, the fun maker of the show then took these in hand and for an hour and a half kept the audience in a state of continual merriment.

The Flints will be at the Lyceum the remainder of the week and each evening will present an entire change of bill. The audience last evening was a large one and the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed. A very successful engagement can be safely predicted.

* * *

The Ferris Comedians' production of "Graustark" at the Metropolitan last evening was an artistic success. "Graustark" is a romantic lve story, with comedy and plenty of excitment. Miss Grace Hayward, who dramatized this popular novel, played the leading role of Princess Yetlevc in a manner which left nothing undesired. She is especially strong in emotional scenes and easily won the audience from her first entrance. Gus Forbes in the role of Lorry, the ideal American, showed himself a noble and convincing lover. Good work was done by Albert Dorris as Harry Anguish, Harry Langdon as Baron Danglos, Frederick Clarke as Prince Lauranz and Roloroz and J. J. McDonald as Prince Gabriel. Miss Bath as the Countess Dagmar was exceedingly clever. Misses O'Neil, Harcourt and Haines were pleasing in their respective characters.

The specialties of the Travis Sisters was repeatedly encored. Geo. Fiske was a repeat-edly encored. Geo. Fiske was a feature in his beautiful songs and has one of the sweetest of tenor voices.

A performance tonight and two tomorrow will conclude the bill of "Graustark," which will be superseded by Dick Ferris in "The Man From Mexico."

WILL SUPPORT ROOSEVELT

Notice Served By Bryan Wing of the Democracy.

Lincoln, Neb., May 19.—The Omaha World-Herald, edited by R. L. Metcalf, the closest political friend W. J. Bryan has in the West, published a three-column editorial, serving notice that if the reorganizers in the Democratic party obtain control the Bryan wing will support Roosevelt for president in the next campaign.

The same paper published a letter sent by Metcalf to Norman E. Mack, editor of the Buffalo Times, and New York's member of the Democratic national committee, which is regarded as Bryan's ultimatum for peace or war with Cleveland, or Eastern forces of the Democratic party.

The letter is believed to be destined to become a gauge of the battle between the Bryan supporters and those of Grover Cleveland, or to bring peace between those forces.

It is expected that Mack will not reply to the letter without a consultation with the Cleveland leaders, and his reply will be taken by Bryan as an ultimatum of the followers of the former president, just as their letter is unquestionably the ultimatum of Bryan, declaring his firm adherence to the principles enunciated in the Kansas City platform.

Bryan was formerly editor of the World-Herald, and it was Metcalf who carried out Bryan's views at Kansas City. Bryan will not admit that the editorials have his sanction. He said yesterday, when questioned, that he had not read them and that he had a medium of his own through which he could speak. It is believed he has given his silent assent to their publication.

Many prominent Democrats for Bryan last year have hinted that they would support Roosevelt rather than Cleveland. The letter of Metcalf to Mack is in answer to the latter's recent editorial on "Harmony." Metcalf adroitly pretends to seek for harmony, but he reviews each plank in the Kansas City platform and indicates that the Bryan wing will not submit to the elimination of any one of them.

WOMEN FIGHT WITH FISTS

Wife of Grand Exalted Ruler of Elks Is Jealous.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 19.—Furious at the supposed attentions of her husband, George B. Cronk, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, to Mrs. Cora Lathrop Patterson, the divorced wife of the son of a millionaire tobacco manufacturer of Richmond, Va., Mrs. Cronk Sunday night came to blows with Mrs. Patterson at the Northwesterin station in this city in the presence of a large crowd. The encounter did not last long, but is said to have been lively while going on.

Mrs. Cronk is said to have been jealous of her husband's alleged attentions to the grass widow for everal months and to have suspected that Mr. Cronk was infatuated with Mrs. Patterson.

Mr. Cronk started for Virginia to accept a home for the order of the Elks. Mrs. Cronk accompanied him to the station from their home in Omaha and then insisted on going as far as this city, just across the river. When the train drew up at the Northwestern station in this city, Mrs. Patterson stood on the platform and started to enter the train just as Mrs. Cronk left the Pullman. Without uttering words Mrs. Cronk is said to have attacked Mrs. Patterson and to have landed at least one good blow on her eye, at the same time accusing her of trying to steal her husband from her. The war of words and fists lasted only a moment when friends interfered.

Meantime the train pulled out leaving the combatants and Mr. Cronk surrounded by the crowd on the platform. Mrs. Cronk was overcome and almost collapsed when the excitement passed. She was placed in a carriage by her husband and went to a local hotel and afterward to her home in Omoha.

Mrs. Patterson and Mr. Cronk Disappeared in different directions. Mr. Cronk is said to have left Omaha for Chicago yesterday morning, while Mrs. Patterson took an Illinois Central train for the same city.

George B. Cronk was elected grand exalted ruler of the Elks last summer at Salt Lake and is one of the leading business men of the state. Mrs. Patterson is a member of the famous Virginia family of Lathrops and secured a divorce from her husband in Omaha last fall after a sensational trial. She and her former husband were at the top of the social ladder in Richmond society.

FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE

Isaac Markley, Old and Rich Iowa Farmer, Arrested.

Schaller, Iowa, May 19.—The arrest of Isaac Markley, for the alleged murder of his wife, who was reported to have committed suicide last Wednesday, caused a great sensation here, and the developments over Sunday have increased the belief in Markley's guilt. He was taken to Sac City late Saturday night and placed in jail, having been held to the grand jury without bail.

Markley is about 60 years old and has been a hard-working man and known to be very penurious. Although he was rated as worth about $40,000 and had everything to make home happy, so far as furnishings and equipment were concerned, family discord has existed for twenty years and he had frequent and violent quarrels with his wife. A few months ago he deeded the home farm to his wife, hoping thereby to pacify her and make things a little more pleasant.

As soon as she had gained possession of the farm, however, Mrs. Markley began to make threats of suing for a divorce. The morning that the shooting occurred Mrs. Markley was preparing to leave and it is supposed that in the quarrel that followed Markley killed her. Selfishness and greed seem to have been at the bottom of the tragedy.

It is said Markley has practically admitted to his sons that he did the shooting.

CAN'T BE SEPARATED

Some Duluth People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

Mrs. C. M. Bradley, of 109 First street east, says: "For two or three years my kidneys bothered me a good deal and the usual home remedies gave me but very temporary relief. I had a heavy, aching pain across the small of my back and it was painful for me to stoop. I could not rest comfortably nights and in the morning rose tired and unrefreshed. I was also bothered a great deal with nervousness. The kidney secretions were irregular and unnatural and deposited a sediment. I went to the Duluth Drug company's store and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I had taken only a few doses when I felt better and by the time I had finished the prescribed course of treatment it was unnecessary to continue taking the remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the United States.

WORK IS ORDERED

Council Authorizes Improvements Aggregating More Than $90,000.

Aerial Ferry Bridge Matter Comes Up Again—Other Matters.

The council last night:

Authorized the expenditure of $90,000 in street improvements.

Received important information regarding the aerial ferry.

Approved purchase of city's bonds by sinking fund.

Received committee of ministers protesting saloon license.

Announced that Brewery creek sewerage nuisance must abate.

Raised wages of common laborers from 22 cents to 25 cent an hour.

Appropriated $1000 to pay for improving St. Croix avenue.

Received an ordinance providing house numbers on "Point."

Authorized watering fountain on West First street for horses.

Requested engineering estimates for number of improvements.

Street improvements involving an expenditure of over $90,000 at the least, were authorized by the council.

This includes the paving of Lake avenue from the viaduct to the ship canal with standstone, and the paving of East Superior street, between Twenty-third and Sixteenth avenues with "anything but asphalt."

It was expected that the improving of Twenty-fifth avenue west would also be ordered last evening, but the West Duluth property owners were slow with their petition, and, as a result this improvement is not likely before next year.

For the Lake avenue and East Superior street work, the board of public works will advertise for bids immediately and it is the intention of the city officers to hurry the work along as fast as possible.

The Barber Asphalt company's contract time for paving Superior street between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues east, was extended to July 10. This contract was to have been finished last October.

The aerial ferry bridge was also present. The bridge commission notified the council that the contract time of the Duluth Canal Bridge company, for building this much advertised and postponed structure and suggesting that it was up to the council to do something.

Incidentally C. A. P. Turner, an expert bridge building engineer, of Minneapolis, proposed a plan for a stiff truss structure, which he says can be built in the good old summer time without interfering with navigation and urged the council to appoint a commission of engineers to pass on his plan.

A committee representing the Ministerial association appeared to protest against granting a saloon license at 616 West Superior street, if the saloon proposed was to have any direct or indirect connection with the business of the Metropolitan theater.

Rev. J. W. Powell, of the Endion Methodist church, said that the granting of such a license would have a tendency to demoralize the theater and would not be in the interest of good public policy.

Rev. Alexander Milne, of the Pilgrim Congregational church, said it was not the intention of the ministers of the city to interfere with the rights of any person, but felt that they only spoke the sentiment of a great many people when they urged that the theater and saloon business should be separate.

At the request of Alderman Sang, action on the license was postponed for one week pending an investigation on the part of the alderman as to whether or not the side door of the proposed saloon would open into the theater.

* * *

The city takes its own $40,000 water and light plant bond issue. The sale was awarded N. J. Upham & Co. on condition that purchasers immediately turn the issue over to the sinking fund commission of the city.

* * *

Brewery creek, in the East End, has been condemned as a menace to health on account of the volume of sewerage that improperly empties into it. The sewer in First street between Sixth and Tenth avenues east empties into this creek, and the council serves notice on the property owners in this district that unless a petition for a proper sewer outlet is not forthcoming within thirty days, the council will take necessary steps to discontinue the discharge into Brewery creek, which is a polite way of saying that it is incumbent on the property owners to get very busy.

City street laborers now receive a wage of $2 a day. The board of public works recently raised the wages of the laborers from 22 to 25 cents an hour and the council approved the raise.

* * *

One thousand dollars will be spent in putting St. Croix avenue in a "passable" condition. It is claimed that gravel was taken off this street and used for other purposes years ago and never replaced. Therefore the present improvement will come from the general fund.

* * *

Alderman Walker introduced an ordinance for the numbering of houses on Minnesota Point south of the canal. His plan is to have street numbers begin at the canal, and avenue lots will be numbered from the lake shore. The proposition was referred to the committee on ordinances.

* * *

At the request of Alderman Mannheim a public watering fountain will be installed on First street about 100 feet east of Second avenue west.

* * *

Mayor Hugo's appointment of C. L. Codding, J. M. O. Tufty and M. M. Clark as members of the library board was confirmed.

* * *

Street sprinkling districts were extended to include Central avenue in West Duluth between Grosnold and Cody streets and Grand avenue between Central and Fifty-sixth avenues.

* * *

Alderman Krumsieg called on the city engineer to prepare and report an estimate for grading, gravelling and guttering Sixth street from Cascade avenue to Tenth avenue east.

* * *

At the request of Alderman Sang the city engineer will make an estimate of the cost of improving Grand avenue in West Duluth as far as Fifty-ninth avenue with Telford macadam. The board of public works was instructed to circulate a petition for this improvement.

* * *

Eight aldermen were in favor of reconsidering the council's action in refusing an employment agency license to Joseph Sheehy. It required another vote to reconsider, however, and the motion was lost. Alderman McEwen left the council chamber before the vote was taken.

HAVE NO VEGETABLES.

New Yorkers Are Threatened With a Famine.

New York, May 19.—Unless there is a good rain within two or three days, there will almost be a vegetable famine in New York, say the big dealers. Practically no rain has fallen about here since May 1. The weather bureau record of rainfall for May is three inches below the normal. The bureau does not hold out any hope for rain. Prices of fruits and vegetables have been going up steadily. This is partly due to the fact that in the early part of May and the latter part of April the nights were cold. From sympathetic causes the price of meat has also advanced.

HARDEN PAYS THE BILLS

And Vanderlip Makes Wedding Tour Through Europe.

Chicago, May 19.—Frank A. Vanderlip, formerly assistant secretary of the treasury and now vice president of the National City bank, of New York, and his bride, nee Miss Narcissa Cox, of Chicago, will make their honeymoon trip through Europe at the expense of E. W. Harden, a former newspaper colleague of Mr. Vanderlip.

The bank official, who was at one time the financial editor of a Chicago morning paper, has planned an extensive European trip for himself and bride, and Harden is wondering how much the expense will be.

The peculiar situation arising out of Mr. Vanderlip's contemplated marriage is due to a compact made by Vanderlip and Harden when both were in Newspaper work in Chicago. The two men agreed that whoever married first should have the expenses of a wedding tour through Europe paid by the other. At the time neither expected to be married for many, many years. But Vanderlip fell victim to Cupid's darts, and now it is "up to" Harden to "make good" on the old account.

Miss Cox is a graduate of the university of Chicago, and lives at 3398 Calumet avenue. She took a post-graduate course at the John B. Stetson university in Deland, Fla. She is a member of numerous women's societies, and was managing editor of the women's edition of the University of Chicago Weekly in 1901.

TO TAKE IMPRINTS

Of Hands of Prisoners at Auburn Pen.

Auburn, N. Y., May 19.—Imprints of the thumbs, fingers and palms of all the prisoners now in the state prison here and of all those hereafter received are to be made and kept on record.

Each prisoner will first place his thumb on a sheet of paper covered with printer's ink. The imprint of the inked thumb will then be made on a clean sheet of paper. Each finger will be separately taken, and then the impression of both hands laid flat will be made.

Can anyone suppose that we would double the necessary cost of our brewing without a vital reason?

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Minneapolis Entertainer Carried Smallpox to the Upper Peninsula.

Ironwood—N. W. Simmons, of Minneapolis, arrived in Ironwood last week suffering from a well-developed case of smallpox. He came in on a crowded Wisconsin Central train and stopped all night at the Walker House, not knowing what the matter was. He had been giving entertainments at small towns along the Central and must have exposed many people, as he had been feeling ill for two weeks.

Arthur Johnson, the 19-year-old son of Gust Johnson, was drowned in Montreal river.

An unusual amount of exploration for mineral is going on in this vicinity. The North Star Mining company, composed of local capitalists, of which Peter Lofberg is president and A. W. Peterson secretary, is exploring for copper on section 4-47-47, three miles north of this city. The surface indications are promising. The Oliver company is getting machinery and materials on the ground for sinking a large shaft just east of the city and north of the Bonnie mine. A four-compartment vertical shaft will be sunk to a depth of 1000 feet, where the company expects to reach the ore bodies found in the bottom of the Bonnie, which dip under the Oliver company's lands. There is also much exploration in the vicinity of Wakefield.

Captain John Luxmore, connected with the Big Norrie mine since 1886 and lately its mining captain, has resigned and will retire from mining entirely. He has bought a home in Platteville, Wis.

Calumet—The Houghton County Gas company, capital $250,000, has filed articles of incorporation. The company was organized by Calumet capitalists and has strong financial backing. A gas plant will be erected at Lake Linden and it is purposed to furnish gas to all the towns in the copper country. Franchises in many of the villages have been secured.

The Calumet Sportsmen's club has been organized. Its aim is to aid the state in the enforcement of the game laws. There are eighty-five members and the following are officers: President, Dr. W. S. Whistler; vice president, G. Martini; secretary and treasurer, A. F. Wixson.

T. G. Young, a blacksmith at the Wolverine mine, and his wife and three children, narrowly escaped death from eating poisoned rhubarb. They ate canned rhubarb for supper and were taken dangerously ill. They used an emetic while the doctor was arriving, which probably saved their lives.

Bessemer.—The new Catholic church at the Mikado mine was dedicated Sunday.

The Eureka mine, abandoned about two months ago by Corrigan, McKinney & Co., is to be started up again by the steel trust. A shaft 1000 feet deep is to be sunk.

Con Murphy, an old resident stopping at the Northwestern hotel, fell down stairs while drunk and broke his neck. He was found dead at the foot of the stairway.

Negaunee—James Sheehy, aged 70 years, is dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartle are in receipt of a telegram from Chicago which announced the death of their son-in-law, Al Austrian, in one of the hospitals there.

CANNOT AGREE.

State Art Society Promoters Have Differences.

St. Paul, May 19.—Governor Van Sant has not yet appointed the state art society created by the last legislature, but it is not his fault.

Under the law the governor is to select his appointees from names submitted by art societies in the Twin Cities.

The list of names was submitted, but ever since has been undergoing almost daily change.

There is trouble of some sort on among the promoters of the movement, and they cannot secure harmonious action.

Naturally the governor does not care to interfere with this internal dissension, and will let the interested parties fight it out.

It was first suggested that Mrs. W. E. Thompson, of Hamline, should be the head of the new society. Others think the honor should go to Margaret J. Evans, of Northfield, and others think it belongs to Professor Maria L. Sanford.

As soon as unanimous action is taken by the persons interested in the creation of the new society, the governor will undoubtedly announce the appointment of the society.

Bishop Satterlee Has Miss Martin Reinstated.

Washington, May 19.—Before 150 of her school mates and all the faculty Miss Katherine Martin, granddaughter of Mrs. Ellen M. Colton, one of the best known women in Washington society, was yesterday reinstated in the National Cathedral school from which she was expelled for writing a parody on "Mr. Dooley," in which she ridiculed her teachers. All society in Washington is talking about how the indignant Coltons have caused Bishop Satterlee, of the Episcopal diocese of Washington, to reverse the order he gave over the telephone for Miss Martin's immediate expulsion on the night of May 7. Bishop Satterlee is president of the board of trustees, which includes also in its membership Admiral Dewey and Wayne MacVeagh.

SUBMARINE WORKS WELL.

Greenport, N. Y., May 18.—The Holland submarine torpedo boat Porpoise in a government trial yesterday on Peconic bay, off New Suffolk, fired a torpedo at the end of a successful submerged run of a mile and a half. The torpedo went straight between two flags set 150 feet apart, representing a war vessel. The naval trial board, represented by Capt. Roeler, Commander W. C. Cowles and Lieut. J. J. Woodward, is satisfied with the result. The submarine boat Shark, in the surface trials of a mile each, made an average speed of 7.25 miles an hour, which exceeds the government requirements by a quarter of a mile.

WISCONSIN FISHING

Bass and Pike Season to Open There Next Monday.

Bass Season Opens In Minnesota Later In the Week.

The bass and pike season will be open in Wisconsin next Monday, and the fishing resorts there will then become the objective point of many Duluth anglers.

Pike are already subject to capture in Minnesota, but the Minnesota bass season is later than that in Wisconsin, as it does not open until Friday, May 29. That is the way some people construe the law, which says that bass cannot be caught between March 1 and May 29. It is possible that these dates are inclusive, and that the season does not open until May 30, but it seems to have been generally construed on the liberal side, and probably most anglers will start their fishing on the 29th, preferring to take that construction. The trout season is closed from Sept. 1 to April 15, and trout fishermen started on April 15, which is a parallel case to the bass situation.

Those who do not want to wait until May 29 for their bass fishing will take a run to some of the Wisconsin resorts—Middlebrook, Solon Springs, Minong, Delta, etc. Pike, pickerel—otherwise known as "snakes" by the disgusted fishermen that get them on their hooks, instead of bass, cropple, rock bass and other smaller fry, are always found in these places, so if there is no bass to be had—as bass are an uncertain quantity—there is small excuse for anybody coming home empty-handed.

The streams are all running a little too high as yet for trout, and most of the catches in nearby streams have been very light so far. They are running down all the time, however, and good fishing will follow very shortly. A few small catches have been reported so far.

A number of people have started the season at Island lake and the Cloquet river, and while the handicap of high water prevails there also, some fish have been caught.

Fred Schiffman, of St. Paul, former state oil inspector, came up from St. Paul yesterday, and he will go to Chicago bay tomorrow with a party for a few days of trout fishing. Chicago bay is always good and it is holding up wonderfully.

WILL MEAN A PROPER TEST

Advent of New Drill on Highland Range of Much Interest.

Everybody interested in the Highland iron range now has his eyes on the new drill which the McLeod Iron company has just taken into the range for the purpose of exploring for iron. The fact that the company has invested in a drill shows that its members have confidence in the result, and everybody, those who are not so confident as well as those who are, will watch the operations of the drill with the deepest concern.

It is not expected that it will take very long to find out, by the use of the drill, whether or not there is iron ore on the range in paying quantities. If there is ore in such amounts as to warrant working the field, the find will benefit many people of small means, as generally those who have taken claims there have not been people of wealth. With one or two exceptions none of the people operating there have operatd on the older ranges.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONER

Congressman Bede Pushing Henry F. Greene For the Place.

Henry F. Greene, the well-known local attorney, is the man whom Congressman J. Adam Bede is backing for the position of United States civil service commissioner as the successor of James R. Garfield, of Ohio, who has recently resigned. As soon as President Roosevelt returns to Washington his name will be presented, and it will be accompanied by strong endorsements. A Washington dispatch says that Congressman Bede had a long conference yesterday with J. R. Proctor, chairman of the civil service commission, and when he left the office, stated that there was every reason to believe that his candidate's name would receive favorable consideration.

THEY PASS MUSTER.

Capt. T. F. Dwyer Examines the Duluth Companies.

Under the new National Guard law, Companies A and C passed muster last evening before Capt. T. F. Dwyer of the Twenty-fifth Infantry.

The report that this was an inspection of the companies was incorrect, the inspection not taking place until the regimental tour of camp duty at Lake City.

The muster was to ascertain if the companies showed the strength required under the new law, making the National Guard the second line of defense in the military plans of the nation, and both Duluth companies showed the requisite muster.

STACK & CO.

NEW ENGLAND IS ALARMED

By the Recent Move of the Grand Trunk Line.

New York, May 19.—The willingness of the Grand Trunk railway to make its line all-Canadian has thrown certain New England cities into a panic. The Grand Trunk handles the heaviest volume of business for export into Portland, Me., and also brings considerable traffic to New London, Conn. The road has splendid terminal facilities at Chicago, Port Huron, Detroit, Buffalo, Portland and New London, all within the boundaries of the United States.

It has long been a cause for bitterness in the Canadian parliament that the Grand Trunk Pacific has gone to upbuilding Portland, presumably at the expense of Canadian ports. This bitterness has reached a culmination in the present strenuous opposition to granting subsidies to the new scheme unless the Grand Trunk practically makes its American seaboard.

The terminal export points for bonded goods alone. New England cannot view this proposed discrimination against New England ports with equanimity. Both the Vermont Central and the Grand Trunk have received many favors at the hands of New England legislatures, and through sidetracking of these ports on Canadian Grand Trunk traffic may not imperil their prosperity, it is natural they should resent the efforts of politicians to prevent those ports from receiving any benefit that may arise to Grand Trunk Eastern terminals through securing connections with the great Northwest.

TULLOCH'S CHARGES

Against Postoffice Department Officials to Be Investigated.

Allegations Referred to Proper Bureaus For Explanation.

Washington, May 19.—Postmaster General Payne yesterday sent letters to the comptroller of the treasury, the auditor of the potoffice department and other department officials calling their attention to statements made by ex-Cashier Tulloch in his communication of last Saturday. The letters ask for an explanation or further information that might throw light on the subject. The formal charges of Mr. Tulloch, Mr. Payne said, have been dissected and that matter relating to particular branches of the service referred to the bureaus having jurisdiction for report. Mr. Payne said last night that he regarded the charge against the auditor and the comptroller as the most serious of the allegations. He said that if those officials "allowed improper accounts to be audited or suppressed, what might be called 'pay dirt' had been found;" the charges, he said, impugning their good faith and integrity. Mr. Payne pointed out a difference which existed between charge of irregularity and of actual violation of law. "A government official," he said, "may buy something which he has no authority to purchase and no authority to pay for. But the government gets the use of the article nevertheless. Irregularities do not necessarily mean anything unlawful. The department may pay out of the wrong fund, either by accident or design, yet that need not be unlawful."

He said in this connection that the charge regarding the disallowance by the controller of between $30,000 and $40,000 was a charge of irregularity and not of unlawfulness and he understood that practically all of this sum had been subsequently allowed.

"Is is unfair," he suggested, "to make the public believe that the government has been cheated out of such an amount of money when it was only a question of irregularity in accounting."

The postmaster general was asked regarding the charges against former First Assistant Postmaster General Perry Heath and George W. Beaver, formerly chief of the division of salaries and allowances, and as to what effect that they were out of the service would have in the consideration of this case.

"I have nothing to do," replied the postmaster general, with the personal relations between Mr. Tulloch and Indiana politicians, nor with his hatred for the postmaster of Washington or others. If any improper act was done by anyone now in office or by any one who is not now in office, so far as it might reflect on the department, we will investigate it."

Discussing Mr. Tulloch's references to the Porto Rican service, Mr. Payne suggested that Mr. Tulloch was not charged with the responsibility for the Porto Rican establishment and that the Porto Rican establishment had no more to do with the Washington office, than the Chicago office, for instance, except in name, which was for convenience in administration. He said it was a physical impossibility for Mr. Tulloch to know whether the employes at Camp Alger or in Porto Rico, or in the department, were performing the labor for which they were paid. "Mr. Tulloch, as cashier," he said, "did not know what work any set of clerks was doing; only the postmaster general, the assistant postmaster general, or those who had charge of that part of the work would know. Some of these allegations that no work was performed are now being investigated. If any one has drawn money without doing any service, we will try to get the money back from them. We will demand the recovery of the money. The responsible party is the postmaster of Washington, who should have known whether they were doing any work. I suppose the postmaster general said the original letters against whom Mr. Tulloch made accusations were necessarily general in tenor but now that the Tulloch letter furnishes something more definite in the way of charges they will have an opportunity to make more definite replies. "Mr. Bristow," he said, "went very carefully over Mr. Tulloch's charges and he has selected such things as ought to be considered and investigated."

August W. Machen, the superintendent of the free delivery division, who was given an indefinite leave of absence pending the investigation, called at the department yesterday for the first time since his summary relief from office. He came for personal papers which he left in his desk. Postoffice Inspector Fosnes, the acting superintendent of the division, was present and inspected all the papers before permitting Machen to take them from the office.

Postmaster General Payne was asked whether friends of Machen had requested that he resign. He said no one had requested such action.

"Will Mr. Machen be permitted to resign?" he was asked. "Mr. Machen will not resign," he answered, "at least I understood it so. It is safe to assume that he will not ask it. I have reason to believe that he will not resign or ask to be permitted to resign."

SAYS TULLOCH LIED.

New York, May 19.—Senator Thomas C. Platt yesterday denied the statement by Seymour W. Tulloch, formerly cashier of the Washington postoffice, that Former Superintendent Beavers of the salary and allowance division of the postoffice department had requested a high official to use his influence to get bonding business for a bonding company which Senator Platt's son is interested in, saying that, "Senator Platt would greatly appreciate it." "The statement is an absolute lie and Tulloch knew it was a lie," said the senator. "I have no interest, direct or indirect, in any bonding company.

STRONG PROTEST

Against Jewish Outrages Made at Cincinnati Meeting.

Cincinnati, May 19.—The chamber of commerce here was packed yesterday at a noonday meeting to protest against the outrages on the Jews in Russia. Addresses were made by President J. F. Ellison, Superintendent Charles H. Murray, Gen. Michael Ryan, James T. McHugh, Judice Rufus Smith, Father McKay, Rev. Frederick Goss Rabbi Louis Grossman, Col. Wildman Melish and Rev. Dr. David Phillipson.

Letters of regret were read from President M. E. Ingalls, of the Big Four railroad; Dr. Frank H. Nelson, rector of Christ's Episcopal church, and others unable to be present. Strong resolutions were adopted and forwarded to the state department at Washington.

PLANTING COTTON.

Porto Rico Will Raise a Large Crop.

San Juan, P. R., May 19.—The weather bureau's crop bulletin announces that all over the Island Sea Island cotton is being planted as rapidly as seed can be obtained and in many instances the planters are abandoning tobacco for cotton. The movement is especially strong in the well known tobacco districts of Cayey and Cazuas. All the cotton tests have proved promising while the low prices for ordinary tobacco in San Juan are said to be bringing about the change. Close observers, including cotton men from the Southern state of America, are predicting here that in a few years the figures of the former cotton trade of Porto Rico will be reached, if not exceeded.

The Beginning of Trouble.

A disordered stomach may cause no end of trouble. When the stomach fails to perform its functions the bowels become deranged and the liver and kidneys congested, causing numerous diseases, the most fatal of which are painless, therefore the more to be dreaded. The important thing is to restore the stomach and liver to a healthy condition, and for this purpose no better preparation can be used than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. THE FIELD SPORTS

High School Preliminary Contests to Be Held Saturday.

Relay Race the Especially Interesting Event of the Day.

Preparations for the preliminary field day of the high school track athletes, which will take place at the Driving park on Saturday, are being rapidly completed. All of the men are in good condition and the outlook is very favorable for a first-class afternoon's sport.

There are several entries for each event. The complete list is not yet ready, but in a day or so all of those who are to compete will have placed their names on the list.

As usual greatest interest centers around the relay race in which each of the four classes has a team entered. The seniors and juniors have already pulled off their preliminaries and selected the teams which are to represent them in the struggle for points.

Manley, Whipple, Cummings and Harry Davis compose the senior squad, which was selected yesterday afternoon. Steele, Scoble, Richards and St. Claire represent the juniors. The other two classes will choose their runners today or tomorrow.

The present seniors were successful in the relay last year, but the juniors have some strong men this time and they are bent on lowering the colors of the graduating class. Those who ran for '03 last year are not all in school now, but the seniors have confidence in the team which will represent them in the relay.

There will be no baseball at all this week to allow several members of the team to take part in the field day.

SIXTEEN YEARS OF CATARRH

Well Known Massachusetts Woman Cured By Hyomei.

How to cure catarrh has been a problem in medicine for many years that was not solved until the discovery of Hyomei. This remarkable treatment makes it possible for any one to breathe an air at home which is almost identical with that of the Adirondacks, the Carolinas or other health resorts where the air is impregnated with healing balsams from health giving trees and plants.

Simply place a little Hyomei in the inhaler, which comes with every outfit, breathe it occasionally during the day and benefit will be seen after its use for only two or three times, while perseverance for a few days or weeks will effect a complete cure of even the worst case of catarrh.

Mrs. Elvira E. A. Gibson, who holds a responsible position in the great dry goods store of Jordan, Marsh & Co., of Boston, wrote in April: "I had catarrh for twenty years, and the last ten years (all of which time has been passed in this great establishment) I suffered fearfully. One half dozen handkerchiefs per day would be used. It extended to my throat; the use of my tongue was badly affected. I constantly kept in my mouth cardamom seeds, or some such breath purifier. I could not sleep with my mouth closed. I began using Hyomei in December and in two weeks I was entirely—and now, after four months and no return of the disease, I can say, permanently—cured. The head of this firm, Mr. Jordan, endorses this statement."

S. F. Boyce has sold hundreds of Hyomei outfits, consisting of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei, and with every purchase has given his personal guarantee to refund the money if Hyomei did not cure. He will sell the treatment on that plan and every catarrh sufferer ought to take advantage of his fair proposition.

SUES PULLMAN COMPANY.

Damages In Large Sum Asked By W. T. Dardeen.

William T. Dardeen has begun an action in district court to recover $5280.45 damages from the Pullman Car company for alleged injuries to his health and peace of mind on account of his being ejected from a sleeping car March 24 last, while he was traveling from Wichita to Topeka, Kas., in the regular line of his business, which is that of a salesman.

The summons and complaint, together with a petition that the case be removed to the United States circuit court, were filed yesterday. The plaintiff claims that the company is not organized under the laws of this state, and the amount involved is more than $2000.

Dardeen claims that he purchased at Wichita a sleeping car ticket for $2 to use in connection with his regular transportation, that he was assigned to upper berth No. 6, and while waiting to have it made up was told by the porter to vacate. The plaintiff claims he protested and refused to leave the car, but that Walter Jones and a Mr. Morgan entered and threatened to throw him through the window unless he got out. Plaintiff alleges that there were many men and women in the car, and they jeered him and heaped other indignities on him. He says that he left the sleeping car because of fear of personal violence and went into the day coach, where by reason of imperfect ventilation he contracted a cold that developed into neuralgia and kept him in bed several weeks.

The judgment asked for includes the $2 for the sleeping car ticket, physician's fees and a sufficient balm for his injured feelings. J. D. LaMotte is his attorney.

PATIENCE EXHAUSTED

Because Wife Left Him Twenty-Three Times.

Joplin, Mo., May 19.—Because his wife had deserted him 23 times, Samuel Enders of this city, has filed suit against her for divorce.

In his petition Enders states that he has been put to great inconvenience in prevailing upon his wife to return to him after each of the other twenty-two desertions, and that "patience has at last ceased to be a virtue."

He sets up that he has been long suffering and kind, but that he doesn't propose to stand it any longer.

ONE-HALF ONLY

Small High Schools May Not Draw Full $1500 Aid.

New Rules For Calculating the High School Expense.

St. Paul, May 19.—High schools will receive $1500 a year state aid next year, but there is an important clause in the new law which will result in this being scaled down in a number of cases. The state will not pay the $1500 unless the district spends an equal amount for high school purposes. That is, if only $2000 is spent all told on a high school, the state will pay but $1000 and the district will have to stand the remainder.

State Superintendent Olsen has announced the rules made by the state high school board under the new law, under which the aid allowed will become available August 1 for the next school year.

High schools with not less than two instructors exclusive of the superintendent, engaged entirely in high school work, will be presumed to be entitled to the full $1500.

In the case of the smaller schools the inspector is directed to submit a special report of yearly expenditures. This will include some part of the superintendent's salary as is in excess of $99, provided his entire salary is not less than $800. It will include the salaries paid high school instructors, with proportional credit for the salary of those giving part of their time for high school work; the cost of library fixtures and library books, except as covered by state aid to school libraries, not including subscription books purchased without the inspector's approval, or free text books for ordinary class use. It also includes cost of laboratory fixtures and apparatus approved by the inspectors, and the proportionate cost of heating and janitors' service, where proper care is given. Where a building is improperly heated or ventilated, or untidy, this item will be eliminated.

A rule has also been adopted with regard to state graded schools. In order to receive aid they must pay principals at least $75 a month and grade teachers $40.

The increased aid to all these schools is offset somewhat by the failure of the legislature to make up the deficiency for the last two years. There was not enough in the fund and deductions had to be made amounting to $105,792.24. Previous legislatures have made this deficiency up when it arose, but a bill to set aside that amount failed in the senate, after it had passed the house. The amounts short were as follows:

HIGH SCHOOLS.

1901—128	at $150 each	$19,250.00
1902—141	at $220 each	32,120.00

SEMI-GRADED SCHOOLS.

1901—198	at $74.88 each	$14,826.24
1902—244	at $99 each	24,156.00
		$38,982.24

RURAL SCHOOLS.

1902—147	at $20 each	$14,940.00

FIRST LESSON IN CHINESE

Taken By Two Gotham Sleuths Raiding, Fan-Tan Game.

New York, May 19.—In addition to having to stand the smells of Chinatown and Mulberry Bend eat chop suey the detectives of the Elizabeth street station have just been instructed to learn the Chinese language. In their raids on Chinese gambling houses they have been able to get very few convictions because of inability to dispute the statements of the prisoners that fantan is a religious ceremony and that the money used in the game is an offering to Joss. As many precinct detectives have difficulty with English without straining it, the proposition of having to learn Chinese is looked upon with dismay. Marty Martin, of the Chinese theater, who has been in Chinatown for ten years, has a vocabulary of only 122 words, confined exclusively to expressions synonymous with money.

Grimshaw and Powers, two of the sleuths attached to Capt. Murtha's precinct, took their first lesson in Chinese. They had been sent to raid a fan-tan game at No. 22 Pell street. Standing at the door of the house was a fat Chinaman. As the detectives approached he sang out "See maa." A door slammed on the second floor and the sounds of bolts being shot was heard. Grimshaw and Powers walked around the block and came back from the other side. Once more the bland fat Chinaman sang out "See maa," and the door was shut. The detectives went through the house but were unable to get into any of the rooms.

Seeking a Chinese merchant of repute they found that "See maa" ment "shut the door." They also learned that another Chinaman whom Powers had thought of arresting for singing "Erin Go Brah" was in reality giving vent to "Erl Go Lah," which is Chinese for "The police are coming." Back to the gambling house went the detectives and arrested the fat, bland Chinaman and his companion. They were fined $2 each in Jefferson market court, despite their protests that they were standing in front of No. 22 Pell street for the purpose of filling their lungs with fresh air.

MAN ENVELOPED

In Mass of Writhing Flames Without Injury.

New York, May 19.—Priests of the Roman Catholic church and clergymen of several Protestant denominations declare that the demonstrations made by Dr. Albert C. Geyser, with the X-ray, elucidated in a marvelous manner many of the miracles of the Bible.

Dr. Geyser stood on a raised platform set on glass pegs. The glass prevented electrical contact with the earth, and as he raised the two negative and positive poles to the height of his head, the electricity passed through and out of the crown of his head in a circle of flame. Then Dr. Geyser compelled his machine by carious manipulations to shoot jagged flashes.

Then Dr. Geyser called attention to the passage in the Bible referring to the descent of the Holy Ghost in a pillar of fire. He said:

"If some one will only volunteer I will show that the enveloping of a person in a pillar of flame is not a miracle."

Thomas Mackaye came forward and offered to serve for the experiment. Dr. Geyser placed him on his small platform before the apparatus in a standing position. He adjusted on each side of him the two steel rods forming negative and positive poles. With a Cookes tube in one hand Dr. Geyser stood off to one side of the platform and signaled for the starting of the big glass discs.

Slowly thy sparks began to jet off Mr. Mackaye's clothing. Soon the sparks grew to curling flame, and when the discs attained their full speed the man's entire body was a mass of writhing blue and white flame. When he stepped down from the platform not so much as a thread of fuzz on his clothing was singed.

MONTGOMERY CAPTURED.

Guthrie, O. T., May 19.—W. W. Montgomery, charged with bigamy in Iowa, Nebraska and Oklahoma, and who escaped from the county jail here last Thursday after killing the jailer, Jerry Emerson, was recaptured yesterday underneath the residence of Mrs. Kate Wyeth here, who, it is alleged, became infatuated with the prisoner, gave him a revolver and thus assisted him to escape. Montgomery is badly wounded, having been shot through the left lung by the jailer's wife and through the right groin by the jailer just before the latters' death.

RUSSIAN OPPOSITION

Prevents Including Manchurian Towns In Chinese Treaty.

Pekin, May 19.—China, in reply to further representations of the United States and Japanese ministers, has again pointed out the impossibility of including in the commercial treaties the opening of trade of Manchurian towns on account of Russian opposition. The American minister proposes that China open Mukden, Harbin and a small port at the mouth of the Yalu river.

LIQUOR LAW

To Be Strictly Enforced In the Philippines.

Washington, May 19.—Maj. Gen. Davis, commanding the Philippines, has issued an order directing commanding officers to carry out an act of the Philippine commission prohibiting the sale or traffic in intoxicating liquors, beer or wine at any place or on any premises situated within a distance of two miles on land now used or hereafter to be used by the United States for military purposes. Persons violating the act will be subjected to a fine of $100 or imprisonment for six weeks. Some exceptions are made in and about Manila in the act.

Convinced by Printed Testimony of the hundreds of the cured, Mrs. Benz, of 418 East Eighth street, New York, who was for years a great sufferer from catarrh, procured two bottles of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and it effected absolute cure in a very short while. One puff through the blower will clear the head and stop headache. Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.

Miss Hapgood tells how she was cured of Fallopian and Ovarian Inflammation—and escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for four years with what the doctors called Salpingitis (inflammation of the fallopian tubes and ovaritis), which is a most distressing and painful ailment, affecting all the surrounding parts, undermining the constitution, and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago, before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and had noticed the sunken eyes, sallow complexion, and general emaciated condition, and compared that person with me as I am today, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to you and your wonderful medicine, which restored me to new life and health in five months, and saved me from an awful operation."—MISS IRENE HAPGOOD, 1022 Sandwich St., Windsor, Ont.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries or fallopian tubes which adjoin the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries, indicated by dull throbbing pain in the side, accompanied by heat and shooting pains, should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation, with all its terrors, may easily result from neglect.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

"Before I wrote to you telling how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money in medicine besides, but it all failed to do me any good. My menses did not appear in that time, and I suffered much pain. I would daily have fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing down pain, and was so weak that it was hard for me to do my work.

"I used your medicine and treatment as directed, and after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, menses appeared, my womb troubles left me, and I have been regular ever since. I used fourteen bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier together, and am now restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you, I would have been in my grave.

"I will always recommend your wonderful remedies, and hope that these few lines may lead others who suffer as I did to try your remedies."—MRS. T. C. WILLADSEN, R. R. No. 1, Manning, Iowa.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

SCULLER PAPE

Goes East to Compete In Various Events.

New York, May 18.—Al W. Pape, the undefeated single-scull champion of the West and Northwest for six years, has come East to compete in a number of events. His first appearance in the East will be at Philadelphia, where he is entered in the Henley event, to be rowed July 2-3. Then he is to row in the races held by the National Rowing association at Worcester, Mass. His entry in other events will depend largely upon his success in these races. If successful during the season, he intends to try for English prizes next year.

Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it, he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar, saying, 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I want it in the house all the time, for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

ATTEMPTED BRIBERY.

Toledo, O., May 18.—The first attempt to bribe a new public service board, which assumed office May 4, was exposed today by the board. One of the members gave out for publication a letter from Georgia Evans, now serving a sixty day term in the work house for assault in which she offers $1000 for a parole or pardon.

Baby Mine Every mother feels a great dread of the pain and danger attendant upon the most critical period of her life. Becoming a mother should be a source of joy to all, but the suffering and danger incident to the ordeal makes its anticipation one of misery. Mother's Friend is the only remedy which relieves women of the great pain and danger of maternity; this hour which is dreaded as woman's severest trial is not only made painless, but all the danger is avoided by its use. Those who use this remedy are no longer despondent or gloomy; nervousness, nausea and other distressing conditions are overcome, the system is made ready for the coming event, and the serious accidents so common to the critical hour are obviated by the use of Mother's Friend. "It is worth its weight in gold," says many who have used it. $1.00 per bottle at drug stores. SCALE CONFERENCE

With Republic Company to Be Held at Detroit.

Pittsburg, May 18.—The iron wage scale conference between the Republic Iron & Steel company and the officers of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers has been arranged for May 26, at Detroit. The manufacturers will be represented by J. H. Nutt, W. L. Simonton and G. Watson French. President Shaffer will appoint a committee to look after the workers' interest upon his return from New York, where he is attending the tin plate wage scale conference.

Some difficulty is looked for in arranging the scale, as there are several changes to be made but a disagreement is not expected.

ROAD RESPONSIBLE

For the Killing of Excursionists at Detroit.

Detroit, May 18.—The coroner's jury today rendered a verdict finding the Grand Trunk railroad responsible for the accident May 3, when a Grand Trunk train ran into a number of Polish excursionists, who were boarding a Lake Shore excursion train enroute home at Toledo. Nine of the Polanders lost their lives. The jury said in its verdict.

"We believe that this was caused by the loose management of the Grand Trunk road, in running its train between the Lake Shore junction and the Brush street station, at a speed in violation of the provisions of the city ordinance governing the running of trains inside the city limits."

BIRDIE HAS FLOWN

Aged Mr. Young's Second Marital Venture Is Disastrous.

He Is Done With Frivolous Woman, He Now Says.

Cincinnati, May 19.—A peck of trouble has been the lot of Charles L. Young, a well-to-do nurseryman, whose home is at Lebanon, Ohio, and all the trouble has been caused by his lonesomeness and distinclination to live alone.

About a year ago Young came to this city for a little "frolic," and while seated in the Buckeye Concert hall, "over the Rhine," he was attracted by the pretty face of one of the singers.

Now, Young is not all that his name implies; as a matter of fact, his age is upon the shady side of 60 years, though he is as spry as a young colt. He has a competency from his business in Lebanon, and, besides this, draws a considerable pension for services in the civil war.

The aged Mr. Young made eyes at the pretty chorus girl, and the result was that a waiter soon brought him a note which invited him to visit her behind the scenes. Young did a buck and wing and double shuffle getting back of where the green partition stands, and soon was quite chummy with the stage beauty, who had taken his eye. Over a cold bottle of beer their troth was pledged, and the next few days were spent in making purchases of the bride's trosseau.

The singer's name was Berdetta Taylor; still, she was known by the name of Rubetta Roslin and Birdie Taylor. Berdettia, Rubetta or Birdie, as the case might be, was but 19 years of age, but this fact did not cause her aged suitor to turn a hair's breadth from his intention to wed her, while as for Birdie—well, the "Old Man's Darling" stunt looked pretty "good" to her.

And so they were married. But unlike the usual closing words of the yellow-backed novel, they lived happily but a very few days. The trouble started when Birdie insisted on singing in the concert halls. This wasn't so bad at first, but when her husband saw her on the stage doing a frisky turn in tights and endeavoring to kick large portions out of the atmosphere, high above her head, his soul rebelled and he clamored loudly for her to leave the dizzy life and hie herself with him to the pretty nooks on his Lebanon, Ohio, farm.

But Birdie was not hieing. She was having a pretty good time all around; with good clothes to wear and plenty of money, and she did not hanker at all for the wild woods. The upshot of the matter was a row, later in the divorce courts and a replevin suit before Squire Winkler, by which the elderly Mr. Young secured possession of a large quantity of feminine apparel and some of the jewelry which he had purchased for the young bride. The divorce court severed the bonds and Young went back to his tree farm, his dream of love turned into a nightmare.

About ten days ago, however, Mr. Young was surprised to receive a letter from his ex-wife, pleading forgiveness and declaring that all her former love for their "tootsy-wootsy" had returned and she wanted him "to come straight back to Cincy and marry her again." She might also have stated that she "needed the money," but she didn't, though Young is now satisfied that that was what she meant. Still he did not think of this at the time. The old love was rekindled in an instant and he arrived in town last Saturday a week ago, with the fire of his love burning fiercely within his breast and a yearning, which he was surprised at himself, to again set eyes upon his former wife.

She met him and told him that she was very sorry for what she had done and that she wanted him to marry her again. But she needed another outfit, for, of course, he would remember, he had taken the other one away. Young could feel himself growing more like his name every movement and every word made a deep impression upon him, while every store they entered made similar impression upon his wallet. Still he did not "kick," for wasn't he "going to get his little wife back again?" But he didn't.

He and Birdie went around from place to place, and when they returned to Birdie's lodgings, on Race street, these are some of the articles that she possessed: A wedding ring, costing $4; a wedding dress, $28; two hats, 10 simoleons; one pair shoes and two pairs silk stockings, 16 big round dollars; a silk sack, a pair of silk gloves, lot of ribbons and laces, two white waists, one black veil for hat, another lot of lace, two white underskirts, another lot of ribbons, one trunk, a gold watch, chain and locket and one silk dress. All to the amount of $100.

This was last week, and everything was arranged for Young to meet his Birdie last Monday, when she said they would hie themselves to a minister and be wed once more. It all looked pretty "good" to Young and he went to bed feeling like a Derby winner. Monday came on schedule time and Young was at the appointed place a few hours earlier than the appointment. For some reason Birdie did not show up. Her aged lover and ex-husband, however, innocently thought that something had detained her and he waited until evening. Then he went to Birdie's cage, but Birdie had flown and he was too late.

Young was wild. His first apprehension was for the safety of his Birdie, for he innocently believed that she had become lost somewhere and could not find her way back. The next day was a revelation to him, however, for then he learned that Birdie had given him the double-cross and had skipped out with a "Dutch" comedian named Alfred Halzmann. Young at once went to Attorney M. C. Lykins, who had secured his divorce for him, and appealed to him for assistance. Lykins made an investigation and discovered that Berdella Taylor, giving her age as 20 and address at 921 Race street, occupation "actress," had been licensed to wed Alfred Halzmann, 26, of 500 West Eighth street, a "German comedian," he said to Marriage License Clerk Ferd Bader. The license was issued Monday, May 11, and the return made showed that they were married on the same day by Rev. W. K. Brown.

After learning this Young hesitated for several days as to what to do, but he made up his mind that the best way was to replevin the things again, and, accordingly, he went before Squire Winkler yesterday morning and swore out a warrant of replevin for the articles mentioned. Constables made a search of the addresses given, but failed to find Birdie, or, rather, Mrs. Halzmann, or any of the effects desired.

Mr. Young returned to Lebanon last night, but he declares that he will come back and hunt up his recreant bride-that-was-to-have-been. He declares that he is done with matrimony for good and all.

YATES SIGNS MUELLER BILL

Believes Chicago Council Will Deal Right With Traction Matter.

Springfield, Ill., May 19.—Governor Yates last night signed the Mueller bill, the Chicago traction measure, the threatened defeat of which by the alleged unwarranted use of Speaker Miller's gavel led to a riot recently in the house of representatives here.

In approving the bill the governor says: "I believe that the opponents of this bill are right in claiming that it is faulty. I believe that under its provisions the city council of 1903 could make terms in regard to taking over in 1923, either by the city or by a new grantee, the property of the street railway so onerous and burdensome and prohibitory, that neither the city council of 1923 nor the new grantee of 1923 could or would turn over the property; in which case it would follow that a vested right would by that time have accrued to the railroad company, to have either the city council of 1923 or the new grantee of 1923 take over the property at the terms fixed and provided in the ordinance of 1903, then, inevitably, the existing corporation would have the right to continue in the streets of the city perpetually, or at least indefinitely.

"So believing, I would veto this bill, were it not that I have great confidence in the city council of 1903, and greater confidence in the people. I believe that this bill should be vetoed were the general assembly in session, and that then either this bill should be amended or a new bill passed, without the faults of this bill, but the calamity of a special session with its great expense to the state, probably amounting to half a million dollars, must be avoided if possible.

"I wish, however, to distinctly state that if, in the year 1903, the city council of the city of Chicago should pass a grant or ordinance imposing terms so manifestly onerous that neither the city council of 1923 or the grantee of 1923 could take over the property upon the terms imposed, I will not hesitate to, within twenty-four hours, assemble the general assembly in special session for the purpose of repealing this act and providing an act with necessary restrictions."

Big Building Sale.

B. J. Cook, one of the proprietors of the Eagle Clothing company, who is erecting the handsome four-story brick building on Superior street, between Second and Third avenues west, has advertised in connection with the same a "Big Building Sale," to start Thursday morning, May 21, at 8 a. m. Mr. Cook says he must realize $25,000 in about fifteen days and in order to do this is going to sacrifice $50,000 worth of clothing and shoes at about 60 cents on the dollar. Mr. Cook says the Eagle Clothing company will cut prices as they have never been cut before in order to quickly convert the stock into cash. The store will be closed all day Wednesday in order to mark down stock and otherwise prepare to handle the crowds on Thursday. The Eagle Clothing company has been doing business in Duluth for the past sixteen years and have always been noted for their high character of merchandise having the exclusive sale in Duluth of the famous Charles Kaufman & Bros., hand-tailored union made clothing and carrying the best line of gents' furnishing goods that money can buy. Nothing will be restricted in the "Big Building Sale," and the people of Duluth and vicinity will be offered clothing values unheard of before. Every economically inclined clothing buyer should wait until this sale starts before purchasing clothing, furnishing goods or shoes.

Hints To Advertisers

The question is not what you pay for your advertising space, but what you get for your money. The cheapest "rates" are often the dearest when actual values are compared.

Mahen's Magazine: The man who attempted to pull himself up by his bootstraps suffered from misdirected effort. His desire to rise was laudable, but his knowledge of cause and effect was defective.

It is curious to note the number of business men who apply the bootstrap principle to their advertising.

Jed Scarboro: Bald assertion will not convince sane people. You've got to educate before you can convince a person. If your goods are best, say so, of course, but tell why, in what way and how it happened. People want reasons. Every man, woman and child is a philosopher in this respect—people want to know what makes the wheels go round—simply knowing that they do go round is not enough.

The outside circulation of The Herald increases daily, and the wise advertiser turns his copy in early in order to obtain the full benefit of the first editions.

Gordon L. Elliott: Tell your story in the first sentence or first paragraph. Don't use a lot of descriptive adjectives, as though you were writing a novel, and wind up with the real news at the end. Newspaper stories are written exactly opposite from fiction. The climax must come first in writing news; last in fiction. An item is uncomplete unless it answers fully the following questions: Who? When? Where? Why? How? If you begin by crowding as many of your facts as possible into the first line and answer these succinctly, you will have little trouble in telling your story properly and in keeping it down to the space to which it is entitled. Start in with the newest and best part of the story and let the details and the old part come last. There are two sides to every story. Do not become so engrossed in one side that you cannot see the other.

Retailer and Advertiser: Order is the law of the universe. The business that is not run along lines that are well defined cannot prosper. This is peculiarly true of advertising. There should be system in all work of publicity. Work should be laid out months and months ahead. It should be so arranged that while each advertisement is complete in itself, that for a season, or a year, even, should be a sort of complete story, covering every point that is desired to be made. What follows should suggest what has gone before, so that readers may be able to recall what previously has been told. Each advertisement should contain something that is new, yet at the same time sustain a measure of relation to antecedent advertisements. In this way the advertiser keeps his entire business well in hand, and, at the same time, keeps all of it constantly before the public.

White's Sayings: If a merchant wants to be successful he should take a lesson from our Nanny—when she has dinner ready she toots the horn.

Secure what you want to get—dispose of what you wish to sell by using Herald want ads.

Good Business: Egotism is one of the first necessities in advertising. To believe in one's self, in one's art, one's article, is the initial essential to good advertising. Like all other things it may be carried to an extreme, so extreme that it makes itself obnoxious, but lack of it precludes the idea of successful exploitation.

"If there is a harvest ahead, even a distant one, it is poor thrift to be stingy of your seed-corn."—Carlyle.

Herald want ads are good seed corn.

WILL DISMISS R. P. O. CLERK

For Inciting Postal Employes to Sue For Expenses.

Washington, May 19.—Second Assistant Postmaster General Shallenbarger yesterday directed that Svens Schibsby, a railway postal clerk at Kansas City, show cause why he should not be dismissed for promoting suits against the government for traveling expenses of postal employes. There are 8000 railway postal clerks in the country and the purpose is to prevent a widespread movement having in view the prosecution of a claim which the department regards as preposterous. The position of the postoffice department is that the designated headquarters of these clerks is the route on which their runs are made and not the city or town where they may happen to live. A case is now pending in the court of claims involving this question of their traveling expenses. Mr. Shallenbarger sent the following letter to Captain James E. White, general superintendent of the railway mail service:

"Referring to your letter of the 15th instant, suggesting that the action of Svens Schibsby, the suspended postal clerk in the Kansas City and Wellington R. P. O., in attempting to act as attorney for railway postal clerks in bringing suits against the government for traveling expenses is in violation of section 5478, R. S., you are required to call upon Mr. Schibsby to show cause why he should not be dismissed from the service for his action in the matter. When his reply has been received, the question will be given consideration as to whether it is proper to bring the matter to the attention of the department of justice."

Shrewd clothing buyers will wait for the Eagle Clothing Co.'s Big Building sale before purchasing clothing or furnishing goods. 321 West Superior street.

CLAY KNOBLOCK KILLED.

New Orleans, May 18.—Ex-Lieut. Governor Clay Knoblock was shot and killed today on the main street of Thibodaaux La., by James Garault, a barber. Governor Knoblock lived near Thibodaux and was on a visit there. No details of the tragedy have been received except the announcement that the killing was in self defense. Governor Knoblock was a member of a prominent family and was lieutenant governor under Governor McEnery.

"LARGER HEARTS."

New Haven, Conn., May 18.—The Rev. Dr. H. P. Dewey, of Brooklyn, in a sermon to Yale students in Battel chapel, declared that President Roosevelt's refusal to shoot any animals for sport was indicative of the "larger heart," which is gradually coming in among the American people.

Indisputable Evidence.

You have read our oft-repeated statement, "In use for over 30 years." It was in the early sixties that Dr. Pitcher first made use of the prescription now universally known as Castoria. With a record of over fifty, under five years of age, out of every hundred deaths, it was the AMBITION OF EVERY PHYSICIAN to discover a remedy suitable for the ailments of infants and children that would decrease this distressing mortality. In Castoria that relief has been found.

Let us take the statistics covering the deaths in the City of New York for the past 30 years, and here we find the benificent effects of a combination of drugs excluding opiates and narcotics so long sought for, namely: CASTORIA.

Of the total number of deaths in New York City in 1870, 50 per cent. were under five years of age; in 1880, 46 per cent.; in 1890, 40 per cent.; in 1900, 35 per cent. only. Just stop to think of it.

Until 1897 no counterfeits or imitations of Castoria appeared on drug store shelves, but since that date Mr. Fletcher has been called upon to suppress a number of these frauds. While the record for 1900 does not come down to our expectation it is owing to the carelessness of mothers when buying Castoria. The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is the only safeguard, and he alone is authorized to use the doctor's name.

MURDER OR FRAUD?

Convict's Knowledge of Missing Valentine Eckert In Doubt.

Admits Pretending That He Was the Lost Brother.

St. Louis, May 19.—Michael Selben, a wealthy Chicago brewer, is now renewing with extraordinary vigor the search he has been conducting for twenty-five years for his half-brother, Valentine Eckert, who disappeared from St. Louis in 1878.

Mr. Selben's renewed efforts were due to the claims put forth to any property that his brother might be heir to by Conrad Bierman, a convict in the Chester, Ill., penitentiary.

Bierman's claims faded as soon as he was confronted by Mr. Selben, the half-brother of the man he represented himself to be, as they were as unlike as two men could be.

Eckert, the man who has been missing for twenty-six years, was snort, blonde, corpulent and very bald, and spoke German with a distinctive dialect.

Bierman is of medium height, rather slender and dark, with heavy black hair and speaks German with an entirely different dialect.

Bierman possessed some information about the missing Eckert, and thinking that the source of this information might tell of the fate of his half-brother, Mr. Selben placed the matter in the hands of the Furlong Detective agency of St. Louis.

Eckert came to America with his half brother in 1865. He roamed about the country and finally settled in Sherman, Tex., where he failed in the brewery business. He went to South America. He failed to make a living, and frequently appealed to his more successful brother in Chicago, who sent him funds.

In 1878 he returned to Chicago, and for a few months made his home there. Then he decided to go to Sherman, Tex., and visit his old friends.

He reached St. Louis and wrote to his brother from this city. From that time nothing has been heard from him.

He married with him the passports that he had used when he came to America, and also those he had use on his South American travels.

When Bierman presented his claim to the estate and seemed to have information, Mr. Selben thought he had gained it from the passports.

When confronted by Selben, Bierman dropped his claim. But he refused to tell where he had gained his information about Eckert. Selben pleaded with him that all he wanted was to know the fate of his brother, but Bierman would tell nothing.

Thomas Furlong took up the search for Eckert and the record of Bierman. Nothing was heard of Eckert and no trace of him was found in St. Louis beyond the letter he wrote Selben.

Bierman proved to be an old offender. Furlong says that he has served two terms in the Jefferson City peitentiary, and is now serving his second term in Chester, following one term in the St. Louis workhouse and one term in Joliet.

Bierman admits these sentences, with the exception of that in Joliet.

Bierman's right name is John Zink, but he has been known in St. Louis as John W. Miller, and was married under that name in Clayton before he was convicted of any of his crimes.

Before he commenced forging checks he was a teamster, and at the time of the disappearance of Eckert was working for the old Vulcan steel works. Persons now living in Carondelet remember him.

All of his convictions have been for forgery. He dresses as a workingman and forges small checks, the largest amount traced to him having been $20.

After he admitted the failure of his plan to get the estate of Valentine Eckert, he said that the information concerning the missing man was given him by a convice in the Chester prison, but he had forgotten the name and number of the convict. He only knew that he had been released from the penitentiary.

As to the term in Joliet, he denies completely that he was ever in that prison.

Furlong's theory is that Bierman must have been associated with some convict in the Joliet prison who gave him the information about Eckert, or that he learned of it at the time of Eckert's disappearance.

The information held by Bierman, when confronted by Selben, was that which could have been gained only from the missing man's passports.

Selben says his parents were very poor, and that when they died he made no claim for the small part of the estate that might have come to him, and he supposes that it was settled long ago.

When Selben's appearance at Chester exploded the claims of Bierman, the latter threatened him with personal injury after he was released from prison.

In order that Bierman may be held in the penitentiary and forced to tell what he knows about Eckert, Furlong has caused six charges of using the United States mail to promote a scheme to defraud to be placed against him.

When his term is up at Chester this month he will be arrested by the federal officers and taken to Springfield, Ill., where he will be held for the federal grand jury.

The charges are based on letters Bierman wrote to the German cousins in St. Louis and Chicago and to Rev. C. Rupprecht, the Chicago minister who placed him in communication with Selben.

Conviction on these charges may bring a sentence of eighteen months on each charge.

Furlong says that Bierman has presented claims to estates before.

Bierman's story of the way in which he came to represent himself as Valentine Eckert is that last autumn one of the convicts in the Chester penitentiary handed him a copy of a St. Louis German newspaper in which appeared an advertisement for Eckert.

It was suggested that it would be a good idea to pretend to be the missing man. This suggestion was adopted by Bierman.

"Neither this convict nor myself had any information about Eckert except what was obtained from this advertisement," said Bierman.

"Neither of us had ever heard of Eckert before.

"I wrote last fall to Frederick Ifleloff, German consul at St. Louis; to Rev. Mr. Rupprecht, of Chicago; to the German minister at Washington and to Selben, Eckert's half-brother, in Chicago.

"Selben came down to see me in January. He did not meet me in my cell, as has been stated.

"He saw me in the deputy warden's office, and the deputy warden was present.

"He asked me some questions and then got mad at me, accusing me of having taken Eckert's papers and made way with him.

"That made me hot, and I shut up and refused to talk any more.

"All the statements I made to Selben I got out of the advertisement, except that when he asked me my mother's name I told him it was Marguerita.

"That was her name, too, true enough, but it turned out it was also his mother's name.

"At the time of Eckert's disappearance in 1878 I was not in St. Louis.

"I had not come West, and was working at my trade as a gardener either in New York or Pennsylvania. I did not come West until 1880.

"Then I worked for a long time in East St. Louis and through Illinois as a gardener.

"I am 64 years old and was born in Bavaria.

"I did not come to the United States until after the French war."

Bierman laughed at the story that he had fallen on Sieben's neck and wept when he saw him.

"No, siree, I did not!" said he.

He insists that all he knows of Eckert was obtained from the advertisement.

He says that the convict who first showed him the advertisement left the penitentiary a month before Selben's visit.

Bierman does not know this convict's name.

Deputy Warden Dowell of the Chester penitentiary states that, as far as he knows, no warrants have been issued against Bierman charging him with using the mails to defraud.

Mr. Dowell says that Bierman is imprisoned on an indeterminate sentence, from one to fourteen years.

Bierman has served six years. To allow him to get out now the parole board would have to pass favorably on his case.

As far as is known, Bierman is not to be let out of the penitentiary in the near future.

FINDS HIS SON

William Tackaberry Finds His Boy After Fourteen Years.

Ran Away From Home—His Home Now In Arizona.

William Tackaberry, a teamster who resides alone in a little home on the alley between First and Superior streets and Fourth and Fifth avenues east, has discovered his son who ran away from home fourteen years ago, and from whom the father never heard a word during all those years.

John Tackaberry, the son, now a grown man, is interested in some gold mining ventures in Arizona, where he has been located for years, and it was while he was in St. Louis interesting some people in his mine that the father learned indirectly where his son could be found. The elder Tackaberry went immediately to St. Louis and brought back his son for a visit.

When but a boy of 7 years John Tackaberry, who lived with his father, made his first attempt at running away. He was too young and the effort was unsuccessful. The roving spirit remained, however, and at 10 years he ran away again. A second time he was returned to his parent's care.

Two years elapsed, and John, then a well-grown lad of 12 years of age, decided that home life was too humdrum for his taste, and for a third time he ran away. This time he was successful, for up to a few days ago his father never heard a word from or about him. The elder Tackaberry has always supposed one of two things, that his son was either dead or was somewhere in Alaska.

The weight of years has brought white hairs to the head of the elder Tackaberry, and the 12-year-old boy has grown into a tall, bronzed-faced man. The meeting between father and son has been a happy one, and while they do not care to discuss family affairs, and seek to avoid any more publicity than necessary, their friends believe that from now on they will not be separated.

NOT LIKELY TO REBUILD.

Ex-Gov. Scofield Not Expected to Replace Mill.

The rebuilding of the Scofield sawmill in West Superior seems to be becoming a more remote possibility from the fact that ex-Governor cofield, who has completed the adjustment of his insurance, has now returned to his home in Madison without saying definitely what he intended to do in the matter. It is known that his inclinations are against building a new plant with the present small outlook for future contracts. It is said that some of the West Superior business men will endeavor to persuade Mr. Scofield to rebuild the mill.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

James J. Jefferies and James J. Corbett met at San Francisco Monday and signed articles for a match to take place in San Francisco on or about August 14. The pugilists accepted the offer of the Yosemite club, which will allow the principals to divide between them 70 per cent of the gross receipts. The referee is to be determined on two weeks before the day of the fight.

A small tornado at Guthrie, O. T., blew down many trees and demolished several chimneys. Between the cottonwood and Cimmaron rivers it blew down the new house of William Murray and also the old one nearby. Mr. and Mrs. Murray escaped injury by going to the cyclone cellar just as the house left the foundation.

Howard Pollette and Wilbur Cheatman were hurried to death at Campus, Wyoming county, Va., Monday, and several other companions were so badly injured that they may die. The men were asleep in a second story log building and all exit was cut off when the building was discovered to be on fire. The dead and injured were lumbermen.

It transpires that the body found in the Tippecanoe river is that of John S. Canton, who was accidentally killed on the Pennsylvania railroad track last January. Dr. W. L. Hines, of Warsaw received the unclaimed body for dissection. He buried the dismembered body on the bank of the river two months ago.

Indictments for murder were returned at Fremont, O., by the grand jury against Wheeler Kimbro, Lorenzo Martin, Walter Stratton, Richard Pettiford and William Pettiford, all colored, they are charged with the murder of Otto Misch, who was killed by a bullet wound in the stomach. The Pettifords are named as accessories to the crime, in that, they were advisers.

Santa Fe passenger train No. 1 west bound was derailed at Coolidge, Kansas, Monday morning. Several passengers were slightly injured.

Captain of Police King and Alderman J. C. St. John, of Colorado Springs, were arrested on indictments returned by the grand jury. The chief is charged with having secreted witnesses and the alderman with having solicited and accepted a bribe.

FREE HOMES IN ALASKA

Important Circular By United States General Land Office.

Washington, May 19.—Assistant Land Commissioner J. H. Fimple has just issued an important circular relating to homestead entries in Alaska.

Under an act passed by congress extending the general homestead law to that territory, President Roosevelt approved on March 3 last the bill which gives American citizens a right to enter 160 acres, but there can be no indemnity deficiency or lieu lands selected, and no land scrip or land warrant of any kind whatsoever can be located in Alaska.

This will be an effectual bar to all speculations. No entry will be approved which extends more than 160 rods along the shore line of any navigable water.

Every person qualified to make a homestead entry on the public lands of the United States, and who has heretofore settled upon any of the unsurveyed lands of Alaska, shall within ninety days from April 8, 1903, or prior to the intervention of any adverse claim, file the record of his location in the district where the land is located.

The same rule applies to settlers who shall take up land in Alaska subsequent to April 8.

If a settler desires to commute and procure a patent for his land he must have it surveyed at his own expense, but the surveyor who makes the survey must have been appointed by the surveyor general of Alaska.

After the survey has been approved settlers must furnish the usual proof as to bona fide residence, etc. The usual fee of $1.25 per acre is charged for commutation.

It is known that there are large areas of good agricultural land in Alaska and many inquiries concerning it have been received at the general land office.

Samples of hard wheat, certain kinds of potatoes and other vegetables have been received by the agricultural department and are pronounced the equal of any like products raised anywhere in the world.

A large influx of immigration is going into Alaska this season.

TILLMAN SAYS

Talk of Cleveland For Presidency Is Insult.

Washington, May 19.—"What is all this talk about Cleveland for?" asked Senator Tillman, of South Carolina. "Is it because it rifles so many people, because it makes every Democrat hot under the collar whenever he hears it, or whenever he reads it? It seems to me every Democrat I have met who has come across this Cleveland talk has been cussing. All of them have regarded this talk about Cleveland as impertinent and insulting.

"My ideas about Grover Cleveland are pretty generally understood. The simple suggestion of Cleveland's nomination for a third term is an insult to 6,500,000 Democrats of the country, who voted the ticket at the last elections. I don't suppose Wall street has been putting any money into this Cleveland boom. I have wondered whether it wasn't newspaper noise.

"It may be that somebody is trying to work things around to the old status where plutocrats will be represented on both presidential tickets. Then it makes no difference to them which one of the candidates is elected. That was the state of things we had until the last two presidential elections, when Mr. Bryan took a different stand and stuck to it."

NEW CONGRESSMAN

Would Deny Suffrage to the Negro.

Atlanta, Ga., May 19.—T. W. Hardwick, newly elected congressman from the tenth Georgia district has announced that as soon as he enters congress he will introduce a bill to repeal part of the fourteenth and all of the fifteenth constitutional amendments. While a member of the state legislature Mr. Hardwick advocated anti-negro suffrage legislation and on this platform he was elected to congress. In speaking of the matter he said:

"I believe that the time has come when people north and south are weary of negro suffrage, and I consider it an opportune occasion to take from the constitution the paragraphs which, when engrafted upon it, gave the right to vote to the negro."

UP WITH A RUSH

Wheat Market Has a Sudden Spurt Toward The Close.

Southwest Crop Damage Reports Continue—Flax Is Stronger.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 19.—The wheat market was a rather sensational affair today for after ruling very dull and slow until less than an hour before the close, it suddenly turned very strong and went upward with a rush. The turn was apparently inspired by a new bunch of crop damage reports from the Southwest which has been very industrious in spreading news unfavorable to the crop of late. This started shorts to buying and in Chicago Armour made it difficult for them to get what they wanted and that sent the market skyward. The July option was the strongest in nearly all markets. Oables were lower and the news from northwestern crop districts favorable, Manitoba sending in reports of rain in needy sections.

Shippers report the foreign demand as slow, a few loads being worked almost every day but the inquiry being on it very moderate scale. On the other hand the amount of wheat to offer the foreigners is small. Duluth stocks are low and the movement this way is light, and Manitoba offerings are falling off greatly, much more rapidly than had been looked for.

The Liverpool market closed with a decline of 3d. Paris unchanged to 1c lower and Antwerp 1c lower.

Bradstreet reported a decrease in the world's visible supply of 4,384,000 bushels, a liberal decrease.

Primary receipts were about the same as last year, aggregating 535,000 bushels, against 529,000 bushels last year. Shipments, 284,000 bushels; last year, 328,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 460 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 169 cars, and at Chicago 43, a total of 158 cars, against 105 last week and 139 last year.

In the Liverpool market corn had a decline of ¾d. Primary receipts of corn were 354,000 bushels; last year 277,000 bushels. Shipments, 425,000 bushels; last year, 263,000 bushels. Clearances were 253,000 bushels. The world's visible supply decreased 1,342,000 bushels last week, according to Bradstreet.

The Duluth wheat market was very dull during the early part of the morning, but there was somewhat livelier trading after the noon hour. The opening on July was 1c off at 77½c, but it sold up to 77⅝c at 9:35 and held steady there, selling at 77⅞-78c at 11 o'clock. At 12:25 it sold at 78¼c and then jumped to 78¾c at 12:50 and closed at 78c bid. This was an advance of 1½c. September was not quite so strong, advancing ¾c. May was up ⅜c. In Chicago May only advanced ⅝c, while July went up 1¾c. In Minneapolis the two options moved at about the same pace, May advancing 2¼c and July 2¼-2½c. New York May lost 1¼c and July sold up 1c.

Cash sales were 10,000 bushels and for No. 1 northern May price was paid, and for No. 2 northern 2c under.

Flax was quiet and firm. July sold 1¼c up at $1.15½, fell off to $1.16 and then jumped to $1.16½, closing at $1.16¾. September also advanced 1¼c but was up to $1.15 at one time when July was only up 1¼c. October fell off ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 81¾c; No. 1 northern, 79¾c; No. 2 northern, 77¾c. May: No. 1 northern, 78¾c; July, 79c; September, 79¾c. Flax in store, $1.15; to arrive, $1.15; on track, $1.15½; May, $1.15; July, $1.15½; September, $1.17½; October, $1.16½; November, $1.16. Oats, to arrive, 34½-35c; on track, 34½-35c; May, 34c. Rye, on track, 59c; to arrive, 59c; May, 60c. Barley, 35@46c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 22; last year, 11; oats, 6; rye, 1; barley, 1; flax, 21 ;last year, 2.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Trading In Wheat Light With Moderate Demand.

Chicago, May 19.—Local traders had plenty of selling orders for wheat at the opening today due to easier cables and continued rains in Manitoba, and as a result the market was easier at the start. July being off ¼@¾c at 75¾c to 75c. Trading was light with only a moderate demand, and prices held about steady, July selling off a trifle at 75¾@75¾c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 169 cars, which with local receipts of 49 cars, two of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 158 cars, against 106 cars last week and 130 cars a year ago.

The market remained dull and steady until the last half hour of trading when buying orders from commission houses and pit traders became quite numerous on reports of damage in the southwest, and with only light offerings the market turned strong. After advancing to 77½@77¾c July closed at 77½c, a net gain of 1¾@1¾c.

Larger receipts, together with the weakness in wheat, caused an easier tone in corn at the opening, July being unchanged to ½c lower at 44¾c to 44½c, but rains in the West and Southwest, combined with steady cables, imparted more firmness to the situation. Local receipts, 311 cars, 9 of contract grade.

The late strength in wheat helped corn prices and the close was firm with July up 1⅛@1⅜c at 46⅝@⅞c.

Oats were dull and featureless with opening prices steady, July being a shade to ⅛c lower at 35⅜@⅝c to 35¾c. The prevailing sentiment was bullish on the poor crop prospects and the market became a little firmer during the first hour. Local receipts were 243 cars.

Provisions opened steady along with hogs and the market became firmer on a fair demand from brokers with but light offerings. September pork was unchanged at $16.57½; September lard was 2½c lower at 8.55, and ribs a shade lower at $9.17½.

Close: Wheat—May, 80c; July, 77½c; September, 75⅞@75¾c; December, 72¼c. Corn—May, 49½c; July, 48⅝@47¾c; September, 46¾c. Oats—May, 36⅜c; July, 34c; September, 31¼c; December, 31⅛c. Pork—May, $19.00; July, $17.72½; September, $16.77½. Lard—May, $9.07½; July, $8.97½; September, $9.07½; October, $8.87½. Ribs—May, $9.35; July, $9.50; September, $9.32½; October, $9.12½. Rye—May, 58c; July, 59½c. Flax—Cash, $1.16; May, $1.16; July, $1.14. Timothy—May, $3.60. Clover—May, $11.50. Barley—Cash, 42@56c. Oats—2, 33c; 3, 32c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: The significant circumstance about the wheat market last week was that it was a public affair rather than one under the spell of a single great trader. With the Armour line in July liquidated, the price took care of itself and better. Most significant of all, the outside markets began to show strength. The advance here was 5c to 1c, but St. Louis gained 13c to 2c. This was the best proof here was something in the situation different from what there had been.

The decline in the wheat condition, according to the government report, stopped, was small, and the condition, 92.6, indicates a large yield, over 500,000,000 bushels winter wheat. But there have been persistent reports of damage since the report was issued, and the Southwestern speculator, who is expected to get the winter wheat situation right and to get his information early, has been a vigorous buyer. The confidence here in the judgment of the Southwestern man as to the winter wheat crop situation has had much to do with the sentiment changing from the bear to the bull side. The Southwestern group of speculators have made their money by getting the winter wheat crop facts early, with Spencer and the other St. Louis Wheat men pouring buying orders for the deferred futures into this market and claiming serious crop damage, sellers have first hesitated and then changed theories.

The speculator has been considerably influenced by the intimation the French wheat duty of 36.8c might be reduced or temporarily removed. This has been made little of by many in the export trade; but it is a possibility certainly, when the chamber of deputies asks for it.

There was a similar action in 1898 and the step was taken then in April. The wheat price in Paris is not as high as it was in 1898, but it is costing $1.25 a bus now; and the Frenchman is susceptible to the cry of high priced bread.

The foreign situation is called moderately bullish by all those in the export trade, and especially by those who have recently returned from abroad. Those who do business with the other side are looking for a large business from that direction. This has affected the temper of the market, this unanimity of the exporters as to rather unusual necessities in Europe.

Between the anxiety lest the unusual crop prospects be marred and the feeling the other side has had poor conditions for its crops and will need to take liberally from this side, the sentiment has become moderately bullish on the deferred and low-priced futures.

The belief that the crop, no matter how big, has been delayed some, has affected the ideas as to the July, and has unsettled those who felt there would be a good movement of new wheat very early.

Chicago Record-Herald: The wheat market is no longer entirely incredulous as to crop damage. It accepts as a fact that through the Southwest there has been considerable impairment. The disposition here, however, is to be little the trouble and to go upon the assumption of deterioration. But everybody is getting from sources of their own and considered reliable, confirmation of the crop losses. Spencer, of St. Louis, who ranks as high as anybody in the wheat fraternity estimates the loss in the Southwest at one-third. He wired his house yesterday: "Judging from what I have seen of the wheat in this locality and reports I get, I think we will do well to get two-thirds of a wheat crop if there are favorable conditions to harvest. The plant is short and unhealthy in appearance." There were other messages of the same tenor and estimating the situation at about the same. That the Southwest puts faith in its own advices as to crop losses was shown by the advance at St. Louis in spite of declines in all the other markets. St. Louis yesterday wired that Texas would be harvesting its wheat in the last week of May and that there would be 20,000,000 bus. compared with 9,000,000 bushels last year.

There is to be a new feature in the June government crop report. In addition to the customary report of condition of winter wheat in a percentage of the normal condition represented by 100, Statistician Hyde had asked correspondents to give an estimate of condition in the former of an average yield per acre.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market opened weak on the cables and generally favorable weather throughout the West. After the first weakness, however, there was very little wheat for sale and the market gradually rallied and later worked active and strong. There was no activity particularly to the cash end of the trade, but exporters seemed to be buying the next crop futures moderately. The unfavorable crop news seem to persist. It is getting to be rather more general in its scope in the Middle West, and there were rather more complaints from Kansas and Oklahoma. With the moderate stocks of wheat and the cash wheat in this market all in the hands of one party, there is not much selling pressure from the weight of actual supplies. There is nothing particularly new in foreign crop news, the weather on the continent being generally more satisfactory. California is still without rain and buying wheat in this market. Whatever one's views on the crop situation may be, the action of this market is unmistakable. Estimated cars, 110.

Corn—The market here was quiet on continued interior offerings. The tone was easier early, but it rallied later on the strength in wheat. We see nothing else now to cause an advance. Cash demand is only moderate and the weather is generally favorable for planting and the starting of the crop. We are still inclined to think we would sell corn on hard spots. Estimated cars, 300.

Oats—There was further good local speculative buying of oats and the general tone of the market was strong. With the light stocks there is much selling pressure, but the cash demand is not encouraging and the prospect for the growing crop is the controlling factor. Estimated cars, 80.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 19.—The enormous gains of yesterday affected no appreciable decrease in bullish excitement and enthusiasm and the opening in the cotton market today was one of the most notable of an eventful season. The irregularity of Liverpool after her pronounced advance the prospects for receipts again more than double last year, and the expectations of a bearish weekly bureau report as opposed to the bullish utterances credited to the New Orleans leader, all added to the rush and confusion. First prices here were 4@9 points higher and immediately following the call bull aggressiveness and further covering by shorts set prices to another new high level for the season. July selling at $11.26 August at 11.02 and September at 9.73. After opening 8 to 10 points higher, Liverpool reported unsettled conditons and fell off. Later there was a break of about 5 points which brought prices back to just a little over local expectations. The strength in spot cotton at Liverpool was again remarkable, quotations being advanced 18 points but the trading showed a marked decrease.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.85; middling gulf, 12.10. Sales 500 bales. Cotton futures closed firm. May 11.64; June, 11.23; July, 11.24; August, 10.96; September, 9.78; October, 9.31; November, 9.22; December, 9.18; January, 9.19.

A STEADIER TONE

To the Stock Market, Liquidation Being Apparently Ended.

Persistent Support Rallied Prices From the Opening Decline.

New York, May 19.—Yesterday's downward tendency of prices was still prevalent this morning in the stock market. Large sales were made at the opening which were well distributed, causing fractional declines amongst nearly all the representative stocks. Reading and Southern Pacific lost ½. Declines otherwise did not exceed ½. A rise of ½ in Amalgamated and of small fractions in Rock Island and St. Louis & San Francisco, were the only important exceptions to the general course of the market.

Buying orders rallied most of the standard stocks a fraction above yesterday's close, but the movement was attended with a good deal of feverishness. Meanwhile, prices were slipping off at other points. Fluctuations in the active stocks were slight although considerable stock changed hands. Declines reached 2½ in General Electric and 1½ in Chicago Terminal preferred, Delaware & Hudson, People's Gas, Linseed, Republic Steel and Ice preferred. Lackawanna advanced 2 and St. Louis & San Francisco and Rubber preferred 1. The market slipped back to the low level and became dull at the end of the hour.

The effective support given to a few representative stocks notably St. Paul, had a decided influence on speculative sentiment and prompted covering of short lines. Advances ranging from nearly a point to 1¼ over last night resulted in St. Paul and Missouri Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Canadian Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Kansas & Texas preferred, Erie second preferred, Amalgamated, Colorado Fuel, American Ice and Consolidated Gas. There was fresh declines amongst many inactive stocks, ranging from 1 to 2 points. Buying decreased at the higher level and prices slipped back the fraction. Noon.

Prices were held well in check and when St. Paul rose anew to 157 the entire list followed. Union Pacific and New York Central extended their advances to a point and other leaders were a trifle higher.

Attempts to take profits forced the market down a slight fraction, but the persistent support which had been in evidence all day reasserted itself and prices recovered fully. Some of the trunk lines, Pacifics and Goulds touched the best prices of the day. Wabash preferred, Missouri Pacific and Rock Island rose more than a point over last night and Northwestern 2¾c. General Electric recovered earlier losses.

The upward movement carried Baltimore & Ohio, Sugar, Smelting preferred, Metropolitan Street Railway and the Securities companies to 1¼ over last night. Lake Erie & Western preferred rose 3. The room traders then took their profits of the day's advance, causing fractional reactions. Iowa Central lost 2½ and the preferred 3, with partial recoveries and Pullman lost 1½. Gains in the leading stocks were generally reduced by 1 p. m. and Manhattan dropped abruptly a point under last night. The closing was moderately active and easy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The fear that the cotton corner will collapse with disastrous consequences to Wall street houses is believed to be largely responsible for the renewed weakness in stock market and is the chief argument of bears. It cannot be learned, however, that any important stock exchange concerns have any serious interest in the cotton deal and as a matter of fact the collapse of the latter judging from last night's comments would be hailed with delight in the financial districts. As to the stock market it is felt that the level reached in yesterday's decline fully discounts the situation, unfavorable influences, the wild speculation in the countries, the strike in the building trades, the gold exports and the lateness of the planting season. It is argued that in strong contrast with the high prices and small yield of dividend paying shares last autumn here is a condition which is bound to invite investment buying on a scale. Indeed it is the testimony of observant brokers that this sort of absorption has been in progress for some time past increasing in volume in the leading railroad and also in the industrials where the argument of good interest return is even more forceful than in the case of the railroad stocks referred to above. For instance United States Steel preferred pays nearly 8½ per cent, the common stock 12. Sugar 5½. Peoples Gas, 6 per cent. Overshadowed by the abnormal cotton situation and gold exports, facts which made for the property of the railroads are ignored, such gains in gross earnings for the second week in May as were reported today by the Wabash and Union Pacific proper, each of which increased over $100,000 scarcely exciting remark. Another thing which by observers is considered of much significance is the increase in the Calumet & Hecla dividend, which is regarded as a strong bull argument on Amalgamated Copper.

Town Topics: A rally is due. The break has cleared the atmosphere. Cotton traders against let go stocks yesterday. This caused the liquidation. The decline was purely a bear raid for nothing really to justify gold exports now are but same commodity shipments. Unless plans are suddenly changed Wabash preferred will not go below 46 nor Missouri Pacific below 108. We are very bullish on them.

We are also bullish on Copper again. Prices should harden today and as there is a large short interest in the market, the large interests that have been dormant may have died any moment to advance prices generally. The bears will not give up without a struggle, but we believe the chances favor the bulls.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: A broker in close touch with the First National bank says: "I believe good stocks have declined to a point where they can be regarded as bargains. In my opinion most of the selling yesterday was for the short account, headed by the Waldorf crowd. I believe that stocks bought around present prices will show good profits in a short time."

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The process by which the market is righting itself from the overspeculation of last summer is painful and slow. But dullness and declines are perhaps the best remedy. Railway earnings are well maintained; against that is increased capitalization. Crop prospects are very favorable, though the summer crops are somewaat remote. Money is easy, but this is more the result of no demand than over supply. Gold shipments are natural at this season, still they have an unsettled influence. About the only thing to buy stocks on is the theory that it is "darkest before dawn." There are moreover some elements of danger in the labor situation. Under the circumstances persons not in the market had probably better wait before dong anything. Those who are loaded with stocks bought higher up, must hold on. The probability is that prices are somewhere near the bottom. The drive yesterday looks like the preliminary to a good rally if nothing more.

J. S. Bache & Co to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bear party which was successful in hammering prices yesterday after a slight show of strength at the opening, continued the same this morning, but were unable to obtain only fractional declines. The feature of the morning was the resistance by Amalgamated Copper showing accumulation by insiders and assisted by the declaration yesterday of an increased dividend of the Calumet and Hecla company, this being indication of the increased prosperity of the copper business. Canadian Pacific acted contrary to the rest of the market and held firm, helped by London buying and favorable reports of the earnings of the company. Towards noon the market showed fractional advances on covering by traders and on supporting orders in the leading issues. The report of the satisfactory settlement of the Union Pacific strike strengthened the market in a fair degree. At these prices stocks are now selling on a very fair investment basis, and this should bring more or less buying orders on the week ends. The market is still heavy, threatened with gold exports, however, and the labor situation everywhere is rapidly drifting into an acute condition. Barring accidents some rally is probably due. We would, however, only buy stocks on soft spots and for moderate profits. On any material reaction think it would do to sell them. The tendency of developments on wheat crop is unfavorable.

CONDITION OF CROPS

Washington, May 19.—The weekly crop bulletin of the weather bureau is as follows:

All northern and central districts east of the Rockies experienced highly favorable temperatures during the week ending May 18, the central valleys lake region and New England receiving ample and much needed warmth, while in the southern states it was too cool for favorable growth. The very general absence of rain in New England and middle Atlantic states and over a large part of the lake region and Ohio valley has intensified drought in these districts, in consequence of which crops have made slow progress and planting and germination have been greatly hindered. The east gulf states and portions of the lower Missouri and lower Mississippi valleys have suffered from excessive rains. On the Pacific coast the week was rather cool with no rain over the greater portion of California. There was generally good rains in Washington, with light showers over a large part of Oregon, but more rain is needed in the last named state.

Corn planting has been further delayed by rains in the states of the lower Missouri valley and by drought in the Ohio valley, middle Atlantic states and portions of the lake region. Planting is well advanced in the Dakotas and notwithstanding the wet soil in Iowa and Missouri has been vigorously pushed in those states, where it is germinating very satisfactorily. In Nebraska, the Ohio valley and middle Atlantic states, a large part of the crop is yet to be planted not more than half the area having been seeded in Ohio and Nebraska.

Winter wheat has made favorable progress in Nebraska and Kansas and has been improved by rains in portions of Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky but in southern Missouri and in the states northward of the Ohio river and in the middle Atlantic states, the crop has suffered further deterioration. It is heading as far north as central Kansas and the southern portions of Indiana and Ohio.

In the spring wheat region the weather conditions have been highly favorable for germination and growth of spring wheat, which is coming up to good stands with vigorous plants. In the northern Rocky Mountain states, the growth of spring wheat has been slow, in Washington and Oregon, the outlook is very promising.

In the Missouri Valley, Oklahoma and Texas a general improvement in the condition of oats is noted but in the Ohio Valley, middle Atlantic states and the greater part of the lake region the condition of the crop is less favorable, owing to the effects of the drought.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Ore Carriers Complaining of Delays at Lower Lake Ports.

The Steamer Blackrock Is Aground at Nine-Mile Point.

Ore carriers are experiencing delays at the lower lake ports on account of the shortage of cars on the eastern railroads. The receipts of ore have been heavy during the past few weeks and the congested condition of the Eastern railroads has prevented the ore being moved away from the docks with any degree of rapidity. The dock space is not yet very plentiful and the vessels have to wait for cars in many instances. It is likely that the ore carriers will lose considerable time from this cause at the lower lake end of their trips until the situation has been relieved.

There is a fair demand for ore tonnage at lower lake ports. Chartering continues at 85 cents to the head of the lakes, the figure at which it opened in the spring. Shipments of ore from Duluth have been moving more freely during the past few days.

Coal is still moving very freely. The chartering at the lower lake ports for the head of the lakes is active and firm at the opening figures.

MEN ARE CONTENTED.

President Frank Howard, of the local branch of the Lake Seamen's union, reports a very healthy condition in the labor situation at the head of the lakes.

The men have been in working for about six weeks on the new schedule of wages and appear to be contented with their condition. There is plenty of work for all the members of the union at Duluth and the men have no difficulty in securing positions.

IS CONSIDERABLY DAMAGED.

Barge 120 of the Pittsburg Steamship company arrived yesterday in a badly damaged condition, as the result of the collision with the steamer Keefe of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company on Lake St. Clair recently. A large hole is stove in her port bow. She is at the company's docks for repairs. The Keefe returned to Detroit after the collision.

SOME CHARTERS FOR GRAIN.

Chicago, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of charters were made today at 1¾ cents for wheat to Buffalo from Chicago to Chicago with coal, stranded at Nine-Mile point, below here last night, in a dense fog. The wrecker, Favorite, was sent to her assistance this morning. It was not the Blackrock which was rebuilt at Mackinaw City. This is the first trip of that steamer after being rebuilt at an expense of $16,000 the past winter.

TICKETS TO GO

Milk Tickets Come Under the Ban of Health Department.

Theory Is That They Aid to Spread Diseases.

Milk tickets are prohibited after June 1.

The board of health has decided that the passing of these tickets from house to house is a menace to health, and according to a bulletin posted in the health office it is up to the milk dealers to issue coupon books or adopt a punch system.

Some dairymen use the coupon system at present, and according to a member of the health board they find it more convenient than the old ticket system, and just as economical.

Commissioner N. O. Nelson, of the health board, was the first to propose the innovation, and the other members of the board took the matter up. They investigated and found that tickets were sold to patrons in houses where scarlet fever and other contagious diseases existed, then taken up by the milk dealer and sold again to other customers. It was pointed out that tickets in one house might carry disease to twenty other families, whereas under the coupon system the tickets would be destroyed as fast as collected.

The milk dealers of the city have all been notified of the proposed change, and many of them are ordering coupon books printed. They propose selling books with about twenty coupons.

A few of the milk men say that the idea of milk tickets carrying disease germs is absurd, and predict a failure for the coupon system. As there are probably 100 milk dealers in Duluth, the coupon books are likely to resemble each other and dealers give out milk on coupons that they did not issue.

The friends of the coupon system say that dealers afraid of this should adopt the punch system and issue tickets to each customer, punching out one number at each delivery.

NAME IS CHANGED.

Boat Launched Wednesday to Be The D. G. Kerr.

The name of the Pittsburg Steamship company's boat to be launched at the Superior shipyards tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, has been altered from the Clemson to the D. G. Kerr. The boat will be launched, as advertised, but it was announced at the office of the Pittsburg company this afternoon that the name on it would be the Kerr, and that the Clemson would not slip down the ways for some time yet.

A party of local Pittsburg Steamship company men will be present, and some officials from other cities are expected to be present.

Indian Maiden Arrested.

Detectives carried a pretty Indian maiden into captivity yesterday, and for many moons to come she will rest in the county jail awaiting action of the September grand jury on a charge of grand larceny.

The maiden is Stella Newagan, and she is said to have stolen $175 from the proprietress of the Garfield house, 120 Garfield avenue. She left part of the money with the woman that keeps a confectionery store at the foot of the Seventh avenue incline. Detectives learned of this, and when she called for the money she was taken in custody, arraigned in the municipal court, waived an examination and was bound over.

TO ADJOURN SATURDAY

Wisconsin Legislature Will Then Finish Its Sessions.

Madison, Wis., May 19.—The assembly today adopted the Ray resolution on the primary election bill with an amendment by Mr. Bradford, whereby the entire bill will be submitted to the people for ratification at the general election next year. It is believed the senate will concur. The governor today signed the bill taxing railroads on the ad valorem system. The legislature will adjourn sine die Saturday next.

TOURISTS FROM THE FAR WEST

Pacific Coast Scandinavians to Pass Through Duluth Tomorrow.

Duluth will be visited tomorrow by a party of seventy-five excursionists and pleasure seekers from the West.

The party comes from Seattle and other points in Washington and Oregon. It is headed by A. Chilberg, a prominent banker of Seattle. The members of the party are largely natives of Norway, Sweden and other European countries who are taking a holiday and revisiting their native countries. They combined to form a party in order to gain the advantage of cheaper rates and for social purposes.

They will arrive in Duluth in special sleepers over the Great Northern tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock and will remain in Duluth throughout the day, leaving at night over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic for Montreal. Special through sleepers to Montreal will be provided for them by the officials of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway.

From Montreal they will take passage on an Allan line steamer direct to Liverpool, where the party will disband and scatter to various parts of Europe to reassemble after several weeks and return.

The majority of the members of the party are men who are prominent in business and professional life in the different coast cities and the object of the trip is in most cases pleasure only, although a few are combining business with it.

While in Duluth the party will view the various sights, taking the boulevard drive and visiting other points of interest.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Chelsea, Mass., May 19.—Patrick F. McDonald, known very well in New England as a base ball player and oarsman, is dead. He had played both with the Connecticut and New England leagues and was a member of the four oared crew from the Mill stream boat club which took second prize at the international regatta in Halifax in 1901.

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 19.—News reached here today from the northern part of this county of the death there of Howard Gallup of this city and New York. Mr. Gallup was a popular clubman and a man of considerable means. He was a member of the Union, Metropolitan, Racket and University clubs of New York.

CONNECTICUT BANK CLOSED.

Washington, May 19.—The treasury department today received a telegram from National Bank Examiner Perkins announcing the closing of the Southport National Bank of Southport, Conn. This action, it is understood was taken on account of the defalcation of the cashier, which is believed to have approximated $100,000.

MAKES NEW RECORD

Frank Johnson Actually Catches Escaping Chain Gang Prisoner.

"Single Eye" Kelly Noted Character, The Slow Footed Individual.

Wonders will never cease.

A chain-gang prisoner ran away today and was c-a-u-g-h-t!

"Single-Eye" Kelly, one of the toughest characters about town, now serving a thirty-day sentence for vagrancy, was the liberty-yearning sprinter.

He jumped the gang near the corner of First street and Fifth avenue east, and, leaping over rocks and other obstructions, he headed for Superior street.

Frank Johnson, a new guard, went after him, calling on the prisoner to stop or he would shoot. Kelly kept on, running like a scandal and cutting two or three back yards on the bias.

The guard shot a couple of times to scare him into stopping. Kelly was scared all right, but instead of stopping, increased his speed, cleared Superior street in a jump and headed straight for Lake Superior.

When his pals about town heard that he ran toward the lake they started a subscription to have him taken before the judge of probate, as he had been known to faint at the sight of water on previous occasions, and they thought he must have been wandering at a terrific clip mentally as well as physically.

Chief Troyer, riding along Superior street, heard the shots, saw part of the exciting sprint and reached the lake shore in time to see Johnson corner the prisoner up against a ledge of rock.

The chief saw the funny side of the incident, and when Kelly came up, said:

"I thought you were a sprinter. Why, you can't run any faster than some of those speedy baseball players we have at headquarters."

"O, I can run all right," panted Kelly, "but you see, laying around the county jail for eight days had put me out of condition."

AUDITOR'S REPLY

To Tulloch's Charges Will Be Prompt and Conclusive.

Washington, May 19.—Capt. Henry A. Castle, auditor for the postoffice department today gave out a statement in reply to charges made against this office by ex-Cashier S. W. Tulloch, of the Washington city postoffice. Capt. Castle says:

"I have not yet received the postmaster general's letter transmitting abstracts of Mr. Tulloch's complaints referring to this office, but my reply will be brief, prompt, and, I think, conclusive. I shall welcome the opportunity for I have had special satisfaction in the record of this bureau in settling the accounts of the Spanish war period. We now have 600 employes, of whom more than one are themselves auditors, settling an average of more than 2000 accounts every working day. I seldom see any of these accounts, but I did carefully review their work which involves the Spanish war episodes and I assumed the responsibility for the settlements as finally made, under a decision of the supreme court of the United States, the officers are not judges of the necessity or the extravagance of an expenditure. They are only concerned with its legality under some available appropriation and the sufficiency of the vouchers.

"Some of Mr. Tulloch's statements are reckless and others absurdly false. The comptroller never disallowed $40.90 that final been approved by this office. My recollection now is that less than $1000 was finally disapproved and that of that amount a considerable portion was simply charged under another head. I will, however, refresh my recollection by going over the official files before answering the postmaster general's letter."

Postmaster General Payne today said that he had not communicated with former First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, but that he would do so later on, in connection with the charges of violations of civil service laws. Mr. Payne called attention to the appropriation of $200,000 made by congress for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900. By its items, he said the expediture of that appropriation for mail service of various kinds necessitated by the equisition of insular possesions was vested in the discretion of the postmaster general without regard to the civil service law.

LEVIN GUILTY.

Indictments for Naturalization Frauds Are Sustained.

St. Louis, May 19.—Nathan Levin, saloonkeeper, president of the Hebrew branch of the Jefferson club, was found guilty today on fourteen out of sixteen indictments on which he had been tried by a jury in the United States district court and sentenced to five years in the Missouri prison. Sentence was pronounced on Levin by Judge Amidon of North Dakota who has been sitting in the case for Judge Adams. There are forty-seven other cases growing out of the naturalization frauds unearthed by District Attorney Dyer and the federal grand jury still to be tried.

HEIRS OF FAIR

Have Evidence That Mrs. Fair Died First.

San Francisco, May 19.—Absolute proof that Mrs. Charles L. Fair died before her husband in the automobile accident in France is said to be in possession of the attorneys who have charge of the interests of Mr. Fair's relatives. Attorney George A. Knight, who returned home yesterday from Paris, whither he had gone to secure evidence to combat the claim of the members of Mrs. Fair's family that Mr. Fair's wife survived him and therefore inherited all his property, stated that he was now prepared to show that the witnesses brought to this country by the Nelson family testified falsely.

ITALIANS UGLY

Have Several Clashes With Police In New York.

New York, May 19.—Clashes between police and striking Italians took place at several points along the line of the subway today. The bluecoats on picket duty along the trench and the reserves at the station houses were called upon to suppress a dozen fights caused by the attempts of the striking excavators to intimidate their countrymen who tried to return to work.

The strikers were out, as usual, at daybreak in squads of five to pick up workingmen as they left their homes. When the men got past them they found another set of pickets awaiting them in the side streets just off the subway.

The second line of pickets, finding they could not make the men turn back, set upon them. They confined their efforts strictly to work on their own nationality.

At Seventy-second street and Columbus avenue a young Italian was set upon by a crowd of ten strikers. Merchants, messenger boys and laborers passing at the time went to the lad's assistance, and a general melee was in progress when the police arrived. The police made three prisoners. About 2000 men, or 50 per cent of the required number, are now at work on the subway.

The officials at the Brooklyn navy yard are somewhat apprehensive of trouble on account of information received by them that a determined effort is being made to get every workman in the yard into a labor union. For the last month the unions have caused a most constant annoyance to the heads of the various departments, but have not been successful in tying up any of them completely. It is believed that the union men are attempting to get all the workmen in the yard into their organizations in order that a demand may be made for recognition of the unions.

President Lawrence of the Excavators' and Cellar Diggers' union has complained to Deputy Police Commissioner Piper that policemen are going around the Italian colony at St. Mark's and Troy avenues, attempting to intimidate the strikers into going back to work. It is said that this is being done in the interest of a certain contractor. Commissioner Piper said that if a specific complaint was made against any policeman he would consider it.

Chicago, May 19.—The refusal of twenty-five electricians and cranemen to return to work in the Chicago plant of the Allis-Chalmers company unless their demand for an increase in wages was granted has necessitated the closing of the entire plant, throwing 1500 machinists, blacksmiths, pattern-makers and other laborers out of employment.

Seven hundred street laborers, many of them employes of the gas company on sub-contract work for the city, are on struke. The men demand higher wages.

Denver, May 19.—No change has taken place in the strike situation here since yesterday. Bayonted houses in various lines are resuming business with non-union forces as rapidly as possible, but labor leaders assert that there are no less than 7000 men still out. The state board of arbitration has been blocked in its efforts to bring about arbitration by the employers citizens alliance, but committees from the printing trades and business interests have undertaken to mediate between the labor executive committee and the alliance.

CHINAMEN STRIKE.

Chicago, May 19.—Chinese laundrymen struck today—the first strike of the kind in Chicago's history. Ten Chinamen employed in a South Side laundry demanded more pay and when it was refused, they followed the example of their white brethren and walked out. Several sentries picketed the place while a committee of their number later in the day attempted to carry on peace negotiations, but the proprietor, Willie Moy, locked himself inside his place and refused to treat with them.

DISMISSED BY CZAR.

St. Petersburg, May 19.—The report that Lieut. Gen. Raaben, governor of the Kishineff, Bessarabia, where the massacre of Jews occurred a month ago, had been dismissed by the czar, is confirmed. The imperial ukase dismissing the general is dated May 17.

The authorities here have suppressed the Volny and have prohibited street sales of the Novosti, in both cases for contravention of the press regulations.

BOGDANOVITCH KILLED.

Ufa, European Russia, May 19.—Governor Bogdanovitch was instantly killed today by two men in the town park.

MIDSHIPMAN DROWNED.

Annapolis, May 19.—Midshipman Arthur O. Barbour, of the fourth classs naval academy, a son of C. H. Barbour, of Kent, Ohio, was drowned in the Severn river here today. Young Barbour went in swimming with Naval Cadet N. L. Chapin, of California, and was seized with cramps. Chapin and a sailor endeavored to save the drowning youth, but without avail.

FRANCE WILL BEARWATCHING

Has Her Eye on Southern Provinces of China.

Are of More Importance Than the Northern.

Victoria, B. C., May 20.—Alfred Cunningham, manager of the Hong Kong Daily Press, a passenger on the Skaga Maru which arrived last night, said in an interview here that Japanese journalists do not regard Russia's action in Manchuria as surprising or unanticipated. Mr. Cunningham says that while attention is being maintained in the north by Russian aggression, a matter of far greater importance to America, Britain and Japan was overlooked in the south. The report is that of the aggression of France in the southern provinces. He was of the opinion that France and Russia were acting in concert, the former in the north and the latter in the south. He says France has bribed the officials of Kwang Si and is waiting the chance to pour troops into that province. The south, said Mr. Cunningham, is now on the verge of a far greater internal crisis than that now on in the north, although at present the rebellion in Kwang Si is practically brigandage on a large scale. The rebellion in South China, he says, is another factor. There is no doubt but that the reformers have organized the brigands and a rebellion, which will be far greater than the Tai Ping rebellion ever was, will break out before long in South China. Large quantities of arms are being shipped in to the rebels chiefly from the United States, and headed by the reformers a movement will break out, pro-foreign in its nature, to overthrow the empress dowager and reinstate Kwang Si. He said he has on the best information that a movement, organized on an immense scale, and including many provinces, is liable to break out at any moment, which will have immediate and far-reaching results.

Oriental advices per steamer Skaga Maru say:

A review of the Japanese journals shows a preponderance of expression that Russia will never relinquish the Manchurian territory. The Japan Times says it is evident that Russia, despite denials, means to maintain her hold on Manchuria, even at the risk of war. Japanese papers contain dispatches from many sources regarding war preparations of Russia.

The Mainachi has received advices that large forces of Russian troops are crossing the Yalu river and 20,000 Russians are now massed there.

The Pekin correspondent of the same paper quotes the empress dowager as stating that it was impossible to cede Manchuria, whence came the ancestors of the dynasty, to Russia, but it might be advisable to lease Outer Mongolia, which is contiguous to Siberia, providing the Russians would open the district to trade. The correspondent adds that Prince Ching strongly opposed the empress dowager and the emperor did not support the proposal.

The correspondent says that the Russian authorities bribed all the officials, with the exception of Prince Ching, prior to the production of the secret treaty in regard to Manchuria. The total amount paid out in bribes was over 100,000 taels.

The Jiji Shimpo has a long interview with the Russian minister at Pekin from its correspondent there. He says the reason Russia opposes the opening of Manchuria is that the British, Japanese and Americans, who who want to reside there, have political ends to advance unconnected with commerce. He says Russia seeks to prohit the employment of foreigners in Manchuria in self-defense, because it is inevitable that the safety of Manchuria will be menaced if foreigners go in. Russia, he pointed out, has spent large sums and sent large forces to develop Manchuria, while Britain and Japan have not spent a cent there, nor sent a soldier, and they cannot have any right to interfere with the district. In conclusion the Russian minister said that in Rusia the opinion was gaining ground that the time was ripe for the St. Petersburg government to declare Manchuria a Russian province instead of allowing it to remain in an undecided state.

Japanese correspondents state that the United States minister at Pekin is indignant at the offensive attitude adopted by the Russian ministers.

WHO IS THE GUILTY ONE?

TOWED TO SEA BY BIG WHALE

The Thrilling Experience of Two Fishermen.

Went at Express Train Speed For Hours.

Boston, May 20.—Capt. Horace Hilman, an Edgartown fisherman, has been towed by a maddened whale many miles out to sea at a speed rivaling that of a fast express train. Capt. Hilman and Emanuel Cirreo were in the catboat Thelma examining nets off the southern shore of No Man's Land, south of Martha's Vineyard.

Suddenly a fin back whale leaped out of the water within ten feet of the Thelma and brought down his immense tail with a fearful swing. The boat rocked violently and both men were thrown prostrate. Then the whale started out to sea, fouling the lines which attached the nets to the boat and towing the Thelma seaward.

Cirreo was buried under a heap of nets. Capt. Hilman was stunned by the fall, but regained his feet and attempted to release the Portuguese, but was unable to do so. Capt. Hilman estimates the whale towed the catboat at a speed of thirty miles an hour. So fast did the boat tear through the water that torrents of water poured over the broad, flat stern and he was forced to bail continuously to keep the small craft from being swamped. To add to the gravity of the situation, a squall approached from the south and Hilman was obliged to bail with one hand, while with the other he fumbled at the halyards and down haul. Finally, by almost superhuman effort, he managed to lower the sail, but it was impossible for him to furl it. A few minutes later the squall struck the Thelma and she was thrown almost on her beam ends.

After being towed for four hours the Thelma was freed. Capt. Hilman thinks that the whale must have slackened its speed and dived. The captain was two days in bringing the Thelma back to port.

RUMORS OF ABSORPTION

Of Jones Plant By Steel Trust Are Again Current.

Pittsburg, May 20.—The funeral of Benjamin F. Jones, Sr., the great steel master, who died yesterday, will be held at the family residence in Allegheny at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, of the First Presbyterian church, will conduct the services, which will be of the most simple character. The interment will be in Allegheny cemetery.

All of the plants and interests will be closed Thursday and Friday and probably Saturday, out of respect for the memory of the founder. A prominent official of the Jones & Laughlins company said there will be no change whatever in the personnel or policy of the company as a result of the death of Mr. Jones, who for years held complete control of the company.

"Rumors were revived, however, that as a result of the sad event in the company's career, a deal with the United States Steel corporation might be merely possible," he said. "Officials did not care to discuss the matter. Friends declared that absorption would not be brought any nearer."

Philadelphia, May 20.—Mr. Carnegie cables the following to Mrs. Jones:

Clashmore, Scotland, May 20, 1903.—Benjamin F. Jones, the nestor in manufacturing, has gone. He was my friend of fifty years—for he was kind to me in my boyhood. We were competitors often in after life, but friends always. Never one harsh word was passed between us. "What shadows we are; what shadows we pursue."

THE PEOPLE OF CUBA CELEBRATE THEIR INDEPENDENCE DAY

The First Anniversary of the Establishment of the Republic Is Made the Occasion of a Grand Jubilation at Havana.

Havana, May 20.—The celebration of Cuba's independence day, the first anniversary of the establishment of the republic, began at midnight with the illumination of the fronts of the clubs, the sending up of rockets and the screeching of whistles. The weather today was ideally clear, even for Cuba and a pleasant ocean breeze tempered the heat and gave an animated appearance to the flags and bunting displayed in all directions. Business was completely suspended and the streets were thronged with people.

President Palma, accompanied by the cabinet officers and city and provincial officials, drove to the Punta, where he reviewed the members of the police and fire departments and then, accompanied by Secretary of State Zaldo, he was driven up the Prado to the palace, continually acknowledging the salutations of the crowds which lined the thoroughfare. The guns of Cabanas fortress announced that exactly a year had elapsed since the birth of the Cuban republic, and immediately thereafter the rural guards and artillery paraded on the plaza in front of the palace and were reviewed by the president.

A TERRIFIC FIGHT WITH KNIVES

Peoria, Ill., May 20.—Late last night John Mucia and Joseph Cerene indulged in a terrific duel with knives at Chillicothe, during which Cerene was killed and Mucia severely injured. Cerene's head was nearly severed from the body and presented a horrible sight. Mucia made no effort to escape and submitted to arrest without resistance, but refuses to say anything regarding the crime. Both are Italians, and the murder is presumed to be the outgrowth of a feud originating in their native land.

MICHIGAN PASTOR BURNED TO DEATH

Richmond, Mich., May 20.—Rev. Henry Storey, a Baptist minister, was burned to death and his wife so seriously burned that it is feared she will not recover in a fire early today, destroying her home. Mr. Storey had been ill, and it is supposed that he arose in the night to get some medicine and dropped a lighted lamp. His body was terribly burned. Rev. Storey has served congregations in Kentucky and Iowa.

MISS CLARA BARTON REFERS TO THE RED CROSS STRIFE

Makes a Formal Statement Regarding Her Position In the Controversy and Annouuces New Plan For Future Work of the Society.

New York, May 20.—For the first time since the strife began in the Red Cross, Miss Clara Barton, in a formal statement, has made reference to the controversy, and has announced a plan to widen the scope of the society work. She says first:

"During the entire period of the present differences among sections of the members of the American National Red Cross I have never once felt that it was the desire of the American people that I should personally enter within the circle of disturbance, and I have consequently remained a silent and sorrowful spectator of a controversy where no true loyal friend of the Red Cross would care to follow."

Referring to allegations concerning expenditures, Miss Barton says: "I have administered with a free but careful hand the beneficiaries of whatever nature have been intrusted to me, and as freely I have given of all that I possessed of strength, health and private means."

The new plan is the establishment of the first aid department. There will be two branches of this work. An emergency case containing material and dressings has been devised with emergency charts arranged for it and a reference, giving simple directions for dealing with every conceivable case of accident pending the arrival of the doctor.

An organization has been created for introducing these cases to corporations, and other employers of labor, schools and private houses.

The other branch provides for the formation of first aid emergency classes in every city and the ambulance corps among employes of mills, factories, railroads and other corporations, and police and public employes. These will be instructed and drilled in first aid methods.

MANY NAVAL APPRENTICES SICK

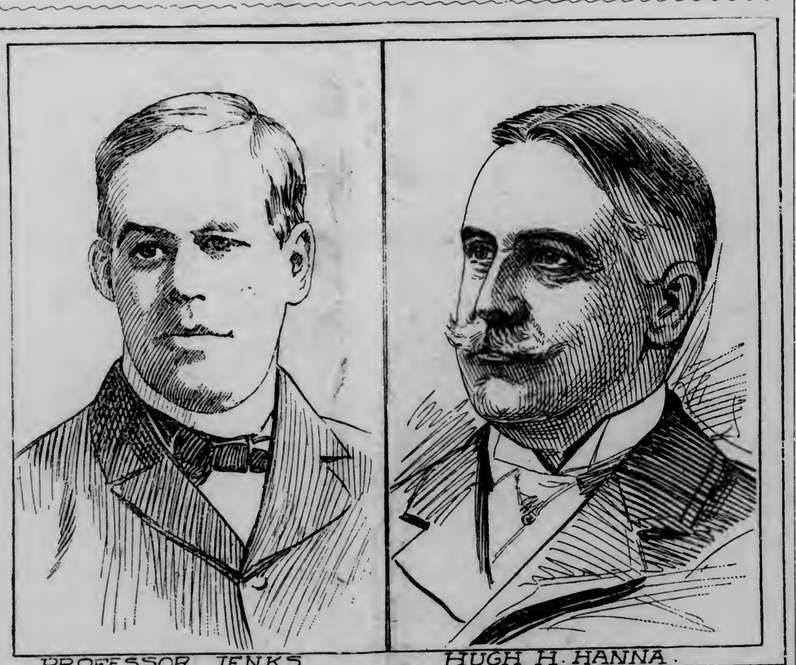
Newport, R. I., May 20.—There is much sickness on the United States naval training station and orders have been given to get the men into tents on the campus as soon as possible, as it is believed that the crowded condition of the barracks is in part the cause of the present illness. There are 1100 boys at the barracks, 100 aboard the training ship Constellation and a similar number aboard the Aphrodite, which is anchored in the stream. Diphtheria and measles are prevalent among the apprentices, a number of whom are being treated at the Newport hospital, the accommodations at the naval hospital being exhausted

GLOOMY PICTURES OF PHILIPPINES

Vienna, May 20.—The Austrian-Hungarian consul, A. De Brunne at Manila, in his report for 1902, paints a gloomy picture of the "Impoverishment of the Philippines, through the long campaign." Business, he says, was stagnant, the erection of a match factory and a color works being the only new enterprises of the whole year. The consul adds that Manila is flooded with unemployed Americans and says the cost of living has enormously increased since the American occupation.

STREET CAR FALLS WITH A BRIDGE

Binghamton, N. Y., May 20.—The Rock bottom bridge which spans the Susquehanna river in this city went down today under the weight of a street car. Six passengers were in the car besides the motorman and conductor. All were more or less injured. They are: William Pickard, internally injured, may die; Mrs. Sarah L. Cook, badly bruised about chest; George W. Bennett, severely shaken up and bruised; A. Murray, face cut and internally injured; Mrs. Hattie E. Briggs, cut and bruised; Mrs. Martha M. Elser, cut on face and bruised; I. Wemple, motorman, leg badly hurt; E. L. McDowell, conductor, received an electric shock when he struck the water, otherwise uninjured.



VISIT OF OUR INTERNATIONAL MONETARY COMMISSION TO EUROPE.

The object of the United States international monetary commission, consisting of Hugh H. Hanna, Charles A. Conant and Professor J. W. Jenks, in going to Europe is "to learn whether there is any way in which the great powers of the world can come together in some plan to steady the rates of exchange between gold and silver using countries." The commission, after spending some time in London, will visit Berlin, Paris, St. Petersburg, Vienna and most of the other capitals of Europe.

FIVE THOUSAND RUSSIAN SPIES IN UNITED STATES

According to Prominent Hebrews Minions of the Czar Are Lurking Everywhere to Pick Up All Matters of Interest to Russian Government.

New York, May 20.—According to prominent Hebrews of this city, there are fully 5000 paid spies of the Russian government in the United States. It is said that everything having the least interest to the Russian government that is said or done in the United States is transmitted as rapidly as possible by this army of spies. They are especially anxious, it is said, to get letters written by persecuted Russians to relatives and friends in this country in order that they may send back to the central government utterances which may be used as justification for further persecution. Knowledge of this fact, it is said, is what makes the Hebrews on this side so careful not to give verbatim extracts from any foreign letters in relation to the massacres in Kishineff and elsewhere.

"We must protect our countrymen and ourselves," said a prominent Jewish publisher. "A Russian came to this city a year ago. He said he was an officer in the Russian army. He was received into our families. He ate at our tables and danced with our girls. We found news of a confidential nature was leaking out, so we had a secret warning sent to him. He took the hint and disapeared at once.

"The Italians have their Mafia, and Russia has its band of murderers, who work with as much secrecy and dispatch as the Mafia. In sixty days the Russian government does away with anyone it wishes to. No one who attacks the Russian government is safe."

Since last Friday no money has been sent to Kishineff from this city. The relief fund is $63,000, of which $50,000 has been contributed by East Side Jews.

CHICAGO INFANTS NEED FRESH MILK TWICE A DAY TO LIVE

One Delivery a Day Is Held to Be a Source of Danger and If Not Improved, Infant Mortality Will Greatly Increase.

Chicago, May 20.—Unless immediate changes are affected in the methods of supplying Chicago with milk, the health department asserts that the public health will be seriously menaced and that a tremendous increase in infant mortality during the summer months will follow. The one delivery a day plan now being followed by drivers of milk wagons is held to be a danger.

Two deliveries of milk a day, it is held, are absolutely essential if infant health is to be protected. As it is the milk delivered in the city is thirty-six hours old, on the average, before it reaches the customer. The effects already are seen in a rising death rate among infants.

Health Commissioner Reynolds has sent a letter to the heads of the milk wagon drivers' union, asking that the problem be given serious consideration.

In the Ghetto it is found that milk delivered in the morning absolutely cannot be kept for the succeeding 24 hours. Already three riots have occurred. Mothers have flocked to the depots of milk dealers demanding a fresh afternoon supply. As a result a number of dealers have started the two delivery system. But their efforts have been blocked by members of the union.

HARRIMAN PARTS WITH APPENDIX

New York, May 20.—E. H. Harriman was operated on today for appendicitis. At the conclusion of the operation the physicians announced that it had been successful. The operation took place at 8 o'clock in the Hotel Netherlands. The patient was laid on a specially constructed platform and the ether was administered to him by Dr. Bennett. The operation proper was performed by Dr. William T. Bull, while the other physicians in attendance were Drs. Walker, Fenton, Janeway, Lyle and Morris, the family physician. The operation was performed at the hotel because two of Mr. Harriman's children are suffering from scarlet fever and his home is quarantined.

Mr. Harriman was in excellent condition, having taken a drive in the park yesterday afternoon. He was not at all nervous and had no fear that the operation would prove dangerous. Miss Mary Harriman was her father's nurse since his return from his Western trip. She was at the Netherlands in an adjoining room during the operation. When the appendix was removed it was found to be very much inflamed. The operation was made at the request of Mr. Harriman, who said he did not want to run the risk of a recurrence of the attack, which might come at an inopportune time.

ASSASSINATED OUT OF REVENGE

Ufa, European Russia, May 20.—The assassination of Governor Bogdanovitch in the town park here yesterday was apparently an act of revenge growing out of the riot at Slatusk in March last when twenty-eight persons were killed and fifty wounded by gendarmes and troops. Details of the governor's assassination show that he was walking alone among the crowds yesterday when he was approached, in a shady lane near the church by two men, one of whom bowed and handed Bogdanovitch a packet. While the governor was examining it the men drew revolvers and riddled him with bullets, no less than nine being lodged in his breast and spine. The governor died on the spot. The church watchman ran to the scene on hearing the firing but was unable to stop the assassins who escaped by threatening to shoot all who barred their way. The governor has been in office for six years and was popular.

Fire-Fighter's Story

How the Strongest Man In the Philadelphia Fire Department—Once the Weakest—Gained His Strength and Health, By Using Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney and Bladder Remedy.

HERE'S the story of a man who was near death's door and was saved by using Swamp-Root.

If he came to you and said: "My friend, do you suffer with kidney trouble? Does your back ache? Do you feel bad all over and can't tell exactly what's the matter? Have you tried medicines or doctors without benefit? Are you about discouraged? Then do as I did, and get well—Use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root! I know it will cure you."

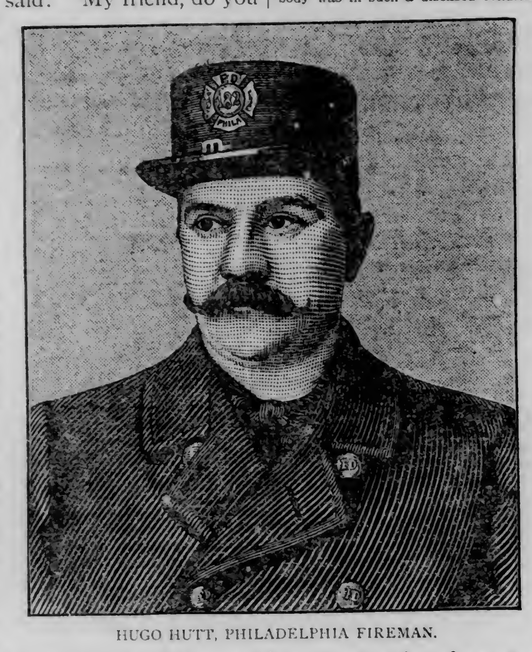
If he did this, would you believe him?

Wouldn't you, if you were a sufferer, follow his advice, knowing that he bore living, sentient, vital testimony to the wonderful virtues of this great natural remedy?

WELL, that is just what Hugo Hut, strongest man in the Philadelphia Fire Department, hero of a hundred battles with the flames, is doing now through the medium of this paper.

Hugo Hutt has been connected with the Philadelphia Fire Department for the past four years. He is stationed at the engine house at Nineteenth and Callowhill Streets. Mr. Hutt is known as the strongest man in the Fire Department and has taken many prizes at athletic tournaments for his prowess in the field of sports.

He is also an ex-sergeant of the United States Infantry, having for several years been stationed at Fort Niobrara, Neb. Mr. Hut also served with the Sixth Pennsylvania Regiment during the Spanish-American war.



HUGO HUTT, PHILADELPHIA FIREMAN.

HERE is the story as he gave it to a special representative of Philadelphia's Great Newspaper, "The North American:"

"You will hardly believe it when I tell you there was a time when my body was in such a diseased condition that my relatives and friends would have, at no time, been surprised to learn of my death. It was all due to kindney trouble, for which I could secure no relief. I was under the care of my family physician for a number of years, but he was unable to do me any good. I also consulted two noted specialists on kidney diseases, but they were unable to give me more than temporary relief. I had already made application to join the army, but was turned down on account of my bad physical condition.

"I was advised to try that greatest of all remedies—SWAMP ROOT.

"I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., at Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and its effect upon me was so noticeable that I went immediately and bought a supply from my druggist, with the result that in a comparatively short time I had entirely recovered and became the man you see me now.

"I served a number of years in the army, and for the past four years I have been connected with the Philadelphia Fire Department. My work, both in the army and fighting fires in Philadelphia, has been of the most arduous, and work that I could not do did I not have a strong physique.

"I do not know what the words "Kidney Trouble" mean now, and do not expect to. I cannot speak too highly of swamp-Root. A few bottles of this great remedy did more for me than a dozen physicians could."

(Signed) HUGO HUTT,
865 Stillman St., Philadelphia, Pa.

AND this is only one man's story — if the average reader of a newspaper could be persuaded to read the thousands of such testimonials which come to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the kidney troubles which now afflict humanity would be cut down fifty per cent.

For these testimonials all prove beyond a doubt that the greatest cure for kidney, liver and bladder troubles is

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

NATURE'S GREATEST AID TO THE SUFFERING.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root is so remarkably successful that a special arrangements has been made by which all of our readers who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail, also a book that tells all about it and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. In writing, be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Daily Herald. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

GROWTH IN FARMS

Northern Part of State to Show Great Development Soon.

Opening of Reservations and General Advertisement Will Do It.

The lumber manufacturers and the people who live in the towns or cities in the vicinity of the Northern Minnesota Indian reservations are looking with a great deal of interest upon the recent visit to the northern part of this state by the commissioner of the general land office. The belief has been expressed that the possibilities created in Northern Minnesota by the putting on the market of an immense amount of timber from the land reserved for the Indians, if handled judiciously, are greater than many people in this part of the state realize. It is claimed that the new timber area made available means the prolonging of the timber industry in this state and also that the great area of land occupied by the Indians should be offered to those who will make homes there and develop a part of the state where settlements are few and far between.

The prominent lumber journals of the Northwest have been unanimous in declaring that the passage of the Morris law has made possible a great development for Northern Minnesota in the coming few years. They claim that the ruthless destruction of the forests will not follow the opening of the reservations, that the law provides against it. It is pointed out that some very large tracts of timber are reserved entirely from sale. When the timber shall have been cut off the lands they are to be treated as agricultural lands and opened for homestead entry and in this lies the greatest hope of the interests of Northern Minnesota for it will provide still better inducement to the tide of emigration to the Northwest.

The southern part of this state has developed wonderfully along agricultural lines, while the northern part has depended on its resources of ore and timber. Sentiment in northern Minnesota during the last few years, however, has been growing steadily stronger in favor of greater effort for the development of the agricultural possibilities and the various commercial interests which have combined with agricultural and industrial interests to push forward this development augurs well for the movement. It is being predicted by those largely interested in Northern Minnesota lands that there will be more heard about them this year than ever before. The possibilities of the thousands of rich acres which are as capable of bringing forth crops year after year as the well tilled acreage in the southern part of the state, will be advertised world wide, if such a thing is possible.

The railroad interests of Northern Minnesota have in years past been active factors in bringing people into the state to develop the lands, and the plans of these companies for the coming year are said to contemplate a campaign on a scale even more enormous than in the past.

"The cry that the lumber manufacturers are exhausting the natural resources of the state is all bosh," said a local lumberman the other day.

There is no value in timber crops until they are harvested. True it takes a great many years to renew a timber crop while agricultural crops are renewed every year, but if a reasonable amount of timber is left standing for forestry purposes, along scientific lines and for protection at the sources of the streams, the country should be more uniformly productive and the results from the farms will be greater than from the forests."

STRIKE NOT BROKEN.

Freight Handlers Claim They Are Not Giving In.

Union freight handlers wish to deny street reports that the backbone of their strike is broken and that the strikers are gradually returning to work at last year's 30-cents-an-hour scale of wages. An officer of the organization says that not an individual in the membership of over 300 has shown an inclination to give in or return to work.

Since the Garfield avenue outbreak, in which many union men and strike sympathizers sought to over turn a car containing seventy non-union men and the subsequent arrests and indictments, the strike has almost dropped from public notice.

Within the past few days rumors have been current, apparently from a source of some authenticity, that the arrest of five or six prominent members of the union for participating in the Garfield avenue incident had completely shattered the strike and the members were applying for work on the docks at the old wage scale.

Secretary Chambers, of the union, regarding these reports, said:

"They are without foundation. Our strike is well organized and conducted in a quiet and orderly manned. We are ready to fight it out in this way if it takes the entire season. There has been a report that former freight handling contractors, Donahue & Gallagher, have been inciting our men to continue the strike. We wish to make as strong a denial of this as possible. Our union has had absolutely nothing to do with Donhue & Gallagher since the expiration of their last contract and they have in no way influenced us in the present strike."

The contracting firm of Knudsen & Eden is still working their non-union freight handlers on the Northern Pacific docks with the protection of special police and are boarding the men in the large boarding cars near No. 5 dock.

TO BE REBUILT.

Report That Scofield Mill Will Be Replaced.

A Marinette dispatch of yesterday states that ex-Governor Edward Scofield has had a conference with Edward Hines and will rebuild the mill that burned in West Superior about ten days ago. It is understood that satisfactory arrangements have been made whereby the Hines Lumber company will have logs sawed on contract at the new mill for some years to come. It is said that the machinery for the new mill will be shipped to West Superior from the plant owned by the Menominee River Lumber company at Marinette, which has completed its cut and is about to be dismantled.

CROPS MAKE GOOD PROGRESS

Conditions During Last Week Generally Favorable In Northwest.

Reports of the progress of crops during last week are generally favorable. The North Dakota report is as follows:

The past week has been dry, as a general thing, with considerable higher temperatures, and very favrable for work of all kinds, and also growth of vegetation.

Wheat seeding is finished; most of the oats and barley is sown, and a large portion of the flax seeded, and considerable of the corn planted.

Early sown grain is up and doing very well; that sown lately requires rain in most sections before it will germinate, the ground being too dry on the surface, and in the central and western parts of the state there is little or no moisture in the ground. Scattered showers of rain at widely separate places have been of great benefit to vegetation, but in many places there has been no rain to speak of this spring and unless it comes soon serious damage will result.

Grass on the meadows and prairies has been very backward in starting, but has made a remarkable growth during the past week, and in most sections pastures are now good.

The Minnesota report says:

The rain falling in southern and eastern parts of the state at the close of last week continued into the 12th, and at a few points in the extreme southeast into the 13th; there were light scattered showers again on the 17th, which visited most parts of the state. The temperatures in the early part of the week were rather low for rapid growth, but on the 15th and after that date they were considerably higher, with a decided improvement in the growth of pastures, grass intended for hay, gardens, the small grains and the foliage of trees. In the western part of the state north of Big Stone, Stevens, Pope and Stearns counties there was little or no rain till the 17th allowing of almost continuous work in seeding flax and barley and preparing for these crops. Spring wheat, oats and early barley are growing nicely, with good stands, which are becoming thicker by stooling, and the early flax is coming up. A good rain would be beneficial. In central portions the rains of the 11th were moderately heavy, with much benefit to the seeded grains and grass, though delaying corn and potato planting and flax seeding for a day or two. In the Minnesota valley and thence southward the rains were heavier in the early part of the week and they continued longer, causing the filling of low places with water, and the thorough soaking of the heavy soils, with the consequent serious delay in corn and potato planting and the seeding of barley and flax. Apples, plums and strawberries are full of bloom, and the promise of fruit is good.

GETTING BEYOND CONTROL.

Salonica, European Turkey, Saturday, May 16.—The long list of deliberate murders in Vilayet of Monastir with a preponderance of Bulgarian victims, indicates, it is asserted, that the Turks are getting beyond control. Out of twenty-one officially admitted murders, fifteen Bulgarians were among the victims. In some cases the bodies were mutilated. One man murdered by the Turks had his eyes gouged out, his face burned and his tongue cut out.

PRESIDENT HAS NO RIGHT

To Include In Forest Reserves Lands Subject to Entry.

Helena, Mont., May 20.—In a decision handed down by Judge Knowles in United States court, it is held that the president has no right to include in the forest reserves lands that are subject to entry. By the terms of this decision more than 100 settlers are favorably affected and fifteen townships in the Lake Como forest reserve will again be opened.

Settlement of the case was before the court in a suit by the government to recover $28, the value of the twenty logs cut upon land homesteaded by Matt Blendauer for the purpose of building a cabin, together with $100 damages.

Judge Knowles holds that the lands were not public lands when set aside by the president as part of the forest reserve and that therefore they do not belong to the reserve. He declares that the defendant had the right to homestead the land. In closing his opinion the judge says:

"The president has and had no power to declare any lands a part of a forest reserve, except public lands, and the term public lands as used in the legislation of congress, describes such lands as are subject to sale or other disposition under the general laws."

The government bought the lands from the Indians in 1855 for $100,000, but because they were held in reserve until 1871, Judge Knowles holds that they did not become part of the general mass of public lands.

District Attorney Rasch said he believed the decision would be appealed. "Owing to its importance," he said, "I apprehend that an appeal will be taken."

The whole question involved was whether the lands were public lands and could be reserved by the president. There will hardly be a rush to these lands until some higher courts have settled the question.

CUMMINS GUILTY.

He Killed His Servant Girl In 1899.

Wellington, Kas., May 20.—The jury in the case of Jim Cummins, the farmer, charged with killing his servant girl, Anna Dishman, in August, 1899, rendered a verdict finding him guilty of manslaughter in the third degree. Cummins, in a fit of anger, struck the girl, who was 13 years old, with a broom handle and blood poisoning resulted. Cummins buried the body in a cornfield on his farm, but afterwards dug it up and burned it on a brush pile. His arrest was caused by his wife, who was the principal witness against him.

PRAISES IT WARMLY

W. L. Smith Says Detention Hospital Is an Excellent Place.

The General Impression as to It Is Entirely Erroneous.

W. L. Smith, dealer in Wheeler & White Sewing machines has recently been realeased from the detention hospital, after about 15 days confinement for small pox, and he comes out warm in his praises of the treatment he received. He says:

"Whatever may have been the justification of the criticisms of the pest house in the past, I could find no cause for the impression that prevails against it in the minds of nearly everyone at the present time. Many claim that no one but lumberjacks go there, and that it is not a fit place for anyone to go to. These statements are all false. During the fifteen days I was there I found nothing in the treatment, food or accommodations of which I could complain. Everything is clean and wholesome. The food, while it is perhaps not what many have been accustomed to at their own homes, is well cooked, pure and wholesome and served in first class style. The patients are well cared for and during the time I was there I heard no complaint from any of them of the treatment they were receiving, further than grumblings at the confinement.

"The man who is in charge of the house in an excellent man for the place. He knows what is required of him and does it.

"It seems to me that if more people understood the real condition of affairs at the pest house and feared confinement there less, there would be fewer cases of smallpox in the city. In a number of cases where there is smallpox in a household it has kept quite through the fear that is felt of confinement in the pest house. In one case that came to my notice a man and his wife were both stricken with the disease. The man went to the pest house but tried to keep the case of his wife quiet, fearing to expose her to the conditions which he had heard existed at the pest house. After he had been in the house one day and had seen the true condition of affairs he sent tou his wife believing she could secure better treatment and stand a better chance of recover there than at home."

MYSTERIOUS MURDER CASE

Husband Returns Home to Find Bride Beaten to Death.

Crawfordsville, Ind., May 20.—Coroner King and the county officials are making a strong effort to clear up the mystery of the murder of Mrs. Henry M. Seward. Thus far they have been unable to get a trace of the assassin or to learn the motive for the strange crime.

Mrs. Seward was the bride of a year and lived with her husband at Lena. She was beaten to death with a club Saturday afternoon, the murderer having deliberately planned her death and stolen upon her to strike the fatal blows. Before his work was done the assassin had pounded her head into a shapeless mass and bruised her body all over.

Discovery of the crime was made by the husband when he returned at 6 p. m. from a farm two miles distant, where he had been working during the day. He says that when he got home he went into the kitchen and saw that his wife had finished her baking. He stepped into the sitting room and found his wife lying face downward in a pool of blood. He ran to the nearest neighborhood and gave the alarm and Coroner King came to the house about 9 o'clock. There were no signs of a struggle about the room.

There was no evidence of any attempt at robbery, though the husband told Coroner King that a ring had been taken from his wife's finger and his razor and shaving brush were gone. Everything, however, the coroner said, went to show that the attack had been so sudden that the woman could not make resistance.

As soon as the news of the murder spread there was great excitement and people came from every direction. The officers at all points were notified by telephone and the Greencastle police arrested five tramps who were stealing their way East. Sheriff Cooper, who is making an active investigation, says he is satisfied that the tramps had nothing to do with the crime, though three of them were seen in the vicinity of Lena that day.

OIL PRICES LOWER.

Reduction Made By the Standard Oil Company.

New York, May 20.—The Standard Oil company has cut the price of Pennsylvania crude oil 3 cents a barrel, bringing it to $1.50 and the price of Lima oil 2 cents a barrel to $1.14.

The reduction came as a surprise to the trade as the situation is said to really warrant an advance instead of a decline, production having been steadily decreasing in spite of all the new field work that has been done.

It was suggested that the reason for the cuts in price was an effort of the Standard Oil company to force owners of oil who are inclined to hold for higher prices to market their holdings.

WOODSMAN KILLED.

Struck By Falling Tree and Badly Crushed.

Ashland, Wis., May 20.—Frank Kozysiowicz, a woodsman in the employ of the Edward Hines Lumber company at Washburn, was brought to St. Joseph's hospital with injuries which resulted in his death at noon yesterday.

He was chopping down trees when one of them fell and struck him. His skull was fractured, his chest was crushed and several ribs were broken.

CONSTITUTION INJURED.

Props Give Way While Being Hauled Out.

New York, May 20.—The ill luck which has followed the Constitution ever since her launching, two years ago, is still with her, for an accident which happened yesterday, when she was being hauled out at Jacob's yards at City island, will keep her out of the first two or three Glen Cove races.

She arrived from New London Monday, and during the process of hauling her out of the water to be refurnished the cradle props gave way. The yacht heeled over with such force that some of the bilge blocks went almost through her thin Tobin bronze underbody. Her keel sank into the mud, and after a line was passed to the Satellite, it was all her tender could do to get her off.

AMERICANS PLANNING

To Extend Export Trade, Says British Consul at Chicago.

Chicago, May 20.—Capt. Wyndham, British consul at Chicago, in his annual report, just issued, says:

"Many American houses are planning to extend their export trade. With their increased manufacturing capacity we may look for them to furnish keen competition in the United Kingdom and its colonies, as well as in foreign countries."

Among the hints contained in the report is the advice to the English merchant that the careful study of the business and manufacturing methods of the United States and the adoption of those which may be suitable to the country where trade is sought is of great importance and should be encouraged.

Statistics are presented to show that British trade in America is at a standstill, while the imports from other European countries have increased.

The report also refers to the enormous amount spent by merchants for newspaper advertising, and praises the results obtained, as showing that some concerns have doubled their business by this way.

HE MURDERED HIS MISTRESS

Choked Her During Quarrel and Buried Dismembered Body.

Paris, May 20.—The latest addition to the chapter of French horrors follows the arrest here of a musician named Trubert for the murder of a woman at Biskra, Algeria.

Trubert was formerly violinist in the orchestra of the Chatelet theater, Paris, but he lately went to Algeria to conduct the orchestra at the Casino at Biskra, leaving behind him a young woman named Gouvanet. She, however, followed him to Biskra, greatly to his annoyance, and on her refusing to return to Paris, he strangled her in a fit of passion. Then he cut up the body and hid the pieces in his room, but finding that he could not keep them there long he packed up all the pieces separately, and buried them one by one in the country around Biskra. In his confession, Trubert, describing his crime with the most revolting candor, says:

"We eventually had a terrible quarrel. I seized her by the throat with the intention of making her retract certain words. But I gripped her too hard, and suddenly noticed that she was dead.

"That night I conducted my orchestra as usual, leaving the corpse lying on my bed. I told everybody that she had left for Constantinople, and would not let any of my friends come and see me.

"When it became necessary to get rid of the corpse I took my razor and cut off her head, shutting it up in a hat box wrapped up in newspapers. Then I cut off the legs and wrapped them in one of her dresses. The rest of the body I wrapped in another dress. These remains I buried in the sand at the foot of the northwest fort, digging a hole 7 or 8 inches deep with my hands."

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free. Regular sizes 50c. $1.00.

A LONG TIME IN JAIL

James McCabe Gets $1200 Fine and 450 Days In Jail.

Work of United States Court Is Nearing the End.

The work of the United States district court is about completed, and the court will probably be adjourned this afternoon or tomorrow. The last case in this term of the court, that of the United States against Charles Shellafee, charged with selling liquo 'o Indians, is now being heard.

It did not take the jury long to come to a decision in the case of the government against James McCabe, of Walker, against whom four indictments for selling liquor to Indians were returned. The four indictments charged him with six counts and he was found guilty on each count. Judge Lochren sentenced him to a fine of $200 and seventy-five days in jail on each count, making a total of $1200 and 450 days in jail.

Kay-Bay-Gah-Bow and Harry Smith each pleaded guilty to a single sale of whisky to Indians. The former was given a sentence of sixty days in jail, and Smith received the same sentence with a fine of $200.

The government authorities have been fortunate with their liquor cases at this term of court, having won every case that has come to trial, in addition to those who pleaded guilty.

In the case of John Williams, of Brainerd, accused of forgery, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty after deliberating for over twenty-four hours. He signed a postal order which was intended for another John Williams in the same town and cashed the order. His defense was that he thought the order was meant for a wedding present, having been but recently married.

MILL BURNED AT DOLLAR BAY

A Heavy Loss to the Land and Improvement Company.

Houghton, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sawmill of the Dollar Bay Land and Improvement company, at Dollar Bay, near Houghton, was destroyed by fire last night, entailing a loss of $300,000, partly covered by insurance. The fire originated in the mill in some unknown manner, and before it was discovered had gained such great headway that it could not be checked. The efforts of the firemen were confined to saving the lumber yard, in which 1,500,000 feet of timber were banked. After several hours' work the yard was saved, the firefighters being helped g reatly by a heavy downfall of rain which set in shortly after the fire started. The mill had been idle all winter and was being repaired for the season's cut. Quite a number of men will be thrown out of employment unless the mill is rebuilt, and this has not been determined.

THRILLING RIDE

Mrs. Victor Kohn Is Seriously Hurt In a Runaway.

She Jumped From the Carriage After a Wild Ride.

Mrs. Victor Kohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Freimuth, was seriously injured in a runaway at noon today.

She was being driven west on Superior street when the horses started to run and thousands of anxious spectators watched the swaying vehicle for blocks, expecting to see it to be dashed to pieces at almost every jump of the frightened horses.

The driver held on to the team as best he could, but was unable to check their speed. Mrs. Kohn, in the rear seat, remained in the carriage till the horses struck the rough, rotten paving on Piedmont avenue, and an upset seemed inevitable.

At Tenth avenue west Mrs. Kohn was seen to rise from the seat, balance herself for a moment and then jump. Those that saw the leap instinctively closed their eyes, expecting to see her thrown on the street car tracks and probably killed.

She missed the track by less than a foot, however, and rolled off into the soft mud of the roadway. Spectators then ran to her and carried her into a house at 823 Piedmont avenue. She had a severe cut in the head and was badly bruised.

Police Sergt. Robert Gillon, who had followed the team from Seventh avenue west in a pop wagon in an effort to catch up with the runaways, summoned Dr. Robert Graham and Dr. W. R. Bagley. They dressed the wounds and within an hour of the accident Mrs. Kohn was able to be moved to the home of her father at 1306 East Second street. At a late hour this afternoon the true state of her injuries could not be determined. She complained of intense pains in the head and there was much apprehension on the part of the family and attending physicians for fear she had sustained internal injuries that might prove serious.

There was a great deal of excitement among the crowds on the street during the noon hour, it being reported that the occupant of the runaway carriage had been killed outright.

The horses were stopped at Fourteenth avenue west, just about a mile from the starting point. Many compliments were paid the driver for the manner in which he held on to the runaways from start to finish. The horses and carriage were not injured.

Dance at Lester tomorrow.

POSTPONED

The entertainment to be given under the auspices of Young Ladies' Sodality at St. Clement's hall is postponed until Friday, May 22. All tickets sold will be good for that date.

FORTY NEW SHRINERS

Duluthians Go to St. Paul For the Osman Temple Meeting.

Many Masons in a special observation car left for St. Paul over the Northern Pacific road this afternoon to attend the shrine meeting of Osman Temple tonight.

When they return there will be about forty new shriners in Duluth, including:

Union Bethel Meeting.

This evening at 7:45 o'clock a union meeting will be held at the Second Presbyterian church in the interest of the Bethel work. A program consisting of music and short addresses on the work in the several departments has been arranged, and it is expected that a large number of people will attend, to learn more of what the Bethel is doing in this city. Rev. W. E. Spoonts, who recently came to the Bethel to act as superintendent of the religious work, will speak.

IOWA G. A. R.

Annual Reunion Being Held at Cedar Rapids.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May 20.—At the first formal session of the Iowa G. A. R. today the report of Commander Lintz was read. It shows 385 posts, with 12,579 members, a net decrease of one post and seventy-five members for the year. Fifteen hundred veterans, headed by Governor Cummins, participated in the parade this afternoon. Various auxiliary reunions were held after the parade. Gen. Black of Chicago, Governor Cummins, Congressman Lacey and Gen. Giving will address the camp fire tonight.

NORMAL SCHOOL

Plans For Its First Commencement Are Under Way.

Interest Keen, Though Exercises Must Need Be Simple.

Plans for the first commencement of the normal school are going rapidly forward and, although the exercises must necessarily be simple, the interest of the seven graduates and the remainder of the school is keen in the first commencement of the Duluth Normal.

The graduates of the school will have no difficulty in obtaining desirable positions as fifty applications have already been received by President Bohannon for teachers.

President Bohannon has recently returned from a short trip in the interest of the school, studying the schools of the county, and says indications point to a large attendance at the normal school from districts not heretofore represented.

The fixtures of the laboratory are being made and in a short time the rooms will be fitted up with a complete and very fine equipment. The library is also receiving attention and before school opens in the fall it will have 2000 volumes or more.

During the year the pupils have listened to many interesting talks and next Monday morning Capt. Henrich, of the hydrographic office, will speak to them.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN

Ties Piled In Front of the Colonial Express.

Attleboro, Mass., May 20.—An attempt was made today to wreck the Colonial express, from Washington for Boston, on the New York, New Haven & Hartford, near Mansfield station. The man said to be responsible for the deed is under arrest. As he was placing the last one of a pile of ties on the track he was discovered by Fred Band, of Mansfield, who removed the obstruction just as the express dashed by. Rand then started in pursuit of the stranger and, after a brief encounter, succeeded in making him prisoner and turned him over to the police. The man gave his name as Michael E. Vincho, 30 years old. He was later identified as having recently made an attempt on a train at Quinebaug by placing a number of large stones on the track.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS

Enter Upon Second Day's Work of Convention.

New Orleans, May 20.—The second day's work at the Confederate reunion was somewhat belated this morning and at the hour set for the commencement of the proceedings but few of the delegates and of the reunion officials were present. The discussion regarding the city for the next reunion took tangible form today, Louisville, Chattanooga, Savannah and St. Louis are all mentioned. It was announced by Adjutant Gen. Mickle, that Gen. Gordon's health was in a large measure restored and that he would in all probability preside over the remaining sessions of the reunion.

DESPERATE ATTEMPTS

Of Curtis Jett to Get Back to Jackson.

Lexington, Ky., May 20.—Another evidence of the desperate determination of Curtis Jett to get back to Jackson was shown in the attempt to get him out of Jailor Boone's hands at Winchester today by serving another warrant on him. Attorney Stevenson presented to Sheriff McCord a warrant sworn out at Jackson by Squire Edwards, charging "murder in Breathitt county."

McCord presented it to Boone, but he refused to surrender Jett. Stevenson then had Boone brought into court to show cause why he would not give him up. The court gave Boone until June 4 to answer.

SURPRISED HIM.

Doctor's Test of Food.

A doctor in Kansas experimented with his boy in a test of food and gives the particulars. He says: "I naturally watch the effect of different foods on patients.

My own little son, a lad of four, had been ill with lung fever and during his convalescence did not seem to care for any kind of food.

I knew something of Grape-Nuts and its rather fascinating flavor, and particularly of its nourishing and nerve building powers, so I started the boy on Grape-Nuts and found from the first dish that he liked it.

"His mother gave it to him steadily and he began to improve at once. In less than a month he had gained about eight pounds and soon became so well and strong we had no further anxiety about him.

"An old patient of mine, 73 years old, came down with serious stomach trouble and before I was called he got so weak he could eat almost nothing, and was in a serious condition. He had, himself, tried almost every kind of food for the sick without avail.

"I immediately put him on Grape-Nuts with good, rich milk and just a little pinch of sugar. He exclaimed when I came next day, 'Why, doctor, I never ate anything so good or that made me feel so much stronger.' I am pleased to say that Grape-Nuts cured him, but he had to stick to it for two or three weeks, then he began to branch out a little with rice or an egg or two. He got entirely well in spite of his almost hopeless condition. He gained 22 pounds in two months, which at his age is remarkable.

"I could quote a list of cases where Grape-Nuts has worked wonders." This doctor's name will be given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich., on application.

A FORTUNE SPENT

In Search For Son, Who Ran Away When a Lad.

Finally Found In Prison Under Sentence of Death.

Omaha, Neb., May 20.—After spending ten years and sacrificing a fortune in a search for his son William, who was led astray in his boyhood by the glitter and tinsel of a circus, Gustav Rhea, living near Mount Vernon, Ind., last week located his long-lost boy in the Nebraska penitentiary, condemned to death for murder.

High political influence, said to include that of several United States senators and the governor of a state, has been brought to bear to have young Rhea's sentence commuted to life imprisonment, but so bitter and unrelenting is the feeling against the murderer in the little town where he committed his crime that slight hopes are entertained of saving his life.

The crime which Rhea is to expiate with his life has been exploited as one of the most uncalled for in the history of the state, and only the most strenuous efforts on the part of the officers who had him and his two accomplices in charge saved him from the fury of a mob.

In January, 1901, Rhea and two tramps entered the saloon of Zahn, at Snyder, Neb., and ordered the keeper of the place to hold up his hands. Because he did not comply with the demand as quickly as Rhea thought he should, the youth took deliberate aim with his revolver and fired, killing the inoffending German instantly. Rhea stood motionless for a moment after the fatal shot had been fired, when, seeming to awake to a realization of the awful crime he had penetrated, he left the saloon, and, brandishing his revolver, set out at the top of his speed in an attempt to make his escape. News of the killing spread quickly through the little town. A posse was speedily organized, and, setting out in pursuit of the murderer, overtook him and brought him back to town. Meantime a mob had formed and threats of lynching were freely made, but the officers contrived to get Rhea and his two accomplices behind the bars before the mob could get at them.

The story of Rhea's life is singularly pitiful. It is the story of the life of a prodigal son—a prodigal, however, so young when he left the shelter of his father's home and went forth alone in the world that he was easily influenced by the dissolute characters among whom he fell, and with a spirit too proud to return to the home which he felt he had disgraced.

Rhea's father, who came many years ago to this country a German exile, wears the bronze badge of a veteran of the civil war and enjoys the respect and esteem of the community in which he has long lived and in which he was at one time a wealthy citizen. The older Rhea lost his first wife soon after he came to this country, and married again. The stepmother, a good woman, found in the boy William a restless, impulsive, headstrong nature, hard to govern. The boy frequently made open threats to run away from his home, but little attention was paid to the threats by his father. One day a circus came to town, and that day proved to be the turning point in the boy's life and the beginning of a sorrow which has bowed the head of his father and brought him, once well-to-do, to the verge of penury. William, then less than 12 years of age, was completely carried away by the gorgeousness of the show. That night, while his father slept, he packed up his belongings and stole out of the house.

All through the years the old father back in Indiana was diligently searching for the lost boy. Communication was established with the police of nearly every town and city of any importance in the country, and the lad's photograph was scattered broadcast. A systematic search for him was prosecuted all over the Middle and Western states, but to no purpose. By and by private detectives were engaged by the sorrow-stricken father, and year after year the hopeless hunt went on, with the discovery of nothing save now and then a possible clew which came to naught. Gradually his fortune dwindled away and the end was well-nigh in sight when one day the father received a letter in a strange hand and bearing the postmark of an unfamiliar town. It was from the boy's lawyer and contained the news of his awful fate. Like a pestilential stroke it fell upon the grief-stricken and almost broken-hearted father and well-nigh overwhelmed him with its horror. The letter contained the first word he had received of his son since his disappearance ten long years ago.

Young Rhea had resolutely refused to divulge the identity of his family for months after his arrest, desiring to shield his father from the disgrace which he felt would attach to his name should the story of his son's shame become known. But one day he told his lawyer in confidence the whole history of his life, and the latter at once sat down and wrote the father.

A well-to-do uncle of Rhea, living in Indiana, has supplied funds with which to carry on the fight for the boy's life.

STORY DISCREDITED.

Chief Sullivan Does Not Believe Woodson Yarn.

Sacramento, Cal., May 20.—Chief of Police Sullivan discredits the story told by Citizen Frank M. Woodson, who arrested Charles Randleman last night for uttering language which he considered dangerous in view of the fact that President Roosevelt was in the city.

"I do not place any reliance in the report," said Chief Sullivan. "I do not think it worth considering."

Randleman was locked up on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He has the appearance of being an ordinary workingman and was somewhat under the influence of liquor. He denied making the remark ascribed to him by Woodson. He said he got the pistol because he had been serving as a watchman at a mine in Siskkiyou county.

EQUINE EXHIBITION

At Toronto In the Open Air July 3.

Toronto, Ont., May 20.—The city of Toronto is making an interesting departure in horse shows and will hold a novel form of equine exhibitions in the open air on the afternoon of July 3, in connection with the old home gathering which the board of trade of this city has arranged. Instead of extending a show over one week in Madison Square it will all be done in one hour of a sunny summer afternoon. The beautiful Queen's park and University oval in Toronto furnish roadway around adjoining circles of over two miles and on these will be ranged upwards of 500 horses and carriages. An army of judges will make the awards simultaneously and the judging will not occupy above an hour. Then the whole exhibition will move around the oval and pass in review before the governor general of Canada, Lord Minto. It is expected that over 250,000 people will witness this unique horse show. It is designed to show to the thousands of home-coming Canadians how important a center of the horse breeding industry Toronto has become.

KNOWS IT ALL

Tulloch Says All Porto Rican Business Passed Through Him.

Ex-Cashier Makes Tart Reply to Postmaster General Payne.

Washington, May 20.—Ex-Cashier Tulloch was in Washington yesterday and in an interview said: "I notice Mr. Payne observes that I could know nothing more about the postal service in Porto Rico than about the postal service in Chicago. Perhaps Mr. Payne is not aware that as cashier of the Washington city postoffice, no postmaster there could even secure a box of matches that I did not pay for. Money for the salaries of postmasters, clerks, carriers, route men and other employes for every office in the islands passed through my hands and the postmaster of Washington city was responsible on his bond for the proper disbursement of it.

"Not only was I the cashier for every postoffice in Porto Rico, but I was also auditor of the accounts, which I had to watch carefully lest some employes might double up on them. I was required to look out that there were no double payments either for service or materials, that not more than one building in any town or city was rented for a postoffice and scores of other things. Often these vouchers were not in satisfactory shape and had to be returned not once but twice, and thrice and corrected.

"I acted likewise in a third capacity in keeping accounts of the supplies sent to every office in Porto Rico. A postmaster, for instance, whose bond was $2500, might be furnished $2500 worth of stamps and other postal materials on going to the islands. This sum of money was turned over and over again. He would send me cash which he had realized on these materials, vouchers for services or expenses, as the case might be, and I would send him further supplies, taking care, however, to see the amount entrusted to him did not exceed his bond.

"If I did not know the financial affairs of the office at Chicago," said Mr. Tulloch, "I was not fit to be cashier, that's all there is to it."

Touching on the salaries of individuals whom he refused to pass, Mr. Tulloch said:

"I know of some instances where these men came in with expense vouchers which the accounting officers of the treasury would not pass, and an ingenious scheme was devised to help them out. By direction of First Assistant Postmaster General Heath the names of these employes would be ordered kept on the payrolls for a time long enough to make sufficient money in salary to equal the tabooed accounts. I know in one case a favorite had come back to Washington and his name had been dropped from the rolls. He had been drawing pay at the rate of $1200 a year, but it was found that some of his expenses would not pass the auditing offices. Forthwith an order came to me to put him on the rolls at $1400. He performed no additional work, but was paid a salary until the deficiency was made up. In other words the government was made to pay itself."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

William Hoppe, superintendent of bridges for the Iowa division of the Burlington railroad was run over and killed by an east-bound Rock Island passenger train Tuesday, as he stepped from his own train. Hoppe was on a trip of inspection with a party of Burlington officials. He had been with the road for thirty years.

Fire has devastated the mining town of Little Bay, N. F., where a large copper mine is being worked. Three churches, the mining company's stores, the government buildings and forty dwellings were destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $800. Two hundred and fifty persons are homeless. Fire also has destroyed the lumbering section of Appleton. The mills, much sawn timber and other properties were consumed.

A mob entered Madison, Fla., Monday night, secured the keys from the night jailer, took out Washington Anderson, a negro, and lynched him. He was accused of murdering his cousin, John Whitlow.

Monuma Chicking, four miles south of here, at one time one of the most famous placer camps in Montana, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday. The camp had been deserted for a long time and its loss was discovered only Tuesday. It is thought the fire was the work of tramps who were in the habit of stopping at the deserted cabins and making themselves at home.

The coroner's jury investigating the death of Squire Oscar Harewell, a prominent merchant of Good Springs, Tenn., who was assassinated Monday night, returned a verdict of murder in the first degree against Henry Foster. The accused married a daughter of Harewell against the latter's wishes and ill-feeling had existed between them. Foster was lodged in jail.

Francis T. Hill, of Six Mile creek, Mich., was arrested Tuesday night for the murder of Frederick Marker, of New Hampton. Thill is 51 years old and his aged victim 75. It is said several young men entered the old man's shack during the afternoon and during a quarrel, Thill struck Marker on the head while the latter was defending himself from attack. Marker died Tuesday.

As the result of an attack made on J. G. Webster, an attorney, Frank Price is dead with a bullet wound through his heart, and J. M. Watkins, a saloon-keeper, has a serious bullet wound in his head. The fight occurred in the attorney's office at Sonora, Mex., Tuesday night, and grew out of the fact that Webster recently secured a divorce for Watkins' wife.

Justice of the Peace H. S. Biggs and Edward Belt were killed Tuesday night in a shooting affray at the postoffice at Sanderson, Texas. Deputy Sheriff R. McMahon was shot in the arm and seriously wounded. The cause of the trouble is not known.

North-bound Rock Island passenger train No. 36, due in Caldwell, Kas., at noon, was struck by a wild engine front the Caldwell yards a mile south of that station Tuesday. Wilbur Burkett, of Caldwell, was killed and several others were badly injured, among them Postal Clerk Myers. The engineer and firemen escaped serious injury by jumping. None of the coaches left the track.

A courier from Lincoln Gulch says: There is no longer any doubt that Alexander Murray, Henry Miller and Michael Purcell, miners, caught by the cave-in at the Eglevani Saturday night were killed. A rescuing party sank a shaft 32 feet deep in thirty-six hours and found the ground caved to the face of the drift where the men had been working.

Young Corbett knocked out Jack Keefe, of East St. Louis, in the third round Tuesday night.

SEEKS ANOTHER VINDICATION

Governor Davis of Arkansas Is Seeking a Third Term.

Little Rock, Ark., May 20.—Governor Davis, in an address to the 'Democracy of Arkansas," has announced his candidacy for a third term. He says:

"Since the adjournment of the legislature I am daily in receipt of many communications from my friends throughout the state, making inquiry as to my future political course, and that the matter may be definitely settled and that they may be put upon guard, I make this pubic statement:

"When I was renominated for governor last June I had no thought or intention of ever asking the people of this state again for the office of governor. My only thought and ambition was to serve them faithfully and well. Certain great questions had arisen during that campaign upon which the Democracy of Arkansas spoke in convention assembled, and which I hoped would be forever settled by the recent legislature, whose servants they were. I looked forward with a great deal of pleasure and with a great deal of hope that the wishes and will of the people would be carried out by that body, but to my utter amazement and surprise, the will of the people was stifled. They asked for bread and were given a stone; they asked for relief and were scoffed at, and the vials of wrath of that body were turned loose upon me in the most unjust and merciless warfare that has ever been waged against a public officer in this or any other state. Charges involving my honor, the good name of my mother and father, my family, were preferred against me, without the slightest pretext, and hurled broadcast throughout the press of this nation. My impeachment was sought for high crimes and misdemeanors in office; a price was placed upon my official head, and a deep-laid, well-considered, far-reaching scheme was entered into to ruin me and drag my family down to infamy and shame. Yet, when the legislature came to the crucial test, they did not have the manhood or the courage to carry out their iniquitous schemes, but adopted a report referring the whole matter to the people.

"Had they acquitted me before that body, I should not have asked you for re-election to the office of governor, but, since they have selected the people of this state as a jury to try and determine this issue, most willingly do I leave it to you and accept the challenge, and to you I shall come when the proper time shall arrive with the facts, vile charges that have been hurled against me. If I can but call the old guard together again and they will stand like Spartans, as they have always done, I shall not fear the result. Twice you have borne me kindly and gently in your arms over this crowd of calumniators.

"To shrink from the blade now would be cowardly and unmanly; to fawn before my traducers would be unjust to myself and friends. I would want my children to forget my memory and my body buried in the rough sands of the sea, to be ever forgotten, should I be guilty of such cowardice.

"Therefore, my friends, I say to you that I am a candidate for governor, and I solicit your most earnest and zealous support and ask that you stand guard from now until the primary shall end. If we can whip this political crowd once more, I think a victory will have been achieved for the people of this state. I am ready to make the fight. Will you stand by me? Very respectfully,

"JEFF. DAVIS."

WOULD FIGHT CROWN PRINCE

"Good Little Boy" Was Game and Issued Challenge.

Rome, May 20.—The touchiness of Prussian officers on the point of honor nearly caused a duel between the crown prince and his brother, Eitel Fritz, while here. Though Eitel Fritz is a strapping big fellow of 19, Pope Leo called him, in his fatherly way, his "good little boy." Hence, when the royal party left, Crown Prince Frederick William said to his brother's adjutant: "Take care to look well after our good little boy. He may want a sugar tit as soon as he comes home." Eitel Fritz overheard the remark, and was nearly beside himself with rage, but managed to suppress his feelings until the German embassy was reached. There he stalked to his room, summoned his aid de camp and commanded him to bear a challenge to mortal combat to Frederick William. The aid protested, but, being threatened with court-martial for disobedience, complied.

The crown prince was inclined to treat the challenge as a good joke, went over to his brother's room and asked in his mocking way: "What ails my good little boy?"

"This," replied Eitel in the most formal style, "that unless your imperial highness accepts my challenge at once, I will force you to fight out of respect for your uniform."

"And how would you go about it?'

"By boxing your d——d ears."

Frederick William was then "obliged" to accept the duel and a meeting was arranged for next evening in Monza park, the weapons to be Turkish sabers. However, King Victor heard of the project, and by persuasion and threats succeeded in bringing about a reconciliation, on condition that the crown prince make formal apology in presence of his brother's military household. Gen. Field Marshal Count Waldersee also attended and solemnly declared that Eitel Fritz's honor was as good as before Frederick William repeated the pope's playful remark. It was agreed that the matter should be held a profound secret, but it leaked out somehow after the kaiser and his sons had departed.

GROVER IN FAVOR

Speech on Negro Problem Gratifying to Southern People.

Colored Man Needs Manual Training For the Trades.

Chicago, May 20.—William E. Curtis, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

President Cleveland's recent speech in New York in behalf of the Booker T. Washington institute at Tuskegee, and his more recent address at St. Louis, have been published in every newspaper in the South, and have made a decided impression upon the people of that section with whom he was not popular. During both of his terms in the presidency he alienated the politicians of the South for rejecting their advice and suggestions, and had few friends in that section when he went out of office. His speech on the negro question was especially gratifying, and has received favorable comment in every part of the South. The negro problem is working itself out in a practical way, and such discussions as his address has aroused, and the agitation created by President Roosevelt's appointment of a negro to be collector of customs at Charleston, S. C., have been effective in bringing out the views of people whose knowledge, experience and interest give them a right to be heard.

Some of the Southern newspapers, like many people of the South, are very radical in their views and violent in their expressions. Some of them, if you can believe what they say, would like to see the negro exterminated from the face of the earth; but the majority of the newspapers and the great mass of thinking men look upon the problem from an economic standpoint and regard the colored population of the South as not only important, but necessary to the welfare and prosperity of that section.

When recently in the South I asked several people the same question:

"Why haven't the Southern states progressed as rapidly as the Northern states?" and I got the same answer every time. Every one who has given the subject thought agrees that the backwardness of that section is due to the lack of competent labor; slavery first and then worse than slavery afterward. As long as the Negro was a hewer of wood and a drawer of water, no white man with self-respect would perform the same labor.

A white man could not follow the plow or swing a scythe or an ax because those were the duties of slaves and afterward of freedmen, and his sense of dignity and pride would not permit him to place himself upon the level of the accursed race. Therefore the South was entirely dependnt for labor upon its Negro population, which every thinking man now agrees was demoralizing before emancipation and even more so after. Therefore, the problem of the South is industrial, and the Negro is the main factor in it.

The manufacturing is all done by the whites. Negroes cannot or will not work within walls, and as a rule cannot be trusted with machinery. Occasionally you find a good Negro engineer and machinist, but they are very few, and, although they have been tried as factory operatives again and again in different parts of the South, they have invariably failed, and it is now asserted that there is not one Negro operative in any of the textile mills in the Southern states. Hence, the white people can engage in factory employment without impairing their dignity or sacrificing their pride, and all the mills are operated with white labor.

The Negroes make good carpenters, masons and farmers, and show considerable skill in gardening. They are especially proficient in all out-of-door work and show aptitude in training for such occupations. It is the opinion of the thinking Negroes, as well as every white man I have met who is interested in their welfare, that the solution of the problem lies in industrial schools, where they can receive manual training for the trades.

MANY CATTLE PERISH.

The Heaviest Loss Ever Known In Montana.

Great Falls, Mont., May 20.—The heaviest cattle and sheep loss in the history of Montana, the damage of which will foot as high as $500,000, has been caused by the terrible snow storm which has been raging for the past three days. In some sections fully 90 per cent of the sheep on the ranges have perished. Three herders at least have wandered away in the blinding storm and been frozen to death.

An aged herder employed by H. H. Wilson at Portage was lost Sunday. Two more in the Shelby Junction country, employed by the Floweree Cattle company, are missing, and there is no hope that they can be found alive. Herders have abandoned their flocks on every hand and fled for safety to the settlements and ranches. Nothing like the fury of this storm has ever before been witnessed in Northern Montana.

Of the consignment of 600 cattle bound for Havre, all but five were found frozen stiff. Losses are reported on every hand, and this district will feel the effects of the losses for years.

DELEGATES CASE REMANDED.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 19.—The supreme court today reversed the decision of the St. Louis circuit court in the cases of former Delegates Falkner and Lehmann, convicted of perjury, and remanded the cases. Justice Gantt wrote the opinion.

LOCOMOTIVES AND BRIDGES

Of American Make Give Great Satisfaction In Uganda.

London, May 20.—Sir George Whitehouse, manager and chief engineer of the Uganda railroad, who has just returned here after seven and a half years spent in constructing the line, speaks highly of the American locomotives and bridges used. He said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"We have thirty-six American and thirty-four British main line engines. The experiment with the American engines proved entirely satisfactory. They are 10 per cent cheaper, and although their finish is not so perfect they are more suitable for a mountain railroad like the Ugada road, because they are not so rigid and take the curves more easily. Of the steel viaducts along the line twenty-six are of American and eight are of British make. The American viaducts are excellent, but the contractors were greatly behind time and took a year instead of seven months to erect them."

Sir George mentioned among the difficulties of the construction work the scare arising from the presence of many lions along the road. No less than twenty-seven employes are known to have been carried off by lions.

CAUSED BY AUTOMOBILE.

Boston City Employes Were In Serious Accident.

Boston, May 20.—While Daniel Crowley and Michael Feeley, city employes, were driving on Columbus avenue, an automobile rushed by, the chauffeur sounding the horn. The horse bolted, the wagon was smashed and Crowley had several ribs broken, one of which is thought to have punctured his heart. Feeley's left arm was fractured and he sustained bad scalp wounds, concussion of the brain and general shock to the system. The hospital doctors think that both are fatally hurt. Crowley is 38 years of age, Feeley is 60.

The horse had to be shot. The automobile disappeared.

TAKE THE VEIL.

Minnesota Young Ladies at Wilkesbarre Ceremonies.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 20.—At an impressive ceremony at the Malinckrodt convention yesterday fifteen young ladies took the white veil and twenty sisters the black veil. Bishop Hoban presided. Among the sisters who took the holy vows were Guedila Steinkoeng, Sioux City, Iowa; Henera Hirsch, New Ulm, Minn.; Tetehorel Reite, Detroit, and Erbana Shadegg, Waconia, Minn.

The white veil was taken by Theresa Eso, Chaska, Minn.; Elizabeth Fadman, Martha Thomas and Elizabeth Hummel, Detroit; Friday Wolff, Minneapolis; Catherine Schwellfurter, Mary Houser and Mary Pitka, New Ulm, Minn., and others.

ROOSEVELT SLOW

To Grant Pardons, as the Records Show.

Washington, May 20.—To meet the suggestion that President Roosevelt has been moved by emotional interest in federal prisoners and to show that instead he has followed closely the recommendations of the attorney general in passing upon applications for pardon, some facts have been collated at the department of justice. They show that petitions for pardons are now coming in at a rate which will bring the total for the fiscal year ending with next June up to 500. Last year the number received for the twelve months ending with June was 672.

In the last fiscal year while President McKinley was the chief executive the number of petitions received was 762. The reduction in the number of petitions for last year is attributed to President Roosevelts firm stand in upholding the courts. Attorneys have found he will not yield to pressure, and the decrease for this year is even more marked.

In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1901, President McKinley acted upon 343 petitions and granted executive clemency in 226 cases. The next year President Roosevelt considered 315 cases. He refused to interfere in 181 cases, and granted executive clemency in 134. This year President Roosevelt has interfered in still fewer cases. He is especially slow in extending mercy to murderers as was shown when Mrs. Homer Bird and her little daughter pleaded so earnestly for the life of the husband and father, who was hanged in Alaska several months ago.

In 1901 President McKinley commuted the sentences of eight murderers. President Roosevelt saw fit to extend clemency to only two murderers for the fiscal year ended last June.

The total number of petitions presented to the president for consideration in 1902 was 788. Of these 672 were filed during the year. 50 were pending at the beginning of the year and 66 were reopened. Most of the petitions for pardons are from Alaska, the District of Columbia and Indian Territory.

TANKO ON STAND

Murderer Gives His Version of Crime Which He Committed.

Self Defense the Plea on Which He Hopes to Escape.

John Tanko, who is being tried for the murder of George Billich, was a witness in his own behalf today. The state concluded its evidence shortly before noon and Tanko was the first witnesss called for the defense.

R. J. Dowdal, Tanko's attorney, previous to the introduction of testimony in behalf of his client, intimated that the defense would be along the line of self-defense. He said that his client was charged with a crime for which, if he is proven guilty, his life should pay the penalty, but he urged the jurors to note the difference between the differnt degrees of murder and manslaughter in the eyes of the law and judge for themselves after hearing Tanko's side of the story, whether he was guilty of premeditated murder, or whether his intention to shoot was formed at the time of Bollich alleged attack on him. Counsel claimed that Tanko could satisfactorily explain the reason that he had a gun with him when Bollich and his companions came out of the house. He said no attempt would be made to deny that the shooting actually did occur or that Bollich was killed otherwise than by a shot from the gun fired by Tanko.

John Tanko this morning, through the interpreter, testified that he came to Chisholm from the southern part of Austria, about five months ago, where he has a wife now living. He gave his age as 34 years and his occupation as a miner, being employed at the Glen location, near Chisholm. Tanko said he has two married sisters at Chisholm, a Mrs. Harnek and a Mrs. Pahalla. He has made his home with the former since coming to this country.

Tanko said he well remembered March 8, the day preceding the tragedy, and that during the afternoon, in company with his brothers-in-law and several other friends, he was in the woods cutting wood. They returned about dark and went to Pahalla's house, where a keg of beer was tapped and the contents drank by the eight men. Tanko, Garnek, Cozer and Painter then started for Garnek's house, because Garnek was showing signs of intoxication.

At Garnek's house drinking and visiting went on until about 11 o'clock, when the procession started to go back to Pahalla's. Tanko said that when they came to pass Bollich's house one of his chums suggested that they go in and see what was going on.

His testimony this afternoon is relative to what transpired in the house and afterward.

Peter Seatovich, a brother-in-law of Bollich's, was the first witness called for the state this morning. He went with the officers when they arrested Tanko in bed at Pahalla's house, and heard the conversation between the defendant and the officers. He testified that Tanko made the remark, when asked why he shot Bollich:

"I don't care what they do with me. They may hang me. I did it."

Seatovich testified that Tanko said he was afraid of Bollich and shot him when the latter started to come toward him outside the house. Witness also said that Garnek asked Tanko what he was doing at Bollich's house the evening of March 8, and the defendant said he tried to get in the house but was pushed out, so he went home for his gun and began shooting.

The state expected to have one other witness, John Barkovich, but the sheriff's force has been unable to locate him after a diligent search.

SCARED BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Express Team Runs Away, Colliding With a Gravel Wagon.

The terrible impact of a runaway team colliding with a gravel wagon hurled the driver of the latter twenty-five feet across the street this morning.

The running team belonged to the American Express company and was frightened by "Dick" Ferris' automobile which came spinning down Superior street just as the express driver left his horses to deliver a package.

The start was between First and Second avenues east, and the magnificent big bays made a thrilling run, dodging street cars and other vehicles for a block and a half.

A heavily loaded gravel wagon was unable to pull out quick enough, and the runaways struck it hard. The driver of the gravel team, a man named Peterson, shot into the air like a rocket and lit on the brick paving some twenty-five feet away with a thud that made store windows rattle. He was not seriously injured, however. The express wagon was put out of commission, and after the horses bumped into a ton and a half of gravel, they looked tame enough to eat oats out of an automobile.

Mr. Ferris steered his machine up to the curb near police headquarters and waited until the horses had quieted down before attempting to pass them again.

ARMORY BURNED.

Philadelphia, May 20.—The armory of the First regiment, N. G. P., was damaged by fire today to the extent of $75,000. Nearly all of the rifles and ammunition were destroyed.

DIE FROM THE HEAT.

New York, May 20.—Two school children, a boy and a girl, died on the street in Brooklyn today from the heat. There were many cases of heat prostration reported in this city. The mercury at noon was 87.

TWO WILL RACE.

New York, May 20.—It was announced today that the accident to the yacht Constitution yesterday, while she was being hauled out of the water at City Island, will not prevent the race between the Reliance and the Columbia tomorrow. The Constitution was taken to South Brooklyn today for repairs.

OPENING GAME

The Season of Northern League Is Started at Fargo.

Kennally Is a Deserter—He Will Be Attended To.

Hundreds of fans in suits of noisy glads, handsome women in gorgeous spring gowns and the governor of North Dakota turned out to see the opening of the Northern league season at Fargo this afternoon.

The Duluth and Fargo teams paraded through the town at 3 o'clock and the game was called at 4 o'clock with the following line-up:

Duluth.		Fargo.
Kline	catcher	Bontthorme
Davis	pitcher	Burns
Lambert	first base	Reynolds
Whalen	second base	Mehl
Shepard	short stop	McGuire
Olmstead	third base	Donovan
Lagger	left field	Traiger
McCoy	center field	Howells
Gehring	right field	Rose

Volz was to have pitched the opening game for the Cardinals but he was called into the game against Columbus yesterday and was unable to get out of St. Paul in time for the Fargo train. Davis, a left hander from the Iowa-South Dakota league, was then put in by President Bryan.

• • •

Kennally is a deserter and continues to play with Rockford despite the fact that he signed with Duluth many months ago. President Luxdal of the Northern league, will take his case up with the National Association of Professional baseball leagues and the big first baseman will either have to live up to his contract here or get back to independent professional ranks where salaries are anything but good.

• • •

A new outfielder named Hunt is likely to be seen in a Duluth uniform tomorrow. A wire from Fargo announced he has been signed and will be given a trial.

• • •

Fargo has secured Second Baseman Brennan, recently with Toronto. He will probably play his initial game about the last of the Duluth series.

• • •

Volz was sent in to pitch for St. Paul yesterday, after Columbus had made thirteen runs in three innings off Stewart. It is no wonder the big German wants to begin his pitching career with Duluth as soon as possible. Stewart really lost the game and yet the records will show that Volz was the pitcher.

• • •

Crookston has signed Infielder Kernan, who did not prove sufficiently fast to make good in this burg.

• • •

With Martin pitching for Crookston and Sessions for Grand Forks, the opening game at the latter place this afternoon should be a good one.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Young Women's Christian Association to Elect Officers.

This evening a membership supper will be served to the sustaining, associate and active members of the Young Women's Christian association at the rooms in the Bradley building. This is the first affair in the history of the organization when all the members will be brought together, with others excluded. A large number of names have been handed in of those intending to attend this evening, and the rooms will be prettily decorated and tables set throughout the reception and dining rooms with different members of the association acting as hostesses at the different tables. A dainty tea will be served and following this the annual business meeting will be held, at which a number of the members of the board will be elected for the coming year. It is intended to change the number of the board from fifteen to eighteen. A large attendance is desired.

LUMBER COMPANY

Will Fight Action of the Interior Department.

Washington, May 20.—The department of the interior is charged, by what is asserted to be an unauthorized and illegal act, with having made a large fortune for some of its Indian wards in northern Wisconsin and with having forced a western lumber firm to go down in its pockets for $1,500,000.

The Stearns Lumber company has for years had a contract with the wealthy Indians of the Lac Du Flambeau reservation in northern Wisconsin giving the firm the exclusive privilege of cutting pine and hardwood timber on their heavily wooded lands. Secretary Hitchcock ordered that bids be received for the privilege and the Stearns company had to pay the $1,500,000 on its bid. The company threatens to test the legality of the secretary's action.

WILL PICK WINNERS.

"Pittsburg Phil" Will Sell His Race Horses.

New York, May 20.—George E. Smith, ("Pittsburg Phil.") has declared, according to the World, that he will sell all his race horses and confine his efforts on the turf to picking winners. He has a small but select stable of thoroughbreds, of which Grand Opera, Stevedore and Chilton are the best known.

This action of the plunger is said to be due to the suspension of his jockey, Willie Shaw. Since the stewards of the Jockey club revoked Shaw's license, "Pittsburg Phil" has not won a race. He has started several horses and tried different riders.

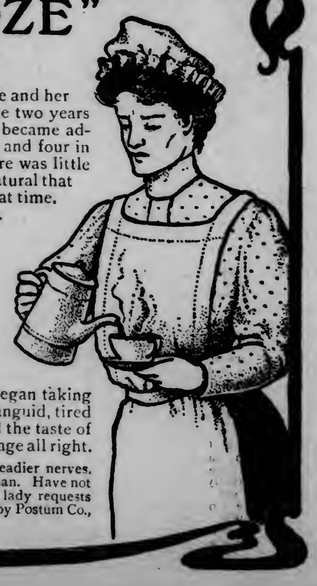
COLONIA ARRIVES.

Manila, May 20.—The cable ship Colonia has arrived here. She will leave Manila for Guam shortly.

COFFEE

"A LIGHT BOOZE"

Do You Drink It?



A minister's wife had quite a tussle with coffee and her experience is interesting. She says: "During the two years of my training as a nurse while on night duty I became addicted to coffee drinking, for between midnight and four in the morning, when the patients were asleep, there was little to do except make the rounds, and it was quite natural that I should want a good, hot cup of coffee about that time. It stimulated me and I could keep awake better.

"After three or four years of coffee drinking I became a nervous wreck and thought I simply could not live without my coffee. All this time I was subject to frequent bilious attacks, sometimes so severe as to keep me in bed for several days. After being married, husband begged me to leave off coffee, for he feared that it had already hurt me almost beyond repair, so I resolved to make an effort and release myself from the hurtful habit. I began taking Postum Food Coffee and for a few days felt the languid, tired feeling from the lack of the stimulant, but I liked the taste of Postum and that answered for the breakfast beverage all right.

"Finally I began to feel clearer headed and had steadier nerves. After a year's use of Postum I now feel like a new woman. Have not had any bilious attacks since I left off coffee." This lady requests that her name be kept from public print. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Michigan.

EDITORS NOT GUILTY OF SEDITION

Manila, May 20.—The supreme court has decided that Dorr and O'Brien, respectively proprietor and editor of Freedom, are not guilty of sedition.

Messrs. Dorr and O'Brien were arrested on the charge of sedition in publishing an article from an American periodical, to which the editor of Freedom aggreed and added remarks of his own, censuring the United State's commission's rule. The main charges made were that in many cases the Filipino officeholders were rascals and that the commission had exalted to highest positions Filipinos who were notoriously corrupt.

The conviction of Dorr and O'Brien, on the charge of libeling Benito Legarga, a native member of the Philippine commission, was yesetrday confirmed by the supreme court at Manila.

INSANE WOMAN JUMPS INTO RIVER

Houghton, Mich., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—While suffering from dementia, Mrs. D. La Halt, of Lake Linden, went to the bridge over Trap Rock river yesterday and disrobed. A woman who lived near by ran shouting towards Mrs. La Hait, who threw herself over the railing and into the water. Gideon Farlardeau, attracted by the shouts, ran to the bridge and plunged into the river and succeeded in saving Mrs. La Halt from drowning, despite her fierce struggles to keep her head under the water. A hearing to determine her sanity will be held.

DICK FERRIS GETS HERE

Brings His Big Three Cylinder Automobile On a Flat Car.

Richard Ferris arrived this morning from Minneapolis tired, sun-burned, but not out of patience.

His automobile came, too, but it was on a flat car. He had it taken off and after breakfast this morning did a few stunts on the straight and narrow path known in Duluth as Superior street.

Mr. Ferris did not climb any of the real high cliffs here, as was threatened by a Minneapolis paper last evening, though he went up several hills.

While sitting on the bank (or shore) of the road near North Branch, Mr. Ferris, waiting for the automobile to either bury itself or wiggle out of the mud, studied his part in "The Man From Mexico," and will play in it this evening.

When Mr. Ferris came into the Spalding this morning he gave a vivid and elaborate description of his trip toward Duluth.

"We were bowling along at a fast clip," said he, "exactly as the wireless message to The Herald stated last evening, when a long stretch of road in front suddenly stood up straight in the air, and slapped the machine on the wrist.

"There was hay on the road and nothing under it. The machine resented the familiarity, and after cavorting through a block or two of mud and hay, standing on its hind wheels and bucking and pitching for a few minutes, suggested in a forcible manner that I un-automobile, which I did as gracefully as could be expected under the circumstances.

"After some petting it quited down, and we tried to make another start, but the 2700 pounds of machine were too heavy for the road and the auto sank hopelessly back into the oozy road.

"While in that predicament a funeral procession came along, but the members of the party were so intent on the proceeding they engaged in that they wouldn't be distracted, but promised to come back when the ceremony was concluded. So I got my part down about evening and the procession came back, minus one member. The horses were unhitched from the hearse and several of the carriages, and they hauled the machine back to North Branch, from where I took it back by the cold, clamy moonlight to Minneapolis."

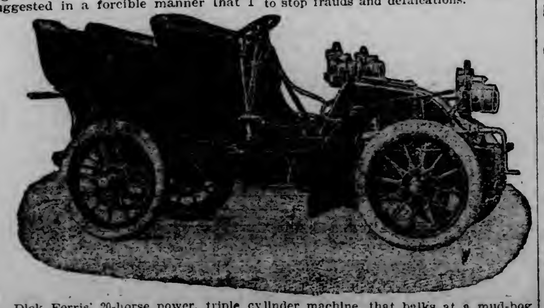
Mr. Ferris thought he would try the machine on the avenues running the short way of Duluth, but postponed experiments till later this week. He says the machine, which is one of the most powerful in this part of the country, will climb up any hill in these parts, the incline railway tracks or straight up to the United States weather observatory.

Besides that he claims it will run along on the streets smooth and even, like an old family hearse and has never been known to crib, balk or shy when on parade.

The machine will stay in Duluth till the closing of the engagement of Mr. Ferris in "The Man From Mexico," which is on the last three days this week at the Metropolitan Opera house.

WOULD STOP FRAUDS.

Manila, May 20.—The government has passed an act requiring receivers of public funds to deposit them promptly and providing for a monthly examination of the accounts of disbursers. The idea is to stop frauds and defalcations.



Dick Ferris' 20-horse power, triple cylinder machine, that balks at a mud-bog road.

CANADIANS DISCUSS

Chamberlain's Views of Reciprocity In British Empire.

Quebec, May 20.—Canadians of every class are discussing Joseph Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham, England, in favor of trade reciprocity with the British empire. The preferential trade idea is generally popular, but the prejudice against further Canadian assistance to Britain in her foreign wars is very strong in French Canada. The cabinet ministers at Ottawa will not discuss the speech.

The members and supporters of the government affect to believe that this threat of the Canadian administration has had much to do with Mr. Chamberlain's recent utterances.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's personal newspaper organ, the Canada, makes a positive statement to that effect. Premier Parent of Quebec and William Price, president of the Quebec board of trade, strongly approve the preferential trade principle, and Mr. Price also believes in colonial contributions to the British army and navy.

PROTECTION OF PASSENGERS.

The Missouri court of appeals has handed down a decision that furnishes gratifying evidence that there are obligations on the part of street car companies toward their passengers which the companies are bound to observe. Probably what is held to be the law on this point in Missouri would also be sustained by the Minnesota courts, as the principle upheld in the decision is an essentially just one.

The case was brought in behalf of a boy who was knocked from the step of a crowded car in St. Louis by a wagon tongue. The company pleaded that the boy assumed all risks attending his location on the steps of the car, but the court ruled practically that in accepting the boy's fare as a passenger on a car so crowded that he was compelled to stand on the platform step, the company assumed responsibility for his safety from all except ordinary risks, and was bound to exercise care to protect him from injury.

The principle enunciated by the Missouri court must be regarded as entirely just. It places upon the street car companies the responsibility for extraordinary risks attending the packing of cars. It declares that a company, in exchange for a fare, must give the passenger more than a chance to hang on the platform, the steps or the roof; it must exercise care and diligence to protect him from injury. In short a street car passenger, when he pays his fare, is under the protection of the company and its car crew. If the company desires to avoid the extra risks that attend the packing of cars, it has the remedy in its own hands. It can run more cars to take care of the traffic and avoid over-crowding. Duluth street cars are sometimes crowded to the limit, but the people here know little of the discomforts and dangers from this cause that are experienced in the larger cities, where overcrowding is the rule and not the exception.

THE SUICIDAL TENDENCY.

While the rate at which self destruction has been increasing in the United States is such as to cause alarm it is not nearly so great as in the older countries. According to the London Mail, in the last decade nearly 30,000 persons in England and Wales died by their own hand, and of these women formed one-fourth. That is to say, during the last fifty years—if we may judge from the verdicts of coroners' juries, a test which does not exaggerate—the number of suicides in England and Wales has increased 200 per cent. Nor is this deplorable tendency merely a malady of cities. Indeed, if we deduct the official returns for the seventy-four largest towns, the whole of the rest of the country reveals a higher rate of suicide than those great towns. As to the causes of this suicidal tendency, statistics show clearly enough that apart from the general effects of climate, season, locality and race, there is the particular impetus of drunkenness, heredity, disease, religion, love, jealousy, poverty, shame, or fear of punishment.

Suicide undoubtedly occurs more frequently among the educated than the uninstructed classes, and in Europe it is most prevalent among the Germanic races. That it is more common among unoccupied than among occupied males throws a gloomy light on the unemployed question. Against this there is the fact that the greater proportion of female suicides in England, as compared with the continent, is said to be due to their more active employment in that country. Some authorities attribute this to drunkenness, and it is curious that out of every 100 cases of drunkenness brought before the magistrates, thirty are those of women—roughly, the proportion of female to male suicides. The fact that men are more prone to suicide than women is attributed to their being more educated, aggressive, and psychically active, and as women develop these qualities, the number of suicides among them increases. While in England and Wales the rate of suicides per 1,000,000 of population is 90, in Baden it rises to 198; in Saxony, to 392. Indeed, as compared with London's rate of 95 per 1,000,000, the 300 of Brussels, Berlin, Stockholm and St. Petersburg, and the more than 400 of Paris and Vienna, are terrible to contemplate.

That a large proportion of suicides is due to diseased brain is universally admitted and therefore to avoid suicide every effort should be made to keep the brain in a normal condition. If the bright side of things can be kept in view, there will be fewer suicides.

The twentieth anniversary number of the New York World, issued May 10, is the most remarkable newspaper ever printed. It consists of 136 pages, or 1088 columns, many of the pages being in colors and half tones. Twelve pages are devoted to a review by famous writers of human achievements in the last twenty years, and other sections contain almost a library of interesting information on up-to-date topics. Among the contributors are Grover Cleveland, Prime Minister Balfour of England, William J. Bryan, members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, and scores of men of international repute. When the World was purchased by Joseph Pulitzer twenty years ago, it had little circulation or influence, but today, as a result of the enterprising policy pursued by Mr. Pulitzer, it holds the leading place among the great newspapers of the world in circulation, popularity and influence.

An exchange says that only renters who have to remain will stay in a city after rents have become excessive. Landlords and rental agents should not overlook this truth.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

The rural mail delivery system seems destined to furnish a problem to the postoffice department of no insignificant proportions. Whether this branch of the postal service, which has grown and expanded at a marvelous rate in the few years of its existence, is to be extended or stopped is now an important question. The development of the rural free delivery service from absolutely nothing to its present magnitude furnishes a startling illustration of the ease with which government money can be expended. The first rural free delivery route was established six years ago; today there are about 12,000 routes. The first penny for this service was expended in 1897, $40,000 being the initial investment. Eight million dollars will be expended during the fiscal year soon to close and congress has provided $12,000,000 for next year. The following table gives a good idea of the way this service has grown:

Fiscal Year.	Appropriation	Routes in Operation.
1897	$40,000	44
1898	50,000	148
1899	150,000	391
1900	450,000	1,276
1901	1,750,000	4,301
1902	3,903,740	8,466

In 1903 the appropriation was $8,029,400, and for the year beginning July 1 next, $13,621,700 is available.

The carriers on the 12,000 old routes now travel 275,000 miles daily, serving about 7,000,000 people in the strictly rural districts of the United States. The area covered by these routes is fully 300,000 square miles. This area is nearly equal to that of Great Britain and France, and is more than equal the area of the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia.

It is now evident that during the coming session of congress a great fight will occur to determine whether or not the rural free delivery service shall continue on the scale that has been followed, or whether it shall be stopped and the return to the old fourth-class postmaster system ordered. The good and bad points are sure to be brought out in the arguments. The objectors will have the hearty support of the fourth-class postmasters who have been losing their positions at a great rate for five years. The installation of a rural free delivery route usually means the removal of the official heads of four or five fourth-class postmasters.

To eke out a small salary the mail carrier has done errands and acted as agent for many people. This was all right at the beginning, but the business has since grown to such proportions as to furnish a great problem. Complaints have been coming in at a great rate to the effect that carriers have been drumming up trade for one local dealer at the expense of a rival. Again, it is charged that as agents for insurance companies, dry goods houses, newspapers and magazines and other commercial enterprises they are neglecting their legitimate business. Postmaster General Payne recognizes in all this an evil that must be checked. How to do it is the puzzle. To stop all side issues the government must pay the carriers more money, or it will be next to impossible to get reliable men to handle the mail. It is a difficult thing to know where to draw the line in restricting the activity of the carriers in carrying on private business.

The advantages of the service are many, but if the attendant evils overbalance them, then the service may not prove of benefit to the greatest number. It will be these points which will be threshed out at the next session of congress.

DUPLICATION OF WORK.

It is hoped that the new commission appointed a few days ago by Secretary Cortelyou will accomplish something in the way of consolidation and reform in the various bureaus in governmental departments, which are continually duplicating work. Reference was made a few days ago to the efforts of the board appointed by the president to do this work and the dismal failure of the whole affair was chronicled. That a consolidation of many bureaus is necessary is obvious. In some instances the results of two separate departments covering the same fields have been so much at variance as to destroy the value of both sets of figures. An illustration of this was furnished a couple of years ago, when the statistician of the department of agriculture collected a lot of figures about farm crops, land values and farm animals. The census force covered the same field that year, and when the reports of the two departments were issued it was found that they were wide apart. In no instance was there anything like agreement, and as a result the value of the work of both bureaus was materially discounted.

There is more or less duplication of statistical work in bureaus under the new department of commerce. Mr. Cortelyou proposes to eradicate this by wise consolidations and simplifying the methods. It is quite likely that one or more bureaus may be dispensed with in rounding up the reorganization. Secretary Cortelyou has urged the members of the commission to expedite this work as much as possible in order that some of the desired conditions may be put into effect before July 1, on which date the transfers of certain bureaus to his department are to be made. His instructions to the members of the commission are as follows: It is due to this commission to investigate and report for the consideration of the secretary what rearrangement, by transfer or otherwise, in the work now assigned by law to any of these bureaus and offices will result in an improvement of the service; what field work, if any, now being conducted by any bureaus or offices, can be consolidated or dispensed with; what reports, if any, now published, can be consolidated or dispensed with, with a view to eliminating duplication now existing in the work of these bureaus; to define clearly the field and functions of each bureau or office in such manner that no one shall encroach at any point upon any other, and generally to make such recommendations as may commend themselves to the commission for the orderly and scientific readjustment of the work of the several bureaus and offices of the department of commerce and labor.

It will, of course, be hard to rout out the old employes who have held fat positions for years and who have done but little for the benefit of the government. It must be done, however, and the sooner, the better.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Charles Carhart, of Grand Marais, arrived in Duluth this morning on his way home from Minneapolis, where Mrs. Carhart lies in the Asbury hospital, recovering from the effects of a surgical operation performed last Saturday. Mrs. Carhart is convalescing rapidly and will be able to return home in a fortnight or so.

"The boom prophesied for Grand Marais hasn't materialized," said Mr. Carhart at the St. Louis hotel this morning, "though there is a good deal of travel into port.

"There is considerable building going on, in fact there has been a great deal of it right along, but it doesn't take a very large number of buildings to make a big spurt for the town.

"Prospectors are slow in coming in, though there has been a few each week ever since the boats started running. I do not know what they are finding in the line of minerals, though there are frequent rumors of good finds.

"The county business at Grand Marais, however, is large and active. A large part of it is being done by mail, though, but the volume business by the register of deeds at the close of the year, was greater than that done by the register of deeds' office at Two Harbors. Of course that is explained by the fact that Lake county is some older, and the original business in that office has been largely closed up."

Mr. Rustedt has the proud satisfaction of seeing that quite a large amount of Duluth's permanent improvements owe final formations to W-o-t-N-P.

Some excellent works of art by the late Gilbert Munger have been brought to Duluth by Roger S. Munger, and have been hung in the parlor corridors at the Spalding hotel.

R. S. Munger is very enthusiastic over the art treasures, which the works certainly are, and is delightfully interesting in his explanations and descriptions of them. The guests at the house have also become enamored with them, and as they are well lighted and displayed, the corridors are visited by large numbers of people desiring to see them.

The favored subject of the late Gilbert Munger was landscape, and within that classification, water pools and deep groves of trees seemed a passion with him. His complete mastering of the technique of the chiaroscurist is shown in two of the works, two views of landscape bits in which the component parts are a grove of trees and a pool of water.

A Venetian scene and some mountain bit of touching grandeur make up the little collection, which is attracting attention of people who like to dream over nature transferred to canvas.

Mr. Prouty looks every inch the Vermonter he is, and has a distinguished manner, though there are something of the ills prevalent in Zim's caricatures of New Englanders in the funny pictures about him.

A local man, who knew he was coming here, but had never seen him and was not looking for him, especially, was sitting in the Spalding hotel lobby the evening before last, and saw the bewhiskered gentleman, spare and straight as a sapling, come across the floor.

"Now I'll just bet a hat," he said, "that the man coming across the floor is Mr. Prouty, of Vermont."

"I don't know him, never saw a picture of him, and didn't know he was here, excepting that I knew he was coming.

"That man is Prouty, and I'd bet my life on it," he concluded.

The gentleman who spoke was correct. He had resided in New England a short time some years ago, and said he could tell a New England statesman or politician, with both eyes on A Cleveland Boomer's Views.

Brooklyn Eagle: The Cleveland movement has now gone far enough to make plain that the Democratic party has something to substitute for the wholesale insanity of Bryanism and the fell reproach of Hillism. The man whose candidacy cost the loss of every Northern state to his party can no more delude or dictate to it. The other man, whose wresting of a state senate by fraud from the intendment of the voters cost the Democracy control of New York for more than ten years, can never again regain the respect, let alone the confidence of the people. The continued sway of the intolerable has been made impossible. A Democratic deliverance has been wrought by the sheer contrast of Clevelandism with what followed it in the party.

Coming Harvest of Winter Wheat.

Philadelphia Press: The department of agriculture gives a rosy view of the winter wheat harvest. It has struck off 43,146,000 bushels from the April prediction but still allows for a yield exceeding anything in the history of the nation. If the present outlook continues the product will be about 446,255,000 bushels. The nearest approach to that yield was the 458,334,000 bushel crop of 1901. As the crops look well generally this promises to be a bumper year. Production is large in all other fields.

Hint For Harmony.

Washington Post: Rare and radiant June approaches and no outdoor function would add more to its rarity and radiance than a Democratic lawn party conducted with reference to harmony in general and the consideration of fundamental principles in forgetfulness of special differences and animosities.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), May 20.—Barometric pressures continue high over South Atlantic states. POINTED REMARKS.

Detroit Free Press: Mrs. Wise (reading)—I see by this that the emperor of Japan has been mean to carry his umbrella.

Mr. Wise—That's nothing. I guess twenty men have carried mine.

Princeton Tiger: Old Roue—Young man, I have graduated from the school of experience.

Young One—From the result, I would be willing to bet that it was a night school.

Brooklyn Eagle: "They must have hot times at my pa's printing office every week end."

"Why?"

"I just heard pa tell ma that there was always the devil to pay on Saturday."

Chicago Tribune: Host (pairing off his guests)—Mr. Makinbrakes, you will please take Miss Gumwell out to dinner.

Mr. Makinbrakes—Certainly. But, great Scott, where? Don't you have dinner here in the house?

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "If you please, sir, you th' gentleman as offered $1,000,000 for an ideal servant girl?"

"Yes, I'm the man."

"Well, what wages do you pay?"

Chicago Post: "Charlie wanted Bertha to go in for amateur photography with him, but she wouldn't do it."

"Why not?"

"Well, I think she disliked the idea of giving him a negative."

Philadelphia Press: Miggins—I wish all these country boarding houses would mention their rates when they advertise.

Higgins—I didn't think you were interested. You told me you were going to keep your wife and family home this summer.

Miggins—Exactly, and I like to figure out just how much I'm saving.

Foresight and Hindsight.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Some day the employer and the employe will both see the wisdom of arbitrating their differences before rather than afterward.

Superfluous Anxiety.

Boston Transcript: Which side the United States will be found on little Japan is insistently asking. Now, isn't that a bit premature? There ain't going to be any sides.

The Price of Beef.

Cincinnati Tribune: The statisticians at Washington say the sudden advance in the price of beef is unjustifiable. This reminds us of a little incident that took place at a restaurant the other day. "See, here," said the indignant guest to the proprietor, "your waiter has charged me 25 cents for a tomato. Is that right?" "No, it isn't right," replied mine host amiably, "but that's what we charge."

One Idea of Justice.

New York Tribune: A visitor at the office of Attorney General Knox ventured the opinion that there are many ideas of justice in the world. "Very few," said the attorney general "and let me cite you a case in point. In a western city a political boss collected one night a large campaign fund. Incidentally there was much cheer. Midnight found the 'boss' clinging to a lamppost trying to signal a car. At that juncture two of his ward 'heelers' approached. For obvious reasons they had not been bidden to the feast and they never suspected that their manager had $900 in his pockets. The liquor had not rendered him unconscious of his pocket assets nor blinded him to the realization that his henchmen if they learned the facts would rob him without compunction. 'boys, he said 'I'm broke. Get a cab and take me to my hotel and I'll make good.' When they escorted him to the clerk's desk in the hotel the leader managed to say: 'Give each of these men $5.' Then, handing over to the clerk his bulky roll, he added, as he sank into a chair 'Take care of this wad until morning.' The two 'heelers' gazed eagerly at the disappearing fortune, and as the safe door shut one of them doubling his fist at the leader, exclaimed: 'You miserable thief; you've robbed us!'"

The Ends Did Not Meet.

Chicago Chronicle: Admiral Schley declares that the only complaint he has to make of his tour through the West is that his hosts made him do too much talking. It is, however, to the credit of the admiral, that though his mouth was thus open a good deal he never once put his foot in it.

DOBSON'S MILKMAID

By Ernest McGaffrey.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Frank Dobson was stopping on the Flambeau river at French Pierre's. He was there for the bass fishing, and had been having good sport. The smallmouths were biting freely and he had taken the canoe and a guide down the river that morning early to reach some water where the guide promised some big fellows. At a bend in the stream the guide paddled in closer to shore and pointed to a strip of smooth water below a stretch of swift-flowing riffles. "We'll get some of 'em right there," he said, pointing to the place. A big rock jutting out of the water was reached and the guide held the boat up to a rift in the rock while Dobson hooked on a minnow and cast out into the still water. A "strike" followed almost immediately, the bass running far out and down stream and then, darting swiftly back, left the water and showed above the surface, bright in the morning light. The angler kept a taut line on the fish, however, and met all of his rushes with the steady skill that spoke of long practice at the art. Fish after fish was brought to the landing net until the canoe held nine good-sized bass.

Then Dobson cried quits and the canoe was turned in to the shore and in a few minutes the two men were stretched on the bank enjoying their pipes. The guide, who had been up nearly all night before at a dance, announced his intention of taking a nap before they cooked dinner, and Dobson, taking a light 22-calibre rifle which they had brought along, sauntered down the river, promising to be back in an hour or so. He turned another bend in the river and left the guide stretched out and already sleeping, so complete was his exhaustion from the festivities of the previous night.

After walking for a mile or so down stream Dobson came to where a lodge had been built a little ways back from shore. It was a picturesque log affair and he was much interested in its cozy appearance until aroused from his conjectures by another picture even more pleasing, almost at his elbow. A sleek Jersey cow munching something from a wooden bucket was the first thing he noticed; and then the prettiest girl he had ever seen, milking the cow, was the next and most important part of the picture. Dobson lifted his fore-and-aft cap profoundly. "I beg your pardon," he said, melodiously, "is this Jackson's cottage?" The girl scanned him critically as she said, "this is Meredith's place." "Oh, yes, Meredith's," replied Dobson amiably. "I knew it belonged to someone and Jackson was the first name that came into my head." The young lady smiled at his impudence and was about to turn to her milking when Dobson said humbly: "I certainly don't wish to appear importunate, but low on earth did this Jersey cow happen to be introduced into this landscape? Why this elaborate cottage and such a milkmaid? Why, it's like a comic opera scene and I would give a dollar for a drink of milk right now."

The young lady looked at him again very sharply and then said: "I see by the scar on your right cheek that you are Frank Dobson."

Dobson's hand instinctively went up to his face. It was an old scar and a deep one. He had fallen from a tree when he was a boy and the mark had staid with him.

He bowed and said: "You are acquainted with some of my friends, that is my name."

"Yes," replied the distracting milk-maid, calmly, "she said I might meet a man up here with a scar on his cheek who would not be backward in conversation."

Dobson felt the rebuke. "I acknowledge the description," he said, "but the trees and the river are singularly reticent," and as the milkmaid smiled again he said: "I am a rustic lad myself, will you not let me finish the milking?"

How he thanked his lucky stars that he could milk a cow. It wasn't a very polite accomplishment, but he was glad that he was an expert at it. The milking was soon finished, as he applied himself exclusively to it without attempting to carry on any conversation while it lasted.

At the end of his task the girl remarked: "You may as well bring it up to the house. There is a dipper there and you can have a dipperful for your labor." Dobson dutifully picked up the bucket and the stool and followed on to the lodge. Arriving there he was ushered in and the milkmaid disappeared. In a few minutes she returned and brought with her two women. One was a man who grabbed Dobson by the hand with a "Hello, Frank, old man, didn't expect to see me here, did you." It was his friend Meredith Bond. His wife, who had been a chum of Dobson's sister, was the "she" of whom the milkmaid had spoken a few minutes before. The milkmaid herself was Miss Mildred Wyatt, quite the most fetching dream of femininity that the young man had ever seen.

Bond immediately insisted on Dobson's changing his quarters from Pierre's to the lodge, and Dobson tramped back to the canoe and fixed it up with the guide. He astonished that party with a most liberal tip and brought the bass back to the lodge. The guide went back for his traps and in another day he was safely housed at Meredith's.

But the fishing languished. Bond, who was a keen fisherman, complained to his wife that Frank was neglecting the sport. His wife, aware of the attraction, simply smiled and shrugged her shoulders. Dobson and the milkmaid took long walks together and at night she sat at the piano and played to his singing. He has a very rich baritone voice and it was pleasant there in the twilight to listen to their music. At times he took her on the river and taught her to "cast" for bass, and amused her by naming the birds and trees for her and teaching her some of the wonderful lore of nature. It was getting to be a very serious matter. Mrs. Bond took Mildred to task about it one morning.

"Look here, Mildred," said her friend, "this must not go on any longer. The man is desperately in love with you. It was always said that Frank Dobson would never fall in love, but I know what he means, and it isn't fair to let him go on in this way. I really am sorry for him. He doesn't know that you are engaged and every day only makes matters worse." The milkmaid smiled encouragingly. "If it is as bad as that I will tell him some day about my engagement," was her reply. "Besides, he may only be amusing himself with a backwoods idyl."

"You ought not to say that, Mildred," was Mrs. Bond's answer. "He is a good fellow, and Bob's friend as well as mine."

The next day the sun shone down gloriously on the glittering Flambeau. A kingfisher scalloped along the river with his harsh, challenging cry, and overhead, far up, an eagle sailed. The splash of a leaping fish here and there scattered a spray of silver beads on the surface of the water, and a few faint clouds swung low on the far off horizon.

Dobson and the milkmaid were seated on the bank of the stream and engaged in earnest conversation. He had told her that she was the one woman in the world and she had informed him that she was already the wife-to-be of another man. The deep scar on his right cheek turned white.

"Well, in that case," he said, "of course the other fellow isn't here to make his talk, and I haven't got a word to say." "But why don't you reproach me for not telling you of this before?" the girl said. "Reproach you," was the man's reply. "Why, I wouldn't have missed the privilege of loving you for 20 years out of my life."

She had put her hand tenderly on his scarred face. "I love you," she stammered. "I—I am going to break my engagement. He is old enough to be my father. It was an idea of loyalty to my father. I am going to be loyal to you, to myself."

And this is how it came to be heralded abroad that Dobson, the gay, the debonair, the handsome, the cultured and fastidious, had married a milkmaid.

AN OLD SONG REVERSED.

"There are gains for all our losses,"
So I sang when I was young.
If I sang that song again
'Twould not be with that refrain,
Which but suits an idle tongue.

Youth has gone, and hope gone with it,
Gone the strong desire for fame.
Laurels are not for the old.
Take them, lads. Give Senex gold,
What's an everlasting name?

When my life was in its summer
One fair woman liked my books;
Now that Time has driven his plow
In deep furrows on my brow
I'm no more in her good books.

"There are gains for all our losses?"
Grave beside the wintry sea,
Where my child is, and my heart,
For they should not live apart,
What has been your gain to me?

No, the words I sang were idle,
And will ever so remain;
Death, and Age, and vanished Youth
All declare this bitter truth,
There's a loss for every gain!

—RICHARD HENRY STODDARD.

A Striking Resemblance.

New York Tribune: There is considerable amusement in the war department these days over the experience of a crusty old officer on the retired list with a genial and witty son of Erin. The general (brevet brigadier) left Washington last week with a particularly fine hunting dog, which he was taking out to his farm to be trained. He comfortably ensconced himself in a day coach and placed the dog on the seat beside him. The general is well known on the road, and no objection was made to his taking his dog into the coach, but later an Irishman, who could not find a seat, called the attention of the conductor to the fact that the dog was occupying one, and the general was requested to put his canine friend on the floor. The Irishman, after taking the seat, desired to placate the evidently irate old gentleman and he remarked: "Beg pardon, sir, but it's a pleasant day." "Yes," replied the general curtly. "That appears to be a very fine breed of dog, sir," ventured the Irishman a little later. "Yes," snapped the general. But the Irishman, not to be squelched, tried again. "Beggin' your pardon, sir," he remarked, "but would yez tell me phat breed of dog that is?"

"That sir," almost shouted the general, "is a cross between an Irish setter and a fool!"

"Shure, now, an' I might have known that," remarked the irrepressible Irishman. "Shure, he bears a resimblauce to the both of us."

"What's a saurian?"

"I dunno, I guess mebby it's one o' them misprints fer a sardine."

"There ain't no twenty-foot sardines."

"Well, there might be the ree-mains of one."

"I don't believe it. Do you suppose anybody'd want ter buy a box of sich sardines? I guess not."

"You're too dern critical. Ef there is th' ree-mains o' any twenty-foot sardines on th' Penobscot don't you suppose there might also be th' ree-mains of men big enuff to by 'em by the box? You're a atheeist, thet's what you are."

New York Press: Cupid is not so blind as those who can not dodge his shots.

Some women would rather be divorced than never to be married.

Even if a man knew the names of all the queer things women wear it would not help him to understand why they do.

Whatever happens to be the good point of a woman's figure it is around that spot that she dresses the rest of herself.

M. S. BURROWS.

THE STAGE

Tonight will be the last performance of "Graustock" by the Ferris comedians, with Miss Grace Hayward in the leading role. This is the last chance for the patrons of the Metropolitan to see this great romantic comedy drama for some time. Beginning tomorrow night Dick Ferris will be seen, supported by his comedians, in the greatest comedy ever written. This comedy was the one in which Willie Collier made his success, and Mr. Ferris is said to be a great success in this farcical role.

* * *

The Flints drew a large audience at the Lyceum last evening and kept the people in laughter from start to finish. Their entertainment has a number of new features this year, and the antics through which the subjects are put are laughable in the extreme. The engagement is for the week.

MISSOULA'S SECOND CASE.

Prominent Labor Agitator Drops Out of Sight.

Missoula, Mont., May 20.—Theodore H. Fischer, prominent in labor circles, has mysteriously disappeared. He attended a meeting of the Sons of Hermann Monday night of which he was secretary. He went to his rooms with the lodge books, saying he would be back for the social session. His bed was found undisturbed yesterday morning.

Fischer had been prominent as an agitator and worked against the Chinese. Fifty of his friends joined a party and went through the Chinese joints looking for him, with the belief that the Chinese have killed him. His accounts are all straight. It is the second disappearance from Missoula in three weeks, and closely follows that of County Assessor Paul C. Wagnitz.

INDICTED OTHERS

Grand Jury Finds Bills In Connection With Land Cases.

L. J. Hopkins, A. L. Agatin, Ross Mahon and Others Indicted.

Further sensational disclosures have been made in the federal court in the matter of alleged fraudulent stone and timber entries, and a number of prominent Duluth citizens are under indictment to appear before the United States district court and answer to charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States government and of making or causing to be made fraudulent affidavits.

Ross L. Mahon, Arcadius L. Agatin, Louis J. Hopkins, George C. Swallow and Sven Oleson are indicted under section 5440 of the revised statutes, which reads in part as follows:

"If two or more persons conspire either to commit any offense against the United States or to defraud the United States in any manner or for any purpose and one or more of such parties do any act to effect the object of this conspiracy, all the parties to such shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $1000 and not more than $10,000 and to imprisonment not more than two years."

Ross L. Mahon, Sven Oleson and A. L. Agatin are also under indictment to answer to a charge of having violated section 4746 of the revised statutes, which reads in part as follows:

"Every person who knowingly or wilfully makes or aids or assists in the making or in any wise procures the making or presentation of any false or fraudulent affidavit ..... pertaining to any matter within the jurisdiction ..... or of the secretary of the interior ..... shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $500 or imprisonment for a term of not to exceed five years."

The indictments on the latter case are on seven different counts, and are concerned with the stone and timber entries of the following: Tena Anderson, Gustav Taufman, Wesley McCauley, Myra Bennett, Ella Phillips, Albert B. King and Mary Michaelson.

On the indictment for conspiracy the charge is made in the case of the stone and timber entry of Myra Bennett.

These stone and timber entries were investigated by Special Agent O'Connor of the land office, who has recently been transferred to the land office at Eureka, Cal. The prosecution of the cases before the grand jury was delegated to Special Agent Coulter.

The indicted persons will be arraigned in the district court and allowed to furnish bonds for their appearance at the fall term.

Following close upon the indictment of Charles P. Maginnis, which occurred Monday, the case has caused no little excitement in the city.

The indicted persons protest their innocence and claim that they see no reason why the charges were brought against them. They are all well known in the city with the exception of Sven Oleson, who is a cruiser at one time in the employ of Swallow & Hopkins, but who at present is supposed to be in Florida.

Louis J. Hopkins and A. L. Agatin were arraigned this morning before Judge Lochren on the two charges against them, and both pleaded not guilty, with the understood privilege of withdrawing the plea later and entering demurrers should that seem the proper thing to do after the indictments have been examined. W. D. Bailey, of the firm of J. L. Washburn & W. D. Bailey, appeared for the defendants. Bail was fixed in the sum of $5000 each, and was furnished.

Mr. Bailey said that the defendants would like to be tried at this term of court, either later in this week or at the beginning of next week. Judge Lochren said that the term was nearly completed, however, and that it might be concluded today, so it was impracticable to hold the jurors over for these cases. The cases will therefore be continued over the term, coming up in the fall.

The defendants were given until June 15 to enter demurrers should they see fit to do so, and in the event that this course is followed, the hearings will be before Judge Morris after he assumes the duties of his new office July 1.

EXTRADITION CASES.

Canadian Practice Set Forth In a Memorandum.

Ottawa, May 20.—H. G. Carroll, solicitor general, yesterday brought down the papers in the Gaynor-Greene extradition case which formed somewhat a cause celebre in the province of Quebec last year.

The most interesting feature of the correspondence is a memorandum from the minister of justice setting forth the practice in extradition cases very clearly. It states that whilst the chief executive decides finally the question of delivery, or of non-delivery, the judicial authority makes preliminary investigation as to the criminality and identity of the prisoner charged. If the decision of the judicial authority is that the evidence adduced is not sufficient to sustain the charge, the fugitive is released from custody, and the question of surrender never comes before the executive at all. If the judicial authority decides that the evidence is sufficient the prisoner committed to await the action of the executive to whom the record of proceedings is transmitted for consideration. The executive may either order the fugitive's surrender, or in certain cases refuse to do so. In other words the proceedings before the judicial authority form the basis of the action to be taken by the executive. Such action is generally the issue of a warrant by the minister of justice after the expiration of fifteen days from the date of the committal for the surrender of the prisoner. Sometimes, however, it may have a more diplomatic or national aspect.

ENDOWS HOSPITAL.

Rock Island Director Gives a Large Sum.

Richmond, Ind., May 20.—Daniel G. Reid, of New York, a director of the Rock Island railroad, and formerly of this city, has sent word to the trustees of St. Stephen's hospital that he would give $50,000 to the city for a new hospital, provided that $25,000 is raised by the citizens as an endowment fund.

Mr. Reid's gift has been accepted and steps will be taken to raise the endowment fund. Mr. Reid is building a $75,000 church for the United Presbyterian congregation here.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Closing of the Armenia Mine Comes as a Surprise.

Crystal Falls—Much surprise has been caused by the receipt of orders from the Corrigan-McKinney company, of Cleveland, to close down its Armenia mine three miles from the city. The reason for the suspension is that Corrigan-McKinney have more ore on hand than they can find a market for, and as the Armenia has always been an expensive mine to operate, it was selected as the property that should cease mining and shipping. In some quarters there is apprehension that the ore market is not as healthy as it could be and that more suspensions will follow, it being pointed out that the steel trust recently reduced its forces at its mines at Ishpeming.

Houghton—Aside from Joseph Crosittiere, of Marquette, who is over 100 years old, and has lived in three centuries, the oldest person in the upper peninsula, is Mrs. Marie Jackson, of L'Anse. She is 97 years old, having been born in Norfolk, Eng., April 27, 1807.

Bessemer—Single men underground at the Tilden mine have been laid off. Non-arrival of vessels at Ashland prevents ore shipment and hence the layoff. As soon as the vesselmen's strike is settled, work in the mine will be resumed. About 100 men are out.

Calumet—There is probably more hardwood being shipped out of the upper peninsula this year than ever before. This section is gradually becoming a hardwood center and lumber companies which handled very little, if any, of that class of lumber, are now dealing in it extensively.

The drive of Crawford & Sons, on Cedar river has been finished. About 12,000,000 or 14,000,000 feet of all kinds of logs were floated down the stream. Included in the lot were 2,000,000 feet of cedar logs and 30,000 poles. Crawford & Sons' mill at Cedar River is now running full force.

The Menominee River Lumber company, of Vulcan, has filed articles of incorporation.

Hemlock is in good demand at prices materially higher than those ruling a year ago. The mill of the Nestor estate, at Baraga, has begun on the season's sawing.

The Silverthorn Lumber company, of North Tonawanda, N. Y., has begun shipping 5,000,000 feet of logs from a point near Ishpeming to the Nester estate mill at Baraga. The forest fires which raged in Ontonagon county recently damaged C. V. McMillan & Bros.' holdings.

Sault Ste. Marie—The old carbide works at the Soo are undergoing a complete transformation and the building would not now be recognized. The Superior Food company's plant will be located there, and it is said it will be one of the most complete and up-to-date in the country. Over $20,000 worth of machinery has been ordered, four carloads of which has arrived and is being placed in position. A 30 by 40-foot cement building, thirty feet in height, which will be used as boiler house and oven room, is to be constructed at once. The work is moving along satisfactorily and it is expected that the plant will be in operation in the near future.

Escanaba—A crew of twelve linemen in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company has started the work of stringing a new copper wire from Menominee to Escanaba. The company now has two wires between those points, but the business has increased so greatly that three are necessary. Last winter another wire was strung from Menominee to Chicago, making three between those cities, and the new one now being strung to Escanaba is an extension of the Chicago wire. The crew engaged in the work recently returned to Minneapolis from Yellowstone Park, where was strung a special wire into the park for the use of President Roosevelt and his party.

IMPORTANT SESSIONS

Of Presbyterians Will Be Held Before Regular Opening.

Los Angeles, May 20.—While the opening of the Presbyterian general assembly proper does not take place until Thursday morning, an important session will be held at the Woman's club at which the report of the board of foreign missions will be heard.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, the assembly moderator, will make the opening address and Rev. Thomas Marshall, D. D., declared secretary for the board will preside.

Women of the Presbyterian church will hold separate sessions at the First Presbyterian church at which both home and foreign missions will be discussed. Reports of the officers of those two bodies will furnish the principal subjects. An interesting feature of these meetings will be the report of Mrs. I. M. Condit, state secretary of the Occidental board, which organization established the Chinese mission home in San Francisco.

One of the subjects that will early come before the general body and which will attract wide attention is a resolution said to have been already framed against United States Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah.

Dr. William S. Young, chairman of the local press committee for the general assembly, states that the matter will be brought up, probably in connection with reports of the home missionary work and that resolutions against the encouragement of Mormons in America, will be passed. These resolutions, it is expected, will deal specifically with the case of Senator Smoot.

Eight special trains bearing the commissioners to the assembly are due to arrive in Los Angeles today over the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific roads. Preparations have been completed for the reception of the commissioners and it is expected that by tonight nearly all of the 670 commissioners accredited to the assembly will have arrived. The assembly will continue for two weeks.

QUICK ARREST.

J. A. Gulledge, of Verbena, Ala., was twice in the hospital from a severe case of piles causing 24 tumors. After doctoring and all remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly arrested further inflammation and cured him. It conquers aches and kills pain. 25c at all druggists.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Grand Forks Man Dead as the Result of Scuffle.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Frank Eckland is dead at the Deaconess hospital as the result of a ruptured blood vessel caused by a scuffle in East Grand Forks the day before. He leaves a wife and one child. He made a dying request that the man he was scuffling with be not prosecuted.

A stranger said to mail from Fargo, was arrested on the charge of passing counterfeit money. Several $5 bills were put in circulation.

Minot—A message was received by Chief of Police Kimball from E. P. Elliott of Winnipeg, chief of the provincial police of Manitoba, asking if a woman named Ida Dunham was here. The message stated she was wanted at Winnipeg to testify in the case of James Wilson, caught at Duluth recently, and wanted at Snowflake, Man., for safe-blowing. The witness was found here and will go to Winnipeg and testify.

Sheriff Scofield, on the advice of the young fellows widowed mother, today landed in jail Roy Van Duren, who is alleged to have jumped a $500 cash bail, put up by his mother to secure his appearance in June at Wheaton, Minn., where he is wanted to answer to the charge of highway robbery. The accused was head for the Canadian line at the time of his capture.

Velva—At a charivari a fatal accident was narrowly averted, as one of the participants while carelessly handling a loaded shotgun shot one of the party in the leg below the knee.

Souris—Lightning struck and destroyed the barn of D. V. Jackson, a farmer living three miles south of Souris. Two horses were killed.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Although Mrs. Roland B. Mollneux has established a legal residence in Sioux Falls, she has not yet instituted a suit for divorce, so far as the court files show. She has, however, relaxed her privacy and now takes daily walks out of doors. She semes to have taken new interest in life, but she maintains secrecy relative to the report that she will marry again after her divorce is secured. It is believed, however, that she will be married in this city. It is thought her divorce suit has been started, but that it has been suppressed, and this course is denounced by local authorities who believe the courts should not be swayed by powerful litigants in such a manner.

Chamberlain—The Chamberlain fire department has increased the purse for a band contest at the annual firemen's tournament to be held in Chamberlain on June 2, 3, 4, 5, from $75 to $175. This Bought Yesterday—Cured Today.

Mrs. O. C. Burt, of 26 Broadway, New York, says: "I am surprised and delighted at the change for the better in my case in one day from the use of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. It worked like magic—there's no excuse for a person suffering pain with this remedy within reach. Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.

purse will be divided into two parts, with first money $100, and second money, $75.

Several first-class bands have expressed a willingness to attend if a sufficient inducement were offered, and this action by the local department is the result. It is expected that several good bands will be present in addition to the two bands at Chamberlain. There is every probability that the tournament will be one of the largest in point of attendance ever held in the state. About $2000 will be disbursed in the various purses.

Armour—The school board has selected a principal, Professor G. N. Sabit, of Sioux City. He is an experienced teacher. All of the present teachers were retained for the coming year, except the principal, J. W. Addle, who was elected superintendent of schools of the county at the election last year.

Bowdle—John Suer, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. His wife was away and on her return found his remains in the cellar.

Pierre—While reports of national banks show a doubled increase in deposits in South Dakota, the state and private banks also show that the boasted prosperity of South Dakota has something substantial at the back of it. The deposits in these banks doubled since the close of business Dec. 31, 1900—the date of the biennial report—and the close of business Dec. 31, 1902. At the close of 1900 the call and time deposits in the state and private banks were $8,651,000, and at the close of business two years later they were $17,036,000.

BABCOCK IGNORANT

That He Would Lead a "Stalwart" Fight.

Milwaukee, May 20. — Congressman Charles W. Babcock arrived from Washington and said he was going into the country for a "little rest."

"What about these reports that you are to lead a 'stalwart' fight that is to begin immediately?" he was asked.

"I really don't know anything about that. It is news to me," he replied.

"What have you heard as to the work of the sub-committee of the finance committee of the senate at Virginia Hot Springs, which Senator Spooner said was to be of so important a nature?"

"They didn't frame any bill. All they did I guess was to take a few hot baths."

When asked as to the rumor that he was to spend some time campaigning the state, Congressman Babcock said that such was not the case, and added:

"I do not expect to do any campaigning next year at all."

CHICAGO PROMOTER

Indicted For the Sale of Lottery Tickets.

Chicago, May 20.—J. J. Jacobs, said to be the Chicago representative of the Montana Mining, Loan and Investment company, of Butte, Mont., was made the subject of an indictment by the grand jury, charging the sale of lottery tickets. The offices which Jacobs occupied at 226 Dearborn street were raided by Detective Wooldridge recently, and on the literature and correspondence seized the indictment was voted.

That the federal authorities had taken action against the mining concern is evident from the literature, which states that all communications addressed to the Butte office must be sent by express, as the postoffice authorities would not deliver mail.

GEN. DAVIS' ORDER

In Case of Lieut. Lee Causes Comment.

Washington, May 20.—A curious anomaly is found in the order of Gen. Davis restoring to duty Lieut. Joel R. Lee of the Tenth infantry, who was tried by court-martial and acquitted of the charge of having wilfully caused the death of two Filipino prisoners.

Gen. Davis, in a memorandum accompanying the record of the trial, disapproves of the findings of the court, and, moreover, brings an accusation of neglect of duty against Lieut. Lee. He charges Lee with having provided an insufficient guard for two men well known to be desperate, and with having failed in his duty in turning over to the sentinel, Sergt. Connolly, the second prisoner, after Connolly had killed the first. Gen. Davis also called attention to the fact that the killing in both instances was done, not with Connolly's rifle, but with a revolver which was furnished by Lieut. Lee.

The restoration of Lee to duty, in view of the general's attitude, is causing comment in Washington. It is believed that if Lee had exercised ordinary prudence and foresight, the killing of the Filipinos could have been avoided.

WISCONSIN MINISTER

Disputes Doctrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Milwaukee, May 20.—Dr. T. Allen Hoben, of Waupun, Wis., is the author of a book which will create a sensation in church circles. The title of the book is "The Virgin Birth." In it he disputes the doctrine of the immaculate conception. Dr. Hoben says that Jesus of Nazareth came into the world in a manner no different than "any other man born of woman."

The report that the book is to be used as a text book by the university of Chicago will give it more prominence. Dr. Hoben says that the doctrine of the virgin birth is not found in any writings prior to Ignatius, in the second decade of the second century.

Dr. Hoben is the pastor of the Union church at Waupun. He held the fellowship of the New Testament in the university of Chicago from 1898 to 1901, when he was called to his present parish.

THE WEIRD SCENE

At the Grave of Chief Floating Off Near Omaha.

Indians Pay the Last Tribute to a Departed Chief.

Omaha Indian Reservation, Neb., May 20.—For two weeks there has been sorrow and lamentation, which showed themselves by feasts, games and races, throughout the reservation. Chief Floating Off is dead. His life was sensational, but not more so than were his funeral services. The old sachem died in Omaha from an operation. Three days before his death he foretold the event to a friend, saying: "My brother, I am going to the medicine house of the white man, but I will not return. While advancing to greet you I passed myself (meaning his spirit) and I know it is a warning from the Great Spirit. My time has come."

All Indians are superstitious and spirit-ualists by nature, and the friend agreed with Floating Off that his time had come. But when the Indian braves and fortitude the old man advanced to meet his fate. "The warning from the Great Spirit was for me that I might prepare for the journey to the spirit land. It must be, and nothing can prevent it. I will go."

Three days later the chief died in Omaha.

Every Indian on the reservation was gathered at the station when the body was brought back. The family were huddled close together and hundreds of friends took charge of the removal of the body. As the train rolled into the station the weird death chant of the Omaha tribe arose, and there is nothing on earth so sad as that chant of the Indian women for the dead.

But Floating Off had been a great Indian during his life, and his funeral must be worthy of him. He was a great chief and was also a member of the grand council. A funeral of state was due him, and his friends saw to it that he was properly buried. It was the greatest event which has occurred among the Omaha Indians for more than a generation. All the old-time customs were brought to life, and the scenes enacted caused the blood to flow faster through the veins of the old men, as memories of the long ago were aroused.

The Indian funeral exercises occur after the burial. Although Floating Off was a "good Christian," and as such entitled to and received a Christian burial, he was also a great chief, and was entitled to a grand Indian funeral for that reason. His Christian funeral came off three days after death, and the old man was buried on the bluffs of the Missouri river, where his people for generations have been buried. The Christian services being over, the heathen exercises began at sunset of the same day.

The chief medicine man of the tribe, O-We-Ke-Ga-He, acted as master of ceremonies, and as night fell led a band of women mourners torganized for the occasion to the bluffs where Floating Off was buried. Taking his stand with one leg on either side of the grave, and with the mourning and wailing women slowly passing around in a large circle, O-We-Ke-Ga-He began his weird incantations, gesticulating wildly, muttering to himself, screaming now and then, and tearing his hair in despair, as he fought with the demons which had come to take the spirit of the dead man, and calling on the good spirits to come to his assistance. And all the time the death song of the women rang out. (This description was given by an Indian who had been bribed to watch the ceremonies. Any white man caught spying on an Indian funeral of this kind would probably be killed.)

At midnight the mourners were dismissed and ordered to their tents. O-We-Ke-Ga-He, left alone, built a small fire at the foot of the grave, in order that the feet of the dead man might not wander on his journey to the happy hunting grounds, while at the head was placed food and water, that he might not hunger on the journey.

After a careful search of the surroundings, O-We-Ke-Ga-He, satisfied that he was alone and that no mortal would venture within sight of his ceremonies (all Indians within a certain distance were ordered to remain in their tents until daylight), crouched on the ground, threw his long hair about his head, lowered his face to the grave and began his mourning song. This was too much for the watching Indian spy, who silently stole away and saw no more of the incantations.

When the day broke the following morning, the medicine man had disappeared, and, as is the custom, did not return until the feast day, four days after the funeral. The fires were kept burning on the grave for three nights, and fresh food was also placed for the use of the spirit for the same number of nights. On the fourth day after the funeral, the feast of the day, or rather, the festival of the dead, was held, and a holiday was announced throughout the reservation.

The place selected for the festival was a high plateau five miles from Decatur on the reservation. From time immemorial the feasts of the dead of the Omaha Indians have been celebrated in this place, and on the occasion of Floating Off's feast a full representation of the tribe was present. Hundreds of gayly decorated tents were set up in the form of a huge circle, and, as usual with all Indian celebrations, the day opened with a feast. Then came games and dances, the prizes given in each case being some article formerly belonging to Floating Off, and the old man's favorite horses, clothing, rifle, pipes, blankets and ornaments of all kinds were given away. The winner of the five-mile foot race was Stonewall Jackson, a graduate of Carlisle Indian school. Floating Off's splendid black stallion, the finest in the tribe and the pride of the old man's heart, was given the educated Indian for his fleet-footedness.

"Ha-Lush-Kah," the war dance, and the squaw dance were given several times during the day. An interesting feature of the contest was that of bow and arrow shooting, in which the Omahas are very expert. These Indians have not used the bow and arrow for generations, but in play are still fond of the sport.

The festival continued for two days before the Indians had enough and returned to their homes.

WILL ACCEPT SILVER

Great Britain Will Give China Those Terms.

Washington, May 19.—Great Britain has decided to accord China the same terms in the settlement of the Boxer indemnity as those accepted by the United States. The state department has been informed that the English charge at Pekin has signified the willingness of his government to accept payment on a silver basis for a term of years, reserving under bond the right to receive payment of any deficiency that might exist should it hereafter be decided that the payments should have been made on a gold basis. This very much strengthens the attitude of the United States, which has been almost single-handed in its fight for the payment of the indemnity on a silver basis.

CANADA TO AUSTRALIA.

Fleet Of Four Steamers To Handle Freight.

Vancouver, B. C., May 19.—A fleet of four steamers, to handle freight only between this port, Australia and New Zealand, is to be inaugurated by R. A. Alley & Co., of Tacoma. Mr. Alley is now in Auckland arranging for the starting of the line. A dockage site has been secured here by Vancouver capitalists interested in the undertaking.

It is proposed to put on four large steamers. No application for subsidy will be made to the Dominion government until the line is in actual operation. Assurance has been received that when this is done the government will give favorable consideration to such an application.

NO PROTEST

Yet Made To Russia By United States.

St. Petersburg, May 19.—The Russian government has received no representations from the government of the United States in regard to the Kischineff massacre beyond an inquiry through Ambassador McCormick several days ago, whether the money and supplies which were being offered from all parts of America for the sufferers would be acceptable to the Russian government. The foreign office replied that while it greatly appreciated the American generosity there was no need for relief, as the wants of the inhabitants of Kischineff were looked after.

TO PLAY NO MORE

High School Baseball Team Will Meet No Other Teams.

Closes Season Without Having Met Any Other School Nines.

Although the high school has one of the best baseball teams this year that has ever represented the school, it looks at present as though the aggregation would finish the season without trying its metal against another high school nine.

A game was scheduled with the Brainerd high school to take place in Brainerd on Memorial day, but the high school men of that city have canceled. It is impossible for the high school to play here on that day because of general sentiment. In addition to this, it is rumored that Potter and Winters, two of the best men on the team, are to leave school and will not be able to play any more with the team.

Potter is the only man in the school who can satisfactorily catch Cummings, and Winters is one of the fastest infielders on the team. This week the preliminary track held day is held, so no game can be played. A week from Saturday is Memorial day; on June 6, the only other Saturday before school closes, there will be a track meet in Duluth between the teams of Duluth, Cloquet and Nelson-Dewey high schools of Superior.

In the face of these discouragements, it has been decided to discontinue the season, and the students who defeated the Duluth league team and came near doing the same thing to the one in Superior will turn their attention to track athletics and try to get into shape for the running, jumping and hurdling stunts which will earn the school points in the triangular on June 6.

Through strenuous efforts the High School Athletic association has succeeded in raising $255 of the $300 debt which was left on its hands by the football season of last fall. Every effort will be made to have this all cleared up by the end of the present school year.

The track meet on June 6 will be well advertised and every effort will be made to get enough people out to set the association on its feet again. A subscription list circulated among the high school boys themselves brought in $125.

The preliminary field day, which will be held Saturday, will be a very informal affair, held solely for the purpose of sifting out the best of the high school track men and making them into a team to meet other schools. No admission will be charged and no prizes will be given for the place winners.

WORKS LETTER BOX SWINDLE

Some East End Residents Part With Small Sums of Money.

An old swindling game is again being worked on a number of citizens living in the East End of the city.

It was reported to Postmaster Fisher yesterday by one of the carriers that a number of East End residents had been talked into buying letter boxes by a well-dressed stranger. The man carried a list of houses which he claimed were required by the postoffice authorities to be equipped with letter boxes. He also carried with him descriptions of various kinds of boxes which he offered to install at a reduced rate.

In a number of cases he succeeded in working his game and collected a considerable sum of money in advance payment on the boxes, claiming that a deposit was necessary.

The non-delivery of the boxes made the purchasers suspicious, and the carriers were questioned, when the whole matter was brought to light.

Postmaster Fisher was notified of the doings of the mysterious stranger.

"The police have not yet been notified," said Postmaster Fisher today. "The greater part of the money was collected on May 9, and since then no further actions of the swindler have been reported. As the sum taken from each person was small, never more than 50 cents, it is likely the matter will blow over, unless some of those who were relieved of their money choose to take the matter up and report it to the police. The citizens should be on the lookout for the man, however, and if he tries any further games, have him placed in custody."

$50,000 stock of men's fine clothing, furnishing goods and shoes to be sold regardless of cost at the Eagle Clothing Co.'s Big Building sale, starting Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, 321 West Superior street.

CARDINALS BUSY

Making Nominations of Bishops For the Philippines.

Rome, May 19.—The committee of five cardinals appointed at the time Governor Taft was in Rome to deal with Philippine affairs is now busy with the nominations of bishops for the archipelago. The commission is composed of Cardinals Rampolla, Serafino Vannutelli, Steinhuber, Vivessy Tuto and Satolli, the last replacing Cardinal Gotti, when Gotti was made prefect of the propaganda. At its next meeting the commission will appoint an archbishop of Manila, but the date of the meeting has not been fixed, as the commission is waiting for information from Spain about two Philippine priests whom Archbishop Guidi proposed for bishops of Cebu and Vigan, or the Camarines. Information has been especially asked for regarding Mgr. Nosaleda, the former archbishop of Manila.

The commission will also decide ecclesiastical questions referring to Cuba, especially the appointments of bishops of Pinar del Rio and Cienfuegos.

LAST OF OLD CLIPPER SHIP

The Macaulay to Be Torn to Pieces For Junk.

New York, May 19.—The dismantled hull of the old clipper ship Macaulay, which has cumbered the Newark bay shore of Bergen Point since it was beached for burning about a month ago was tricked out in bunting when Capt. Fred C. Wilson's 9-year-old daughter made a ceremonious beginning of the hull's demolition by giving a gentle tap to the rudder post, iniatory to its being taken out.

Capt. Wilson bought the hull for the junk that he might get out of it, and during a long and vain wait for permission from the old Bayonne fire department to burn the vessel he conceived the idea of turning some of its copper into souvenir paperweights. He reckons there ought to be a plenty of patriots eager for bits of copper that held together one of the proudest clippers that ever carried a broom at its fore topmast head in the days when American built shipping swept the seas.

The old hulk had jury, mizzen and mainmasts rigged, from which hung two American flags. A Union Jack floated from a staff stuck in its starboard hawse hole. Capt. Wilson called special attention to the bunting at the mizzen.

"That flag," he said to a Sun reporter, "has followed the old ship from the cradle to the grave. It was launched with that very flag at its jack staff."

The Macaulay was a fine ship. It sailed for thirty years between the Chesapeake and the English channel. In that time, its owner says, it brought over more than 75,000 immigrants. It was 176 feet long, 37 feet beam, and had 22 feet 5 inches depth of hold.

Its ribs are of twelve-inch oak and its original planking was of four-inch oak. Below the water line it was fastened with copper. Some of the bolts are eighteen inches long and weigh several pounds.

Capt. Wilson can't tell how much of the copper he's going to get out of the hulk, for in its later days whenever repairs were made the modern shipwrights replaced the original metal with iron.

It is sheathed outside with two-inch spruce and its ribs are hidden inside beath a sheathing of eight-inch pine. Until this wood is torn away it won't be known how much of its original hull is left.

THIEF WILLED FORTUNE

Of $50,000 to Woman He Had Robbed.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 20.—The will of George W. Todd, who died in Hamilton, Ont., in April, was presented to Surrogate Glasses here by representatives of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jordan of Brockton, Mass., the beneficiaries. The estate amounts probably to $50,000, most of which is deposited in banks.

Todd made the will in Hamilton on March 21, 1903. He said in the will that he expected to die in a few days and wished word sent at once to Mrs. Jordan of her good luck. He recited that at the last day of the Brockton fair, October 8, 1883, he stole from the woman a pocketbook and desired to make recompense. He hoped that she may live long and enjoy the money.

Todd was about 50 years old. He was known here as the man with the wheelbarrow, as he invariably trundled it into town when he came to deposit money in the banks. Until just before his death he never rode on railroads in his visits to this city, Rochester and Buffalo, where he had bank accounts. He declined to give the bank officials his place of residence and was otherwise eccentric.

In a letter he left behind, that the pocketbook contained a large sum of money, that Todd represented himself as a faker and when accused denied that he took the pocketbook.

THE FIRST BATHTUB

Ever Built For an Elephant Completed at National Zoo.

Uncle Sam Makes Even the Wild Animals Happy.

Washington, May 20.—The first bath tub ever built for an elephant has just been completed at the national zoo in Washington. It is 40 feet long by 20 feet wide and 15 feet deep at one end—the animal entering at the other end by walking down an inclined plane. The tub is of artificial stone and concrete, and is filled with water by a great pipe when desired.

Up-to-date zoo management requires plenty of opportunities of bathing for the animals. At the Washington park even the big cats, which might be supposed to hate water, are encouraged to indulge in frequent ablutions, and one large Bengal tiger may be seen lying in its overflowing tub for hours together, looking absurb but extremely happy. The bears, too, have the bath tubs, in which they are constantly splashing about.

This is merely a part of the new idea that animals kept in captivity ought to be made as happy as possible, and that, with a view to this end, they should be provided with amusement and surrounded by conditions imitating as closely as possible their natural environment. Then they will retain their health, the mortality among them will be small and the human visitors who come to see them under the most cheerful and pleasing circumstances.

The management of the Washington zoo has prepared plans for a monkey house of an entirely new pattern, in which the simian guests will be as comfortable as in their native wilds. It will be in effect, a bit of tropical forest under glass, 200 feet in length and with a roof high enough to accommodate large trees, among which the long-tailed boarders will be at liberty to execute their acrobatic evolutions with the utmost freedom. The climate within the inclosure being absolutely under control at all seasons, the monkeys ought to enjoy the best of health, as well as a happiness which can not be theirs when they are shut up, in the customary fashion, in barred cages with only a perch and a trapeze to exercise upon.

The most interesting of all animals, when kept in captivity, are the man-monkeys—the chimpanzee, the orang and the gorilla, the two last of which attain a size equal to that of adult human beings. But, though frequently taken young, and exhibited in zoos, they never live to grow up—partly because the climate of the temperate zone does not suit them, and partly for the reason that all sorts of objectionable things are fed to them. They are only babies, and ought to be treated as such; but to the regimen imposed upon them they soon succumb, just as any human infant would. On the other hand, there is good reason to believe that they could be reared perfectly well, and would live long and happily, with proper diet, in such a house as that described.

Recently an entirely new method of keeping birds in captivity has been adopted, and the zoos in New York, Washington and San Francisco have immense "flight cages," as they are called, containing thousands of beautiful feathered creatures, which, disporting themselves among lofty trees and plentiful shrubbery, must feel, to all intents and purposes, as free as if they were really at liberty. The great flight cage in the Washington park is 300 feet long, 100 feet wide and 50 feet high—a big slice of outdoors, as one might say, separated from the rest of the world by an almost invisible barrier of wire net.

Why should not birds be happy under such circumstances, with plenty of food, and protected from all enemies? The chances are that they enjoy themselves extremely much. As for the eagles, which ordinarily present so miserable a spectacle in captivity, they occupy in the Washington zoo a big flight cage by themselves, which has been newly erected; and it is evident from their looks and behavior that they are having a pretty decidedly good time.

It has come to be realized that animals need amusement quite as much as human beings do. If they do not get it, they become bored and unhappy; and after a while they sicken and die, or sometimes go crazy. In order to be able to play, they must have plenty of room and the society of their fellows. Most wild creatures are sociable, and desire the company of their kind, just as people do. Elephants are gregarious beasts, and in a wild state go about in herds; when kept singly and alone they suffer from loneliness, and sooner or later become sulky and dangerous.

Dunk, the only elephant at the Washington zoo, was a very unhappy beast, spending his lonely life in a half-dark wooden shanty, and chained by one leg. Humane people sympathized with him and lobbied a bill for his relief through congress, which appropriated $10,000. The money has been spent in building a nice brick cottage for the pachyderm, with large plate-glass windows for cheerfulness and a bath tub with modern plumbing outside. Consequently Dunk's condition will be greatly improved; but some day the management of the zoo hopes to have money enough to keep a small herd of elephants in a large and strongly-fenced inclosure, where, with plenty of room and good companionship, they will have a real chance to enjoy themselves.

Few of the beasts in an ordinary menagerie look more wretched and discontented than the wolves, as they pace their cages up and down. But the wolves at the Washington zoo seem to be perfectly happy. They have large, wire-fenced inclosures to prowl about in, and they jump about with joyous barks when visitors throw pieces of bread to them. One of them has in his inclosure a deal table, on which he loves to take naps. The writer got a first-rate photograph of him the other day, as he lay on the table, taking great pains to approach cautiously lest the animal be frightened. But when, presently, Mr. Wolf jumped down and walked up to the camera, bestowing a lick upon the lens through the wire fence, it became evident that he was not much scared.

The same idea is carried out as far as possible with all the animals at the Washington zoo. A dozen bears occupy real caverns in the side of the hill, and have trees to climb, as well as tubs in which to bathe. Raccoons numbering two score also have a large tree to themselves, with nothing between them and absolute liberty save a 3-foot fence, which surrounds a considerable space of ground. Their content is absolute and obvious. A small herd of buffalo grazes peacefully on a hillside, and the numerous deer range over quite a forest undisturbed, and much better off than they would be in a wild state, being defended from enemies. It is the same way with the kangaroos. The seals have their ponds and the prairie dogs their village, just as if they were at home. As for the lions and tigers, it is not practicable to give them an environment like what they are used to in freedom, but they have spacious outdoor inclosures attached to their indoor quarters.

Such methods of management are now being adopted in all the important zoological gardens in this country. They are not only humane, but have the additional advantage of economy, inasmuch as they prolong the lives of the animals. Also, they display the beasts and birds to far greater advantage. Being founded on common sense, they are sure to be retained and improved upon as time goes on. The secret at the bottom of them may be summed up in three words—the providing of amusement and agreeable surroundings for the captives, so that they may enjoy themselves and be happy.

Christian Science Healing.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you kindly permit me to say a word in your columns concerning the recent decision of the Pennsylvania supreme court refusing to grant a charter to a certain Christian Science association. A news item from Philadelphia relative to this decision appeared in your issue of May 14.

Mrs. Eddy has always taught that the laws pertaining to contagious diseases should be obeyed, both in letter and in spirit, and Christian Scientists do not prescribe drugs nor use surgical instruments, nor do they profess to be qualified to do so. This Pennsylvania decision is contrary to an almost unbroken line of authorities which hold that, since Christian Scientists practice a system so entirely different from materia medica, they cannot properly be required to possess the qualifications which are justly demanded of those who administer poisons and who use dangerous instruments.

God's protection of the prophet Daniel in the den of lions set the seal of divine condemnation upon any law limiting the right of man to approach the Deity in prayer, and unless we are ready to justify the persecutors of Jesus Christ and of His apostles we cannot consistently deny the constitutional right of citizens of the United States to seek God's help in prayer in cases of sickness, for this and this only is the method of Christian Science healing.

DEVERY'S IDEA

Of the Duties of the Mayor of New York.

Wants More Schools, Free Baths, Recreation Piers and Concerts.

New York, May 19.—William S. Devery, ex-chief of police—"Big Bill" of the Ninth district—the implacable foe of the Tammany leader, Charles F. Murphy, aspires to be mayor of Greater New York, and if he enters the race he expects to slip in between two weak candidates. He waxed eloquent on the subject today, and in the course of his remarks said:

"If I run for mayor I'll get elected. Now I ain't no angel an' I may not go to heaven with a pair of white wings, but none of them political grafters that is running Tammany hall can keep me from doin' it.

"I wouldn't give 30 cents to be mayor of New York except for one thing. I'd like to see the poor man get justice. This town's ripe for a turnin' over, like Mayor Jones has given 'em in Toledo, and Tom Johnson in Cleveland, and those anti-political mayors who's been elected up in New England.

"Common people are tired of all the gratitin' that's goin' on here. You was askin' what's the most needed improvement in this city? It'd be an airship in which we could put all these grafters—Republicans and Tammany, fusion, and all the rest—and send 'em out to sea a good many miles and sink 'em. That's what the next mayor ought to do. They're gettin' everything they want under this fusion government, and if Tammany wins again it'll be worse than ever.

"A mayor should rule irrespective of party. Mayor Low isn't doin' it. He don't know how. He's all right for a head of a college, but not for the head of a city.

"Tammany will nominate some pet, not a man of the people, but some man they can manipulate for their own benefit, and this will make a three-cornered fight. It's in the air for some clean cut man to jump in and annihilate all of 'em."

Pressed into a discussion of his own availability, the ex-chief said:

"I was born and raised in this city, and always mixed up with men ten and fifteen years older than I was. I've known men who've run things on both sides ever since Fenton was governor. I know every curve they can pitch, and I know how to hit 'em."

"If you were mayor what would you do about schools?" the ex-chief was asked.

"Now, there's something that needs attention," came the reply. "We ought to have a lot more schools and do away with a lot of them high-salaried professors—professors of music, professors of elocution, and professors of this, and professors of that. There's thousands of children can't get only half time in school. Why, if they'd let out some of these fancy professors they'd save half a million a year, and that'd build three new schoolhouses every year. Let principals and teachers do the work on music, and elocution, and all them things. They have to do it over after the professors any way.

"There ought to be more parks, too. I'd favor a recreation pier every half mile, and they could be double deckers, so commerce could be handled below and people could have recreation above, with all the band concerts the authorities could pay for.

"A lot of public baths are needed, too—one every half mile all along the water front.

"Bridges and tunnels are both good things. They ought to have a bridge every mile and a half over East river, and four tunnels at least to Brooklyn and Queens.

"And all these underground roads like the Pennsylvania—they ought to be part of the subway. Municipal ownership's the thing. Let the people own and operate all these roads. Make 'em carry school children free.

"What'd I do about Sunday beer an' Sunday recreation? Let a man get his beer after church Sunday and throw open the parks and piers to the people. I'd favor a liberal construction of the laws, and give 'em all the liberty possible as long as they keep in decent and respectable limits.

"What we need, too, is a lot more police—at least 3500 more. The fire department is in pretty good shape. Everything is all right in Manhattan, but it's inadequate in Queens, and they ought to be equipped right in all boroughs."

When doctors fail try Burdock Blood Bitters. Cures dyspepsia, constipation; invigorates the whole system.

A RARE DISCOVERY.

The First Franco-American Toast Is Found.

Paris, May 19.—The Figaro says that M. Lacour-Gayet, the learned professor in the Superior School of Marline, has just discovered in the archives of Rue Royale among various unpublished letters of Admiral du Chaffault the first toast of the Franco- American alliance. This informal but cordial toast, in which the sailors of Louis XVI and the soldiers of Washington joined, is worth quoting at the end of 125 years:

"To America! To the king of France! To congress! To the French fleet! To Gen. Washington and to the American army!. To the alliance of France and America, and may it never be broken! To the minister of France near congress! To M. Franklin, minister of America at the court of France! To commerce, arts and agriculture! To M. d'Orvilliers and all the army! To M. le Comte d'Estaing and all the officers of the French squadron which is in the harbor of Boston! To the president of the council and all Americans here present! To Monseigneur the duke of Chartres, to Marie Antoinette, to M. de Chaffault! To M. de Lafayette! To the American sailors and ships! To all the women and maidens who have lost their husbands and sweethearts in the good cause! To M. the duke of Choiseul! To M. de Sartine, to M. de Maurepas!"

On the eve of the St. Louis exposition, in which France is preparing to take so brilliant a part, it is not uninteresting to recall this vibrating toast. It may inspire those who go there next year.

RESOLUTIONS REACH HAY.

Washington, May 18.—Some of the resolutions adopted last Saturday by various mass meetings respecting the Kishineff massacre reached Secretary Hay today. They will all receive consideration, and it may be that some way will be found though none is now clear, by which the substance of these resolutions can be communicated to the Russian government as an evidence of the feeling aroused in the United States.

BRILLIANT RECORD

Of Capt. Pershing---Likely to Be Made Brigadier General.

Case Will Be Drawn to Attention of the President.

Washington, May 20.—"I congratulate you on the work done in Mindanao. Express to Capt. Pershing and the officers and men under his command the thanks of the war department for their able and effective accomplishment of a difficult and important task. ROOT."

"He is fit for any general staff work and equal to any responsibility to that of brigadier general. One of the ablest officers of the army, for I am sure he is to attain a high rank.

"G. W. DAVIS,
"Brigadir General."

The first is a cablegram addressed to Gen. Davis at Manila by the secretary of war. The second is an endorsement by Brig. Gen. G. W. Davis. They both refer to Capt. John Joseph Pershing, of the Fifteenth United States cavalry, a native Missourian, and an officer who in the past year has attracted more attention to himself than perhaps any officer, irrespective of rank, in active service in the Philippine archipelago. The cablegram of the secretary of war was sent last week. The endorsement of Gen. Davis was made in 1901. Since that time Gen. Davis has been promoted to the rank of major general, and now commands all the troops in the Philippines. His endorsement was in line with the repeated recommendations and endorsements of superior officers wh oranked Capt. Pershing from the time he entered the army as a second lieutenant in 1887.

The excellent record which the Missouri officer has made and the recommendation of Gen. Davis has started a movement among his friends and admirers to have him promoted to the rank of brigadier general. The case of Capt. Pershing will be drawn to the attention of President Roosevelt upon his return to Washington, and as there is authority in law for such action, he will be urged to recognize the meritorious service of the captain and encourage the younger officers of the army to like deeds of daring. Naturally enough, there will be strong opposition to the promotion. The older men in the army are opposed to younger men going over their heads and securing places of high rank, because it sets them back in their chances for advancement just in proportion to the youth of the man promoted and to the number of places over which he is passed. There will be a hard struggle over the effort to secure recognition for Capt. Pershing, but just now the chances seem to favor him.

If the promotion comes he will have the distinction of sharing a like honor with only one other man, Gen. James F. Bell, who for distinguished services in the island of Luzon was promoted to the rank of brigadier general from that of captain. Gen. Leonard Wood received a similar promotion while acting as military governor of the island of Cuba, but no other officer has been so distinguished for services in the Philippines. Even in the changes in the personnel of the army following the close of the civil war there are comparatively few precedents for such action. They are only to be found in such cases as that of Gen. John M. Schofield and Gen. Phil Sheridan.

While the record of Capt. Pershing has been without a stain from the time he left the military academy at West Point, in 1886, up to the present, the attention of the people of the most needed improvement in this city? It'd be an airship in which we could put all these grafters—Republicans and Tammany, fusion, and all the rest—and send 'em out to sea a good many miles and sink 'em. That's what the next mayor ought to do. They're gettin' everything they want under this fusion government, and if Tammany wins again it'll be worse than ever.

"A mayor should rule irrespective of party. Mayor Low isn't doin' it. He don't know how. He's all right for a head of a college, but not for the head of a city.

"Tammany will nominate some pet, not a man of the people, but some man they can manipulate for their own benefit, and this will make a three-cornered fight. It's in the air for some clean cut man to jump in and annihilate all of 'em."

Pressed into a discussion of his own availability, the ex-chief said:

"I was born and raised in this city, and always mixed up with men ten and fifteen years older than I was. I've known men who've run things on both sides ever since Fenton was governor. I know every curve they can pitch, and I know how to hit 'em."

pieces by the naked, brown men against whom they were forbidden to fire a shot. Pershing had to contend not only with the vexations and trials of reasoning with savages, who, for three centuries, had held undisputed sway in the country which he invaded, but there was a still greater trial in maintaining the esprit de corps in his own command and following instructions from Washington and Manila to offer the olive branch rather than the sword to the natives.

Pershing did his duty well. No assignment that came to him but was accepted uncomplainingly and carried out to the best of his ability. The time came for the promotion of Gen. Davis and his departure from Camp Vicars. There was at that time in the camp two companies of the Seventh infantry, two troops of the Fifteenth cavalry and the Twenty-fifth, a mountain battery. No field officer was available for the command. Without hesitation Gen. Davis turned over the camp to the care and responsibility of Capt. Pershing. When Gen. Davis was succeeded by Gen. Sumner in September the work of Capt. Pershing had so commended itself that no change was made.

Pershing has participated in more than one savage brush with the Moros and never yet has led his men to defeat. Yet he has done more than that by working systematically along a single line for the pacification of the country and the acceptance of our authority in the Lake Lanao district. Without hope of reward or even of attracting favorable comment to himself, he cheered his men on in the laborious task of building a road from the port on the Bahia de Illigan to the camp of his troops, twenty-four miles away. While carrying on this work he made repeated overtures to the petty potentates in control of the people, and gradually yet peacefully he extended the acceptance of our peaceful overtures through the whole territory. Recently he started from his camp south of the lake and worked around its western circumference to the north and vicinity of Illigan. Then he started around the eastern side of the lake with the same end in view. The cables have told from time to time of his fierce fights at Bacolod and Bayonga and Maciu. They have not told of his efforts to prevent those fights and the long, anxious days spent in parleying with chief and dato, but his efforts have not been unnoticed. While he fought to maintain the spirits of his men, to ward off the enervating effect of the fierce tropical sun, to convince the brown men that the great Western nation sought only their good and the prosperity of their country if they would submit to its authority, he was being watched by his superiors at Manila and by the administration at Washington. The cablegram of the secretary of war and the commendation of the major general in command of all the troops in the Philippines is his reward.

Not many weeks from now Pershing will be relieved in the Moro country and will come to Washington, where he will enter upon new duties as one of the members of the general staff of the army. His assignment to that place will in itself be recognition for his splendid service throughout his military career. To secure it his military record and the indorsement of his superior officers from the time when he first left West Point until a few weeks ago, when the members of the staff were selected, were brought into competition with the similar records of hundreds of other officers. The list, when finally made up, must necessarily be limited. Just in proportion to its limit does the honor it confers increase. His earlier record in the army is not one which is distinguished by brilliancy, but it is plainly one of duty well and faithfully performed.

Pershing was born in Linn county, Mo., Sept. 30, 1860, and was appointed to West Point from that county. He graduated with the class of 1886 and went almost immediately to Fort Bayard, N. M. He saw service from that time until 1891 at Forts Bayard, Stanton, Wingate, Wounded Knee Creek and Niobara. He participated in the campaign against the Sioux at Pine Ridge in 1891. He was attached to the university of Nebraska as military instructor from 1891 to 1895, and while there graduated in law in the class of 1893.

His military record from this time on is told in the archives of the war department in this brief way:

At the headquarters of the army, December, 1896, to May, 1897.

Military academy at West Point as instructor in tactics June, 1897, to April, 1898.

Headquarters of the commanding general of the army, August, 1898, to January, 1899.

In the office of the secretary of war January to December, 1899.

Appointed second lieutenant Sixth cavalry, July, 1886.

First lieutenant Tenth cavalry October, 1892.

Major and chief ordnance officer of volunteers, Aug. 18, 1898.

Honorable discharge from volunteers June 30, 1901.

Captain First cavalry Feb. 2, 1901.

Transferred to Fifteenth cavalry Aug. 20, 1901.

His record also shows that he was of studious habits and very industrious, and had an unusual knowledge of telegraphy and signaling and of carbining and pistol practice. He is a master of both French and Spanish, and in 1898 was recommended for a brevet "for personal gallantry, untiring energy and faithfulness in the battle of San Juan on July 1" by Lieut. Col. Baldwin of the Tenth cavalry. Later he was commended by Capt. William H. Beck for his energy in securing supplies at Santiago while suffering from disease.

"BLACK ART"

Made the Girls Flee From Their Employer.

New York, May 19.—Puzzled by the actions of her employe, who seemed to be afraid of her, and who left on short notice for no apparent reason, Mrs. Fannie Jenick, a dressmaker, in Greene avenue, near Fulton street, Brooklyn, learned that a fortune teller had been telling the girls that their employer was in league with the evil one and practiced the black art.

Mrs. Jenick caused the arrest of the alleged fortune teller, Mrs. Harriet Bergh, 73 years old, of 785 Mercy avenue, and in the Adams street court Magistrate Dooley held the woman in $500 for examination.

Mrs. Jenick went behind one of the girls suddenly, looked over her shoulder and had barely time to say: "Miss," when the girl, looked up, screamed and fled.

All the other girls turned pale. Then one of them ventured to ask: "Is it true, Mrs. Jenick, that you have dealings with him? (pointing downward). We have been told that girls remaining long with you will surely sicken and die." The girls confessed that they had been having their fortunes told.

With Miss Wilhelmina Richter as a witness, Mrs. Jenick went to Mrs. Bergh's and had her fortune told after saying she had just obtained employment at "Mrs. Jenick's."

"For all her supposed second sight," the dressmaker said to a Herald reporter, "Mrs. Bergh did not divine who I was, and such a pedigree as she gave me!"

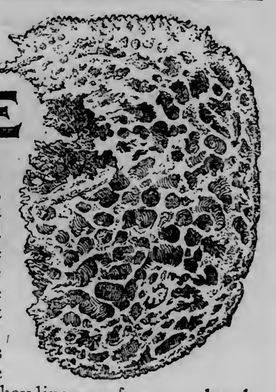
Mrs. Bergh denies that she has been maligning Mrs. Jenick.

Mrs. Jenick accuses a spiritualist, formerly in her employ. "He has been a card distributer for Mrs. Bergh since I discharged him," she says.

A STARTLING TEST.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at all druggists.

THE SKIN LIKE A SPONGE



Through the millions of little mouths, or pores, the skin absorbs from the surrounding atmosphere innumerable poisons, and takes into the blood and system the virus of the most deadly diseases. It is as porous as a sponge, and is supplied with a perfect network of tiny blood vessels that carry to the great current of the blood the impurities and poisons that are absorbed by the skin, and diseases thus contracted become constitutional, deep-seated and as dangerous as those brought on in other ways.

POISON OAK, IVY and other noxious wild plants growing in field and forest percolate through the skin like water through a sponge, and are taken up by the blood, where they linger on for years, breaking out again each season or until the poison has been antidoted and driven from the blood.

BARBER'S ITCH breaks out in yellow pustules and red, angry looking bumps, sometimes covering the entire bearded portion of the face, causing the greatest pain and annoyance, and itching and burning almost incessantly.

DYE POISONING is a common occurrence among the employes of dye houses, and from wearing under-clothing and hosiery colored with cheap dye stuffs which soak through the skin, poison the blood and spread throughout the system, causing boils and sores and great injury to health.

BLOOD POISON, the most loathsome of all human maladies, is often contracted through a friendly hand shake or handling the clothing or some other article used by one afflicted with this disease. The deadly virus finds its way into the blood through the skin, and the body is soon covered with offensive ulcers and red eruptions and blotches.

WORKERS IN LEAD, BRASS AND OTHER METALS—The use of chemicals and acids in the polishing of brass and other metals is attended sometimes with fearful consequences; the acids entering through the pores of the skin are taken into the general circulation, and frightful sores break out, and the general health and system are affected by these dangerous chemicals. Invisible atoms and dust in foundries and factories settle upon the skin and produce irritating eruptions followed by painful boils and obstinate sores.

The diseases that enter the blood and system through the skin are as real, deep-seated and dangerous as those brought on by internal causes, and require the same thorough and radical treatment. You cannot reach them with washes, salves, soaps or other external remedies. The poison must be antidoted or counteracted and the blood purified before the sores and eruptions disappear, and S. S. S. cures by ridding the blood and system of the original poison, and not an atom or taint is left to re-ferment and bring on a fresh outbreak.

SSS

S. S. S. is guaranteed entirely vegetable, an unrivalled blood purifier and the best of all tonics. If your health has been broken down by chemical or lead poisoning, or the effects of blood poison, nothing will give such quick relief as S. S. S. If you are suffering from Barber's Itch or some other eruptive disease, or there is still lurking in your veins Oak or Ivy poison, S. S. S. will drive it out and make a complete and permanent cure.

Write us freely should you desire medical advice or any specific information about your case. This will cost you nothing. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

POISONED BY ACID.

While engaged in cleaning a piece of brass machinery, for which a powerful acid was used, my blood became poisoned, and before long I was one mass of sores. I tried everything that the best physicians prescribed, all to no purpose, and it is difficult to describe the suffering I had to endure. A friend suggested that I try S. S. S. and I improved with the first bottle and in a few months I was entirely cured, and there was not a sore on my body, although the disease left scars equal to a case of smallpox.

POISON OAK AND ITS EFFECTS.

Gentlemen:—Over fifteen years ago I was poisoned with Poison Oak. I tried remedy after remedy without getting relief. Sores broke out over my body and on my tongue, affecting the lining of my mouth. Finally about a year ago my doctor told me to try S. S. S., which I did. After taking three bottles all the sores disappeared, and I have not been bothered since.

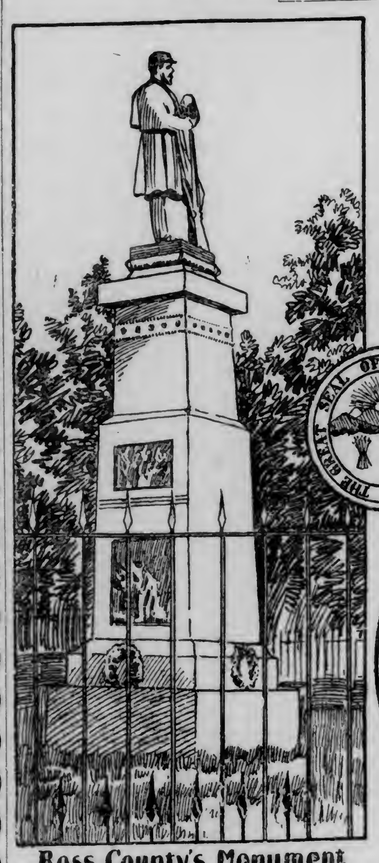
PEOPLE OF BUCKEYE STATE CELEBRATE THEIR CENTENARY

One Hundredth Anniversary of Admission of Ohio to the Union Honored at Chillicothe.



Ross County's Monument to its Heroes

Edward Tiffin, First Governor of Ohio.

Ohio's first Statehouse

Chillicothe, Ohio, May 20.—The centennial of Ohio's statehood was celebrated here today and will continue tomorrow with all the ceremony made possible by the inhabitants of this "ancient metropolis." The state, through the general assembly, made an appropriation and placed the Ohio Historical and Archelogical society in charge as an executive committee to act for the state centennial commission, which is composed of Governor Nash, Gen. J. Warren Keifer, Gen. Charles M. Anderson, Gen. James Barnett, Gen. B. R. Cowen, David S. Gray, R. W. Manly and Rush R. Sloane, but the "heat and burden" of the day of preparation fell upon Chillicothe. The two days' program consists of addresses on historical topics to be delivered in a great tent in the city park, a civic parade Thursday afternoon and a display of fireworks on Thursday night.

Addresses were made today by Hon. Judson Harmon, of Cincinnati; Professor Martin B. Anderson, of Marietta; Judge Rush R. Sloane, of Sandusky; Judge M. M. Granger, formerly of the Ohio supreme court; Gen. Thomas M. Anderson, Murat Halstead, former Governor James E. Campbell, of New York; Senator Foraker and Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor.

SHE IS READY TO FORGIVE

Mrs. Cronk Says She Loves Ground Her Husband Walks On.

Omaha, Neb., May 20.—Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks George H. Cronk, who was the cause of a sensational scene at the transfer station at Council Bluffs last Saturday night, in which his wife assaulted Mrs. Cora Lathrop Patterson, left for the East over the Burlington route. He spent the night at a local hotel without registering, and his whereabouts have been kept as secret as possible. He did not visit his wife or send her any message. Mrs. Cronk was still inclined to hysterics.

"I only intended going as far as the Bluffs with him," she said, "and I did not know that the Patterson woman was going to meet him there. It was all a horrible affair. I do not know whether he intends to return to me or not. I hope so, though. I love the very ground he walks on, even though he has treated me like a dog and gone about with that woman."

It is said that Mrs. Cronk has threatened for some time to bring proceedings for divorce against her husband, Judge Vinsonhaler, past grand master of the Elks, said that the local lodge refuses to believe that its grand exalted ruler, George Cronk, has been guilty of wrongdoing.

"At any rate," said Judge Vinsonhaler, "if the Elks are to take any action in the matter it is for the grand lodge to do so. Anything that the local lodge would do would be appealed in this case and any discussion concerning Mr. Cronk will come up before the grand lodge."

MISSOURI BANKERS.

St. Louis, May 20.—The thirteenth annual convention of the Missouri State Bankers' association met here today with about 400 members present. President Coastin presided. After the reports of officers, Alexander Graves, of Lexington, made an address.

AT WEST DULUTH

A sensational slander case is being heard before Justice Stone today. Mrs. Annie Delborn, of West Duluth, is charged by Mrs. Maggie Baldwin with using slanderous terms when speaking of the latter's daughter.

It is claimed that some days ago Mrs. Delborn, in company with some other West Duluth women, were discussing the names of several West Duluth young ladies as possible candidates for a certain lodge. Among others that of Miss Baldwin was mentioned. It is claimed by the plaintiff that when her daughter's name was brought up the defendant used slanderous terms in speaking of her.

The case is being tried by a jury and the morning was occupied in obtaining twelve men upon whom the two sides could agree. Alexander Marshall is representing the plaintiff and T. J. McKeon the defendant.

Both of the ladies interested in the case are well known in West Duluth and the trial is attracting no little attention.

HAS BEEN SEEN.

Mrs. Regina Olson, who disappeared after being dispossessed of her home, at the corner of Fifty-eighth avenue west and Nicollet street, last Saturday afternoon, is thought to be wandering about the city in a destitute condition. She was seen last Saturday evening in Lester Park by a West Duluth citizen who knew her. She had but a very small sum of money with her at the time of her disappearance, and she is not believed to have had any friends in the city to whom she could go.

The police have seen nothing of her since her disappearance Saturday.

START IS DELAYED.

Delays in installing the machinery prevented the expected opening of the new plant of the Union Match company last Monday.

It is not known definitely when the machines will be started, but it is expected that the first matches will be turned out within a week. The remodeling of the plant and the installing of the heavy machines has been a big undertaking and delays have been unavoidable.

The factory will employ a large number of hands when the ten machines have been installed and will be a notable addition to West Duluth's manufacturing plants.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Go to Nygren's for wall paper.

The West Duluth W. C. T. U. will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. O. Jonhson, on Norton avenue. The subject will be "Dress and the Woman." Mrs. H. R. Patterson will be the leader.

Mrs. Peter O'Donnell, of Hibbing, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Thomas Wright, of Fifty-second avenue.

Miss Huldah Neuman has returned from Chicago, where she spent the winter months with relatives.

The St. Louis mill is closed down today on account of a scarcity of logs.

William Brotherton is recovering from an attack of pneumonia and it is thought he will be able to return to work next week.

Mrs. Anna Hammer, of Fifty-sixth avenue west, is suffering from a cancer. Her condition is serious.

John Rix, of Proctorknott, will leave next week for the coast, where he expects to permanently reside in the future.

Uniform rank, M. W. A., will give a grand ball at the Great Eastern hall Thursday, May 21. La Brosse's orchestra. Chartered car to Duluth. Tickets, 75 cents.

John V. Gilbert, of Proctorknott, has returned from an extended fishing trip. He reported excellent luck and brought back a good string of fish.

The West Duluth baseball team has arranged a game with the Cloquet team for Sunday. It is expected that a much stronger team than met Grand Rapids will journey to Cloquet and a victory is hoped for.

The members of the "Flying Dutchman" baseball team dispute the victory claimed by the "Red Devils," claiming to have won the game by a goodly margin.

C. J. Peterson, of East Grand Forks, is in West Duluth today. He expects to move his family here in the near future.

R. F. Henry, of Aitkin, is in West Duluth today looking after his property interests here.

Mrs. David Comstock, of 419 Sixtieth avenue west, who has been ill, is recovering.

Fresh milch cows for sale. Lewis Mark, Sixty-first avenue.

BIG JOB FOR YOAKUM.

Chicago, May 20.—The Post today says: B. F. Yoakum, president of the St. Louis & San Francisco road, is to be the executive head of the entire Rock Island system. He will succeed W. B. Leeds and will have complete control of the operations of the entire system.

ELECTRICAL DONT'S.

Don't neglect payment of bills until after the last discount day, 12th inst.

Don't allow electric lamps to burn for a limited time, if not actually necessary.

Don't wait until your incandescent lamps burn out—exchange them when they become dim and impaired by service.

Don't use 16 c. p. lamps where 8 or 10 c. p. will suffice.

Don't think an under-reading or over-reading of a meter will fail to correct itself automatically the following month.

Don't neglect notifying the company instantaneously of inaccuracies in bills or imperfections of service.

Don't complain to others of defects in service or errors in accounts—they can not help you; notify the company.

Don't file complaints in a discourteous manner—politeness always commands the best attention.

Don't criticise the meter regardlessly—it is like a camera in that it photographs your imperfections of economy in using artificial light.

Don't permit your employes to use electric light carelessly and then criticise the company for the amount of your bills.

Don't think the company heedless of your interests—your patronage contributes to its success.

Don't censure the employes of the company on account of defects or irregularities for which they are irreprovable.

Don't forget our Trouble Department is at your command day and night.

Don't compare electric with sun light; the paste is never as brilliant as the genuine diamond.

Don't forget the company will cheerfully test your meter at any time—without charge.

Don't forget the Duluth General Electric Company thoroughly appreciates your patronage and wishes to please you; that its service is the best because it is the most uniform and dependable; that its attentions are the most polite, because it is proper they should be.

CARLISLE SUGGESTED

As Candidate For Democratic Presidential Nomination.

Washington, May 20.—Former Secretary Carlisle, while walking through the treasury department transacting business for his clients as unconcernedly as if he had never been in control of the government millions, expressed his views on the political situation cleverly when he said:

"From what I have heard I believe the Democratic party has an excellent opportunity to elect its candidate." Then the former secretary added, with a twinkle in his eye, "if the leaders get together."

His presence here has started a natural fund of gossip relative to the availability of Mr. Carlisle. He was secretary of the treasury under Cleveland, but his leaning towards silver was notorious, and it is well known that if the secretary of the treasury had had his way the country would have been on a silver basis in the summer of 1894. On this account, it is believed, the Bryan men would take to Carlisle much more kindly than to any other man intimately associated with the Cleveland administration. Coming from Kentucky he would have the enthusiastic support of the South, could carry Missouri and would be in a position to make a dangerous sortie into Indiana. On the other hand the ex-secretary has long been practicing law in New York city, and could probably secure the support of that state, providing Hill and Parker are put out of the way.

GOLD FOR EUROPE.

WHEAT IS HIGHER

Market Moves In Narrow Range and Closes Stronger.

Crop Damage Reports Still Coming—Flax Quiet and Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 20.—The wheat market was firm at the opening today and made a slight advance, falling back moderately and again rallying and closing at slightly better prices than yesterday. The Liverpool cables were favorable, that market advancing ¾d. The continental markets were weak, however, Paris being unchanged to ½c lower and Antwerp 1¼c lower. It was reported during the morning that France was trying to resell some wheat bought from American. Receipts were light and Minneapolis reported stocks as decreasing considerably this week. Discouraging reports continued to come from the southwestern crop.

Primary receipts of wheat were 230,000 bushels; last year 220,000 bushels. Shipments, 332,000 bushels; last year 220,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 304,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 106 cars, and at Chicago, 11, a total of 114 cars, against 90 last week and 105 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ½c higher. In Chicago, July corn was ½c higher and July oats ¾c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 406,000 bushels; last year 247,000 bushels. Shipments, 704,000 bushels; last year 276,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 125,000 bushels.

Trading in wheat was fairly active, July opened unchanged at 72c, sold at 72¾c ten minutes later, and then fell off to 72⅝c and to 72c, from there it sold up to 72¾c and continued upward to 73¼c at 12:05, reacted to 73⅝c at 12:25 and again turned stronger, closing at 73⅞c. This was an advance of ⅞c. Subsequently was unchanged. September advanced ½c. In Chicago May was up ½c and July ¾@¾c. Minneapolis May was ½c lower and July ¾c higher. In New York May was ¼c higher and July the same.

Cash prices were unchanged at May price for No. 1 northern and 2c under for No. 2 northern. Sales were 5000 bus.

Flax was quiet and prices moved in a very narrow range. July sold most of the morning ¾c up at $1.16½ but fell off toward the close to $1.16¼ and closed there. September and October closed ¼c higher. Receipts are very light, the posted cars today being only 4 at Minneapolis and one at Duluth.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 81⅜c; No. 1 northern, 79⅝c; No. 2 northern, 77⅝c; May, No. 1 northern, 73⅝c; July, 73¾c; September, 71⅞c. Flax—In store, $1.14⅜; to arrive, $1.15⅜; on track, $1.15⅜; May, $1.14⅜; July, $1.16⅜; September, $1.17½; October, 17½; November, $1.16¾. Oats—To arrive, 32c; on track, 35c; May, 34c. Rye—To arrive, 56c; on track, 50c; May, 56c. Barley — 39@56c. Cars inspected: Wheat, 17, last year, 5; rye, 1. Receipts: Wheat, 23,953; oats, 56,81; rye, 2946; flax, 5699. Shipments: Wheat, 26,707; oats, 100,-000; barley, 5650.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Followed Cables and Small Receipts.

Chicago, May 20.—Wheat opened steady on strong cables and small receipts with July unchanged to ½c lower at 74¼c to 74⅝c. Commission houses were active buyers early in the day and the market became firmer, July advancing to 75⅜@75½c, but later an easier tone developed with free selling by local traders and July receded to 74¾c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 146 cars, which with local receipts of 11 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 114 cars, against 90 cars last week and 105 cars a year ago.

There was considerable liquidation by local holders throughout the day, but there was also a good demand from commission houses. The market was rather unsettled the latter part of the session and after selling up to 75⅝@75¾c, July declined to 74c, but closed at 74⅝@74½c, a gain of ⅝@¾c.

Firm cables, small receipts brought out a good scattered demand for corn at the start and opening prices were firm, July being a shade to ½@¾c higher, at 44⅞c to 45c. The volume of trading was only moderate, but prices held steady the first hour, with considerable covering by shorts. Local receipts were 99 cars, with 13 of contract grade.

The market held steady throughout the day and July closed ¾c higher at 44⅞@45c.

Oats were independently firm on the bullish crop advices while the small receipts also contributed to strengthen the situation. There was a good demand for both July and September the first part of the session and after opening unchanged to ⅛c higher at 34c to 34¼c July sold up to 34½c, with offerings rather light.

Provisions opened steady in spite of the lower prices in hogs incident to the liberal receipts, the sentiment being inclined to higher prices. Trading, however, was small with offerings light. September pork opened unchanged to 2½c lower at $16.87½. September lard was unchanged at $9.07½, and ribs off 2½c at $9.30.

Close: Wheat, May, 80¼c; July, 74⅝@¾c; September, 71¾c; December, 72¾c. Corn, May, 46c; July, 44⅞@45c; September, 44⅝c. Oats, May, 37¼c; July, 33⅝c; September, 31¼@31¾c; December, 31½@32c. Pork, May, $19.00; July, $17.70; September, $16.82½. Lard, May, $9.00; July, $9.05; September, $9.05@9.07½; October, $8.85. Ribs, May, $9.42½; July, $9.47½; September, $9.32½@9.35; October, $9.12½. Rye, May, 50 @51c; July, 50½@51c. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.17; Southwestern, $1.12; May, $1.12; July, $1.14. Timothy, May, $3.50. Clover, May, $11.50. Barley, cash, 42@56c. Cash wheat: No. 2 red, 80@81c; No. 3 red, 73@78c; No. 2 hard winter, 75@78c; No. 3 hard winter, 72@78c; No. 1 northern spring, 81@83c; No. 2 northern spring, 80@83c; No. 3 spring, 75@82c. Corn, No. 2, 44@44½c; no. 3, 44@45c. Oats, No. 2, 33½c; No. 3, 32½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record Herald: The damage to the winter wheat which has been an increasing factor for a fortnight and which has been the chief influence in the wheat market," says William S. Warren, "is within a large circle, including part of Illinois, Indiana, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri. This is a great soft wheat area. The reports indicate that the crop trouble has been mainly from hessian fly on the low lands, but my information indicates there has also been some general deterioration on the uplands, and also plant debility from the cold weather. My summary of the situation is that the losses have been on a scale to change one's crop expectations by about 100,000,000 bus. We have been going on the assumption of an 800,000,000 bushel wheat harvest with no accident in the Northwest. I do not think any one now, still presuming perfect conditions in the Northwest, can figure more than 700,000,000 bushels of wheat.

"I am buying no wheat on the crop damage reports," says James A. Patten, "I believe that the general amount of deterioration is mainly the result of the cold weather of early in the month. The wheat is looking well but I think very much of the cold weather early in May as I believe, the plant will green up again. The oats through Illinois need rain, but their condition is not discouraging. A week of wet weather will make the Illinois prospects look very different."

McKinnon, Chicago: There are further damage reports coming in from Missouri and Kansas and are accompanied by buying orders. The class of buying today has been very good and market in good position for a further advance on account of realizing which took place shortly after the opening. We are running into a market which will do to buy on every weak spot.

• • •

Kansas City wires: There are scattered reports but so far it is claimed the damage by fly is no more than is usual and confined to limited localities and that as a general proposition very little damage is being done.

• • •

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was active and irregular. The closing was strong. There is not much activity in cash situation and immediate supply and demand cut but little figure in making prices at the moment. The news from the winter wheat crop is the controlling factor. While this is naturally conflicting to some extent, the tendency is distinctly worse. Very reliable reports from five or six of the big wheat counties of Kansas today confirm the appearance of damage of Hessian fly and already place the estimate at 25 per cent. Reports generally from the soft winter wheat states east of the Missouri river are confirmatory of deterioration to an important degree. There is a good local and outside speculative buying of this influence. With the comparatively small stock the market easily responds to it. The feeling is strong and the tendency seems higher. Estimated cars 15.

Corn—Market is very quiet and steady. The sympathetic influence of wheat is counteracted by the prospective large receipts. There are some complaints of too much rain in Iowa and of dry weather in other sections, but so far nothing is considered serious. Demand is a moderate one. Estimated cars 165.

Oats—Market was again active and strong. Continued dry weather in the middle west, rather unfavorable reports concerning the growing crops were the features. There is a congestion still in the May option, but the cash demand its only moderate. Estimated cars 215.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: It having become apparent that the Smelting plant of United States Mining company could not be operated to complete satisfaction, and certain changes of a mechanical nature would have to be made, President Robert D. Evans has ordered the entire plant shut down pending its overhauling. Mr. Fischer, the manager of the Smelter, estimates that it will not take over four days to make the changes necessary to operate the plans to full capacity.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 20.—The cotton market opened with a rush of excitement. The New Orleans bull again personally directed operations. The situation now, according to current gossip, has resolved itself into a struggle for supremacy between the New Orleans leader on the one hand and a combination of large interests on the other headed by the leader of the late New England bull clique and prominent exporting people of Philadelphia. The former stands for still further advances, while the latter are fighting to check the advance. This morning the bulls were favored by the Liverpool cables which reported further sensational gains while the bears were encouraged by the favorable weather, good private crop accounts and a continued volume of the movement. But at the opening the bulls carried all before them and first prices were at an advance of 29@37 points with the late months showing the greatest strength. Trading was tremendously heavy and warehouses were overloaded with buying orders, mostly for covering new crop shorts.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 30 points higher; middling uplands, 12.15; middling gulf, 12.40; sales, 500 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady, May, 11.94; June, 11.23; July, 11.25; August, 10.58; September, 9.96; October, 9.59; November, 9.43; December, 9.39; January, 9.39.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 20.—Today's statement of the treasury balance in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $220,878,827; gold, $104,578,889; silver, $22,705,917; United States notes $5,890,049; treasury notes of 1890, $91,405; national bank notes, $9,085,352; total receipts this day, $1,916,678; total receipts this month, $29,288,072; total receipts this year, $466,757,574; total expenditures this day, $1,710,000; total expenditures this month, $29,150,000; total expenditures this year, $461,149,855; deposits in national banks, $155,165,530.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 20.—Money on call steady at 2½@3% closing 2@2½ per cent. Time money steady; 60 and 90 days, 3¾@4 per cent; 6 months, 4½; prime mercantile paper 4¾@5¼. Sterling exchange strong with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.88.15 for demand and $4.85.15 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85¼ and $4.88½@4.89; commercial bills $4.84¾@7¾. Bar silver, 54¾c. Mexican dollars 43c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, weak.

PRESSURE SEVERE

And Stocks Ruled Weak and Declined With Rapidity.

Weakness Caused By Further Arrangements For Gold Exports.

New York, May 20.—Opening price changes of stocks were small and mixed but there was a fair volume of business. In a general way Eastern railway stocks were inclined to advance and those of Western railroads to decline. An advance of ½ in New York Central and a decline of as much in Atchison measured the largest changes.

Further engagements of gold for shipment tomorrow and the news of a surgical operation upon E. H. Harriman had a momentary depressing effect on the market and New York Central, Rock Island, St. Paul, Atchison and Southern Pacific receded sharp fractions. Buying orders came in at the lower level and prices recovered rather easily in spots. Louisville & Nashville rose a point over last night. The trading was quiet on the rally and a decline of a point in Atchison turned prices down again. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred declined 4, Toledo Railroad & Light 2¾; Kansas & Texas preferred 1¾ and Metropolitan Securities a point.

Pressure was severe against Atchison and rumors were revived of a bond issue by the company. Its loss of 1⅞ carried other leading stocks with it to the extent of 1 to 2 points. St. Paul, the Pacifics and grangers were conspicuous sufferers and many low prices for the present movement were recorded. Efforts to market dominated the closing and price had concessions. For 100 shares of Michigan Central 102 was the best price obtainable, compared with 130 on March 1. Otherwise, declines from Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 3½, the preferred 6, Lake Erie & Western preferred and Twin City Rapid Transit 3, Missouri, Kansas & Texas preferred, and American District Telegraph 2½, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 3½ and General Electric 2¼. United Fruit rose 2¼. It was only with the spending of the force of the movement that the decline halted and there was no rally. Bonds were heavy at noon.

Liquidation was resumed on a large scale after the midday pause and prices were depressed considerably below those in the forenoon. Atchison, St. Paul, Reading, Pennsylvania and the Pacifics bore the brunt of the selling, but large amounts of other leading stocks were also let go. Kansas & Texas loss was increased to 3¼. Atchison to 2¾ and St. Paul and Southern Pacifics to 2 points.

A slight fractional rally when the bears took profits was not long maintained, renewed selling of St. Paul forcing it down to 154⅝, and dragging the rest of the list back with it. The market showed a comparatively close to the low point of the day, occasional efforts to advance special stocks bring out more stock than could be absorbed. Sharp losses were more frequent in the inactive quarter. Lackawanna, Pullman, Pump preferred, Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, Chicago Terminal preferred and Pacific Mail yielding 1⅜@ 2½, and Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati & St. Louis 5. Michigan Central after selling at 102, was bid up to 129 before bringing an offering and a sale was made at that price.

Another drive against the market carried prices to sucha low level as to offer attractive profits to the bears and their short covering rallied the market. Selling pressure was renewed at the higher level and prices fell lower than before. Losses were for Atchison and St. Paul 2¾, and Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Reading and the first preferred. St. Louis & San Francisco, Northwestern, Canadian Pacific, Erie second preferred and Amalgamated, 2@3. American Express dropped 9, Indianapolis & St. Louis, 4½, Hocking Valley 4, Tennessee Coal 3⅝, Sloss-Sheffield preferred 3¼, and North American 3½ and Cotton Oil 2¾. Arrangements for gold exports to South America next week aggravated the weakness of the market. The close was active and weak at about the lowest.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Although there is considerable diversity of opinion as to whether the lowest prices have been reached the best sentiment is bullish. The indications are that stocks have generally passed into strong hands and that James R. Keene having recovered his health is a factor in speculation on the long side. It was pointed out last night that stocks like St. Paul, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, and the low-priced coalers are quoted very low as compared with a few months ago, though on almost all of these issues more money is being earned, despite increased cost of railroad operation, than at any time in over a year. A significant feature of the situation is what is regarded as the changing attitude of Europe toward securities, a change brought about by the recline of the past few months. Foreigners tired of being sellers have of late been steady buyers. As a result of this movement shipments of securities to the other side are being made in increased volume, some estimates placing for the current week at over 50,000 shares. Putting this amount with purchases by domestic buyers for investment it is calculated that in the past fortnight at least 300,000 shares of stocks have been taken up and paid for, thus removing a heavy weight from the market. Gold shipments, big collections by the treasury and continued tension in cotton, though existing a bearish influence on the views of professionals, do not change the belief of experienced brokers that as a rule stocks at present prices are a purchase.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Not much is heard about damage to the crops by the present drouth. According to the press reports dry weather has so far done little or no damage to wheat or corn, but whatever damage there might be the insiders would know it long before the public.

• • •

Harris, Gates & Co.: Current rumor has it that Mr. Keene is bullish and, while doing little in the market himself, is advising the purchase of stocks for a turn. It is said that Mr. Keene will not become active in a speculative way until he returns from Europe. He is expected to sail for the other side early next month.

COPPER IS FIRM

Metal Price Is Holding Steady and Buyers More Active.

Selling For Lake Superior Account Works Against an Advance.

George L. Walker finds the copper market still firm and with a little more activity. In his last letter he says:

Copper is holding firm, and prices are unchanged. Lake is 15 to 15¼ cents, and electrolytic is similarly quoted. There is a little more activity on the part of consumers and the prospect is that some heavy orders will be placed for the crop this month or the end of next. So far as can be learned there have been no sales made below 15 cents per pound, and only a small part of the engaged hands at that price. There continues to be a marked scarcity of electrolytic copper, and it will not be surprising if this grade continues to rule as high as Lake for some time to come.

Advices from London state that the trade there is bearish on the metal market, the consumers there anxiously influencing themselves in an effort to stave off purchases a few weeks, believing that prices will soon be lower. Copper for immediate consumption is selling 2s 6d higher than future deliveries. It is generally admitted there, however, that more copper will go into consumption in Europe this summer than ever before, and also that the prospect strongly favors a steadily increasing demand for the metal for years to come.

Attention is also called in several times in these letters to the fact that recent inventions have made possible the transmission of electricity for lighting and power purposes over a great distance without appreciable loss. These developments have already resulted n the purchase of numerous suburban electric plants by interests associated with the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., of this city, the plan being to generate the power used in a great central plant located at tide water, saving the cost of transporting coal and of maintaining the numerous isolated plants. Now it is announced that the Old Colony Street Railway Co., a sub-company of the Massachusetts Electric companies will install 11 steam turbines in three stations, located at tide water, at Newport, Fall River and Quincy, and with them generate the power used on its entire system. One statement is that thirteen existing power plants will be displaced by these three new plants.

The importance of this reform that is going on in the electrical world can hardly be over estimated. It means that copper wire is taking the place of the coal train, which has been depended upon to carry fuel to mills factories and power plants in the interior. It means also that electric power, already a quite successful competitor of the steam engine, has received new reinforcement. The while question of the relative economy of operating the railroads by locomotives and by electric power has been reopened, and the latter has come up this time under especially favorable conditions, the railroads having within a few months suffered an immense loss of earnings by reason of the high prices paid for coal. There are some good authorities who believe that the work of equipping the steam railroads of the eastern half of the United States with electricity will be well under way a year or two hence. If they are right, the chances strongly favor 30-cent copper.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Inspectors Are Investigating the Sinking of the Tug Gillen.

Shippers Having Great Trouble In Getting Grain For Cargoes.

An investigation into the collision of the steamer Maunaloa and the tug Gillen, which resulted in the sinking of the latter is being held by Capt. Monaghan and M. F. Chalk, the local officials of the United States marine inspection bureau, to fix the blame for the accident.

The statements of the two captains have been filed at the local office of the bureau and testimony in the case is being heard. The evidence will not be completed until the return of the steamer Maunaloa, which is at present on her way to Lake Erie with a load of ore. The testimony of the officers of the tug has already been taken.

Both of the captains state in their reports that their fog signals were working and that they were proceeding at a slow rate of speed. They further state that the fog was very dense at the time and that the two vessels were within a very short distance of each other before either was aware of the other's presence.

The tug lies in about 45 feet of water a short distance outside the Superior entry and even if she is raised the loss will be heavy as she was cut almost in two by the collision.

GRAIN IS VERY SCARCE.

Chicago, May 20.—Special to The Herald.)—The grain trade is daily becoming more unsatisfactory to vesselmen, owing to the carcity of grain. The demand for tonnage particularly is brisk at current prices, and shippers have no difficulty in selling cargoes. The boats chartered to carry them are taken several days ahead, and those being confident that their grain will be here by the time the vessel is ready to load. As a general rule the grain is not here by the time when the vessel reaches the elevators and then serious delays ensue. A steamer had to go to six elevators in South Chicago the other day before securing her cargo. Shippers have been confident that the grain would soon begin to come forward, but today's receipts of 99 cars of corn give no indication in that direction.

TOBARE GETS NO DAMAGES

Peculiar Action Against Street Railway Company Is Tried.

There was an interesting suit tried in the municipal court yesterday. Clement Fobare asked $480 damages against the Duluth-Superior Traction company because he was put off a car for spitting on the floor.

The plaintiff also claimed that he was ejected with such violence that he failed to maintain a perpendicular position when he hit the paving and that out of $200 in gold in his pocket at the time $100 rolled out and was lost.

The jury this morning returned a verdict in favor of the traction company.

FIRE AT LINCOLN, NEB.

The Loss Is Estimated at $125,000.

Lincoln, Neb., May 20.—Fire that started shortly before noon in the Brownell block, a four-story office building in Eveleth street, between O and N streets, gutted hat structure causing a loss estimated at $125,000 and for a time threatened surrounding property.

The heaviest individual loser is Carl Funke, crockery, $25,000. Two clerks in the Funke store reported missing, were rescued unhurt. Fifteen firemen were overcome temporarily by smoke and the intense heat and taken to the hospital, but their condition is not serious.

THIRTY BUILDINGS

Have Been Burned at St. Hyacinthe, Que.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., May 20.—Fire broke out today in the shoe factory of J. A. and M. Cote, and spread so rapidly that within an hour the flames were beyond control and the whole lower town was burning. The fire spread towards St. Antoin street on the river front, licking up factories and stores, which cover the district. Up to 2 o'clock thirty buildings had been destroyed. Montreal has been telegraphed for aid, which is on its way.

TO MEET AT ST. PAUL.

Chicago, May 20.—St. Paul has been selected by the executive committee of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments as the place and July 21-24 as the time for the seventh annual convention of the association. Many of the most prominent food manufacturers of the country will be on the program.

Duluth Corporation Files With Secretary of State.

St. Paul, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The secretary of state today received $275 for one incorporation fee. The Rainy Lake company, of Duluth, incorporated today with a capital stock of $5,500,000, of which $3,500,000 is preferred stock at 6 per cent. C. J. Ruggles, of Virginia, is president and treasurer, and Hansen Smith, of Duluth, is secretary.

The company will deal in logs, lumber and timber lands, build brick yards and operate paper mills.

BUT TWO PERSONS

Were Involved In Attack on Colored Carrier.

Washington, May 20.—Postmaster General Payne today received the official report of the investigation into the recent intimidation of John Allgood, the colored rural free delivery carrier at Gallatin, Tenn. The report says that only two persons were involved in the affair, and that the sentiment of the community does not uphold their act. The carrier is afraid to resume the service, believing his life would be endangered thereby although Inspector Conger, who made the investigation, reports that he believes the carrier will be entirely safe.

Senator Bate of Tennessee called on Postmaster General Payne and urged resumption of service on the suspended route, but the postmaster general deferred action pending a carefull consideration of the report.

STATE DEPARTMENT

Disclaims Any Responsibility For Blue Book.

Washington, May 20.—Because Sir Michael Herbert and other representatives of the powers took exception to certain foot notes included in the blue book on Venezuela, the state department has assured them that the book was prepared by Mr. Bowen and is not to be considered an official publication of the department.

ASKS INFORMATION.

Washington, May 20.—In answer to her suggestion that a claim for compensation be lodged against Turkey in the amount of the ransom paid for her release by the brigands, Miss Ellen Stone has been requested to supply the department of state with the necessary information upon which to frame a formal application.

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Union label shoes. Ehle. Torrey Bldg.

Rev. J. W. Powell, pastor of the Endion Methodist church, will speak this evening at the Star of Hope Mission, 522 West Superior street. There will be special singing.

Easy terms and low prices on Grand Rapids furniture. T. W. Cameron, 10 East Superior street.

A warranty deed has been filed with the register of deeds of this county, transferring from the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, to William McBean and others, the northerly 100 feet of lots 18 and 19, the easterly ten feet of lot 20, in block 4, Portland division. The consideration was $7000.

John Shoults has sold Celina Martel the westerly half of lot 60, block 51, Duluth proper, Third division, for $900.

Parlor Theater, fine program tonight.

Building permits have been issued to Robert Smith for a $500 residence, and Charles Older for a similar structure on East First street, to cost $2500.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the register of deeds by a society termed the Rev. Oblate Fathers. The incorporators are D. E. Guillet, Joseph Magnan, Urgel Poitras and Zachary Lacasse. The general business indicated is the temporal affairs of the Catholic church.

Parlor Theater. Olio of star specialties.

The regular monthly meeting of the Commercial club will take place this evening. It will be the first session presided over by the new president, W. A. McGonagle. Various important committee reports are to be presented this evening in connection with the regular routine work and the new business that will come before the club.

PURELY PERSONAL

Mrs. G. W. Rice, of New Hartford, Conn., is a guest of Mrs. J. M. Barnes, of Lester Park.

Senator T. M. Pugh returned yesterday from a visit to his farm near Mankato, where he has been for the past three weeks. He reports that the crop outlook in that section of the state is excellent.

George W. R. Matteson, of Providence, R. I., and his son, Frank Matteson, are in the city, the guests of W. M. Prindle. The elder Mr. Matteson owns the Burrows building and the Brown estate, for which he is trustee and attorney, has large property holdings here, including the Lonsdale building. The owner of the property is an infant two years old, John Nicholas Brown, who is at present in very feeble health.

John Howe will leave over the Northern Pacific this evening for St. Paul.

Miss Louis Hicks is visiting relatives in Port Huron, Lapeer and Detroit, Mich.

Newman Kline, assistant general superintendent of the Northern Pacific, was in the city yesterday.

J. J. Skuse left this afternoon over the Northern Pacific for St. Paul.

COUNTESS GHERARDESCA.

New York, May 20.—In the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends, Miss Harriet Taylor, the only daughter of Henry A. C. Taylor, was married to Count Giuseppe Della Gherardesca, honorary attache of the Italian embassy at Washington, today, at the home of her father in this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Farry, of Brooklyn.

WILL GO TO BALTIMORE.

Washington, May 20.—It is announced at the navy department that the cruisers Prairie and Topeka, now conducting experiments in wireless telegraphy in Chesapeake bay, will probably be sent to Baltimore to represent the navy on the occasion of the national saengerfest, June 1.

TALK OUT OF SEASON

There Is Considerable Political Talk, Far Ahead of Election.

Several Men Have Been Mentioned as Mayoralty Candidates.

Though this is the closed season on politics, there is a good deal of political talk going on which seems to be escaping the notice of the political game wardens.

The mayoralty is the principal topic of discussion, and while apparently none of the people mentioned as possible candidates are doing any of the talking themselves, several names are being handed about in that connection. Among them are those of Guy A. Eaton, E. L. Millar, W. O. Pealer and C. T. Fitzsimmons. They have all been mentioned as possibilities for the next Republican nomination, though none of them have made any statements tending to show that they really have the idea in their heads.

It is, of course, too early for the political outlook to assume any definite shape, either on the mayoralty candidates or on candidates for any other places in the gift of the people.

Next to the mayoralty, the Republican nomination for governor in 1904 is the principal subject of discussion. It seems to be pretty generally believed that Van Sant is a candidate for a third term, and that unless he should be scared out by a discovery of the condition of public sentiment regarding his candidacy he will be in the field looking for delegates. His friends at this end of the state, should he come out, will undoubtedly make an attempt to capture the St. Louis county convention for him, but at this date that does not look like a very easy task when their numbers are considered. There is considerable Dunn sentiment here.

* * *

There has been very little talk of county offices, but there is a report that A. P. Cook may be a candidate for county auditor to succeed Odin Halden.

Work For All.

The army of unemployed men will have no trouble in finding work in the Northwest at the present time. The local employment offices are flooded with new orders and the reports indicate that trouble is being encountered to find enough men to ship. The new work consists mostly of railroad construction, though there is a steady demand for men by some of the lumber companies. Quite a large number of men are being shipped out daily for railroad work on the range.

WANTED!

Good Stationary Engineer for Red Cliff mill.

Apply Red Cliff Lumber Co., 501 TORREY BLDG.

GOVERNMENT WORK.

Operations at Superior Entry Pier Progressing Well.

The dredging work for the new south pier at the Superior entry is well underway at the present time and the government has a crew of about twenty men employed at the work. This number will be increased as the work progresses. As soon as the dredging is completed the piling for the foundation work will be put in under the Hugo & Sims contract.

This firm began this week its contract for the piling at the new pier which is being constructed at Port Wing, on the south shore, the first government pier that has ever been built at that place. The Port Wing work was laid out by Assistant United States Engineer Wadsworth.

The work on the new breakwater at Ashland will begin some time next week.

Assistant United States Engineer J. H. Darling has gone to Grand Marais, on the north shore, to look over the government piers at that point. Mr. Darling will then go to Ontonagon Mich., where he is to do some sounding at the mouth of the Ontonagon river.

ABSCONDER CAUGHT.

Man From Copenhagen Arrested at Oakland.

Oakland, Cal., May 20.—After being tracked across the continent, Julius A. Jorgensen, absconding cashier of the Copenhagen Savings bank of Denmark and his companion, Miss Johanne Moeller, who was a bookkeeper in the bank, have been arrested here on a warrant charging them with embezzlement of $8000 from the Copenhagen bank some time last month. The man is also accused of having deserted his wife and eloping with the woman in whose company he was when taken into custody.

JUDGE HAMMER DEAD.

Decatur, Ill., May 20.—Judge Wm. L. Hammer, aged 86, died at his home here today. He was one of the founders of the first bank in Decatur, had been for fifty years one of the most prominent business men and was several times elected county judge.

RIVER STILL RISING.

La Crosse, Wis., May 20.—The Mississippi has risen another inch at this point during the past 24 hours. Trow's mill has been forced to shut down on account of high water. Many lumber piles are surrounded by water and some in danger of floating away. Farmers on French island, three miles north of here have had to move their livestock to the mainland to save it from drowning. Their homes and barns are entirely surrounded by water.

BULLET HOLE IN BREAST.

Milwaukee, May 20.—The body of Emil Hafemeister, with a bullet hole in his breast was found in the river near Lincoln avenue today. His condition denoted a struggle had taken place. The theory that he met foul play is given some credence.

VENGEANCE WAS SWIFT

White Man and Two Negroes Lynched In Florida.

Tampa, Fla., May 20.—Amos Randall, white, and Dan Kennedy and Henry Golden, negroes, were lynched at Mulberry, Polk county, thirty miles from here, early this morning, for the murde rof Barney Brown, a white man. Randall was charged with being an operator of a "blind tiger" and Brown was a promineth advocate of Prohibition in the campaign which ended yesterday. Monday night while Brown was enroute home, he was shot from ambush and his throat cut. The people of Mulberry became enraged and yesterday secured evidence which led them to believe that Randall had employed negroes to kil Brown. The three men were taken into custody and one of the negroes confessed that Randall had hired them to commit the crime. The trio were taken out about 3 o'clock this morning and lynched, their bodies being riddled with bullets. It is said the work was done by a mob of about fifty unmasked men, many of whom were prominent in the county.

SAILED THROUGH OIL

Probably Explains Loss of the Tanker Luckenbach.

Philadelphia, May 20.—A dispatch received at the maritime exchange today announces that the British bark Skoda has arrived at Black River, Jamaica, and reports that on April 20, 250 miles off Cape Charles, she passed through water covered for miles with oil. This probably explains the loss of the tanker S. V. Luckenbach, which left Sabine Pass on March 19, for Marcus Hook, Pa., loaded with oil. Since the date of sailing the Luckenbach has not been heard from and has been given up for lost. She carried a crew of thirty-two men.

Some people can hardly realize the purchasing power of a dollar until they see the bargains displayed at the Eagle Clothing Co.'s Big Building sale, starting Thursday, May 21st.

KELLEHER HELD.

Chicago, May 20.—Stephen Kelleher, arrested in connection with the shooting of Patrol Sergt. Miller yesterday, was arraigned today and held in bonds of $10,000 pending an attempt to capture his companions. His hearing was set for May 29.

DEFALCATION GAINS.

Washington, May 20.—The controller of the currency today received a telegram from the national bank examiner in charge of the Southport (Conn.) National bank, which closed yesterday, which indicates that the defalcation of the former cashier is about $150,000 instead of $100,000 as at first reported.

CLERGUE DROPPED BY SOO COMPANIES

Is No Longer a Director or an Officer.

The Company Is to Buy Its Bessemer Ore.

Philadelphia, May 21.—The Philadelphia News Bureau says:

The reorganization of the companies subsidiary to the Consolidated Lake Superior company, which has lately been completed, drops F. H. Clergue as a director as well as an officer from all of them. James Butterworth, although resigning from the directorate of the parent company, retains his place in most of the subsidiary plants. H. A. Berwind, who resigned from the Consolidated Lake Superior board to make way for H. K. McHarg, has been placed on the directorate of every one of the underlying concerns.

The present directors of the Algoma Commercial company, limited, the Algoma Central & Hudson Bay Railway company, the Algoma Steel company, limited, the International Transit company, the Lake Superior Power company, the Manitoulin & North Shore Railway company, the Michigan, Lake Superior Power company, the Ontario Lake Superior company and the Sault Ste. Marie Pulp and Paper company are identical as follows: James Butterworth, C. Shields, E. H. Sanborn, H. A. Berwind, Samuel Rea, T. C. Search and James S. Swartz. The directors of the British American Express Express company and the Tagona Water and Light company are similar except that the names of Messrs. Butterworth and Swartz are absent from the former and the names of Messrs. Butterworth and Sanborn from the latter.

We hear officially that the present management of the Consolidated Lake Superior company will proceed upon the inference that they own no Bessemer ore. Development work at the Josephine mine, which was alleged by the previous management to contain the Bessemer ingredients, has been stopped pending a series of boring tests which is now under way. It is under contemplation that Bessemer ore will have to be obtained from outside sources and it is said that the company will simply go into the market to buy it, as needed, where it can be obtained cheapest. As the company now expects to have its new furnaces in operation July 1, and to start the steel plant later after a supply of Bessemer pig has been produced, arrangements have, of course been already made for the first supply of Bessemer ore.

Should any of the company's iron ore property, in the future, be found to contain ore of Bessemer quality, the management would find itself only the better off for its present policy of banking only on certainties.

FREEDOM OF THE INDIVIDUAL NECESSARY IN LABOR WORLD

Orange, N. J., May 21.—Speaking on labor unions at a dinner of the Civic club of Orange, last night, Bishop Potter said the conditions which confront the people of America today are largely of their own making. He declared that one person had more to do with the situation than any one else, and that was the manager of a shop or factory, not because he tried to understand the interests of the workingman, but because he wanted to get out of the workingman all he possibly could for the benefit of his employer, nothing more.

"I believe," said Bishop Potter, "the folly of the labor organizations in several instances has alienated a great deal of the sympathy that would otherwise have gone to them. One thing we must realize is that the community is not made up of either laborers or capitalists, but rather of those between who are very largely affected by these differences.

"The time may come when organized labor may make itself so unpleasant that it may not be able to stay in New York. The great stumbling block in organized labor is that the freedom of the individual is invaded and this has got to be corrected."

PRIEST ENVELOPED IN FLAMES

St. Louis, May 21.—At Columbia, Ill., twelve miles east of here, the body of Rev. Father Barnard Claus, rector of the Catholic church, enveloped in flames, was discovered lying in the hallway of the parochial residence by Rev. Father Joseph Duenn, the assistant priest. Father Duenn seized the body and carried it into the yard and hurriedly extinguished the flames. The inquest developed that Father Claus was striken dead by apoplexy while entering his residence and carrying a lamp. The oil from the broken lamp immediately saturated his clothing after he had fallen dead and had ignited it. Father Duenn was slightly burned.

NEGRO KILLED AFTER HOT BATTLE

Corinth, Miss., May 21.—After an exciting battle, Mose Hart, a Negro, was shot to death near here last night by a posse of citizens. Hart had been arrested for carrying concealed weapons, and when on trial before Mayor Young used insulting epithets. Marshal Bell was directed to keep order, whereupon the Negro drew a revolver and fired upon Bell. Hart broke from the court room and escaped to a house near the cemetery. The house was fired, and when the Negro emerged he was riddled with bullets.

MORGAN WILL DODGE THE DUTY

New York, May 21.—Under the designation "household effects," J. P. Morgan will be able to bring into this country most of his art treasures that are now scattered through the museums of Europe, or are in his London house. Mr. Morgan has ordered his agents to gather together all his paintings, bric-a-brac and antiques, and it is believed Americans will have an opportunity of seeing one of the finest private collections in the world. These objects of art are appraised at not less than $2,000,000, and had Mr. Morgan imported them a year ago he would have been obliged to pay almost $300,000 as duty.

Many of the paintings and smaller antiques have been in Mr. Morgan's Park Lane house for more than a year and, therefore, come under the head of "household effects," which are not dutiable. It is said Mr. Morgan's lease of a fine home in Park Lane was made more with a view to obtaining a legal residence for his valuable art treasures than to have a dwelling house in London's famous avenue.

ACTRESS PLAYS WHILE CHILD DIES

Chicago, May 21.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from New York says: Grace George, starring in a play at a local theater, went through her lines last night under circumstances so trying that her physician fears for her health. While she sang, danced and brought roars of laughter from the audience, her only child, 2 years old, was dying at her apartments. Miss George is in private life Mrs. William A. Brady, wife of the theatrical manager. The moment the curtain was rung down on the final act, Mrs. Brady jumped into a cab without stopping to change her costume for her street dress and was driven home as fast as the horses could travel. When she joined her husband and learned that the child probably would not live, she collapsed.

STOMACH PUMPS SAVE EIGHTEEN

San Juan, P. R., May 21.—Eighteen people liivng at a boarding house here were poisoned yesterday by milk containing ptomaines. Eleven doctors responded to the alarm and the use of stomach pumps saved the lives of all the sufferers. The Americans affected were Messrs. Kellogg, Sisson, Gordon, Schultz and Hallen and Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick. They are all out of danger. At the Maternity hospital the nurses, helpers and some of the patients were similarly poisoned, but were relieved by stomach pumps. The incident has caused alarm throughout San Juan.

MORGAN IS BUSY

Noted Financier Giving His Attention to English Enterprises.

Working Hard on Scheme For London Underground Railway.

New York, May 21.—There are indications that J. P. Morgan is going to turn his attention chiefly to England for some time to come, says a London dispatch to the Press.

Since his arrival in England four weeks ago he has been working with tremendous zeal on his new scheme for building an underground electric line from the Bank of England northeast toward Waltham abbey, at a cost of $70,000,000. The bill authorizing the road was thrown out by the committee of parliament to which it had been referred ten days ago.

It will, however, come before parliament again next week, but in another form, and it will, it is expected, go through. Mr. Morgan is offering inducements to local municipal bodies along his proposed route. The borough council of Hackney has received from him an offer to purchase 600 feet of land on which to build a public library, providing the council will not oppose him in obtaining a site for a station in a convenient spot within their jurisdicton. The proposed new line runs through a section part of which is now sparsely occupied, but it would tap a large suburban district beyond, occupyed chiefly by workmen who have gone out into the country for the cheaper rents.

COMPETENT MEN NEEDED

Unions Would Get Recognition If They Had Them.

New York, May 21.—"If the labor unions were made up of competent men there would be no trouble about their getting recognition. Capitalists would go to them, hat in hand, asking competent men to come into their employ," said Professor Frederick D. Hutton, of Columbia, addressing 200 graduates of the Packard Commercial school at Carnegie hall. "Influence, friendship or policy may give you the opportunity to try, but it is competence only which will keep you in a position. Why is President Roosevelt in the position he now holds? Because he showed himself competent all through life. If men organize themselves in a union to force incompetent men into positions of trust, there will always be trouble."

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, president of the Armour institute of technology, of Chicago, in his address said that young men had always ruled the world, but that young women had always ruled the young men.

LIABILITIES EXAGGERATED

Porter Bros. Company Failure Not of Magnitude Stated.

Chicago, May 21.—According to a statement made by Attorney Defreese, of Defreese, Brace & Ritter, counsel for the receivers of Porter Bros. company, the magnitude of the concern's embarrassment has been over-estimated in the printed reports of the failure.

"I know already that liabilities are in excess of $800,000," said Mr. Defreese, "and I don't know how much higher they will amount, if any, when we are fully informed. It is ridiculous to state, however, that the liabilities will reach $3,000,000."

As to the events which led up to the crash, Mr. Defreese said he did not know positively. "The company has been branching out recently, in addition to doing a very large business. I suppose," he said, "that Mr. Watson, the president, tried to realize money on securities of some sort and failed."

The firm's creditors, most of whom are banking institutions and warehouse companies, are scattered all over the country, although confined chiefly to the larger cities. The reason for suppressing the facts concerning the filing of the petition was that all creditors might receive notification simultaneously.

TWO KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Huntsville, Ala., May 21.—Mrs. Thomas Countess, of Meridianville, near heer, and a servant, Margaret Morris, were struck by lightning during a storm last night and instantly killed. Two daughters narrowly escaped.

HANDSOME INCOME

Secured By Enterprising Man From Wealthy New Yorkers.

Scheme Was Worked By Means of Begging Letters.

New York, May 21.—Begging letters sent to well-known New Yorkers have netted to Olgar Beckwith Neilson, said to have been cashiered from the Danish army, an income of $300 a month during the last two years, according to Special Agent James Ford, who has caused Neilson's arrest.

Mr. Ford said that the man had three stereotyped forms of letters—one asking for work, another asking for money and a third begging a personal appointment. His plea was always the same, Mr. Ford says. He was a Dane and an ex-army officer who had been driven to pawn his valuable jewelry, and the time for redeeming these pledges had nearly expired.

Neilson said that it was his marriage that cost him his place in the army. The woman accompanied him to court, where she declared that she had no knowledge that he had ever written any such letters.

Agent Ford says that three books, containing the names of New Yorkers, were found in the man's comfortably furnished apartment. Neilson's list of correspondences, it is said, included the names of George J. Gould, Andrew Carnegie, J. Pierpont Morgan, John W. Gates, Hetty Green and Russell Sage.

YOUNG EDISON'S "VITALIZER"

Acts on Brain as Effectually as on Other Organs.

New York, May 21.—One of the most interesting and important scientific experiments that have ever been performed has just been completed in the laboratory of Thomas A. Edison, Jr., at No. 14 Stone street, New York. The experiment had for its purpose the measurement of the exact extent to which young Mr. Edison's famous invention, the Magno-Electric Vitalizer was able to stimulate and assist the brain in its mental processes. The tests were made by applying the units of the Magno-Electric Vitalizer to one of two students chosen from the third-year class of New York university. The second student did not wear the appliance.

To each student there was propounded a problem of moderate difficulty, steps having been taken to measure by suitable apparatus the exact period of time occupied by the mental response of the subject. Upon comparing the results of ten such trials, it was found that the average improvement in the mental response of the student who wore the Mago-Electric Vitalizer was 3 6-10 seconds quicker than that of the other student—in other words, that young Mr. Edison's invention enabled the wearer to think much more quickly than was possible without the aid of the appliance.

The same experiment was made with public school pupils from the second grammar grade. These children yielded similar results.

Scientifically and practically, young Mr. Edison's experiment is expected to have great results, the more so as it has just been discovered that all the brain processes of thought and consciousness are of electrical character. It is consequently predicted that the Magno-Electric Vitalizer will soon be in as general use in the schools and colleges of the United States as in the homes. The appliance has already demonstrated thoroughly its power to control and cure such intractable diseases as Locomotor Ataxia, Chronic Rheumatism, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Kidney trouble and similar complaints, and now that its new properties as a brain tonic have been tested there seems to be no limit to its sphere of action.

Perhaps the best evidence of the great value of young Mr. Edison's famous invention is afforded by the recent attempt of a coterie of Wall street men to purchase the patent and manufacturing rights of the discovery for $750,000. The inventor, it is said, absolutely declined the offer, because he knew the purchasers intended to exploit the Vitalizer at the expense of the public. For philanthropic reasons the younger Edison wishes to keep the price of the Vitalizer as low as possible, so that every sick person may be able to obtain its help.

When young Mr. Edison was seen at his laboratory yesterday, he said: "Months ago I demonstrated that perfect health was dependent upon the electrical condition of the spinal cord. The Vitalizer cures disease by supplying this natural electrical force to the nerves. In addition to this I have just proved that the Vitalizer is a powerful brain tonic. It greatly increases mental alertness and energy.

"I am determined that this invention shall not fall into the hands of those who would regard it only as a money-making business. That is why I am myself attending to the letters of patients. You can tell your readers for me that the poorest man is as important in my eyes as the richest. Any man who has a 2-cent stamp can write to me here at No. 14 Stone street, New York, and obtain my personal advice concerning the applicability of the Vitalizer to his case."

DISCOUNT RATE REDUCED.

London, May 21.—The directors of the Bank of England today reduced the bank's rate of discount from 4 to 3½ per cent. The reduction was attributed partially to offers of American gold and to gold shipments from New York to Paris.

JEWS LIVE IN HOURLY DREAD OF MASSACRE

M. DE PLEHVE, RUSSIAN MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR, AND THE MASSACRE OF JEWS.

M. de Plehve, Russian minister of the interior, is by many held responsible for the massacre of Jews at Kishineff. The London Times states that before the riots he wrote General von Raaben, governor of the province in which Kishineff is located, warning him that attacks were to be made on the Jews and instructing him to stop disorders "by means of admonitions, without at all having recourse, however, to arms."

Repetition of the Awful Slaughter at Kishineff Is Feared.

Only an Energetic Policy Can Save the People.

Fanatics Were In a Peculiar State of Mind.

Berlin, May 21.—The singular state of mind of the townspeople of Kishineff, while they were killing the Jews there about a month ago, is described in a letter from a non-Jewish German of Odessa, received by the relief committee. He said:

"The leaders of the bands on entering Jewish dwellings, often addressed the occupants good naturedly, saying: 'Poor bretheren, we must kill you. It is so ordered.'

"Monstrous things were not done until robbers began to participate and then they, with the Christian zealots, became intoxicated. The state of terror of the Jews at Kishineff, the letter adds, continued. A fresh massacre is expected there and the Jews of Odessa and of all the large towns of Besarabia are living in hourly dread of death. The whole province seems to be in a state of fanatical fury against the Jews. The writer of the letter then adds:

"The excitement is intensified through proclamations distributed in the streets and the tone of the bitterly anti-Semitic newspapers. The Russians say to their educated and tolerant countrymen, who urge keeping the peace: 'It is the czar's will that the Jews be everywhere robbed. Orders have been given that we start again at Pentecost.'

"The situation has become all the worse since the important Russian papers have been prevented by the censorship from freely epressing their opinions. Their behavior, almost without exception, has been excellent. Unless the St. Petersburg government adopts a more energetic policy the events at Kishineff will undoubtedly be repeated in other towns. As indicating the complete disapproval of the best classes, respectable Russian lawyers are assisting the sufferers to obtain redress."

DOMINICAN PRIEST SAYS ARCHBISHOP IS MISTAKEN

Father Coleman Says the Remarks of Archbishop Ireland Considering the Religious Conditions In the Philippines Are Not According to Facts.

San Franscisco, May 21.—Rev. Father Ambrose Coleman, a Dominican priest, who is on his way to Manila on a special mission, made comment today on the reported remarks of Archbishop Ireland concerning conditions in the Philippines. Archbishop Ireland was quoted as saying that Rome had left the entire Philippine question to Mgr. Guidi and the three American bishops, who are together to go there. Father Coleman says the entire question was virtually settled in the recent pontifical letter, which directed that the Dominican friars are to retain control of the University of Manila and that the bishops are instructed to determine what parishes are to be entrusted to the friars. There is not a word, he says, about expulsion or elimination of any kind. Father Coleman declared that Archbishop Ireland did not speak as an archbishop, but merely as a citizen, and he, (Father Coleman) can't understand the reasons which prompted the archbishop to make the statement attributed to him.

ROSEBERRY FIRM FOR FREE TRADE

London, May 21.—Lord Rosebery expresses surprise that his speech at Burnely on May 19, in which he dealt with Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's tariff speech, delivered at Birmingham on May 15, has been interpreted as in any way supporting Mr. Chamberlain's proposal to establish reciprocity between Great Britain and her colonies and explains that he purposely treated the subject uncontroversially because he was addressing a non-political audience. Lord Rosebery adheres absolutely to his opinion that the Liberal party is indissolubly bound to free trade and that anything like an imperial commercial league would weaken the empire internally and excite the permanent hostility of the whole world.

INVALID SERVANT GETS A PENSION

New York, May 21.—Through the generosity of Mrs. Collis P. Huntington, her invalid servant, Miss Lizzie Connell, will spend the remainder of her days in her native home in Ireland, supported as long as she lives by her American mistress. Miss Connell was shot by Daniel Harkins, a gardner on the estate of Mrs. Huntington, at Throg's Neck, six months ago. Harkins suspected that the young woman, who was engaged to be married, was trying to oust him from his position so that her intended husband could have it. He shot her three times. The young woman spent several weeks at the home of Mrs. Huntington and was then removed to a hospital. When Miss Connell was discharged from the hospital she was paralyzed. Recently Miss Connell expressed a desire to go home to Ireland. Mrs. Huntington agreed to pay all her expenses and to forward to her $25 a month as long as she lived.

ANOTHER LANDSLIDE IMMINENT

Victoria, B. C., May 21.—A special to the Colonial from Frank says a crack four feet wide and 3000 feet long has opened a couple of hundred yards back from the face of the western peak of Turtle mountain at the summit. A dispatch has been received at Frank from the lieutenant governor of the territory ordering the mounted police to inform everybody of the danger, and suggesting the immediate evacuation of the place.

ARMY BLANKETS ARE FEVER LADEN

London, May 21.—An outbreak of enteric fever on board of the reformatory ship Cornwall, which is lying off Purfiet, at the mouth of the Thames, has been traced to fever-infected army blankets from South Africa. Thousands of similar blankets have been sold and sent all over the country, without even being washed or disinfected. The army regulations provide that such articles shall be destroyed, and it is not known how the blankets came to be sent to England. The Daily Mail this morning declares that it is a scandal demanding the strictest investigation.

MILLMEN HAVE QUIT WORK

New Richmond, Wis., Employes Leave Without Making Demands.

St. Paul, May 21.—A New Richmond, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: The employes of the Willow River Lumber company are on a strike, and both saw and planing mills have shut down. It is one of the largest plants in Northern Wisconsin, and has been running night and day. The strike is peculiar, the men simply having quit without giving the company any notice or making any demands or stating grievances. It is supposed the men struck for ten hours' work and eleven hours' pay, but the company had no official notice of the demands.

SPANISH SHIP.

Displayed All Flags But the United States.

San Juan, P. R., May 21.—The first anniversary of Cuban independence was celebrated here last night by a banquet. The guests included Governor Hunt, the United States officials, a number of Americans, the consular officers and the leading Porto Ricans of this city. The members of the Spanish colony, with few exceptions, ignored the invitations sent to them. A Cuban line steamer owned by Spaniards dressed ship and displayed all flags but the American flag, which caused much comment.

AMERICAN INTERESTS

Were Not Molested During the Honduras Revolution.

San Francisco, May 21.—Alfred E. Moe, United States consul at Tegucigalpa, capital of Honduras, has arrived here on the steamer Newport on leave of absence, and will visit his home in New Jersey. He played an important part recently in the capitulation of Tegucigalpa when the forces of the retiring president gave way to the victorious army of Bonilla, the new president. The interests of Americans and other foreigners, he says, were not molested during the revolution.

WEEK OF GOOD FISHING.

Toledo, Ohio, May 21.—Grover Cleveland and Admiral Lamberton left Middle Bass last night after a week of good fishing. In answer to questions by an Associated Press correspondent, Mr. Cleveland said he did not care to discuss political matters further than he had already. He returns to Princeton at once.

CIGARET EVIL

Effort to Be Made to Stamp It Out Among Boys.

Arrest of Eleven-Year-Old Boy Draws Attention to Law.

Cigaret smoking by a boy of 11 may be the means of sending him to the reform school until he is 21.

Yesterday Arthur Manke was arrested on a cigaret smoking charge, the complaint being filed against him by H. C. Withrow, the local probation, humane and truant officer.

The authorities do not say so in so many words, but it is generally understood that this is the first move in an effort to stamp out the growing tendency toward cigaret smoking on the part of boys under 18 years.

The law not only prohibits minors smoking, but imposes a penalty of $50 on any person convicted of furnishing boys under 18 with cigarets. It is the intention of the authorities to work both laws to their fullest extent wherever and whenever they apprehend a boy smoking.

Manke's case will be tried in the municipal court next Monday morning. It is reported that an effort will be made to prove invalidity in the anti-cigaret law, but the prosecuting officers say that they have looked the law up very carefully and in addition say they will be backed in an overwhelming public sentiment in making this test case.

The law was tried and found to hold in a similar case prosecuted about two years ago, and the agitation at that time, apparently, had the desired effect in decreasing the number of juvenile smokers.

It is claimed that the cigaret habit is growing to an enormous extent among Duluth boys, it not being an unfrequent thing to see a youngster under 10 smoking.

The dealers about the city report a large sale of coffin nail material to boys under 18, but say they seldom buy the cigarets already made, preferring to roll them.

One of these dealers says that the anti-cigaret law is one of the best on the Minnesota statute books, but it is not enforced and the dealers have largely got into the habit of selling to minors without fully realizing that they are violating the law.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Old Suits For Damages Revived Against Arthur Phipps.

Calumet—Col. W. Arthur Phipps, millionaire mine owner, who was largely responsible for the floatation of the Calumet & Arizona copper mine, will be called upon to settle for alleged slanderous articles which appeared in the Calumet Conglomerate, a paper he published here twelve years ago. At that time Phipps was a partner of M. A. Sessions in the newspaper business. Joseph A. Thibault of Lake Linden was awarded a judgment against Phipps of $1701.82 in a suit for damages. Phipps was in very poor circumstances and was confined to the county jail in default of payment, but was finally released after Thibault tired of paying his board bills. Phipps has been very successful in several big deals since that time and his wealth is rated at several millions. He travels in his private car and frequently visits the Arizona mining districts, in which he is heavily interested.

Houghton—With a view to establishing a theory regarding the methods by which nature deposited the copper in the Lake Superior district, Dr. George A. Koenig, professor of chemistry and metalurgy at the Michigan college of mines, is making a methodical analysis of water from the different copper country mines. Nowhere else on the globe has native copper, practically free from ores, such as exists here, been found in commercial quantities. Professor Koenig will try to evolve a theory to explain why a metal so universally contained in ores should be found in an unalloyed state in such large quantities in only one district. This is a mystery and offers an interesting field for study and experiment by scientists.

Escanaba—Escanaba possesses the distinction of having a family five of whose members are lawyers. It is that of John Power, former United States district attorney and well known in legal and political circles throughout the state.

Mr. Power's youngest son, Victor L., has just been admitted to the bar in Illinois. His eldest son, Walter J., is practicing law at Hibbing, Minn., and another son, George, is a prominent attorney of Houghton, Mich.

The legal talent is not confined to the masculine branch of the family, however, for Mr. Power's daughter, Miss May, who was admitted to the bar in Illinois, is located in Chicago and has an extensive practice.

Powers—While Baggageman Lawrence was checking box cars he was surprised to see a human arm projecting from one of them. Investigation disclosed that it was the arm of a tramp, who, with a companion, had spent three days and three nights in the car without food or water.

Ishpeming—President Mather of the Cleveland Cliffs iron company, who has just paid a visit of inspection to the mines, railroads and other property of the corporation, announces that a beet sugar factory will likely be added to the company's industries.

Lake Linden—One of the results of President Agassiz' recent visit to the copper country was the appointment of H. W. Cake to the superintendency of the Calumet and Hecla stamp mills at Lake Linden.

Hancock—Sixteen students of the summer school of the mining department of McGill university, Montreal, are in the copper country on a ten-day tour of inspection of the mines.

Sault Ste. Marie—John Wilcox, who owns a farm near the Soo, has planted a small plat of ground to peanuts.

Bay City—The Masonic Temple was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $100,000, with only $40,000 insurance.

CELEBRATE AT BARCELONA.

Barcelona, Spain, May 21.—The first anniversary of the proclamation of the Cuban republic was celebrated here by a dinner yesterday evening which was attended by fifty Cubans and the consuls of Cuba, the United States and Brazil. The consuls in their toasts made friendly references to Spain.

EXISTENCE OF FEUD

Austrian Sectional Feeling Brought Up In Tanko Case.

Murderer and Victim Representatives of Different Sections.

Two more witnesses will be heard this afternoon and J. Tanko's fate will rest with the jury. Tanko finished his testimony yesterday afternoon and his chums, Frank Painter and Frank Krozier, who were with him when he went to George Bollich's house, were called to the stand this morning.

The testimony thus far shows that Tanko came from the southern part of Austria and Bollich came from the northern part of that country and that between the two sections of the same country a sort of feud seems to exist that has on more than one occasion resulted in fights and bloodshed.

While on the witness stand yesterday afternoon, John Tanko claimed that when he was forced from Bollich's house he started for Pahala's home, but, remembering that he was going to the woods the next day, went back to Garnek's house and procured his shotgun, which is a double-barreled breech loading firearm. He claimed that when passing Bollich's house he fired one or two shots, but did not intend to hit the house. When Bollich and his companions came running from the house, Tanko says he started to run away and had gone about forty feet when Bollich overtook him and tried to wrest the gun from his grasp. Tanko claimed he was afraid Bollich meant to shoot him and he pleaded with him to be released; that in the scuffle the gun went off and he saw Bollich fall to the ground.

According to his testimony, Tanko did not wait to see how badly Bollich was injured, but went directly to his sister's, told her what had happened and then went to bed. Tanko claims he does not remember telling the officers who arrested him the reason why he shot Bollich was because he would not let the witness drink beer in his house.

The testimony of Painter and Krozier was mainly along the line of what happened during the afternoon preceding the shooting and what transpired in Bollich's house. Tanko's sister will be one of the witnesses this afternoon.

BE INDEPENDENT.

It's Easy to Shake Off the Coffee Habit.

There are many people who make the humiliating acknowledgment that they are dependent upon Coffee to "brace them up" every little while. These have never learned the truth about Postum Cereal Coffee, which makes leaving off coffee a simple matter and brings health and strength in place of coffee ills. A lady of Davenport, Iowa, who has used Postum Pood Coffee for five years is competent to talk upon the subject. She says:

"I am a school teacher and during extra work when I thought I needed to be braced up I used to indulge in rich, strong coffee of which I was very fond and upon which I thought I was dependent.

"I began to have serious heart palpitation and at times had sharp pains around the heart and more or less stomach trouble. I read about Postum and got some to try. I dropped coffee, took up the Postum and it worked such wonders for me that many of my friends tok it up.

"In a short time I was well again, even able to attend evening socials. And I did not miss my coffee at all. Now I can truthfully say that I have been repaid fully for the change I made. I have no indications of heart disease, and not once in the past four years have I had a sick headache of bilious spell.

"My father, 78 years old, is a Postum enthusiast and feels that his good health in a large measure is due to the 6 cups of good Postum which he enjoys each day." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There is a reason.

GETS A VERDICT.

John Manwaring Awarded $1500 For Loss of Fingers.

John Manwaring has been rendered a judgment of $1500 against the Drake & Stratton company for the loss of some fingers while coupling the defendants' cars at the stripping operations on the range. The case went to the jury yesterday afternoon, in district court, and a sealed verdict was returned this morning. The plaintiff brought an action to recover $1999.

Another personal injury action, that of Emil Johnson against Nolan Bros. & Laird, a lumbering concern with a sawmill at Skibo, is on trial in Judge Ensign's room today. The plaintiff alleges that while going home from his work at the mill late one evening he fell from the loading platform and injured his leg. He brought the action to recover $3000 damages, claiming that the defendant company was negligent in that it did not provide a railing about the platform and a light at the head of the stairway.

The personal injury case of Craig against the Benedictine Sisters' Hospital association is still on trial in Judge Cant's room.

PRINCESS EULALIE

Ordered By Queen Mother to Leave Spain.

Madrid, May 21.—It is reported in the newspapers here that the Princess Eulalie has been ordered out of Spain by the queen mother, and that she will obey the order to depart. The princess has been living in Paris since the separation from her husband. She recently returned to this city announcing that she intended to do something she had long contemplated—that is build an extension to the royal palace in Quintana street.

The work was under way when the princess and the queen mother became engaged in a bitter quarrel. The queen mother took the gay princess to task for abandoning her husband and expressed the greatest disgust because of the life she was leading.

The outcome of the quarrel was that the dowager asked the princess to quit Spain at once. The princess has made it known that she has decided not to continue her building operations and will at once return to Paris.

NORTHERN SECURITIES

To Continue Despite Decision In Merger Case.

New York, May 21.—The Evening Sun's financial article says those nervous souls who are worrying about the Northern Securities company and speculating as to what it will do in the event of an adverse decision by the United States supreme court on appeal are likely to find much enlightenment in the charter of the company.

If the company is compelled to return the stocks of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern there is nothing to prevent it from purchasing the stocks of other companies or enlarging its present policy of securing investment securities that will net hearty returns. The Securities company will continue to be an important factor in financial affairs, no matter what the final decision of the courts may be.

FIRE WARDENS SHOULD REPORT

Any Forest Fires That Occur In Their Territory.

St. Paul, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last legislature made the fire warden law more effective by a dozen amendments. By one of these the state is to pay two-thirds of the local expense and counties one-third. Fire wardens must promptly comply with the insstructions of the chief fire warden, with reference to the lires in the vicinity. The chief fire warden has sent the following to the Hibbing press:

St. Paul, May 18.—To the Editor: I was surprised to see in a Hibbing paper that forest fires had occurred in the latter part of April in the vicinity of Hibbing, as I have received no report whatver of any such fires from any wardens at that place. The law constitutes the town supervisors fire wardens, and it is especially the duty of the chairman of the town board, without delay, to inquire into the cause of each forest fire and to immediately report the facts to the chief fire warden.

The following are the fire wardens for the town of Stuntz, and who duly received their instructions: W. G. Barret, chairman; William G. Close, William Danahy. The law makes it the duty of fire wardens to "enforce" the provisions of the fire warden law "to take precautions to prevent the setting of forest fires," to post warning notices in conspicuous places, to patrol their districts in a dry season, or, under the direction of the chief fire warden, to employ one or more patrols, to warn against careless use of fire, any person they think likely to be negligent therein; if fires occur to go and control them, and in emergencies call upon any male person over 18 years old to assist. If they have evidence that a person has negligently caused such a fire, they must immediately go before a justice and make complaint. They must promptly comply with the instructions of the chief fire warden.

Fire wardens are paid $2 a day for services rendered, the county paying one-third and the state two-thirds of such expense. We are liable every year to have some weeks of dry and dangerous weather in the forest regions, but if the local fire wardens are faithful in the discharge of their duties forest fires can to a great extent be prevented. The public, which elects these officers, should hold them personally responsible in a very large degree for the prevention of such fires.

Chief Fire Warden.

ORPHANS BURNED.

Two Children Lose Lives at Merrill, Mich.

Merrill, Mich., May 21.—Pearl and Edna Gill, aged 3 and 5 years, respectively, orphans, who had been adopted by Mrs. E. L. Butler, lost their lives in a fire that destroyed the Butler home at 7 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Butler was at a neighbor's when the fire broke out and the children were asleep on the first floor of the house. They were smothered to death before help could reach them and their bodies slightly burned.

OHIO'S CELEBRATION.

A Much Larger Attendance on the Second Day.

Chillicothe, Ohio, May 21.—The second and closing day of the centennial celebration of Ohio's statehood opened with largely increased attendance and fine weather.

Gen. R. Brinkerhoff presided. Thomas Ewing, Jr., of New York city, spoke on "The Ohio Presidents" and Bishop C. C. McCabe, of Omaha, discussed "Religious Influences in Ohio."

The program for the afternoon included a military and civic parade, a reception to distinguished visiting women by the women's centennial committee.

GEN. ESTRADA KILLED.

Was Leader of Forces of Nicaragua's President.

San Francisco, May 21.—Eugene J. Gruettner, an American of Salt Lake City, who arrived from Corinto today on the steamer Newport, says that Gen. Estrada, the leader of the forces of President Zelaya in Nicaragua, was killed in battle with the insurgents, near Rivas, on April 27. His troops were routed with great loss and the revolutionists succeeded in capturing a large quantity of arms and ammunition. The insurgents now have possession of the port of San Carlos, and have complete control of Lake Nicaragua.

HARRIMAN ALL RIGHT.

New York, May 21.—The physicians attending E. H. Harriman, who yesterday underwent an operation for appendicitis, today stated that his condition was satisfactory, with temperature and pulse normal and no pain.

THE DROUGHT BROKEN.

San Juan, P. R., May 21.—The drought has been generally broken by copious rains which were preceded by fierce electrical storms and slight earth shocks the longest lasting four seconds. The crops suffered severely and their ruin was narrowly averted. The hot spell was the most severe on record.

ROUSS' SON GETS VERDICT.

New York, May 21.—The jury in the suit of Charles Broadway Rouss, who was suing the Chas. Broadway Rouss estate for $100,000 for maintenance and support, returned a verdict for the full amount today, with $576 interest. The boy in suing claimed to be the son of Charles Broadway Rouss.

FIGHTS FOREST FIRES.

Millionaire William Rockefeller Works With His Men.

New York, May 21.—Mr. and Mrs. William Rockefeller of this city have been staying for the last few weeks at Bay Pond in the Adirondacks where the principal building of the Rockefeller preserve is located. All around them, from a distance of two miles to twenty from the main camp, forest fires have been raging for twenty-two days. At first the flames were driven to the southward from Bay Pond to the Rockefeller park, but the breezes shifted and sent sparks from the burning trees again towards the southeast. Then the fires leaped across the railway tracks about two miles above the Rockefeller camp and burned through the forest on the south of the camp.

Mr. Rockefeller, when he saw the fires leap through the tops of the trees so dangerously near his camp thought for a short time it would have to go. The burning brands were hurled within a short distance of the main buildings and for several hours gangs of men struggled to prevent the destruction of the private railway station. Three gangs numbering in each instance forty and upwards, have been and still are fighting the fires about the Rockefeller camp. Mr. Rockefeller also worked to prevent the spread of the fires, traveling with his men along the railway tracks on a hand car and extinguishing the fires wherever he could.

CASE WAS VERY SENSATIONAL

Title to Land Involved In Paternity of a Child.

Pittsburg, May 21.—The end of one of the most sensational cases ever tried in the United States circuit court came up today when the jury, in the case of Beverly Robinson against Robert S. Stephenson and others, returned a verdict for the defendants. The case was for eighteen feet of property in Wood street, worth about $100,000, and involved the paternity of a child. The plaintiff claimed title through a child which, he alleged, was born to his wife, who was his cousin, Miss Katherine Vera Robinson. They were married Dec. 1, 1896, and it is alleged that the child was born in March, 1897, in Omaha, where they had gone to avoid publicity. Robinson and his wife were accompanied to Omaha by Mrs. David Gregg Metheny, sister of Mrs. Robinson. The family came East after the birth of the child, and in the summer of 1898 they spent several weeks at Fairhaven, Vt. One day Mrs. Metheny was seized with convulsions and died very suddenly. The next morning Mrs. Robinson and the child were dead, both having been shot. The suicide or murder of the woman and the murder of the child were testified to during the trial of the case. The defense was that the child was not the child of Mrs. Robinson, but the child of Mrs. Metheny. Metheny is one of the defendants, and the verdict gives him the title through the child born to his wife.

WILL BE NO CHANGE

Rumors of Duluth-Twin City Time Table Changes Denied.

There Is Some Talk of a Later Train At Night.

Changes in the schedule of train time and changes in train service between Duluth and the Twin Cities, which has been talked of for the past two weeks among railroad men, will probably not go into effect June 1.

It has been rumored that the Omaha road would put on a night train between Duluth and Minneapolis, and that it would be a fast and a late one. This caused the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads to consider holding their trains until midnight or after, on the night runs between the cities.

Superintendent G. E. Vanderslice of the Duluth division of the Northern Pacific said this morning:

"We have a new time table which goes into effect June 1, but it does not effect any trains coming into or going out of Duluth. Some additions have been made in the schedule covering the summer season of runs in the lake regions near the Twin Cities, White Bear lake and other points in the vicinity, but that will not touch this end of the line.

"Unless there is something definite done about putting on the train that has been talked about so much lately to New Duluth and Fond du Lac, there will be no alteration of the time tables for Duluth on our road."

At the office of the Omaha general agent it was said this morning that there was no official notification that a night train would be put on, though there had been talk of it. It was further said that in case the road had intended putting one on at the beginning of June, it is more than probable that it would have been announced through official channels ere this. If it were under serious consideration now, it could not be put on much before July 1 at the earliest.

The Great Northern road frequently holds the train due to leave shortly after 11 o'clock in the evening until after midnight, and makes St. Paul in good time in the morning. It is said that the proposition to make the train an after-midnight train out of Duluth and Minneapolis had been most seriously considered by this road.

Some minor changes will be made in the Great Northern schedule for June 1, it is said, and while there can be little better time offered in the daylight service, some alterations may be made.

LOCAL YARD WORK.

Northern Pacific Still Doing a Good Deal.

No announcement of definite locations of the new freight house or freight warehouse addition for the Northern Pacific has been received in Duluth as yet by the local representatives of the road, but this is expected every day. The operating department is making all arrangements to begin an immense job of filling under the long trestle which runs out to the No. 2 dock east of Rice's Point. Bids will be asked for shortly for work of construction on the freight warehouse, and surveyors will be detailed in a few days to stake out the lines on the location chosen.

No Successor Yet.

General Agent T. E. Blanche of the Northern Pacific road said this morning he had not appointed a successor to Edward J. Koors as chief clerk, and would probably not make an announcement for a day or two.

Engineers Say Pipe Connections Should Not Precede Street Paving.

Claim Result Will Be Sagging, Which Cannot Be Helped.

In the interest of a good looking and serviceable street the Commercial club urges water, sewer and gas connections put in East Superior street before the new paving is put down.

Engineers and property owners say present conditions are against this much-desired state of affairs. The engineers say that owing to Duluth's singularly wet subsoil and climatic conditions almost any street paving will soon sag down where sewer connections are put in, thus spoiling the appearance of the street.

They say if a really good looking street surface is desired the city should quarantine itself against sheet asphalt, for it is about the only paving that does not repair properly.

In support of the assertion that all paving will sag more or less the engineers cite the case of the brick paving on East Superior street. Sewer connections were ordered in there before the paving was put down and every effort made to keep the ditches from settling when refilled but they settled nevertheless and much of the Superior street brick paving will have to be taken up and repaired despite the fact that it has been down but two years.

As for making connections on East Superior street, the connections are now in from Third avenue east to Eighth avenue east. Connections are not in nor were they ordered in under the asphalt paving between Eighth and Sixteenth for the reason that property development throughout that district is uncertain. If it builds up closely connections will be needed every twenty-five feet, or they may only be needed for every fifty or one hundred feet and the property owners object to paying the extra burden of expense of connections at frequent intervals until they see what the future holds in store for the street.

The council has ordered connections made before the paving is put down between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues east.

RAILROAD SUED

For Discrimination In the Transportation of Coal.

Denver, May 21.—A Republican special from Gunnison, Col., says that suits have been commenced against the Colorado & Southern railroad by the Baldwin Coal company for damages in the sum of $800,000, through alleged violation of the constitution of the state, by granting "undue and unreasonable discrimination and preference" to a rival coal company, in the way of furnishing means of transportation for its product and denying the same to the plaintiff. Professor Frank Trucbell is made party to the suit, and is charged with owning an interest in the favored company. The defense has filed a denial and pleads that it is not obligated to furnish transportation facilities on the plaintiff's tracks, which run from a branch of the road to the mine.

THREE NEW DRILLS

Two More Churn Drills Sent to the Highland Range.

Claimed That They Are Sent By the Northern Pacific.

There are now three drills working on the Highland range, and with all that industry it ought not to be very long before everybody knows whether or not that district is an iron region or simple acreage.

Besides the drill for the McLeod Iron company, which went in last week and is now working, two drills went in day before yesterday and they are being set up on lands in sections 3 and 4-51-11. It is claimed by some of those interested in the Highland range that they were sent in by the Northern Pacific road, which owns the land on which they are to explore.

All three are churn drills with diamond drill attachments, so that they can be used as churn drills while the ground is of such a nature to permit it, and can then be turned into diamond drills when the holes get into rock and makes diamond drills necessary.

Those who have been claiming all along that large deposits of iron ore are located at Highland are still sanguine, and as there has yet been no developments, there has been no reason for them to change their views. The work of the diamond drills will cause one side or the other to acquire a new set of views regarding the Highland range. Either the skeptics will have to become believers, or those who have stuck up for the range will have to back down.

KEMPSTER MISTAKEN

All the Copies of His Report Are Accounted For.

Washington, May 21.—The statement of Dr. Walter Kempster, telegraphed from Milwaukee last night, that the entire government edition of 10,000 copies of a report made by him on the condition of the Jews in Russia in 1891 had disappeared, and intimating that it was suppressed or destroyed through Russian agencies, is not substantiated by the records of the government printing office. Instead of 10,000 copies, 6000 were printed in pursuance of a resolution of congress, 2000 for use of the senate and 4000 for the use of the house. They were placed to the credit of individual senators and representatives and distributed by them. Some of the reports still stand to the credit of representatives and senators, and in one case the entire twenty-one copies placed to the credit of a senator are still in the folding room awaiting his order.

MAN KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Five Barrels of Hydrocarbon Caused Big Fire.

New York, May 21.—An explosion of five barrels of hydro carbon in the New York Central yards at 156th street and Sheridan avenue today caused a disastrous fire and resulted in the death of one man and the serious injury of several others. An erroneous report to the effect that eight men had been burned to death, was sent to police headquarters, but was shortly afterward denied. The man who lost his life was Joseph Careno, 35 years old, and the seriously injured are John Weyler, 42 years old, and Leonard Stoker, 21 years old, both severely burned.

The fire spread to three gas tanks, the machine and repair shops and several freight cars. The explosion of the gas tanks caused a great deal of confusion, and for a time it was feared that it would be impossible to save the hundreds of cars lying in the yards. The Twentieth Century express for Chicago and other New York Central trains were delayed by the fire.

TAKING DEPOSITIONS.

Cincinnati, May 21.—Depositions are still being taken in this city for the Moses Fowler Chase hearing at Lafayette, Ind., next Monday. The depositions of most of the people who met the young man while he was living with his aunt, Mrs. Chas. H. Duhme, in Cincinnati, are being taken to show that he was not insane at that time. The taking of depositions has been in progress here for a week and will continue indefinitely.

MANY HAVE CHECKS

John M. Finkbone Missing and Several People Mourn.

Checks That Have No Value Turn Up Against Him.

Obtaining circulating medium on misrepresentation is the charge now made against John M. Finkbone, who mysteriously disappeared last Sunday.

Worthless personal checks, aggregating $300, have turned up against the missing stock promoter and rumor has it that there are others.

Mr. Finkbone has been prominent in local business circles for the past six weeks. He is said to come from Columbus, Ohio, and first came to the notice of local business men with a scheme for organizing a summer resort stock company with a summer hotel to be located at Rice Lake.

This was discouraged by local men of money to whom the plan was proposed, and immediately afterward Mr. Finkbone made a canvass of many of the downtown offices in the interest of an iron mining company organized on a stock basis and said to have an option on promising undeveloped iron land in this county.

It is further charged that Mr. Finkbone sold much of this stock, giving his personal check as a guarantee that the stock would reach a certain point within a given time. How many of these checks were given out is not known, but complaint has been made on several.

A Superior street jeweler and a prominent haberdasher complained yesterday that they had taken checks drawn by Mr. Finkbone only to discover that he did not have funds in any bank in the city. From the jeweler he purchased a gold watch, and the worthlesss check given in payment was for $85.

For some time past Mr. Finkbone had been stopping at the Spalding hotel. It is reported that he cashed a check for $40 on this institution.

The authorities have no clue as to his whereabouts, but an investigation of the affairs of the missing promoter is being made.

WANT BAER TO PRODUCE

Certain Contracts Made By the Reading Railroad.

Washington, May 21.—A vigorous effort is to be made by the interstate commerce commission to compel President Baer, of the Reading Coal and Iron company, and the Reading railroad and officials of other anthracite coal carrying roads to answer certain questions and to produce certain documents which they refused at the recent hearing before the commission in New York, to answer and produce. The particular documents, the originals of which are demanded by the commission, are alleged contracts among the coal carrying roads limiting the production of coal. Upon request of the commission, Attorney General Knox instructed Gen. Burnett, district attorney for the southern district of New York, to present a petition to the United tSates circuit court and ask for an order to compel the officials of the coal carrying roads to appear before the commission, answer the questions and produce the documents. The petition was received by the interstate commerce commission today and will be signed, probably tomorrow.

That the people of Duluth will take active interest in the Commercial club prize contest for a characteristic phrase for Duluth, is already evident. This morning Secretary H. V. This lady cared nothing about the prize offered, but thought the honor of evolving a suitable phrase would be sufficient recompense for anybody.

The Beginning of Trouble.

A disordered stomach may cause no end of trouble. When the stomach fails to perform its functions the bowels become deranged and the liver and kidneys congested, causing numerous diseases, the most fatal of which are painless, therefore the more to be dreaded. The important thing is to restore the stomach and liver to a healthy condition, and for this purpose no better preparation can be used than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Mysterious Death of Lakota Man at East Grand Forks.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Allen McMaster, a prominent resident of Lakota, died suddenly in East Grand Forks Tuesday. Some mystery surrounds the death and two stories are told concerning it. Immediately after his death, which occurred in a saloon, two men stated that McAllister got into an altercation with the bartender and that the latter had struck him, death following the blow almost instantly. The other story is that the man became faint while on the street and was taken into the saloon, that being the next place, and died of heart disease. The case is being investigated by physicians and by the county attorney of Polk county. Witnesses have been examined by the latter, but all the proceedings have been secret.

Linton—Linton contemplates a triple celebration in July for the completion of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Northern Pacific railways, and for the nation's independence day. An effort will be made to get a good outside band to assist the local musicians.

Fargo—The Millers' club of the Red River valley held an interesting session here, the features of which were the banquet and the social session following. The club has a large membership and the meetings are held monthly. Prospective action of the national convention, to be held in Detroit, Mich., was discussed at some length.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Redfield—Judge Whiting adjourned circuit court in order that he might go to Miner county, where the May term opened Tuesday. The calendar in this county was extremely heavy and the jury will have to be recalled June 18, when the adjourned term will open.

The judge imposed sentence upon William O'Connell, a saloonkeeper in Redfield, who was convicted of selling to minors. He was fined $200 and the statute works a forfeiture of his license and also prohibits him from ever again going into the saloon business. Harvey, of Melette, was fined $100 and costs for running a drug store without a registered pharmacist and also $50 for selling liquor without a license.

Among the civil cases the most important was one brought by N. F. Bromley against P. J. Runser for $3500 damages for infecting his sheep herd with scab. He secured a verdict for $1500. The case of Alger vs. Muetze, Bromley and Goelleon for setting a prairie fire and burning wheat resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for $825.

The home of Professor Magoun, one of the college professors, was assailed one night recently with stones from three sides at once and windows were broken. It was about 12 o'clock and the family was asleep. The toughs who did the work are known and it is expected that prosecution will follow.

Deadwood—It is believed that professional burglars are operating in Deadwood. Sunday night Hattenbach Bros.' grocery store was entered from a side window and the till robbed of change.

This is the second robbery in the last two weeks. The first was in Chase's store, where over $100 was taken in addition to a quantity of clothing and other goods.

N. K. Griggs, of Lincoln, Neb., attorney for the Burlington railroad, will deliver the Memorial day address at Deadwood under the auspices of Keogh post. The schools will have exercises during the forenoon.

Salem— A light vote was polled on question of additional bonds for the new waterworks system. One hundred and fifteen votes were cast, twenty-nine against the proposition. Some twelve or fifteen blocks of new mains will be put in.

Watertown—The grand lodge of Odd Fellows is in session, also the Rebekah's grand assembly and the grand encampment Patriarchs Militant of South Dakota. There are approximately 1000 delegates and visitors in the city.

Lake Preston—Mrs. J. Henry Lloyd, wife of Banker Lloyd, died from a complication of diseases. She was an active worker in church circles and in the temperance cause. She leaves a husband and one son.

Custer—George C. Dickinson, a well-known citizen, died of general debility at the age of 38. He left a wife.

Dr. C. B. Clark, of Deadwood, has been secured to deliver the oration in Custer on Memorial day.

Pierre—At a special election in this county to vote on the proposition of donating a location on the court yard square to the city for a Carnegie library site, the proposition carried by a vote of over four to one.

Huron—A fine flow of water has been reached in an artesian well at a depth of about 750 feet on the residence premises of J. W. Campbell.

Clark—A warrant is out for Frank Moore, who conducted a tailor shop here, charging him with jumping a board bill and other accounts.

A STIMULUS NEEDED

In Iron Market May Be Furnished By Trust Purchase.

Expected Steel Corporation Will Buy Heavily of Bessemer.

Cleveland, May 21.—The Iron Trade Review, in its issue this week, says: The expectation is that a round lot of Bessemer iron for delivery in the second half of the year will be bought very shortly by the United States Steel corporation, and such a purchase may furnish the needed stimulus to the pig iron market at large. There is said to be no disagreement between the Steel corporation and the valley furnacemen over the price for the second half, which will be in the neighborhood of $19 at furnace, but the insistence of the furnacemen on the delivery of a ton of coke by the corporation for every ton of iron delivered under the existing contract has been the subject of recent negotiations. A sale of Bessemer iron at $19.40 at furnace for third quarter delivery is reported. The fact that the Steel corporation will make a large purchase of outside iron, in spite of the considerable additions to its own pig iron capacity this year is one proof of the heavy consumption of steel products. Another proof appears in the pig iron statistics which show production at the rate of close to 20,000,000 tons a year on May 1, while reported pig iron stocks declined 5000 tons in April. Pig iron production is now at a yearly rate of 1,500,000 tons more than at this time in 1902, when Southern No. 2 foundry was selling at from $16 to $17 at Birmingham. The foundry iron market, the little there is of it, has shown a further decline the past week, and sales have been made of Southern No. 2 as low as $15 Birmingham. Association furnaces maintain their original position and are allowing the market to find its place. Northern iron is weaker, though very little is done, consumers not being satisfied that bottom has been reached. In the Chicago market, local iron has declined 50 cents the week. On the Atlantic seaboard import sales have ceased and it is not expected they will be resumed unless in occasional lots at pronounced concessions. Increasing domestic capacity for producing foundry pig iron is expected to take care of all needs from time to time. Foundries are maintaining a high rate of output and strikers are few, wage demands being settled for the most part without serious interruption of work. Foundry men evidently do not yet see any such change in the demand for their products as to make it worth their while to shut down and fight, for some of them note that inquiry is not so heavy this month as in preceding months and are questioning whether a change is just ahead.

GRAND ARMY ENCAMPMENT

Park Region Association Is to Meet at Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., May 21.—The forthcoming Eighteenth annual encampment of the Park Region association, Grand Army of the Republic, promises to be the one event in Bemidji and all northern Minnesota this year. That there will be a large attendance, particularly of Grand Army veterans and their families, is anticipated from the single fact that there is not a mail but what brings communications to Commander Bailey, soliciting definite information as to dates, transportation arrangements, and other preparations made for the comfort and entertainment of the old soldiers, their families and other prospective visitors.

In brief it may be said that as to the provisions for the accommodation of their guests, the local veterans of the G. A. R. and the citizens of Bemidji will leave nothing undone that will contribute to the comfort and pleasure of all who attend the Park Region encampment of 1903.

The committee in naming June 23 and 24 as the days for the encampment exercised splendid judgment. For a grand outing, no more opportune time could be selected. Nature is then at her best in this Northland. July is the fairest and most acceptable month of the year in these parts for tenting, fishing, boating and bathing. In the midst of a forest of balsamic pine and located on the shores of the prettiest lakes in northern Minnesota, Bemidji, with its host of hospitable people and abundant resources, is in a position to do full honor to the heroes of '61-'65, and afford ample and profitable entertainment to all who may become her guests on the occasion.

Commander Bailey has about completed the details for the event, which will be given general publicity within the next two weeks. Bemidji is exceptionally well located from a railroad standpoint, being easily accessible by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and the railroad management will give low rates from all parts of the state, with a week or ten-day limit. The rate will not be more than one-third fare and possibly less. The company managements have given assurance of their hearty co-operation toward the success of the encampment.

The program will be an elaborate one, distributed over the four days so as not to tax the endurance of the visitors. There will be music by bands, drum corps and vocal quartettes, parades, speeches, camp fires, athletic events, aquatic sports, excursions on the lake, blue-berrying parties, drives and numerous other appropriate and desirable features of entertainment. A novelty on the program will be ladies' day, which will come within the exclusive management of the ladies of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. They will give a free dinner, conduct a camp-fire, and give special drills, a feature which will be introduced for the first time at the G. A. R. encampments. The occasion will be graced by the presence of Gov. Van Sant and members of his military staff, Senators Nelson and Clapp, Hon. Halvor Steenerson, Major Pickler, of South Dakota, and others prominent in state and national affairs.

The city park between Fourth and Sixth streets, the most beautiful spot on the lake shore, has been set apart for the tenting ground. A splendid flag pole—70 feet long—will be erected in the park, and the local post has provided a fine flag to unfurl from its peak. There will be tents to shelter hundreds and in the event of inclement weather, which is very improbable at that season, there will be ample provisions made for comfort. The citizens of Bemidji are contributing very liberally toward the encampment, and it is certain that all who come will be royally entertained.

CAREER OF CRIME

Is Closed By Missing Sioux City Man.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 21.—The first Mrs. Dora A. Thom, 1712 St. Louis avenue, Sioux City, heard of her husband, Charles Thom, who disappeared in November, 1900, was on Tuesday, when she learned he had killed a jailer in Guthrie City, Okla.

Thom, under the name of William H. Montgomery, was in jail for bigamy, having been married twice since he left here. Another woman who had become infatuated with him, it is supposed, had smuggled him a revolver, and with this he killed the jailer, Jerry Emmerson, and escaped. Before expiring the jailer shot Thom through the groin, and Emmerson's wife, aroused by the shot, appeared armed and shot Thom through the lung before he succeeded in getting away. Officers found the man under the house of Mrs. Whyeth, one of his admirers. He is in a serious condition as the result of his injuries.

Thom lived in Sioux City and was well liked. He was a bookkeeper for Ratliff & Watland and embezzled $300 and skipped. His wife and friends thought he had committed suicide for a time, but later it was learned he had changed his name and was in the South.

The search for Thom was not prosecuted, because his brother, living in Beatrice, Neb., sent a check to Ratliff & Watland covering the entire shortage. Thom's mother resides in Beatrice and is said to be quite wealthy.

COUNTY ATTORNEY SUED.

Railroad Foreman Wants $8000 For Alleged Libel.

Bemidji, Minn., May 21.—Daniel Moriarity, who has been foreman over a gang of men employed in laying a spur of the Minnesota & International road in this county, has filed complaint in a suit for damages against Herbert J. Loud, county attorney.

Moriarity alleges that Loud secured his dismissal by the road by writing to its officers that he abused his men and that he had been twice arrested and convicted. He asks a judgment against Loud of $8000.

RAIN NEEDED BADLY.

New York, May 21.—Dispatches from various parts of this state report that no rain has fallen for five weeks and that vegetation is withering and pasturage has become scant. Market gardeners fear severe losses unless rain comes soon.

OUT OF THE GLOOM

How a Gloomy Countenance In Duluth Now Lightens With Happiness.

A bad back makes you gloomy.
Can't be happy with continual headache.
The aches and pains of a bad back
Are mostly due to sick kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
They have made many a happy home in Duluth.

Read what a grateful citizen says:

Mr. R. Stevens, of 1010 West Third street, carpenter, says: "Years ago I hurt my back and ever after I had trouble with my kidneys such as severe aching pains through the small of my back. I could not rest comfortably at night, and often was so lame and sore I could hardly get out of bed in the morning. It was painful for me to stoop or life anything heavy. I used plaster after plaster, besides a host of different remedies, but none of them did me any permanent good. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them from W. A. Abbett's drug store and began taking them. I was soon convinced that they were doing me good, and continued their use. The kidney secretions, which before were highly colored, distressing and annoying, soon became regular and normal and the aches and pains left me."

MINERAL OIL

Has Proved a Great Benefit to Dusty California Roads.

Shown In Special Report In Agricultural Year Book.

Washington, May 21.—The annual official publication of the department of agriculture known as the Year Book will be printed about June 15. James Abbott, special agent for the Rocky Mountain and Pacific division, in a special report makes a review of the use of mineral oil in road improvement, which he says has been a great success in California. He says:

"The growth of oil in popular favor in Southern California has been steady and rapid. Many of those who have had most experience with it have come to regard its use in a dry region as the most important discovery ever made in roadmaking. Quite a considerable number of people have said to the writer:

"We could not go back to the old conditions; if we have to give up our oiled roads we would move away."

Mr. Abbott thinks that oil can be used to advantage at any place in the United States where the roads become very dry and dusty and where water can be kept out of their foundations in the winter, so that they will remain firm and not give way beneath the oiled surface in the spring. The reliance must, he said, be upon an oil with an asphalt base.

William L. Hall, discusses the practicability of forest planting in the United States. He says: "Forest planting in not practicable in those regions which are as yet well timbered, and in which the reproductive power is sufficient to renew the stand as the trees now standing are cut away. Broadly speaking, this includes in the south the hardwood region of the southern Appalachians and the pine belt from Virginia to Texas. In the northeast it includes the spruce forests in New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine; it also includes also sections elsewhere as in the Allegheny mountains. In the west, it includes the heavily timbered portions of California, Oregon and Washington and smaller sections elsewhere.

"In other parts of the United States than those named above there are some other sections in which the supply of timber is wanting or is becoming insufficient to meet the demand, and in which natural reproduction is not sutficient to insure a second crop."

W. H. Beal, of the office of experiment stations, has an article in which he says: "Agricultural experiment stations are now in operation in every state and territory of the United States, including Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico, and steps are being taken under government auspices to establish agencies for agricultural investigation in the Philippine islands. There are sixty such stations, employing nearly 1000 trained scientific and practical men in their work.

"The annual income of these stations in 1902 was $1,328,847, of which sum $720,000 came from the federal government and $608,847 from state appropriations and other sources. During the fourteen years of their existence as a national enterprise there has been expended in their maintenance about $14,000,000, of which $10,000,000 came from the national treasury and about $4,000,000 from state sources."

In an article on irrigation Edward Beals, of the weather bureau, says that there are more than 7,000,000 acres of irrigated land in the United States. The total cost of the irrigation systems of the United States is $61,289,901, and the value of the irrigated crops for the single year of 1899 was $84,433,438, or thirty per cent greater than the cost of the plants. The number of irrigators was 102,819, which gives nearly seventy-one acres to the farm.

Output of Gold and Silver.

It is asserted that more gold and silver is taken out of our mines now in one year than was known to be in the entire world a century ago. During the past year the United States was credited with one-third of the output of the whole world, and while this country is so rich in minerals and metals, it is also the possessor of the best family medicine. We refer to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The fact that it has been before the public for fifty years proves its value. Try it for flatulency, indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, constipation, biliousness, nervousness or malaria. It cannot help but do you good. MUNCIE MAN

Charged With Trying to Murder His Family.

Muncie, Ind., May 21.—Charged with the attempted murder of his whole family Carl J. Carrolson, a business man of this city and claimant to the vast estates of Millionaire Rice, who was murdered in New York, is a prisoner in the Muncie jail.

Mrs. Carrolson, who is exceptionally attractive, claims she was awakened to find her husband cutting off her hair. He had placed a handkerchief saturated with chloroform, she claims, over her face, and her sudden awakening saved her life.

She claims her husband spread the poisonous fumes throughout the house and that their four little children had narrow escapes. Carrolson claims to be a direct heir to the millions of Rice and for the last year he has been vigorously pushing his claims to the estate.

METEOR LEVELS TREES.

Cut as Cleanly as If By Saw.

Parkersburg, W. Va., May 21.—The largest meteor ever noticed in West Virginia is reported to have been seen by employes of the Felton Lumber company near Grafton. While in their timber camp they heard a peculiar whizzing noise, followed by an intensely bright light. They rushed out and saw a meteor, which they described as a ball of fire as big as an oil barrel, whizzing in a southeasterly direction.

It sped through the forest like a bullet and mowed down the tall timber like a scythe. Many trees were cut off smoothly as if they had been sawed down. The meteor was still going when they lost sight of it.

TO INSPECT BARRACKS.

San Francisco, May 21.—Major General Charles Heyward, commanding the marine corps, accompanied by his wife and aide, Captain Leonard, have arrived from Washington. He has come to inspect the marine barracks at Mare Island, Bremerton and Sitka and the pay and quartermaster offices and recruiting stations in this city, Seattle and other points along the coast.

Articles of Incorporation —of— Rainy Lake Company.

Know all men by these presents, that we whose names are hereunto subscribed, have agreed to and do hereby associate ourselves together, under the constitution and general laws of the state of Minnesota and more particularly under the provisions of Title 2 of Chapter 34 of the General Statutes of said state, of the revision of 1878, and the laws amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, as a corporation, under the name and for the purposes hereinafter set forth, and to that end do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be RAINY LAKE COMPANY, and the general nature of its business shall be to acquire timber and timber lands, to log the same and to manufacture lumber, shingles, lath and all other timber and lumber products; to purchase, construct, own and operate sawmills, planing mills, dry kilns, paper and pulp mills and any and all other mills, factories, machinery and equipment for or incident to the conduct of such manufacturing business; to sell and dispose of same, or any thereof, and the products thereof, and to purchase, handle and dispose of lumber, timber and lumber products; to acquire, own and operate stone quarries, and to sell and dispose of the same and the product thereof; to establish, acquire, maintain and operate brick yards and to manufacture brick and tile and to sell and dispose of the same; to mine and smelt iron, copper and other minerals and to manufacture iron, steel, copper and other metals, and to sell and dispose of the same and any thereof; to acquire, own and hold stocks and bonds of any other corporation or corporations, which may be deemed for the advantage of this corporation in the conduct of its business and to sell and dispose of the same; to purchase, improve, lease, sell, dispose of and deal in lands, tenements and hereditaments, real, mixed and personal property; to colonize lands to sell lands to actual settlers, to plat land into townsites, and to improve, sell, lease and dispose of the same, or parcels thereof; and, generally, to develope and improve the facilities and resources of the territory in which said corporation operates, and to do all things necessary or incident to any of said business, or advantageous in the conduct thereof; said business to be carried on in Northern Minnesota and elsewhere, but particularly in the counties of St. Louis, Itasca and Lake, in said state of Minnesota, and the principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be the city of Duluth, in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, with such branch offices at such other points and places, as may from time to time be determined by the management of said corporation.

ARTICLE II.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be the twenty-fifth day of May, A. D. 1903, and the period of its continuance shall be thirty years (30).

ARTICLE III.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be five millions five hundred thousand dollars, three million five hundred thousand dollars of which shall be preferred stock, and two millions of dollars of which shall be common stock, but the said company may commence business whenever one million of dollars of the capital stock thereof, of either or both classes, has been subscribed for.

Certain moneys having already been invested in the business to be conducted by this corporation, by those intending to become holders of the preferred stock therein, and preliminary to and in anticipation of the organization of this corporation, the certificates of preferred stock to be issued by this corporation shall show on the face thereof the date when the moneys represented by such stock were first invested in the business of this corporation.

The preferred stock in this corporation shall have the following benefits and preferences:

1st. The same shall draw cumulative dividends at the rate of six per cent per annum, payable out of the surplus or profits of said corporation annually on or before June 1st of each year, beginning with the year 1904, unless the board of directors determine in any year to pass the payment for want of available funds applicable to such payment.

2nd. The said preferred stock shall be subject to retirement at par and accrued dividends, pro rata on dividend dates, as fast as the corporation realizes from its investment and business funds not needed for the carrying on of the business of the corporation and which, in the judgment of the board of directors, can be safely applied to such purpose, a notice of such intention to retire the same to be given to the holders of such stock at least fifteen (15) days prior to the time fixed for the retirement thereof.

3rd. Upon the winding up of the affairs of the corporation, such stock shall be paid off in full at par and accrued dividends, in preference to the holders of the common stock, and the holders of such stock shall likewise, in addition thereto, be entitled to participate in the distribution of one-half of the surplus or net profits of the corporation to be distributed on the basis of the time and money represented by such stock shall have been invested in the business of the corporation.

4th. Upon the said stock being retired by the payment of the same at par, with accrued dividends, and the business of the company not being wound up, the holders of said stock shall be entitled to a debenture or certificate of writing obligatory of the company to the effect that one-half of all of the net profits of the company shall be set apart as a special fund and from time to time distributed to the holders of such certificates in the proportion which the money shown by such certificates bears to the whole amount of the preferred stock which had been issued, but also in proportion to the length of time such money was invested in the business of said corporation, so that the distribution of such funds shall be made to such certificate holders on the basis of percentage of earnings upon each dollar for the time the same was so employed, and said stock shall have no other preferences or special benefits, all of the rest of the net profits or earnings of the corporation to be distributed to the holders of the common stock, and all of the residue of the property of the corporation to be distributed to the holders of the common stock upon the winding up of the affairs of the corporation.

The common stock shall not draw any dividends, save and except through and by means of the distribution to the holders thereof of one-half of the net profits after the retirement of the referred stock at par, and accrued dividends, and one-half of the residue of the property of the corporation at the time of the winding up of its affairs, after the payment to the holders of the preferred stock of the amount of such preferred stock outstanding, and accrued dividends.

The stock in this corporation, of both classes, issued and outstanding, shall be entitled to representation and vote in all of the affairs of the corporation.

The stock of this corporation shall be sold only at par, either for cash or for property and things of value deemed by the board of directors to be equivalent in value thereto, such determination by the board of directors to be deemed final and binding upon all parties in interest.

ARTICLE IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness to which this corporation shall at any time be subject in the sum of three million five hundred thousand dollars ($3,500,000.00).

ARTICLE V.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for the purpose of incorporation, are as follows:

Charles F. Ruggles, residing at Virginia, Minnesota.

Mitchell J. Smiley, residing at Chicago, Illinois.

Robert E. Parcher, residing at Wausau, Wisconsin.

E. Golden Filer, residing at Manistee, Michigan.

Wirt H. Cook, residing at Duluth, Minnesota.

Hansen Smith, residing at Duluth, Minnesota.

David O. Anderson, residing at Virginia, Minnesota.

ARTICLE VI.

The government of this corporation and the conduct and management of its affairs is hereby vested in a board of seven directors who shall all be stockholders, and, except as herein provided, shall be elected by the stockholders, at their annual meeting on the first Tuesday after the first day of January of each year, and who shall, within ten days thereafter, elect from their own number the following officers: A president, a vice president, a secretary and a treasurer.

The first annual meeting of this corporation shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first day of January, 1904, and until such time and until such directors have been elected and qualified, the following persons shall be and constitute the board of directors of this corporation: Charles F. Ruggles, Wirt H. Cook, David O. Anderson, Robert E. Parcher, E. Golden Filer, Mitchell J. Smiley and Hansen Smith; and until such annual meeting is held and the directors thereat chosen shall elect officers, as hereinbefore provided, and until such officers shall have been duly elected and qualified, the general officers of this corporation shall be as follows: Charles F. Ruggles, president; Wirt H. Cook, vice president; Hansen Smith, secretary; and Charles F. Ruggles, treasurer.

The office of treasurer may be held by any other officer of this corporation and the holders of the offices of secretary and treasurer may or may not be members of the board of directors.

The officers and directors of this corporation, except those herein designed to act as such in the first instance, shall hold office for the period of one year, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and in case any vacancy occurs in any of the offices or in the membership of the board of directors of this corporation, the same shall be filled by the board of directors until the next annual meeting and until such vacancies shall be filled by election held in accordance with these articles and such by-laws as may be adopted providing for elections.

The board of directors of this corporation shall adopt and is hereby authorized to adopt such by-laws, rules and regulations for the corporation and the management of its business, not inconsistent with these articles or with the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota, as it may deem needful for the government of the officers and the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and may create such other offices in addition to those herein provided, as may from time to time be deemed necessary for the advantageous conduct of the business of the corporation, and may fill such offices as it may so create, and may abolish and discontinue such offices so created at will. The board of directors may also, whenever it deems the same advisable, create and appoint an executive committee, consisting of at least three members of the board, for the purposes of transacting the business and exercising the ordinary powers of the board when the board is not in session.

The board of directors may also fix the compensation to be paid to any officers or employees of this corporation, and cause the same to be paid from the funds of the corporation applicable thereto, in accordance with such regulations and by-laws as may be adopted by the board.

The board of directors shall also have the power, when in its judgment reasonable cause exists, to remove any officers of this corporation from their positions and to declare the offices vacant.

ARTICLE VII.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Entire change of program for Friday and Saturday, last two days of the Great 16th Anniversary Sale.

Our old building could not have held the crowds that were packed into our six floors today and yesterday. There were times when the crowding was uncomfortable. But we have put on extra salespeople, extra floor help, and extra delivery service, so we can give more prompt attention to the wants of all. You'll be safe in coming to the big sale in the Big Store. And you'll save more money on needful articles than you've ever saved before. Come for the new bargains Friday and Saturday.

Bargains are for our customers and we must respectfully, but firmly, decline to supply small dealers with goods at these prices.

Just because the prices are in many instances less than cost is no reason for allowing dealers to exhaust the supply. Our customers are our first care.

The great basement, full of crockery, glass, hardware, tinware, woodenware, toys and harness, was crowded both days of the sale so far. Economy never got so helpful a boost as in the prices made by the basement during the anniversary sale. Come to the basement. Come to the upper floors. Come anyway.

Big crowds in the basement.

The basement crowds the last two days have been remarkable. Actual crowds at the crockery, glass, hardware, tinware and woodenware tables. Something you don't often see. Such values as the anniversary sale offers ought to bring the crowds, for everybody knows that "what we say we'll do, we do do."

YOUNGEST SHRINER

Tilton E. Lewis Initiated Into the Shrine at Osman Temple.

Enjoys Distinction of Being Youngest Member In Minnesota.

Tilton E. Lewis, a popular clerk at the St. Louis hotel, became the youngest Shriner in the Masonic ranks of Minnesota last night, when degrees were conferred at Osman Temple, St. Paul.

He was one of a party of about fifty Duluth Masons to attend the gathering at St. Paul, some to receive degrees and others to participate in the function. The majority of the members of the party attained the thirty-second degree in Duluth this spring, at the annual reunion of the Scottish Rite Masons of St. Louis county.

At that time Mr. Lewis, who is but 23 years of age, received the degrees to the thirty-second, and is the youngest thirty-second degree Mason.

TILTON E. LEWIS.

besides, in this part of the state, if not in all Minnesota. He bears his honors and distinction well.

The youngest Shriner in the state was born at Sidney, N. S, in December, 1881. He came to Duluth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Lewis, who still reside here, eighteen years ago, and seven years ago he started as a bell boy at the St. Louis hotel. He afterward ran the elevator in the house.

Showing adaptability to hotel life and being immensely popular with all he came in contact with, he was gradually promoted, until two years ago, when he was made a clerk and today is in charge of the hotel desk on the watch opposite J. T. Michaud.

THE STAGE

The Flints again held forth at the Lyceum last evening and pleased their audience greatly. Their feats in hypnotism are exciting much wonderment and the funny acts which the subjects do provoke roars of laughter.

* * *

Tonight at the Metropolitan the Ferris Comedians will present that funny comedy "The Man From Mexico" with Dick Ferris in the title role. All the prescriptions that a doctor could prescribe would not cause a more relieved mind and unburdened heart than the comedy of this farce can produce. The character of Benjamin Fitzhew is one admirably suited to Mr. Ferris. There will be an entire change of specialties. The Travis Sisters appearing in their neatest and best act and Gus Fiske, the sweet lyric tenor, again singing some new ballads of the class that have delighted the patrons the first of the week.

THE REICHLIN MURDER.

Copies of Reward Offered Received In Duluth.

Offers of $5000 reward have reached Duluth for the arrest and conviction of the person that murdered Agatha Reichlin, at Lorain, Ohio, on May 1.

The authorities of Loraine county offer $1000 and a prominent business man of Cleveland, through the Knights of Columbus, guarantees $4000 additional.

The Reichlin murder was first charged against a Rev. Walsher, but he was subsequently released from custody, there being no evidence against him, except that bloodhounds went to the room he occupied in the same house in which the murder was committed.

The theory of detectives now is that the murder was committed by a thief and in sending the reward offer to Duluth they thought it possible that the murderer may have escaped by lake.

AT WEST DULUTH

There was trouble this morning in West Duluth between union and non-union men in the employ of the rival telephone companies in West Duluth.

The Zenith company has a gang of men at work burying the wires outside the central office. The Bell company also had some men at work a short distance farther up Central avenue.

The story of the troubles told by William Runkle, of the Zenith Telephone company, before Justice Stone is as follows:

"Daniel Campbell, of the Bell company, who is a non-union man, said Runkle came down Central avenue to where we were working this morning and accosted me, saying that he had heard I had called him a 'scab,' and warning me not to do so again. I told him that I was not the only one who had done so, and requested him to go away. The foreman of the gang also told him to leave. He did so, but came back again. I told him that if he did not go away I would hit him. He persisted in his threats and warnings, and I knocked him down."

Runkle immediately went up to Justice Stone's office and gave himself up, and Campbell went into a neighboring drug store to have his face, which was rather badly cut, attended to.

After hearing the story of Runkle, Justice Stone assessed him $8, including costs. The fine was promptly paid and Runkle returned to his work.

Campbell was not seriously hurt and was able to return to work after his face had been dressed.

CASE DISMISSED.

The slander case of Mrs. Baldwin against Mrs. Delborn was dismissed by Justice Stone last evening. The jury, after a short consultation, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

The trial occupied the entire day. A jury was not secured until nearly noon, and the afternoon was spent in taking the evidence. The case went to the jury shortly before 5 o'clock.

The court room was crowded during the afternoon with friends of the interested parties, as both are well known in West Duluth. Mrs. Baldwin claimed that the defendant had used slanderous terms in speaking of her daughter while in the presence of witnesses, but her claim was not borne out by the testimony.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

William H. Norton, of Buffalo, N. Y., was in West Duluth this morning. He is looking after some property which he owns in this portion of the city.

The regular weekly practice of the West Duluth baseball team will be held this afternoon on the grounds at the head of Fifty-second avenue. The team will be in good condition for Sunday's game with Cloquet.

Screen windows, fit any window, for 25 cents each, at Wieland & Wade's.

Mrs. David Comstock, who has been ill at her home on Sixtieth avenue for the past two weeks, is reported to be much improved in her condition.

Plans are being prepared for the remodelling of the building occupied by the Merchants' bank on Central avenue. The front of the building will be rebuilt, with an entrance on one side instead of in the center.

The petition for the paving of Central avenue has been referred back to the property owners, as it lacked the signatures of 25 per cent of the property owners owning 25 per cent of the property. The amount by which it failed to meet the requirements was very small, and it is thought can be easily made up.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

A few days ago R. L. Metcalf, editor of the Omaha World-Herald and a close personal and political friend of William J. Bryan, addressed an open letter to Norman E. Mack, editor of the Buffalo Times and Democratic national committeeman for the state of New York, asking what changes the Democrats of the East, who oppose reaffirmation of the last two Democratic national platforms, would make in those declarations of principles if they were given the opportunity. Mr. Mack has made a reply. The text of his answer is not at hand at this writing, but a summary of its contents represents Mr. Mack as saying that the Democrats should stick to their attitude against trusts, demand a conservative tariff, advocate an income tax, protest against government by injunction and the blacklist, and condemn the methods employed in the Philippines.

This offers a platform upon which Democrats of all shades of opinion can unite, without surrendering allegiance to any of the principles in which they believe. It would be foolish to reaffirm the Kansas City platform of 1900, and the Chicago platform of 1896. The money question was the leading issue in 1896. To attempt to make it a prominent issue next year would be absurd. The conditions have changed so greatly that it could not now be revived, nor is there any occasion for reviving it. It is a dead issue. Why then reaffirm the silver plank of the Chicago platform? It was one of the issues in the 1900 campaign, but to a lesser extent, but the ill-advised insertion of the silver plank in that year's platform, inserted at the urgent demand of Mr. Metcalf, who represented Mr. Bryan at Kansas City, drove away thousands of voters from the support of the Democratic ticket. To reaffirm that plank again would not aid the cause of bimetallism or free silver, or whatever it may be called, while it would prevent that unity without which Democratic success at the polls in 1904 is an impossibility. Mr. Bryan, who is an able man and has been highly honored by the Democratic party, should be willing to drop this bone of dissension, if by so doing he can promote harmony in the Democratic ranks.

There are great issues upon which to wage a campaign without seeking to infuse life into old and worn issues that have lost thir potency. The platform suggested by Mr. Mack is soundly Democratic, and if adopted at the next national convention would ensure a united party which might elect its presidential ticket. Mr. Metcalf should be willing to endorse such a declaration of Democratic principles. Neither should it arouse the hostility of Mr. Bryan or any other Democrat.

THE FLURRY IN COTTON.

The excitement in the cotton market of late with the rapid increase in price, has been of interest to many outside of those directly connected with the market. One peculiar condition is the fact that although the total crop of 1902 is larger than the crops of 1901, 1900 and 1899 by from 5 to 14 per cent, the price is remarkably high and unusually excited. According to a census bulletin the cotton crop of 1902 foots up 10,630,945 bales of 500 pounds each, and there are yet some additions to be made to those figures. The value of the cotton crop of 1902 exceeded that of wheat by $34,000,000, and was second only to the corn crop, valued at $921,000,000. For the year ending June 30 last cotton held the first place in exports, representing a value of $290,000,000, which was $77,000,000 more than the exports of breadstuffs, and $90,000,000 more than the exports of meats and dairy products. Adding the cotton goods and cotton-seed oil to the item of raw cotton, the total value of cotton exported during the last fiscal year was $340,000,000, or one-fourth the aggregate of all exports. Cotton thus counts for considerably more than half the balance of trade in favor of the United States.

The raising of cotton is becoming a great American industry. Porto Rico is also going to try a hand at it, and other localities will doubtless follow. The demand for cotton for domestic uses and export is rapidly increasing and to this fact the high price is undoubtedly due. Last year the Texas crop, through bad weather and insect depredations, was short nearly 1,000,000 bales. But Oklahoma and Indian Territory raised 545,000 bales, an increase of 153 per cent in three years. Cotton is bringing more money than in former years because it is recognized in the world's utilities as worth more. Foreign attempts to raise it are making some headway, but nothing is in sight to threaten the decided supremacy of the United States in cotton production.

The author of a new book on the history of the Germans in Wisconsin presents a very interesting summary of the change that has come over the German population in the Northwest within the past two decades. The German language has rapidly gone out of use and English has taken its place, even in a city like Milwaukee, where thirty years ago one could hear little but German spoken on the street. In that same city, too, "where German blood runs in the veins of two-thirds of the population, it is harder to arouse interest in a German undertaking than in many cities where the German element is comparatively weak. Whatever clannish German spirit there is in the country is found almost exclusively in the Eastern seaport cities, instead of in the great Western cities—St. Louis, Cincinnati, Chicago and Milwaukee—as formerly." The process of Americanization is quickest in the West.

Vice Chancellor Pitney of Jersey City says that only the very wealthy or the very poor can afford to live in New York city. That seems to be true of some other cities.

RELIEF FOR THE VICTIMS.

The sympathy of the American people has been aroused by the terrible suffering of the Jews in the interior of Russia as a result of the shocking massacre which took place without any attempt by the Russian authorities to prevent the slaughter. In nearly every large American city subscription lists have been opened to raise the funds needed for the work of relief, and no doubt there will be a generous response to the appeals for aid that have been issued on behalf of the helpless and innocent victims of religious prejudice.

Hundreds of Jewish men, women and children were barbarously maltreated and killed, their homes were ransacked by the mobs and looted and the business houses of the Jews were robbed and destroyed. Many who escaped with their lives have lost all their possessions and are experiencing the direst poverty. The suffering is widespread and intense, and unless aid be speedily forthcoming many more lives will be sacrificed. The generosity of the American people has been frequently exhibited, and this is an occasion when it can be confidently appealed to.

THE "STALWART" BLUFF CALLED.

The people of Wisconsin are to be given another opportunity to say whether they want a direct primary election law. The session of the legislature now nearing a close has been prolonged by the bitter fight over this question between the two Republican factions that form the majority of both branches. Early in the session a bill was introduced by the advocates of the primary election principle and was passed by a large majority in the assembly, where the friends of Governor LaFollette are in control. It struck a snag in the senate, which has a so-called "Stalwart" majority. The "Stalwarts" represent the old political machine which has for many years controlled the politics of the state and dictated the nominations to the governorship and other state offices and the legislature, and selected the United States senators. Until Governor La Follette appeared on the scene its power was supreme, and it was only after a hard fight that he succeeded in breaking its power and securing the nomination for governor. One of the chief planks in his platform was a demand for a primary election law. He and his supporters in the legislature have endeavored to enact such a law, but the "Stalwart" cabal in the senate stood in the way, knowing that under a direct primary law they could never hope to regain the power they formerly enjoyed. They did not openly attack the primary election principle, but insisted that it should be tried in a limited field and then the whole question be voted on by the people. Finding that the senate majority would not agree to a satisfactory measure, the administration leaders finally called the bluff about willingness to have the people again vote on it and put through the assembly an amendment submitting the entire question of the adoption of the original bill to a vote of the people in the fall election of 1904. The "Stalwarts" were taken completely by surprise by this move, but they could hardly object and the bill as amended by the referendum clause was enacted.

Its adoption by the people is practically assured. It has been the issue in two campaigns and has been endorsed by an overwhelming vote. The "Stalwarts" have succeeded in delaying the application of the law for two years, but the end of the old boss-controlled caucus and convention system is in sight.

RUSSIA'S FRIENDSHIP.

News dispatches from St. Petersburg the first of the week stated that Russian officials were deeply hurt by the criticisms by the American press on the subject of Manchuria, and their belief that the long-enduring friendship of Russia for the United States should have caused a more careful inquiry into the facts of the case before passing judgment. It is true that Russia has always been our friend and there is no reason to think that she will be otherwise. If her declarations can be believed, and there is no reason why they cannot, Russia will long remain the friend of the United States. In 1812 Russia offered to mediate in the interest of the United States to prevent the rather discreditable war that occurred between the United States and England—with no great glory to either side. And from 1812 to 1861, according to a leading American diplomatist, "Russia alone of all the nations of Europe looked with friendly eyes upon the growth of the young republic." After Fort Sumter was fired upon, the Russian minister at Washington was the first one of the whole diplomatic corps to call on Secretary Seward with a friendly message and an official assurance that the Southern Confederacy would not be recognized. When the European powers under the leadership of Napoleon III were discussing intervention in 1863, and putting Maximilian on a throne in Mexico as an affront and menace to us, a Russian fleet, without our invitation or instigation, appeared off New York with the announcement that it was there "with no unfriendly purpose." It was a significant incident, and perhaps was what deterred Napoleon III from formally recognizing the Confederacy—as he wished to do if he could have had sufficient European support.

Later, in the negotiations for the purchase of Alaska, Russia manifested the same spirit of friendship. Russia had a pretty clear idea of Alaska's intrinsic value; knew that the great territory was being sold "dirt cheap"; but Russia desired the United States to have that country as an offset or counterpoise to the possessions of Great Britain by British Columbia. And yet again in the war with Spain in 1898, Russia, as well as Great Britain, exhibited a distinctly friendly spirit and feeling toward the United States. In an article in the North American Review for May, Charles Johnson discusses interestingly "The Present Tendencies of Russian Policy," in which he says that there have been in two centuries "three great vital movements of the Russian empire—the struggle toward the Baltic and the North Sea; the fight for the Black Sea, and the confirming of Russia's power on the Pacific through the completion of the Siberian railway and the effective occupation of Manchuria. These vital movements will be followed, Mr. Johnson believes, by another, as vital, southward toward the Persian gulf. If successful in this, Russia will have access to the Indian ocean as well as to the Atlantic and Pacific and the Mediterranean sea."

While the United States government is particularly friendly to Great Britain at present it should not let its friendship for the British blind its eyes to Russia. Great Britain has at times been our enemy; Russia never has.

The schoolboys of New Haven, Conn., have formed a union and demand better hours—a single session, with an early closing. If they do not get it, they may strike, and then the parents of the youngsters may also strike where it will do the most good.

The rumor is current at Washington that Postmaster General Payne will resign, because he dislikes the investigation upon which the president insists.

Russia does not want Manchuria at present. There are too many people looking. But wait until they turn their backs.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Traveling men who are coming into Duluth from Northern Wisconsin tell the most remarkable tales of the prevalence of trout in the south shore streams.

The itinerant commercial men have been heading toward the south shore of Lake Superior for the last week, it having been noised around that the trout were becoming susceptible to the agile and tantalizing fly.

When the stories began floating around, the wierd, restless sensation that accompanies spring developed in the breast of the hard-worked and careworn fraternity, who began recollecting the invitations issued them by the rural business men regarding the fishing season, when in all heartiness he was told: "You wait till next spring and I'll show you an article of fishing that beats anything you ever saw. I've got a little creek that nobody knows about, and we'll go out there and have a regular fishing spree."

Scores, and perhaps hundreds, of traveling men are taking advantage of these offers, skipping territory, and nearly every train from that direction brings belated commercial travelers to the local hotels.

There are an especially attractive lot of brooks near Washburn, and last Sunday a party, of which F. D. McAnulty, of Minneapolis, was a member, spent the day on a creek thirty-five miles back into the country. It drizzled and then rained and kept up all day, but the trout were scrappy and looking for sport, he says. The party was eminently successful, and each of the members returned to Washburn with a basket laden with the wily fish.

In and about that section of Wisconsin there were 200 or 300 fishermen from this part of Minnesota and the Twin Cities Saturday and Sunday, and all were extremely lucky with their venture.

Business men and others, having occasion to go to Hibbing, are again becoming alarmed over the stories of smallpox in the thriving range town.

A West Superior business man, who is interested in some mines at Hibbing, returned Tuesday from a visit to his property. He had not been at home for more than twenty-four hours, before he began showing symptoms of the disease, and was promptly placed under quarantine by the Superior authorities.

The case of this man is fully developed, and he will be confined for some weeks to his house. He said over the telephone last night to a traveling man in this city, with whom he had an engagement, that he could not guess where he contracted the disease. He was only at Hibbing, and stopped at a hotel there and was over his property.

The spread of the disease to Tower is not felt to be at all serious, as the three cases of it there are under strict quarantine, and no new cases have broken out.

The latest rumors are verified by people from Hibbing, who say that so far as efforts to stamp out the disease are concerned, every known method is being used, and the strictest kind of a quarantine is being maintained.

A party of folks from the Hotel McKay were surprised even to a fright last night about 10 o'clock, by the appearance of a porcupine in their path as they were going west on First street near the Board of Trade livery barns, between Third and Fourth avenues West.

The animal was not a very large one but it loomed up in the dark so suddenly that there was a fainting bee among the ladies, while the men tried to laugh, and made a sickly attempt of it for a few moments, until one, who has had some experience in the woods, sternly declared that it was a porcupine. This caused a wave of shudders to overspread the female portion of the band.

One of the men, to prove he knew what he was talking about, got a piece of soft stick, and steadily approaching the animal stirred suddenly to cause the animal to throw up its quills, and then tapped it on the back with the stick.

As a result he secured a half dozen small and insignificant porcupine quills, and the members of the party all kept one as a momento of their experience with wild, untamed animals on the streets of Duluth.

The porcupine was last seen pulling himself into a hole under the photograph gallery on the corner.

"Speaking of the railroad business," said an Omaha railroad conductor yesterday afternoon, "I think I'll jump," and he did. Out of "Dick" Ferris' automobile and on to the pavement away up the hill on Fifth avenue.

Mr. Ferris was taking a number of people out riding in his auto car yesterday morning and afternoon, and for one set of persons was giving an exhibition of the hill climbing ability of the machine on Fifth avenue.

The auto turned gracefully into Fifth avenue and began the ascent with prodigious success. First street, second street, Third street were passed, but in the middle of the block beyond, the rutty and rough condition of the pavement, and the extra load of people caused it to stick, when one wheel became engaged in a rut.

The machine started to back—back down that awful incline toward the bay fifty feet backed at a 45-mile-an-hour clip into the right curb, ascending several inches in the air, and then it retreated to the other curb, paying its respects before the descent should be made.

Mr. Ferris lost his hat.

With rare presence of mind one of the occupants jumped out for the hat.

The other tried to work the air, but it had no effect on the machine, so he jumped the way they do on the railroad.

Mr. Ferris stayed to the finish, and the machine stopped dead a few seconds afterwards.

Then the whole party rode down the hill the right way, and the machine hasn't balked since.

Russia There to Stay.

Indianapolis Journal: If China will not open Manchuria to foreigners and foreign trade, and Russia will, it seems highly probable that the indignation of the civilized world over the continued occupation of that country by Russia will quietly subside. Anyhow, the much-talked-of evacuation will not be a reality. The soldiers may withdraw, but the Russians who are there for commercial purposes will not.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), May 21.—The Saskatchewan "low" has disappeared but the one over the central Rockies has increased slightly in energy. Pressures remain high over south Atlantic states insuring a continuance of warm weather in the central valleys and south. Temperatures have risen throughout the Northwest but cool weather still prevails over the greater portion of the Rocky Mountains. Showers fell over Middle Atlantic states, the upper lake region, Missouri Valley, Nevada, Oregon and Washington. The winds in the lake region are light to fresh and rather variable.

Philadelphia Press: "Bragg says it keeps him busy these days keeping track of his social obligations."

"That may be true; at any rate he doesn't seem to have time to bother with his financial obligations."

Chicago Post: "I never change my mind," he asserted.

"How foolish!" she retorted.

"Why foolish?" he asked.

"Because," she replied, "any kind of a change would be an improvement."

New York Sun: "Pa," said little Morris, "why did the man put his light under a bushel?"

"I don't know," answered Pa, after some reflection; "but I suppose that the bushel was very heavily insured."

Pittsburg Chronicle: Noah—I didn't get as big a crowd in here as I might."

Chorus—But what was that?

Noah—Well, the people have heard that expression, "Get in out of the wet," so often that they thought I was fooling them."

Washington Star: "He has been mentioned as a candidate for office very frequently."

"Yes," replied Farmer Corntossel; "the only trouble is that every time any body mentions him the other fellows laugh."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Extry!" yelled the bright newsboy. "All about the terrible runaway-grab-rah——!"

"The terrible what, did you say?" inquired the inquisitive man.

"I didn'a say it," replied the boy. "Buy a paper and read it."

Detroit Free Press: "What are you going to charge Mr. Newman for your services?" asked the doctor's wife.

"I don't know," replied Dr. Soakum; "I haven't looked him up in Bradstreet's yet."

Chicago Tribune: "O, yes, he used to consider her very dainty and graceful."

"And doesn't he think so now?"

"No. I believe he saw her eating asparagus the other day."

THE PORT O'DREAMS.

It is just beyond the skyline
With its poppy fields of rest
Where day's storm-bewildered shallop
Drops its anchor in the west,
Where a silent sea of saffron
Stretches inland toward the streams
That go glimmering down the valley's
Of the purple port o'dreams.

In the far off gloom behind it
Earth's dusky boundary lies,
And a step beyond its outpost
And the hills of heaven rise;
So near that in the glory
Of their opposite light it seems
That the dear dead walk beside us
In the peaceful port o'dreams.

O strange and wondrous country
Hilding close the goals of life
Who wins to thee brings courage,
For the long dull march's strife
And the prisoner of living
Hope's freedom pledge redeems
In thine endless, boundless radiance
O blissful port o'dreams.

We have called thee Heart's Desire
Or the Islands of the Blest,
And the Land of the Finished Stories
O dreamland in the West,
Yet every heart's the bound'ry
Of thy soul reposing beams,
Art thou hope or love or heaven
O happy port o'dreams?

Sail away, O weary hearted,
To the bayous of release
Leave the drums o' life behind you
At the harbor bar of peace,
Come to anchor off the headlands
Where the light of heaven gleams
In the haven where ye would be Past the purple port o'dreams.

The Major and the Church Fair Quilt

By J. S. Capwell.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

A large and conspicuous legend to the effect that the annual fair and supper of the ladies' Aid Society of the Universalist church was being held inside, adorned the porch of the Elmwood club house.

Supper was over—it wasn't half bad either—and a half dozen of us, male souls with but a single thought, had quietly stolen up stairs to a small back room, of which we wot, where we might enjoy the pensive weed, safe from the attacks of female bandetti below.

"Condemned nuisance these things," said Jenkins, as he lighted up. "I tried to get off, but 'twas no go. All for the good of the church, of course."

"Oh, yes," said the major, wrathfully, "give your wife ten dollars to buy materials for fancy work, and have her work herself to death for three months makin' a lot of stuff nobody wants, and then have to be dragged out and made to buy it. Why in thunder won't folks give what they can to the church and be done with it, and save the wear and tear?"

The major tilted his chair back, and smiled retrospectively. "The last time I was at a church fair was five or six years ago, when the Methodists gave a big blow out for three days, down at Temperance hall. Remember that, Jenkins?"

"The night Capt. Williams, 'n Davis, 'n you, 'n I'd been playin' whist? Yep! I remember it;" and Jenkins grinned.

"Davis' wife," continued the major, "was in the thick of the mess—you know they're Methodists—and Davis broke up the game early because he promised his wife to go down there. We all had to go that way to get home, so Davis made us go in. 'I'll protect you,' he says; but he fled, for we hadn't more'n got by the door when up comes old man Haineses wife and Davis says, 'Here, Mis' Haines, here's three friends of mine who want the best you've got. I'll just leave 'em in your care, while I hunt up my wife.' And off he goes before the rest of us could get up presence of mind enough to take him out and kick him.

"Well, sir, that woman had a smile on that was buttoned in the back, and she calmly reached up and linked arms with me and says she, 'Right this way major; come a gentlemen, I'll show you everything'—and you bet she did!

"Finally that old she pirate run us up to a booth where there was a votin' fight goin' on. 'See this lovely quilt,' says she. 'It has the autographs embroidered on it of every lady in the society and it is to be voted for. See, these are the candidates;' and she showed us a book with the names of half a dozen or so women in it, each with a string of votes, but the minister's wife had a good head start of the rest. 'You must give us a few votes for your favorite candidate,' she says.

"I looked the names over; 'I don't see my favorite candidate here,' I says. 'Can I vote for any one I please?' 'Oh, certainly,' she says. 'Man or woman?' 'Well,' she says, kinder staggered, 'I don't think many men would care about the quilt, but of course if you wish to put down a man's name we have no objection.'

"Well, so I hauled out a dollar for ten votes, and wrote down the name of Father Murphy, of the Roman Catholic church around the corner. 'Now boys,' I says, and handed the book over to them. They caught on and each put down another ten votes for Father Murphy. When Mis' Haines saw the name she looked wild, and says, 'But, major, Father Murphy doesn't belong to this society.' 'Oh, dear!' I says, 'I didn't think you ladies were as narrow minded as that. Father Murphy is a fine man, a particular friend of mine, and I happen to know he's rather short on quilts just now and I'm sure he'd be tickled to death to get this one.' 'Oh, major, you're just jokin' she says. 'Wait a minute till I talk with the committee. I couldn't decide the matter myself.' So she went round behind the booth and talked it over with two or three women back here. I couldn't hear what they said, but it was plain to be seen from their manner that they hadn't any fear of Father Murphy as a rival candidate and thought it was perfectly safe to let us put our money on him if we wanted to. Just so they got the money, that was all they wanted. So she came back and said, 'all right, it was a go;' and pretty soon after that somebody came after her for something, and she turned us loose, and we weren't long in makin' tracks for home. 'Boys,' says I, after we got outside, 'Father Murphy's got to have that quilt!'

"'Next mornin' at breakfast, I says to our hired girl she's Irish, or was then, (she's Swedish now), 'Katy,' I says, 'Father Murphy's a candidate for a handsome quilt round here at the Methodist fair. You girls ought to go round and vote for him. I'll give you a dollar.' That same day I made two or three calls on Roman Catholic friends of mine, and dropped a good word for Father Murphy and the quilt. That was Friday. No, I didn't go near the hall that night, I waited to let things work.

"'Next morning, I says to Katy, 'Well, how'd things go last night?' Father Murphy goin' to get that quilt?' 'Aw shure!' she says, 'we was all on hand last noight, and Misther Flaherty an' his woife was there, an' Misther McGinnis and the O'Rafferttys, and whin we ca-ame hoame, Father Murphy was tin yoates ahid!'

"'Good!' I says; 'Here's another dollar for Father Murphy. Keep it up.

"'That mornin' Davis came into my office. 'See here major,' says he, 'this joke's gone far enough.'

"'Oh, I don't know; a quilt's a quilt, and Father Murphy's a good fellow, and I don't know why he shouldn't be comfortable as well as any of you people, if his friends are willing to pay for it,' I says.

"Well, he misquoted some scripture and went out and slammed the door.

"Father Murphy was out of town that week, but the news of the quilt fight must have reached him, for that afternoon I got a telegram which read: 'Stop it boys. I don't want any Methodist directory.'

"Well, sir, there was a hot time at Temperance hall the last night. Capt. Williams and Jenkins had rounded up a lot of votes and there was somethin' doin' when we dropped in about 9 o'clock.

"There was a jam of Father Murphy's flock six deep around the quilt booth, and if a Methodist brother succeeded in squeezing himself in and paying for a bunch of votes, some of the other party would step up and go him one better. The women in charge of the fair were tearin' their hair; specially Mis' Haines, 'cause she felt responsible for the situation.

"At first they took all the money that come in for Father Murphy as a good joke, but when they came to count up and found he was in the lead they were plumb crazy. They dropped all their candidates except the parson's wife and brought up everybody they could get hold of to vote for her. The idea of their precious quilt, all covered with the names of the dear Methodist sisters reposing on a dreadful Roman Catholic bed, with a Roman Catholic priest tucked up nice and warm under it was somethin' too fearful to contemplate! It was sacrilege!

"The polls were to close at 10 o'clock, and we contrived to have the report reach the ears of the managers that at the last minute we three boys meant to drop in a few tens for Father Murphy. Then we went up in the gallery. You know Temperance hall is used to be used by that go-as-you-please church of Dr. Fadlets for Sunday services. They had a little curtain across one end of the gallery where the choir used to sit. This was right over where the quilt booth was. We got in behind the curtain, which was of some thin stuff, and we could see the whole show.

"At 9:59 the vote stood 12 ahead for Father Murphy. Then we saw Mis' Haines wedgin' her way through the crowd with a triumphant look on her face, and she took her stand beside Deacon Lawson, who was in charge of the ballot box that night. I looked at my watch. It lacked just ten seconds of 10. I pushed back the curtain, and leaned over the rail and dropped a sealed envelope onto the table in front of Deacon Lawson. 'For Father Murphy,' I salled out. Mis' Haines instantly stuck a fat roll of bills into the deacon's hand ($100.00 I found out afterwards). 'For Mrs. Morse,' says she. 'The polls are closed,' shouted the deacon.

"Oh, yes, of course the parson's wife got the quilt, but there were a lot of women there that night that came mighty near havin' heart disease for fear she wouldn't. They had no call to kick though. They cleared pretty near $400 on that quilt.

"How much was in our envelope? Oh, nothin' but a blank sheet of paper!"

COWBOYS AND PRESIDENT.

(The Hugo Breakfast.)

Hullo! Mr. President! Howdy do, Teddy!
Light an' hitch.
The coffee's a-b'lilin' an breakfas' is ready,
As hot as pitch.
Beef off'n the range that's tender as chicken,
An' gravy done brown, that is heavenly lickin',
An' biscuits the sort that you one time was munchin'
Up there on the North range when you was a-punchin'

Campin' an' roughin' it out on the ranges,
Wearin' wool shirts a long time between changes,
Ridin' with boys that'd start somethin' doin'
Tendin' toward its unmendable ruin
If you should flash up a silk plug on your knob
Like this'n you wear in your President job.
Eh, Ted?
That's wat I said!
Have some more beef. Ain't it sappy an' tender?
Young virgin cow o' the feminine gender,
Cut outer the bunch by Hell-Roarin' Dex,
Who said you'd a hankerin' after the sex,
A-meanin' the flirts
That's bundled in skirts
An' wearin' them loud an' astonishin' socks
Hid under their frocks;
So loud you kin hear 'em fer seventeen blocks.
But I'm durn free to say
We're all that a-way,
An' ain't blamin you fer a rubberneck play
Jes' 'cause you're the boss o' the country an' not Supposed to observe what the girlies has got.
Spill some more coffee outen the pot,
An' blow it a while if you find it too hot,
Or take my sombrero an' fan it a spell—
No etiket goes in this social corral.
What! Goin' a'ready?
Oh, hell! what's your rush?
Well, tra-la-la, Teddy
You're right in the push.
An' every durn puncher that's ridin' these plains
Is hopin' you'll hang to the guvament reins
Till cattle in hades gits lost in a blizzard
An freeze into ice from the horns to the gizzard.
So long, Ted, ol' son,
Wish you luck on your run.
Come ag'in
When you kin—
You'll find us in.

REPORTS MADE

Commercial Club Hears From Committees on Various Matters.

Northern Pacific Is Requested to Give Better Fond du Lac Service.

An interesting session of the Commercial club was held last evening, with a fair attendance of the members. The meeting was called to order promptly at 8 o'clock by President McGonagle, and the business was finished with dispatch, the adjournment being taken at 9:30 o'clock.

Capt. Alexander McDougall, chairman of the club committee on the Louisiana Purchase exposition exhibit, made a report of progress. He said the committee has had a great many inquiries from people interested in the exhibit, as to when a meeting will be called to plan and decide on the kind of exhibit that will be made from St. Louis county, but that Superintendent Mitchell of the state commission has notified him that the apportionment of the state appropriation among the different districts of the state will be made very shortly. When it is definitely known how much will be available for this section of the state, ample notice will be given of the meeting.

By a unanimous vote the club adopted the report made by Chairman E. L. Millar of the convention committee, recommending that a greater and more systematic effort be made by the club this season toward the bringing of annual conventions to Duluth. Reference was made in the report of the splendid location and facilities offered by Duluth as a convention city, its climate, picturesque scenery, etc. The committee mentioned the fact that, aside from the splendid opportunity offered for advertising the city, conventions bring a great deal of ready money which will be well distributed in the city. The committee also recommended that a competent person be appointed, especially for convention work, to attend the annual conventions of large organizations over the state and country, and endeavor to get them to bring their next meeting to Duluth.

Some discussion followed the presentation of the report as to the policy of the club, whether it should be to invite all conventions or specific organizations. F. A. Patrick suggested that discrimination be used in the matter, also as to the time of holding conventions here, for there are certain times of the year when hotel accommodations cannot be had for large crowds, and visitors might not be well impressed with Duluth.

The committee on public affairs made a report of progress. The committee is actively at work with the jobbers' auxiliary of the club, and will have a good report to make at the next meeting.

President McGonagle brought up the matter of having an outside secretary for the club, and asked for discussion on the subject, with a view of taking some action at the next regular monthly meeting. He stated that with a club the size of the local organization it is practically impossible for one man to attend to the internal affairs and the outside work. His reference to H. V. Eva, the new secretary, was received with applause by the members.

The project of having an outside paid secretary at the head of the public affairs committee was discussed quite favorably at some length, and on motion of Julius H. Barnes the matter was referred to the public affairs committee to investigate and learn if the idea is feasible, and whether sufficient funds can be raised to maintain a paid secretary at the head of the committee.

Frank A. Brower brought up the matter of street improvements that are going on in the city with a view of securing the indorsement of the club to the idea of petitioning the city council and board of public works to order water, gas and sewer connections made to the curb line of vacant lots whenever street improvement is being made. He said that a great many of the East End residents along Superior street where the street is now being improved are interested in the matter, and that while it is probably too late to have anything done in the district where the new pavement is now being laid, the matter could be attended to when the street is improved from Sixteenth avenue east to Twenty-second avenue east.

The discussion showed a general sentiment in favor of the proposition. It was claimed that in other cities the water and sewer connections are ordered in at vacant lots when the street improvement is made. Hansen E. Smith, of the water and light board, said he did not know just how far the water board could act in the matter, but promised to bring it up at the next meeting of the board.

A resolution was unanimously passed that a committee of three be appointed to investigate the authority of the city council in the matter, and if the idea is feasible, to present a petition with the indorsement of the Commercial club.

The committee on advertising envelopes, comprised of J. J. LeTourneau and John Christie reported relative to the plan of having electrotypes made for printing important statistics regarding Duluth on the back of envelopes to be used by the business interests of the city.

The sentiment of the members present was against advertising on the back of envelopes. Favorable discussion was had on the suggestion of F. A. Patrick that a short catch phrase on the front of the envelope will attract more attention than all the printing that can be put on the back of it.

Julius H. Barnes thought the idea a good one and said it would be a matter of local pride for some of Duluth's bright minds to evolve such a phrase. On his motion a resolution was adopted appropriating $5 to be offered as a prize for a catch phrase that shall be distinctive of Duluth, and the president was instructed to appoint a committee of three to arrange for the competition and act as judges, also to use the phrase accepted in a manner they deem best.

Mr. Patrick, in this connection, thought it a good idea for future action to consider the proposition of having a distinctive sketch to be used in cuts advertising this city. A prize may be offered later for something along that line.

It is believed that the "catch phrase" idea will take very well in the city and excite great interest as it has done in Chicago. That city has adopted the phrase "I Will."

Information was called for by some of the members as to the progress that is being made by the Women's council relative to the prize competition for the best kept lawns. President McGonagle said he had been requested to appoint a club member from each of the different wards to act with the women in the matter and would announce his appointments shortly. He said the Women's council has outlined the plan of its campaign and in a few days printed circulars as to the competition will be placed in the hands of the local property owners. The president caused an appreciative smile by suggesting that it might be a good idea to offer prizes for the best kept backyards.

The committee to whom was referred the investigation of the proposed short line train service on the Northern Pacific railway between Duluth, New Duluth and Fond du Lac reported that it found the present mixed train service between Duluth and up-river points practically unavailable for all points west of Duluth, so far as providing convenient passenger and mail service is concerned, that the present schedule works a hardship to the residents and manufacturing interests up the river. The committee found that the freight receipts at New Duluth run all the way from $4000 to $5000 per month and in addition the company does a good business hauling sand, gravel and sandstone from other points on the line. The committee found the territory between West Duluth and Fond du Lac specially adapted for manufacturing and residence sites and that with convenient train service this part of Duluth is capable of great material development.

The committee found that petitions for a morning and an evening service have been sent to the railway company by wholesale and retail interest, the city council and private citizens and offered a resolution which was unanimously adopted, that the Commercial club requests the Northern Pacific Railway company to, at as early a date as possible, establish a morning and evening train service each way between Duluth and Fond du Lac in order that Duluth's business and manufacturing interests may have unrestricted growth and development. Copies of the resolution are to be sent to the officers of the railway company, both general and local.

The convention committee was instructed to take prompt action in reference to the invitation that is to be extended the Southwestern Lumbermen's association to visit Duluth when it comes to the head of the lakes on its annual trip, in June.

The action of the house committee in extending to the United Commercial Travelers all the courtesies of the club during their annual convention here in June, was unanimously endorsed.

Notice was given by the house committee that after next Sunday the table d'hote dinners given at the club Sunday evenings will be done away with for the summer season.

Duluth Drops Opening Game of League Series to Fargo.

Davis Had Bad Three Innings and Was Then Retired.

Home teams were wound up to win in the opening games of the Northern league yesterday. Unfortunately Duluth was on the visiting list and the Cardinals lost to Fargo by a score of 6 to 1.

Davis, a south paw with a twirling percentage of .700 in the South-Dakota-Iowa league, was put in to pitch for Duluth. He got bumped hard. Five hits, two bases on balls and a pair of sacrifices in three innings put everything Cardinal on the blink.

Mueller then replaced Davis and for the remainder of the game the band played quaint Scotch ballads while the energy of Fargo batters wasted its sweetness on a frosty air.

The chances are that Mueller would have pitched a shut out game had he gone in at the first but then it is always considered lucky to lose the first game in season and for men that were scarcely acquainted with each other's style of play, the article of ball put up by Duluth excited the admiration of nearly 2000 rooters strongly prejudiced against them.

After the third inning it was a pitcher's battle between Mueller and Folkes and the big Cardinal pitcher had the best of the argument. Duluth's lonesome tally came in the sixth when Lagger drove out a screeching single and Shepard followed it up with a nice double. That was the only occasion upon which hits were bunched.

Wheaton, the new second baseman, was in the game and put up a great article of ball. He had two hits out of four times at the bat and accepted seven chances without an error.

Lambert played a nice errorless game at first and got two singles. Shepard at short had two errors out of six chances but partially made up for his fielding mistakes by his two bagger in the sixth. Kline caught a good game.

Before the game there was a parade through the principal streets of Fargo and out at the ball grounds Mayor Sweet made a brief speech and pitched the first ball. The game in detail:

The opening game at Grand Forks was one of the fastest ever. The home team won from Crookston by a score of 2 to 1. Perry Sessions for Grand Forks made a strike-out record, fanning fourteen of Lycan's hard hitters. Martin, who was to have been on the Duluth team, according to arrangements when he was released from Kansas City, twirled for Crookston and did well. Two thousand five hundred people saw the game. The score:

Crookston .....0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—1

The expected happened at Winnipeg where Tim Keefe's men lost to the Champions 10 to 9. According to a wireless message all the uncrowned heads of Canada were present when the pennant of last year was unfurled. For the first five innings the game was fairly fast and interesting but in the sixth the Maroons handed on Hutter for a total of six runs. Bartos pitched a very fine game keeping Superior's six hits well scattered. The score:

Superior .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 6 0
Winnipeg .....2 0 0 0 0 6 0 2 *—10 11 2

* * *

The desertion of Kennally has weakened the team somewhat but even at that it will make good in the Northern. Kennally will probably be suspended from playing professional baseball as soon as the National Arbitration board passes on his case and then it will be up to him to either get back in the ranks by playing with Duluth or the Rockford management will be called on to pay Duluth a nice sum for his release.

* * *

Volz will probably be with the team for tomorrow's game and Gehring may pitch for Duluth today. This will leave Mueller a chance to rest up for the morning game at Winnipeg next Monday which is a Canadian holiday.

* * *

Davis, who started and lost yesterday's game for Duluth pitched for Winnipeg Sunday and St. Cloud found him for thirteen hits including a home run, a triple and two doubles.

* * *

Whealon got into the game yesterday like a veteran. He was about the best second baseman in the league last year and will certainly strengthen the team.

Hibbing Man's Wedding Trip Rudely Interrupted.

A honeymoon trip was rudely arrested last evening by the arrest of the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Smith, of Hibbing, en route to St. Ignace, were separated by officers at the St. Louis hotel, it being claimed by Hibbing parties that Mr. Smith had obtained $15 under false pretenses.

The bridegroom was in custody only two hours, however, when the affair was straightened up by Smith paying over $15 to Chief Troyer to be given a man named Scott at Hibbing, who claimed Smith had given an order on salary alleged to be due him, but which Smith had drawn before starting on his wedding trip. The couple proceeded to St. Ignace after the bridegroom's release.

MUST SLAUGHTER CATTLE.

Durban, Natal, May 21.—The British steamers Abbey Holme and Anglo-Chilean have arrived here from Buenos Ayres with foot and mouth disease prevailing among the cattle on board of them. The authorities insist that all the live stock on the vessel shall be slaughtered before the vessels are allowed to enter the harbor.

SAND NOT THE RIGHT THING

Makes Very Poor Filler For Holes In the Street.

"I dislike to appear to be a 'knocker' and to be so presumptuous as to criticise the powers that be," said a business man, jerkily and spasmodically, as he drove rapidly along East First street this morning, "but I do not like the condition this street is in for driving purposes.

"As you see, it is full of holes scattered along its whole length." And to illustrate the point, one wheel of the buggy dropped into a depression and the vehicle lurched alarmingly to one side and then righted with a jerk that caused the business man to bite his next word in two.

"They have been filling these holes up with sand," he continued, spitting out the remainder of the decapitated word. "Just as soon as they fill them up the wheels of passing wagons take it all out again and the hole is just as bad as it was before. If they put a little crushed rock in it would stay, and the road would be in good shape. But then, of course," sarcastically, "we have no rock to spare around here, and that cannot be done. Seriously, if the rock we have in unlimited quantities were in Buffalo or Kalamazoo we would be importing it at scandalous prices and would be making good roads out of it."

FILES TWO MORTGAGES.

Northern Pacific Company Places Them on Record.

Two supplementary mortgages running from the Northern Pacific Railway company to the Farmers' Loan and Trust company and the Mercantile Trust company, of New York, have been filed with the register of deeds of this county. The company delivered a general lien mortgage, Nov. 10, 1896, for $90,000,000, covering all its property as a security for a bond issue. The first supplemental mortgage for the amount was made Feb. 21, 1902, and was filed yesterday as additional security, the mortgagor being the Farmer's Loan and Trust company. The railway company, Nov. 10, 1896, delivered a prior lien mortgage conveying its estates as security to the issuance of $130,000,000 bonds. A second supplemental mortgage for the amount was also made for the amount Feb. 21, 1902, as further security and running to the Mercantile Trust company.

HAS GREAT HOLDINGS

New Rainy Lake Company to Control Large Interests.

The Rainy Lake company, of Duluth, that filed its articles yesterday with the secretary of state, will be one of the largest and most important corporations interested in the future development of Northern Minnesota. Capitalized at $5,500,000, the organization contemplates the establishment of a large list of new industries along the line of the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road, which is being constructed to the Canadian boundary.

The Rainy Lake company is the holding company of the Ruggles-Cook immense timber holdings, the Minnesota Land and Construction company and the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake Railway company. The men back of it are among some of the best known capitalists in the Middle West.

The incorporators and directors are Charles F. Ruggles, of Chicago; M. J. Smiley, lawyer and banker, of Chicago; Robert E. Parcher, lumberman, of Wausau, Wis.; E. Golden Fiber, lumberman, of Manistee, Mich.; W. H. Cook and Hansen E. Smith, of Duluth; David O. Anderson, of Virginia.

The officers are: President and treasurer, Charles F. Ruggles; vice president, Wirt H. Cook; secretary, Hansen E. Smith.

As stated in its articles of incorporation, the scope of the company is a wide one, including the operation of railway lines, sawmill construction, planing mills, logging, lumbering and mining, real estate, stone quarries, paper and pulp mills, brick yards, iron, copper and steel smelting works. While the plans are not yet completed looking forward toward the accomplishment of all the great enterprises proposed, still it is known that two large sawmills will soon be built on the lines of the new railroad, and one of the incorporators stated yesterday that other ando greater enterprises would follow.

The timber holdings of the new corporation comprise something like 2,000,000,000 feet.

DIRECTORS ELECTED.

Young Women's Christian Association Chooses Several.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian association was held last evening at the association rooms. The business meeting which was held in the evening was preceded by a delightful spread, at which there were 120 of the association present. The tables were set in the reception and dining rooms, and with their dainty decorations and the most happy girls, the rooms presented a beautiful appearance. After the spread the girls collected in the gymnasium and sang college songs and had a jolly time for an hour.

At the business meeting eight new board members were elected, as follows: For one year, Mrs. J. D. Titcomb; for two years, Mrs. Sara McCord; for three years, Mesdames Phil Bevis, W. H. Hubbard, S. E. Matter, W. C. Sherwood and Miss Louise K. Noyes and Miss Alice Ray. The directors who continue in office are Mesdames L. W. Kline, R. S. Manley, W. T. Bishop, C. H. Merritt, W. C. Agnew, F. C. Bowman, Ward Ames and Misses Ella Roe, Ella Greiser and Garvin.

The board will meet Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock to elect its officers.

COMMISSION HOUSE FAILS

Porter Brothers Company In the Hands of Receiver.

Chicago, May 21.—Bankruptcy proceedings against the Porter Brothers company, one of the largest fruit commission houses in the country, were begun secretly in the United States district court Tuesday, and it was not until yesterday that it became known that receivers had taken charge of the company's affairs. John McLaren, former vice president of the Union National bank, and Henry L. Wilson, a lawyer, were directed by Judge Kohlsat to take charge of the assets of the corporation. This was done on application of several creditors who alleged that the concern was insolvent and that its officers had made preferential payments.

The assets of the concern are placed between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, and the liabilities may reach $3,000,000. Fruit growers throughout the country are affected. The house handled most of the products of the vineyards and orchards of California, and had agencies in many states. The failure was forced by bills aggregating less than $50,000 being pressed for collection.

PAYNE MAY RESIGN.

Report That Postmaster General Will Retire.

Washington, May 21.—It is reported that Postmaster General Henry C. Payne contemplates resigning. The basis for this report is, first, that Gen. Payne does not longer care to continue in an investigation which he is satisfied originated from personal enmity and unjust motives.

Second—Mr. Payne did not want to suspend Machen. He had decided not to do so, having been convinced that Machen was a hard-worked and honest executive officer.

Third—That President Roosevelt, at the behest of Senator Lodge and Senator Platt, of Connecticut, ordered the suspension of Machen.

Senator Spooner of Wisconsin arrived yesterday and was in a long conference with Payne. If the latter resigns it will provoke a cabinet crisis.

REPORT WAS SUPPRESSED

Government Edition of Kempster's Investigation Was Destroyed.

Milwaukee, May 21.—Dr. Walter Kempster made the startling statement yesterday that a report which he made as a commissioner of the United States government appointed to investigate the condition of the Jews in Russia at the time of the last exodus in 1891, and ordered printed by the congress of the United States, was suppressed and all of the government edition made way with and destroyed by the Russian representatives in Washington.

He said that he had received letters from United States senators and congressmen, and officials of the government asking him where they could obtain copies of the report, but neither he nor they were ever able to fathom what had become of the government edition.

"The government ordered 10,000 copies printed, and I ordered 100 for private use," said Dr. Kempster. "I received my 100 copies, but the government edition disappeared and no one to this day seems to be able to tell what became of it. I learned after the report was issued that it was substantially embodied in St. Petersburg as it had been printed in this country."

Dr. Kempster visited Europe after the publication of the report, and it was printed in London in the English, German and French languages there, and copies of it were sent by registered mail in separate packages from the London postoffice to the czar, to the heads of each of the department of the government and to the governors of the provinces.

"Every one of these reports," said Dr. Kempster, "including the one sent to the czar, was returned to the London postoffice stamped "Forbidden."

To understand the situation correctly," said Dr. Kempster, "you must know that no Jew, Gentile or Greek can leave one city in Russia and go to another city, either in that or any other province, without a special permit in writing."

As one of the many instances coming under Dr. Kempster's observation, he relates that while in Moscow he was appealed to for protection by a beautiful Jewess, who had received notice that she must quit Russia within twenty-four hours or report to the pristav for a yellow ticket, the protection ticket which is issued to a disreputable woman by the Russian government, and which permits them to live in a certain restricted area in all large cities.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The body of Charles Schroeder, 61 years of age, an employe of the Jacob Cooper shop, at Milwaukee, was found in the debris of that burned structure late Wednesday afternoon. This is the only fatality resulting from the fire. It was reported that all the workmen had escaped but the failure of Schroeder to report at his home caused an investigation with the result noted.

It is possible, the police believe, that a woman whose body was found Wednesday by members of the crew of the yacht Constitution, while they were fishing off Fifty-seventh street, Brooklyn, was murdered. The body had been in the water only a few hours, but the right arm was severed from the body and there was a long, deep wound on the right side of the abdomen.

Lord Minto will remain in Canada for the full term of six years, according to information given out semi-officially at Ottawa.

Nim Davidson was found guilty of killing Doc Lung, a Chinese laundryman, at Indianapolis, and was sentenced to from two to fourteen years in the penitentiary for manslaughter.

Engineer Tracey and Fireman Hudson were killed in the wreck of a Northern Pacific light engine near the Mulri tunnel, Mont., Wednesday. It is supposed the engine jumped the track.

Three masked men held up an electric car on the Portland, Ore., railway line near Woodlawn and robbed the conductor and passengers, securing about $175 in money and several watches.

Ellis H. Roberts, the United States treasurer, has appointed a committee of seven persons to make a detailed count of the bonds in the bond vault of the treasury. This vault contains all the bonds, mostly those of the United States that are held by the treasurer in trust for the bonds or public money deposited with them. There has been no full count of the contents of the big vault since Mr. Roberts took charge of his office, six years ago.

ANSWERS TO HIS PRAYERS

Are Always Received By Him, Says Young Rockefeller.

New York, May 20.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., practically stated Sunday that the Standard Oil company is under divine guidance. The young millionaire addressed the members of his Bible class at the Fifth Avenue Baptist church on "Types of Conversion."

There was an unusually large attendance and many questions were asked by the members.

"Many people believe in an emotional religion," he said. "I do not. I believe in a practical, sound, logical religion, based on facts. I think that if a man will look over the events of the world he will find sufficient to convince him of the truth of the Christian religion and the teachings of Christ.

"He will also find that God will guide you through this world, as He will guide you in the world to come.

"I believe in direct answers to prayers," Mr. Rockefeller continued. "Prayers should be carried into your every-day life. God is with you at your desk, at your work, and wherever you may be. I have never taken an important step in my business without having divine guidance, and my prayers have always been answered.

"In one very important matter, a matter that involved a great deal, I prayed every night and morning for God to direct me as to the action I should take. The matter was so great that it seemed beyond me. Suddenly one day, after five years of prayer, the light came to me, and I saw my path as clear as it was possible to see. God had answered my prayer.

"The Holy Spirit is the highest power that moves man to action. He is able to touch every faculty of mind and heart, to direct the thoughts, the will and the emotions toward holy ends and to give strength for their attainment.

"Sometimes He throws unforseen obstacles in the way of our pursuing a certain path; at other times He most unexpectedly opens the way in new directions.

"The consciousness that we are divinely directed will give comfort, courage and strength, and then, by and by, the way will brighten.

"Every matter of our life should be taken to God. He has greater wisdom than you in all matters pertaining to business as well as to religion.

"I will consult Him daily in all the affairs of my business and receive His help, and I know He will give the same help to you."

LEE TURNER AGAIN.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 21.—Lee Turner, of the "Quarter house," where several were recently killed, shot and killed his half brother, "General" Turner, at Jacksboro, Campbell county, Tenn. It is claimed that he acted in self defense. "General" Turner has been in the Jonesboro jail for some time and Lee Turner refused to bail him out. This infuriated "General" Turner and when he was released he attacked Lee. Lee returned the attack with nine bullets from his rifle, each one finding its mark. Lee killed John Turner, a cousin, in self defense, a year ago.

ISSUES THE PASSES

Northern Pacific Sends Annuals to Members of Legislature.

Ninety Day Passes First Issued and Caused Big Howl.

The Northern Pacific has come down handsomely, and rehabilitated itself in the esteem of the members of the Minnesota legislature.

It has called in the 90-day passes issued to the lawmakers at the beginning of the late session, and issued in place of them tickets good for the balance of the year.

It will be remembered that when the legislature got together early in January, while there were tickets there from almost every other road, there were none from the Northern Pacific. Then, after a few days, the tickets came, but greatly to the surprise and indignation of the makers of laws, they were limited to ninety days, instead of being "annuals."

Now, it had been the custom of the Northern Pacific, in common with all the other roads, to give the legislators "wise and great" each an annual pass, good from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, between all stations in Minnesota. So when the limited passes came there was something of an uproar. Many members were indignant enough to talk about sending their passes back, and it was recorded that one man who lived near enough to the state capitol to get there on street car fare did send his back. That was about all, however, as most of the members came to the conclusion that free rides for only ninety days were better than paid rides all the time.

A president of the road took cognizance of the uproar, and came out with a statement that added fuel to the flames, saying that this action was taken because some of the members had sold their passes or used them in doing commercial traveling.

Then it all blew over, and the 90-day passes came to be accepted as a settled thing. Nothing else was expected, especially as the legislature had adjourned and its power to do harm to naughty railroads was passed.

Therefore the members were greatly and agreeably surprised a few days ago to receive annuals in place of their limited passes. So all is lovely once more between the Northern Pacific and the legislature of 1903.

A BREATH OF COMING WAR

Metropolitan Audience Enjoys Specialty Not Down On the Bill.

Metropolitan theater-goers are promised specialties which are not included in the bills. Glimpses of the quarrel between the management of the theater and the company were given the patrons of the house last evening, and as Mr. Ferris declared ...s intention of repeating the announcement that caused the outbreak, further trouble is not improbable.

At the close of the fourth act Mr. Ferris came before the curtain to make the regular announcement and thank the audience for its patronage. He announced "The Man From Mexico" for the remainder of this week, and then continued with the list of the plays to be presented for the coming two weeks. He assured the people that the company would be strengthened and would remain at the Metropolitan theater until Sept. 1, claiming that his contract would not expire until that date.

"You are the only one who has seen that contract," called C. T. Fitzsimmons, president of the Metropolitan Theater company, from the rear of the house. Just at this point several members of the orchestra started to play in a loud, strident tone.

"This is an insult to you as much as to me," shouted Mr. Ferris to the audience, making himself heard above the music of the orchestra. An attempt was made on the part of a few members of the audience to hiss Mr. Ferris from the stage, but he continued in a tone of voice sufficiently loud to be heard above the orchestra:

"My contract extends until Sept. 1 and was signed by Mr. Reany as manager of this house. I intend to remain here until that date, and I will make this announcement each night."

ALL-AMERICAN RIFLE TEAM

Chosen as Outcome of Competitive Shoot at Seagirt.

Seagirt, N. J., May 21.—As the outcome of the three days' competition, ended yesterday afternoon, the following marksmen were selected last evening for the All-American Rifle team that will be sent to England in the hope of re-capturing, at Bisley, July 11 next, the coveted Palma trophy:

Capt. Horace M. Bell, Second New Jersey; Lieut. K. K. V. Casey, Seventy-first New York; Private George Cook, Company A, Third battalion, D. C. N. G.; Sergt. George Doyle, Seventy-first New York; Lieut. Thomas Holcomb, Jr., U. S. Marine corps; Quartermaster Sergt. J. H. Keogh, Sixth Massachusetts; Private H. H. Leizear, Sixth Pennsylvania; Capt. W. B. Martin, Second New Jersey; Corporal W. D. Short, Seventh New York; Corporal Charles B. Winder, Sixth Ohio; Private Samuel B. Wetherald, Company A, Third battalion D. C. N. G.; Lieut. A. E. Wells, Seventy-first New York.

Alternates — Quartermaster Sergt. Franklin Phillips, First troop, New Jersey; Private Genoch, First New Jersey; Capt. H. E. Evans, Sixty-ninth New York.

Col. Leslie C. Bruce, Old Guard, New York, will be the team captain and Col. J. H. Wells, Seventy-first New York, will serve as team adjutant.

IN MEMORY OF THE DEAD

Touching Memorial Service at Confederate Veteran Reunion.

New Orleans, May 21.—Yesterday's session of the Confederate reunion closed with a prayer. The first words of the petition for divine guidance and blessing were spoken by the chaplain, while the echoes of "taps," the saddest and yet the most beautiful of all bugle calls, was yet quivering in the air. For this was the day, a portion of which had been set apart for services in honor of the hero dead of the Confederate cause.

The memorial services were opened promptly at 12 o'clock by Gen. Gordon, who said: "And now, my comrades, the appointed time has come for the services in honor of our immortal dead—and for the opening of these exercises, I believe, we should give thanks to Almighty God for the lives they lived and ask His benediction for them and us for the time to come. I am going to ask Gen. Young, of Kentucky, to lead us in prayer."

Gen. Young delivered an eloquent invocation and was followed by Gen. J. A. Challaron, who gave a eulogy on the late adjutant general of the United Confederate Veterans, George Morman, of New Orleans. Gen. Cabell followed in a brief address in which he paid a warm tribute to the late adjutant general. The resolutions were adopted by a silent rising vote.

Gen. Gordon then introduced Rev. J. J. Finley, of Fisherville, Va., who delivered the annual memorial sermon. It was a strong address fervid in its patriotism, replete with loving words for the dead.

"The Vacant Chair" was played softly by the band and then "taps" was blown. A short prayer by Chaplain Gen. Jones brought the memorial exercises to a close.

ZERO WEATHER IN MONTANA

Ten Feet of Snow and Great Loss In Cattle.

Butte, Mont., May 21.—Ten feet of snow is reported from Coutts, Mont., near the boundary and the thermometer is ranging from four to six degrees below zero. Traffic on the Great Northern is seriously interfered by the drifting snow and trains are being operated with the greatest difficulty. Conservative estimates place the loss of stock about $2,000,000 and the number of head of stock lost is figured at about 90,000. This loss will be swelled by the ruin of the fruit crop throughout Northern Montana, which, it is understood, is a total failure. The storm was followed by frost of the most damaging kind, and all garden stuffs have felt its effects. The Missouri river is rising rapidly and the ranchers are leaving the lowlands in anticipation of disastrous floods.

No trace can be found of the three sheep herders first reported missing and it is thought their bodies lie deep beneath the snow.

JOBBED BY FRIENDS.

Practical Joke Played on Pennsylvania Legislator.

Cripple Creek, Col., May 21.—An erstwhile Pennsylvania legislator will look after his railroad transportation to the West in the future. Friends of Hon. Frederick Phillips, of Scranton, Pa., jobbed the man. Two of them happened to be in this city with nothing to do on the 4th inst., and they invited him to attend a meeting of the State Game Protective and Race Horse association, to be held here on even date.

The dispatch was signed as president and secretary, "any old name," only telling the man from Scranton that his bills for expenses were to be paid and that he was expected to make in return a speech. Phillips, it appears, had a bill in the assembly of Pennsylvania providing for a game and race horse law that died in the last effort of the assembly. It touched his heart to think that people in the Rocky mountain region appreciated what he was really trying to do, and in order to try to explain the entire matter fully, he came.

He promises that some ribs will give way when he gets home again, but it is thought here that he should be received with a band.

SENATOR SPOONER

Buys a Game Preserve In New Hampshire.

Littleton, N. H., May 21.—Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, has purchased on private terms the great Blanchard estate, which includes practically the whole town of Pittsburg, the northern town of New Hampshire, which, it is understood, he will turn into a game preserve. Much of the property is in its natural state and is ideally located for preserve purposes, and added value comes from its inaccessibility, practically absolute privacy being there assured.

PLUG OF TOBACCO

And Sack of Crackers Held Up Train.

Marysville, Ohio, May 21.—With a plug of tobacco in one hand and a sack of crackers in the other, Fred Coleman frightened a Big Four train crew so that it refused to cross a bridge near Milford Center. He is an escaped convict from the asylum at Woodville, Penn., and has been at large two weeks. Before commitment to the asylum he was a bridge builder. The train crew saw him on the bridge holding the tobacco and crackers, but in the misty moonlight thought the articles were weapons, and backed the train to Milford Center, where they notified the marshal, Mr. Perkins. When Perkins first called to him to come down Coleman refused, but finally joined the marshal and submitted quietly to arrest. He will be returned to the asylum.

HEIR TO MILLIONS

Is In Jail at Oregon Awaiting Sentence.

Portland, Ore., May 20.—Adopted son and alleged heir to the fortune of $5,000,000 left by Samuel C. Allen, of Honolulu, news of whose death came in the dispatches a few days ago, George C. Allen occupies a cell in the county jail awaiting a sentence for forgery.

Allen came here about three months ago, and was arrested and convicted of passing a check for $28 on a local bank.

Samuel C. Allen went from Bangor, Maine, to Honolulu. He adopted as his son the six-months-old child of a half-blood Hawaiian woman. This little fellow, whose father, David Fife, was a Scotchman, was George C. Allen, now convicted forger, and the Allens legally adopted him.

CURES CHRONIC CATARRH.

Hyomei Cures Worst Forms of This Disease In Any Part of the System.

It is the height of folly to continue doctoring a catarrhal disease by stomach drugging, when the whole trouble lies in the respiratory organs where nothing can reach the germs but a local direct treatment by inhalation. Hyomei is Nature's remedy for the cure of catarrh. Just breathe it a few times daily and it will effect a cure.

You may have catarrh of the stomach, liver or kidneys, and Hyomei will as surely cure it as it will catarrh of the head and throat. The catarrhal germs are in the mucous membrane or tissues, and Hyomei not only kills the germs along the air passages, but enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood.

The medicated dry air that goes through the air passages and into the lungs when Hyomei is breathed through the inhaler that accompanies every outfit, is rich in ozone, purely vegetable and filled with marvelous healing and strength-giving qualities.

If you are tired of stomach druggling and seem to grow weaker all the time, "throw physic to the dogs" and get well with the health-giving Hyomei treatment that is Nature's own method.

Rev. J. B. Cook, of Holliston, Mass., says: "My wife has suffered greatly from catarrh for fifteen years. Nearly four weeks ago she commenced to use Hyomei, and the beneficial effect was immediate. It is very seldom that she needs to clear her head and throat, and she is able to rest quietly at night. For years past she had been troubled with pain in her limbs, which we supposed was rheumatism, but since she has used Hyomei that affliction has disappeared."

S. F. Boyce will return your money if Hyomei does not cure you of catarrh. This shows his faith in the remedy.

Blood Poison

Constitutional Blood Poison is a toxic or morbid condition of the blood from poisons introduced from without or generated within the body. When the poison is in the air in the form of microbes or bacilli, it is called contagion. When it requires actual contact it is called infection. When the poison is generated in the system it is called AUTO POISON (self poison). Syphilis is called SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON because it is a pre-eminent type and by far the more common and virulent of blood poisons. It is also called on account of its horrible ravages and great prevalence. It is stated on high authority that there is not a family free from Syphilitic Infection. If this be true then there is no such thing as Blue Blood. The so-called blue bloods are as vile as the rest of us, and the man or woman who marries takes chances. In the secondary and tertiary forms Syphilis

THE KING OF VENEREAL DISEASES,

Life Story of Man In a Hospital at Cincinnati.

His Miraculous Escapes From Death In the Philippines.

Cincinnati, May 21.—Civilization, with the help of Booker Washington, the great benefactor of his race, has done much for Walter Mawhaka, the son of a negro father and a mother who was half Zulu and half East Indian, and who is now a patient in the city hospital. Yesterday he was the entertainer of a group of patients, to whom he told in broken English, freely interlarded with Spanish, his life's history.

Twenty-three years ago Mawhaka was born in Honolulu. He is a member of a family of twenty-one children, fifteen of whom were boys and six girls, nun of whose fate since he has been in this country he knows nothing. Until the breaking out of the Spanish-American war the family lived in Cuba for some years, and at memorable San Juan the father fell fighting on the side of the Spaniards, with a bullet through his head.

After his death the mother, with her brood of children, went to Manila and became a member of the blood-thirsty tribe on the island whose king was Nittaka and the tribeswoman, or queen, Queen Mohaw.

On April 16, 1900, the tribe decided to attack a detachment of American soldiers on the outskirts of Manila, and Mawhako's mother, taking Walter and Juan, his brother, by the hand and commanding her other children to follow, on hearing the rattle of musketry, took flight. In her fright she ran through an open field between the contending forces. Suddenly the mother shrieked and fell and the boy fell with her. He saw with horror the blood oozing from a gaping wound over her heart and felt a pain on the right side of his head. When he put his hand to the side where he felt the sting it was covered with blood.

The same bullet that had laid his mother low had struck him in the temple, making only a slight wound. Crawling through the underbrush and taking his brother with him he made his way to a stream where, falling in with one of the numerous guerrilla bands which infested the country there the two boys were made prisoners. The men had a large boat, but only upon for themselves, and so the boys were tied to rafts and were bound hand and foot. These rafts were fastened to the boat, and in this manner they were towed up stream. Sometimes the rafts were submerged as the boat sped under sail and often Walter and his brother Juan thought their last hour had come.

The elder lad, knowing that if he survived he would be sold by his captors to Suez or San Domingo slave dealers, for, in spite of all diligence this is still a secret traffic in that country, he hoped that the waters would engulf him. Just when his hopes looked gloomiest shots again rang out. From the shore came a powerful fusilade, and in less than twenty minutes his former captors were captives themselves in the hands of American soldiers. Walter and his brother Juan were well cared for by the soldiers and were eventually sent to Honolulu when the Twenty-second infantry and Eighteenth cavalry went there.

In Honolulu Juan died from the exposure and the trials he endured, and with the aid of a missionary Walter was sent to this country, where he became a pupil in the famous college erected by Booker Washington in Alabama for his people. He is already an expert typesetter, but, while he can read and write English, he speaks the language with a Spanish accent. His desire to see the country brought him to this city, where he fell ill and had to go to the hospital for treatment.

MAID WENT IN MALE ATTIRE

But Officer Arrested Her and West Virginia Student.

Huntington, W. Va., May 21.—A prominent young society girl of Gallipolis, a member of one of the best families in that city, was arrested here in company with Walter Forshay, a young student who lives in this state. The girl was garbed from head to foot in male attire and presented a striking appearance as she strolled leisurely up the leading avenue, elbowing her way through the crowds, with a cigarette between her teeth and a gold-headed cane in her hand. Forshay was a close companion and they enjoyed themselves immensely until a burly policeman hustled them to the police station in a patrol.

Reaching the inner circle of Judge Lailance's office, the little maiden broke down and wept bitterly, pleading that she be allowed to go without a fine. Her appeal was granted, and a closed carriage was ordered. The girl was taken to a near-by hotel. She will be sent to her home in Gallipolis. She has been a student in a local college for some time and has always borne an enviable reputation.

To the police judge she stated that her college days were drawing to a close here, and that she simply had a desire to see the town in its various phases before returning home. She was out but two hours when the policeman spoiled her fun. It was apparent that the girl's act was simply the result of high spirits and thoughtlessness.

DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES

Chairman Mack Suggests Platform That Would Promote Unity.

Buffalo, May 21.—Norman Mack, the Democratic national committeeman for the state of New York, has sent a reply to the letter of R. L. Metcalf, of Omaha, on the possibility of Cleveland's nomination. Mr. Mack says the Democrats should stick to their attitude against trusts, demand a conservative tariff reform, advocate an income tax, protest against government by injunction and the blacklist and condemn the methods employed in the Philippines. Then he concludes:

"It seems to me the friends of Mr. Bryan and those of Mr. Cleveland can unite in opposition to these things without surrendering allegiance to any of our party principles. The selection of the candidate must become secondary to the enunciation of the platform, which must not be ambiguous on any proposition, but couched in terms clear and explicit. It is, of course, too early to say just what the national platform of next year will be, but it seems to me that one constructed on such lines as I have indicated should not incur the hostility of the friends of Mr. Bryan nor of those of Mr. Cleveland or any other national leader.

"In a word, Democrats must unite if they would march in triumph to the White House next year. The present incumbent of that dwelling, by his strenuous measures and his peculiar methods of self-advertisement, is becoming more and more distasteful every day to the people of the country."

THE CHIPPEWA TIMBER SALES

Bids Are to Be Opened at Cass Lake Dec. 5.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Richards, commissioner of the land office, has announced the selections of timber to be sold under the operations of the Morris act in the Chippewa reservation. The bids will be opened Dec. 5 at Cass Lake, and 15,291 acres of timber are to be sold. There is in this strip something like 229,425,000 feet of timber. It is estimated that at least $5 per 1000 feet will be paid for white and $4 for Norway pine, and this will bring over $2,000,000 to the Indians. They have prepared the specifications so that logging may be commenced this winter.

CANCELLED MANY

Over Three Thousand Postoffice Clerks Lose Their Promotions.

Former Assistant Postmaster General Heath Asked to Explain.

Washington, May 21.—The cancellations of the promotions of over 3000 postoffice clerks throughout the country recently authorized by the department and a formal notice to Former First Assistant Postmaster General Perry S. Heath of the charges made against him by Ex-Cashier S. W. Tulloch, of the Washington city postoffice constituted yesterday's developments in the postoffice investigation. First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne late Yesterday afternoon reported to Postmaster General Payne that the tabulation of the clerks in each grade in postoffices of the first class had been completed. This work was undertaken in accordance with the order made by the postmaster general to rearrange the salaries of the clerks already classified so that the number in the several grades shall not exceed the number specifically prescribed in the act of congress, making appropriations for the postal service. The former classification was made by George W. Beavers, just prior to his sudden resignation as chief of the division of salaries and allowances.

The new schedule approved by the postmaster general after transferring five per cent to grades where they are vacancies, as authorized by a recent decision of the comptroller of the treasury, makes it necessary to cancel 3005 promotions in the several grades in which there is an excess above the number to which the grades are limited by law, and in which grades 742 promotions have been authorized heretofore.

The postmaster general yesterday sent to Perry Heath a copy of the charges filed by Mr. Tulloch, together with a letter requesting any suggestion he may submit on the subject. It is the first official communication with Mr. Heath during the investigation. None of the supplemental answers to the postmaster general's letters giving the more definite allegations of Mr. Tulloch have yet been received by Mr. Payne.

Auditor Castle, of the postoffice department was busy yesterday reviewing the records of his office in connection with the Tulloch charges and will submit his reply to the postmaster general with a request that they be given publicity in view of the publication of the charges. Captain Castle will confer with Comptroller of the Treasury Tracewell, who is also preparing a reply to the Tulloch allegations. The end of the investigation is not yet in sight.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who is conducting the work, has not set any date for his report for the reason that the sweeping nature of the investigation has made it impossible to indicate when the whole matter will be ready to be placed in the hands of the postmaster general for final disposition. It is probable that the report will not be submitted before the close of June or the early part of July.

RACE TRACK PLUNGER

Marries a Girl Worth a Million Dollars.

San Francisco, Cal., May 20.—Charles J. Quinn, a known plunger who is familiar to all racetrack men throughout the country but who comes from Louisville, was quietly married to Miss Mabel Hopkins, niece of E. W. Hopkins. She has a fortune of $1,000,000 in her own right, and her uncle and cousins, Mrs. Gus Taylor, Mrs. Will Taylor and Mrs. George W. Near, Jr., were violently opposed to her marriage. The girl was engaged to Dr. Edmond Gros, of Paris, France, but she broke this engagement to wed Quinn.

MORE LAND FOR WEST POINT.

New York, May 20.—Two hundred and twenty acres are to be added to the United States military reserve at West Point at an expense of $20,000. Title to the newly acquired property will probably pass within the next few days. The new ground adjoins the government's present holdings on the south and west. This is the first addition that has been made to the West Point property acreage for more than 100 years, or since the military academy was established there.

"Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful. I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. RUSSIANS DENOUNCED

At Meeting of Jewish Residents of San Francisco.

San Francisco, May 20.—The Jewish residents of the city held an enthusiastic mass meeting here last night for the purpose of denouncing the Russian government for the recent outrages perpetrated upon the Jews of that country. Judge Sloss presided. Addresses were delivered by prominent Jews of the city, who told of the awful manner in which the Jewish people were treated, and asked for the aid and sympathy of the Jewish residents of San Francisco. A large sum of money was donated, tand resolutions were passed denouncing the Russian government for its persecution of the Jews.

KRUGER AT PARIS.

Former President Welcomed By Intimate Friends.

Paris, May 20.—Former President Kruger arrived here today from Mentone on his way to Holland, and received a sympathetic welcome from a small crowd of intimate friends who boarded his train at the station. The women of the party presented the Boer statesman with many bouquets, and Mr. Kruger made a brief speech of thanks for the kindness France has shown his unhappy countrymen. He said he expected to return to France next year. Mr. Kruger spoke in a strong voice and seemed to be in fairly good health.

WHITECAP STORIES

Frightened Civil War Veteran, Who Is Insane.

Bloomington, Ind., May 20.—Application has been filed for the admission of Calvin Rocke to the Central hospital for the insane at Indianapolis. Rocke was a soldier in the civil war, and is 58 years of age. There were no symptoms of insanity until recently, when he was seized with the idea that a mob was after him to kill him.

Several years ago a bundle of switches was left at Rocke's door at night, with a warning that he must go to work. This seems to have preyed on his mind, and when the recent whitecapping took place in his neighborhood he became so terrified that it was necessary to put him under restraint. He has a delusion that he is assisting in ferreting out the whitecaps, and mentins the names of several prominent citizens as being connected with that organization.

Rocke was placed in the county jail for safekeeping. Some one pounded on the jail door, and Rocke shrank into a corner, begging piteously for protection.

WIFE IN NAME ONLY

Until She Could Learn to Love Husband.

Indianapolis, May 21.—The last chapter of the peculiar courtship and marriage journey of Joseph Guisinger and wife was written in Judge Leather's branch of the Marion county superior court. Guisinger came here a few years ago from a town in Florida, where he taught in a normal school. He met Ray Martin, a pretty 17-year-old school girl, and fell in love. She did not return his love, but her mother persuaded her to marry him. She agreed, but extracted a promise that she should be wife in name only until she learned to love him.

Guisinger forgot his promise. She deserted, ran off to St. Louis, and then brought suit for divorce, but the judge held that the fact that she did not love him was not sufficient ground for release.

Guisinger then filed a cross-complaint asking for divorce. The judge granted him the decree on the ground that he had greater cause for complaint, and because he realized the couple would never live together. It was one of the most unusual cases in the history of the courts here.

SLUMP IN WHEAT

The Crop Conditions Are Too Favorable For the Bulls.

Foreign Demand Is Poor —Flax Is Quiet and Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 21.—The crop killers could not work fast enough today to overcome the fine weather reports that came in and there was a big drop in the wheat price. The sentiment that the winter wheat crop is by any means so seriously damaged as some of the bullish reports of the past few days would give reason to believe is growing steadily. Valentine of the Armour company, while bullish on the future of the wheat market in an interview at Chicago expressed the opinion that the wheat crop is just a little off edge and liable to recover with a little favorable weather. The weak cables and promised sales caused a weaker opening, but soon after the loss was almost wholly recovered but only for a brief period, when it again started downward and toward the close seemed to drop out. The cash demand was slack. A London cable received by a local shipper said that favorable weather in the United Kingdom and on the continent was depressing the market and curtailing the demand and that it was hard to sell anything. The Liverpool market closed ¼d lower.

Broomhall estimates the Argentine shipments this week at 2,000,000 bushels. Primary receipts of wheat were 226,000 bushels, last year 315,000 bus. Shipments 20,000 bus., last year 571,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 722,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 128 cars, and at Chicago 11, a total of 138 cars, against 147 last week and 123 last year.

Today in the Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. In the Chicago market July corn declined ⅝-⅝c and July oats had a heavy slump, falling 1⅝-1¾c. Primary receipts of corn were 476,000 bus., last year 182,000 bus. Shipments 161,000 bus., last year 204,000 bus. Clearances were 157,000 bus.

The Duluth wheat market was fairly active. July opened ⅛c off at 76c, sold at 75⅞c at 9:35, rallied to 75⅝c at 9:42 and then dropped to 73⅞c at 10:15, continuing its downward course to 73c at 12:30. The close was at 73c, a decline of 1¾c. May fell ⅞c and September 1¾c. In Chicago May fell 2⅝c and July 1½c. Minneapolis: May was ⅝c lower and July ⅝-¾c lower. New York dropped 2¾c and July 2¾c.

Cash sales were 5000 bushels and prices continued at May price for No. 1 northern and 3c under for No. 2.

Flax was quiet, July sold between $1.16¾ and $1.16⅝ and finally closed unchanged at $1.16¾. May dropped ½c and September and October advanced ¾c.

Oats had a decline of ½ to ⅝.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 78¾c; No. 2 northern, 76¾c; May, No. 1 northern, 78¾c; July, 73c; September, 73¼c. Flax, in store, $1.15; to arrive, 3000, on track, $1.15¼; May, $1.15; July, $1.16¾; September, $1.17¾; October, $1.17½; November, $1.17. Oats, to arrive, 34@34½c; on track, 34@34½c; May, 31c. Rye, to arrive, 56c; on track, 56c; May, 66c. Barley, 35@50c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 16; last year, 6; oats, 1; rye, 2; flax, 8; last year, 2.

Receipts: Wheat, 18,392; oats, 10,442; flax, 17,978.

Shipments: Wheat, 78,005; oats, 250; barley, 167.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Free Offerings of Wheat With Little Buying.

Chicago, May 21.—Wheat opened weak on improved weather and favorable crop bulletins with July 1c to 1⅛@1⅜c lower at 74⅝c to 74⅝@¾c. There were free offerings from scattered sources with few buying orders in evidence. Easier cables influenced the selling and a further decline to 73c in July occurred during the first hour. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 128 cars, which with local receipts of 11 cars—none of contract grade—made total receipts for the three points of 138 cars against 147 last week and 123 a year ago.

Later the selling became general by pit traders and local longs, due to continued reports of rain in the wheat belt July selling down to 73¼c and closing with a loss of 1⅝@1¾c at 73¼c.

The corn market was quiet, but steady at opening, notwithstanding easier cables. A scarcity of July and September offerings with a fair commission house demand operated to hold prices near yesterday's close, initial sales of July being at a shade lower to a shade higher at 44⅞ to 45c. Trade was only moderate in volume and with little feature, but prices showed a tendency towards firmness and July sold up to 45c early. Local receipts were 161 cars with 10 of contract grade.

An easier feeling became manifest to free selling by cash houses and little demand under the influence of wheat and oats. July closing at the bottom figures for the day with a loss of ½@⅝c at 44⅜.

Oats reflected the feeling in wheat and selling marked the early trading. Offerings were quickly absorbed, however, the sentiment being slightly bullish on the crop situation. July opened a shade higher at 4⅜ to 4½c and held steady. Local receipts 110 cars.

Provisions opened little lower following the hog market. There was moderate selling by brokers with scattering buying, the demand in some products showing improvement. September pork was 2½c lower at $16.80 with lard down 5@7½c at $9.60, and ribs off 2½ at $9.30@9.32½.

Close: Wheat—May, 78¾c; July, 73⅜c; September, 70½@70⅝c; December, 71¼c. Corn, May, 44⅝c; July, 44⅜c; September, 44@44c. Oats, May, 30c; July, 28¾@29c; September, 30⅝c; December, 30⅜. Pork, May, $18.90; July, $17.50; September, $16.70. Lard, May, $8.85; July, $8.92½; September, $8.92½. Ribs, May, $9.32½; July, $9.00@9.42½; September, $9.25. Rye, May, 49½c; July, 50c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Duluth Commercial Record: There is one thing about the seeding of flax that will do to bear in mind this year, and that is the remarkably early start the plant has got. Of course, the seeding of flax in the Northwest extends over a longer period of time than any other plant raised, but it is doubtful if in any previous year so large a percentage of Minnesota and South Dakota area had such an early start. These operations were fairly early last year, but not within a week or ten days of being as early as this year.

In many parts of Minnesota flax is already out of the ground and under normal weather conditions, this flax should be ready for harvesting between August 1st to 10th. In North Dakota a like condition prevails, but of course not as early as in the more southerly sections.

Still, it will be remembered that in 1895-96-97, North Dakota had relatively a much larger percentage of flax into Duluth than in recent years, and they promise to do the same thing again this year.

• • •

South Dakota crop report: The weather during the week averaged warm, with brisk to high southernly winds the latter part, and very beneficial moderate to generous rains the fore part over the Sioux River valley and the middle and lower James River Valley, but the need for rain for grass and late sown grain is becoming evident in some upper Missouri and upper James River Valley localities, as the high winds are drying the surface soil. On the whole, wheat, oats, barley, speltz, rye and grass have made vigorous and healthy growth, and early sown grains are stooling well. Grass, though still backward, generally affords good pasturage, and the condition of range live stock is steadily improving. Notwithstanding the windy weather, and some delay in the extreme southeastern counties due to heavy rains, corn planting has on the whole progressed well and is now becoming general. Early corn in the southeastern counties is coming up well.

Potato planting has progressed favorably and the early planted are up. Preparation of ground for flax and millet progressed favorably, and the sowing of these crops is in progress.

Tree fruits are in blossom generally, and reports indicate that on the whole the injury to this class of fruits by the cold weather of the last week in April will be light. Wild plums appear not to have been injured, except in limited localities.

The disposition of the 1902 Manitoba crop is recently estimated as follows:

Received Port Arthur and Fort William, Sept 1 to Apr. 19.....	29,332,000
In store at country points.....	10,645,000
Country mills.....	7,000,00
Farmers' hands.....	4,000,000
Am't required for seeding.....	6,000,000
Am't required for feeding.....	1,000,000
Total.....	57,977,000

The estimated crop was 64,000,000, indicating a discrepancy in figures of 6,000,000 bushels.

Berlin: Great excitement prevails in the Berlin grain market because of impossibility of getting grain to meet contract requirements. Latest arrivals from Hamburg proved unfit for delivery and some shipments which were partly acceptable were spoiled while on their way to Berlin, only 50 tons of grain meeting requirements have arrived here.

W. H. Laidley & Co., Chicago: Wheat shows quite a little strength on the decline. The latter being caused by general rains with more expected. This reaction makes a healthier market and purchases on breaks should make money. I look for an advance of 2 cents on July from this price. They bulled corn on dry weather and now trying to bull it on rains. The country is largely short of July corn, regardless of numerous bull tips, and that's what makes me feel as if we would get a bulge.

• • •

Cincinnati Price Current: The drought area was lessened the past week. Winter wheat prospects are fully maintained. Early planted corn is showing good stand. Planting continues with little change in the situation. Oats are fair to good, west of Mississippi. The tendency of the week is somewhat toward improvement.

• • •

McQuiston, of Chicago: As long as 80 cents does not increase our receipts it certainly shows there is very little left in the country that is for sale at current prices and July wheat bought on all the soft spots should get the money.

• • •

A. H. Farnum: A few hours of favorable weather is undoing the work the crop killers have accomplished in past ten days. June is a great growing month and I expect to see lower prices on wheat and oats before long.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was active. There was perhaps fewer scattered crop damage complaints and the Price Current statement that the drought had been lessened and wheat prospects fully maintained were bearish factors. Generally showery conditions in the west and the weakness in coarse grains in consequent were also depressing influences. The cables were weak and the cash situation slow. Broomhall estimates Argentine shipments at 2,000,000 and says the estimate of India surplus is being increased. California is still without rain. There is enough uncertainty about crop conditions, we think, to make a good scalping market at least and on further weakness would buy wheat at a rally. Estimated cars 25.

Corn—Market was fairly active and weak. The Price Current says corn planting about finished and little change in situation. The showery weather was a bearish influence and with liberal country offerings and moderate demand there was quite a good deal of selling pressure. There was no particular feature to the buying. Estimated cars for tomorrow 285.

Oats—Market is active and weak. The showery condition throughout the middle west was the bearish influence and it brought about quite a general liquidation. The Price Current says oats fair to good west of Mississippi, eastward poor to fair. Tendency of the week somewhat toward improvement. As the buying lately has been almost entirely on crop conditions, the condition today was much weaker. There is nothing in the cash situation that is urgent either way. Estimated cars 140.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Due to Heavy Selling Shortly After the Opening.

The Covering Movement Stopped Decline and Closing Was Firm.

New York, May 21.—The reduction of the bank of England discount rate gave strength to the American department in London in common with the general stock market. There were many advances here in response but the higher level met heavy selling and prices were not maintained. The first sale of St. Paul was of 100 shares at a recovery of ¾ from last night but the next sale was of 2100 shares at a relapse to last night's level. Dealings in Atchison were in 1000 share lots at an advance of ¼ and in Union Pacific at a decline of ⅜c. A rise of ⅜ in Reading measured the largest gain. A number of important stocks opened lower, Toledo, St. Louis & Western lost a point.

Enormous selling orders encountered all efforts to support prices and forced the level of the market back to or below last night and to low record figures for the movement. St. Paul was the pivotal stock and when it broke rapidly to 152¾ the downward plunge began in others. Losses over last night reached about a point in St. Paul, Copper, Colorado Fuel and United States preferred, and several others of less prominence. Lackawanna showed a gain at once time of two points and Tennessee Coal and Metropolitan Street Railway 1. Southern Pacific, Atchison and Reading received the strongest support. With the working off of selling orders the determined support became effective and full recoveries were made. Atchison and Reading rose nearly a point over last night.

When the decline was once arrested, the shorts covered freely and there was some eager buying in the effort to secure long stock at the low level. Besides Reading, which gained 1⅝ and Atchison, there were recoveries of a point or more from yesterday in the Erie, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Wabash preferred, Colorado Southern, Louisville & Nashville, Rock Island preferred, Brooklyn Transit, Delaware & Hudson rose 3 and St. Paul preferred lost 3¼. The market became dull at the recovery. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Taking of profits by the traders who had bought in a lower level caused some reaction but the set-back was not important. When these sales were about concluded prices were bid up again and some stocks sold higher than before. St. Paul, Union Pacific and Copper were included in the list of stocks which ruled a point or more above yesterday's close and General Electric and Erie second preferred advanced 2 and 2¼ respectively. The market showed less animation than during the first hour.

Prices were somewhat easier during the early afternoon. The market, however, was not subjected to any demand, the manifest indifference of the public and the stable tone of the market on the recovery discouraging short selling. Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred rose 2 and Western Union 1. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis dropped 3.

The market continued to make moderate progress toward higher prices. Reading and the Eries were conspicuous, scoring gains of 1⅞ to 4. Additional one point gains were made by the Pennsylvania group, Southern Railway, Chicago Great Western, Rock Island, Canadian Pacific, the Mexican stocks, Kansas & Texas preferred, St. Louis & San Francisco and Sugar. Soo rose 3 over last night. In the inactive list the U. S. Express rose 6½, Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis preferred 5, and Central of New Jersey, 4. The closing was active and firm.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 21.—It was a badly "mixed" crowd that surrounded the local pit in the cotton market this morning. In the first place the Liverpool cables were almost sensationally weak as they had recently been strong and though just before the local opening they showed some irregularity they were still from 10 to 12 points below expectations. In addition to this, a favorable weather map and early estimates of exceptionally large port receipts for the day exterted a bearish influence on sentiment. Still on the other hand, the strongly aggressive tactics of the latest bull leader has rendered the average operator fearful of further sensational shows of strength so that at the opening there seemed a disposition to let the big men on either side set the pace and establish the initial range of prices. Still, there was enough business to make the opening an active one while the speculative atmosphere was still full of excitement and uncertainty at the start the bears had all the best of it first prices being 11 to 29 points lower with July selling on call at 11.00; August at 10.73 and September at 9.70. Following this after some irregularity there was a sharp rally under bull support.

Closing cables from Liverpool indicated an utterly demoralized conditin there, near months closing at a decline of 19½@22 points and this brought about such a rush of realizing in the local market as has seldom if ever been witnessed. In five to ten minutes July sold from 11.10, the best of the morning to 10.80 a loss since last night of 41 points; August sold from 10.81 to 10.62 and September from 9.92 to 9.75. Then came a pause and the market moved uncertainly slight recoveries being followed by equally slight reactions with prices generally ruling within 2 or 3 points of the bottom.

Cotton spot closed quiet; 10 points lower. Middling uplands, 12.05; middling gulf, 12.30. Sales 7300 bales. Cotton futures closed irregular and easy. May, 11.60; June, 10.70; July, 10.70; August, 10.45; September, 9.65; October, 9.27; November, 9.14; December, 9.10; January, 9.12.

NO LOCAL EFFECT

Chicago Commission Firm Failure Has No Effect Here.

The news of the failure of the Porter Brothers company, one of the largest fruit commission houses in the country, was received in Duluth with much surprise but with no alarm or apprehension of further effects.

Local commission houses have all been enjoying a large business and are in such a position as not to fear anything from the Chicago failure.

The Porter Brothers company was associated in a roundabout way with the Fitzsimmons-Derrig company, but the association was not such as involve any evil result to the latter from the failure of the former. One party interested in the Porter company is interested in this house and in houses in St. Paul and Minneapolis, but the Northwestern houses are all separate corporations in good standing.

"The failure of the Porter Brothers company will not affect us in the least," said John Derrig, treasurer of the Fitzsimmons-Derrig company, this morning. "Like the St. Paul and Minneapolis houses, we are a separate and distinct corporation, and the relations with the Chicago house are not such as to involve us in the slightest. The failure affects only the Chicago, New York and Jersey houses.

"There is no direct connection with the Porter Bros. in Duluth," said C. T. Fitzsimmons this noon. "Their branches are in New York, Boston, Chicago and Sacramento. They have a large dried fruit store in San Francisco and two stores in St. Paul and Minneapolis, under that name, are the property of F. C. Palmer.

"Mr. Palmer is interested in a small way with the Fitzsimmons-Derrig Commission company. He is heavily interested in the Porter Brothers company at Chicago, but I have no idea what his losses will be.

"The failure cannot have the slightest effect in Duluth, as the connection between local firms and Porter Bros. was small, there being perhaps a few scattered buyers from them upon occasions.

"Mr. Palmer's interest in our company cannot be affected in the least by the crash of his interests merged in the Porter Bros. concern."

WAS NO LOCKOUT.

No Trouble Over Metropolitan Theater Till June 1.

There was no lockout at the Metropolitan theater this morning, though it was expected by members of the Ferris company.

There was a rumor late last night and early this morning that the board of directors of the theater company had decided that Mr. Ferris' curtain speeches were beyond his legal rights, and that the doors of the house would be closed to him when he went around to rehearsal this morning.

This noon Mr. Fitzsimmons said that the directors had not decided to shut the doors on Ferris until June 1.

"He is making a monkey of himself, I see," said Mr. Fitzsimmons this noon, "in his speeches. We don't care for that. But he must get out of the theater by June 1. If he don't we will bring proceedings to eject him or will lock the doors on him and restrain him from forcible entry. That's all there is about that."

Mr. Ferris continues in private and public speech to announce that his company will remain at the theater until Sept. 1.

CARL JOHANSON HERE.

Arrives From Alaska to Purchase Machinery.

Carl M. Johanson, of Eagle City, Alaska, formerly a well-known Duluth attorney, is in the city on his way back from the East, where he has been on a business trip for the past month.

Mr. Johanson went to the Klondike from Duluth in the early days of the gold fever of 1898. He is still there and doing well, which makes him one of the few exceptions to the rule of indifferent luck that followed those who went to the Klondike in the boom days. He is now United States commissioner for the district of Alaska, in which he lives. His errand in the states is to purchase some sawmill machinery, which he is to take back with him into Alaska.

He arrived at Seattle on his way out, April 20, and has been East ever since, arriving here yesterday. He will go to Chicago to start his machinery on the way. When he lived in Duluth Mr. Johanson was a law partner of H. B. Fryberger.

FIRE AT DUNKIRK, O.

Lima, O., May 21.—The business portion of Dunkirk, twenty-five miles east of here, was practically wiped out by fire early today. Eleven business blocks and three residences were burned. The loss is estimatd at $100,000, partially covered by insurance.

ARKANSAS MOVING SLOWLY.

Cairo, Ill., May 21.—The monitor Arkansas anchored at Bemords island, a few miles below Commerce, Mo., last night. She is moving very slowly today but may possibly reach Cairo tonight.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Dry Dock to Be Built at Manitowoc on Lake Michigan.

Crazed Cook Makes Things Lively on Steamer Manhattan.

Among the notable marine improvements that are contemplated for the coming season is a large new dry dock at Manitowoc.

The Manitowoc Dry Dock company is figuring on the building of the dock and contemplates building a dock 450 feet long, 60 feet wide and with 18 feet of water over the mitre sills. The cost of the dock is expected to be about $80,000.

The new dock is wanted particularly for the accommodation of Lake Michigan car ferries, but when completed will doubtless be much patronized by lake vessels in general. It would be nearer the Sault-Mackinaw district than any other, and as many disasters come each year to shipping in that vicinity would doubtless find much favor with the owners of lake craft.

The same company has also begun the construction of a steel plate rooms mill for the building of steel steamers. Estimates are being prepared for two large and modern lake steamers to be used in the passenger traffic on the lakes. One is for the Northern Michigan Transportation company to be a duplicate of the Illinois, 225 feet long and the other for Michigan city capitalists.

Estimates are also being prepared by the Jenks Shipbuilding company and the Columbia Iron works, of Port Huron, for three new 500-foot steamers for the lake traffic. Cleveland and Buffalo parties are the capitalists asking for the estimates. The boats are to be ready for launching next spring, and their dimensions are to be 500 feet in length, 50 feet beam and 30 feet in depth of hold.

COOK RAN AMUCK.

An Exciting Time on the Steamer Manhattan.

The crew of the steamer Manhattan had a lively and exciting time on the trip from Duluth to Sault Ste. Marie during the early part of the week.

The cook, James Berrage, is reported by Sault Ste. Marie papers to have run amuck shortly before the boat reached the Sault. He attacked the other members of the crew with a large butcher knife. When the ship reached the Sault the men were afraid of him, declaring he was crazy. It is said that he chased several of the men up the masts and would not allow them to come down. The captain attempted to subdue him, but was bitten in the arm.

When the boat arrived at the dock in the Sault an officer was ready to meet it and took the man in charge. He attempted to get the knife when he saw the officer, but was prevented. He was taken to the lockup, where he now lies.

DECLARED A DRAW.

Tugs Inman and Superior Have Pretty Brush.

The tugs Inman and Superior of the Great Lakes Towing company attempted to settle a disputed question as to their relative speed yesterday afternoon. The two tugs were detailed to assist at the launching of the Kerr and carried parties of visitors.

They left the dock in front of the tug office at the same moment and there instantly commenced a struggle for the lead. Neither tug could get away from the other and they raced together across the harbor and through the channel. The sight presented as the two tugs swept through the channel was a very pretty one. The powerful wheels drew a great wave behind them and the water swept over their rear decks. At the close of the race neither tug had gained a lead over the other and the race was declared a draw.

KERR LAUNCHED.

Big Freighter Christened and Dropped Into Water.

The great steel freighter D. G. Kerr, which has been building at the Superior ship yards was allowed to slip from the ways at 8 minutes after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the presence of one of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds that ever attended a launching at the Superior yards.

Miss Dorothy House, daughter of President House of the Duluth and Iron Range railroad, acted as sponsor for the new vessel. In the launching party in addition to Miss House were Miss Dorothy House, Miss Juna Morrow, Miss Marjorie Morrow, Miss Natille Smith, Mrs. F. E. House, Mrs. T. F. Cole, Mrs. W. J. Olcott, Pierre Gaillard, F. E. House, T. W. Cole and W. J. Olcott.

The launching of the Kerr marks an epoch in the shipbuilding industry at the head of the lakes. The Kerr is the largest vessel ever built at the superior yards and is proof positive that the company can handle the largest steamers that are built for the lake traffic. The dimensions of the Kerr are: Length 468 feet, beam 52 feet, depth 28 feet. Her gross tonnage is 5553 and her net 3591.

The tugs Inman and Superior of the Great Lakes Towing company assisted at the launching, which was carried through without a hitch.

In their anxiety to miss nothing of the scene the visitors crowded too close to the slip and many of them received a ducking from the spray that was thrown up when the great ship struck the water.

NO CHANGE IN RATES.

Chicago, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain freights were without change in rates or conditions. Not much business is being done.

TO LAKE MICHIGAN.

One dredge, at least, of the Duluth Dredge and Dock company, and one from the Lake Superior Contracting and Dredging company are to be sent down into Lake Michigan to work on the Sturgeon Bay ship canal, which the government intends finishing this year, thereby connecting Green Bay and Lake Michigan far south of the natural junction. There is to be about 2,000,000,000 cubic feet of earth to be removed and all the dredging machines that can be secured are needed to complete the work this year.

THE SAULT PASSAGES.

Sault Ste. Marie

THE LIST GROWS

More Names Added to Those Indicted By Federal Jury.

Robert Louden, James O'Brien, Joseph Couture and E. F. Krelwitz.

Further names have been added to the list of those indicted for connection with alleged land frauds.

Joseph Couture, Robert Louden, James J. O'Brien and E. F. Krelwitz are now included in the list of those indicted either for subornation of perjury or for conspiracy to defraud.

The indictment for conspiracy, which includes the names of Joseph Couture, Robert Louden and James J. O'Brien, includes also that of Charles P. Magnis, who was arraigned a few days ago. It indicts the four above mentioned for conspiracy to defraud the United States government of the title to tracts of land in St. Louis county by means of fraudulent and false entries. The land is described as consisting of lots 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, in section 5-64-14.

Two indictments for conspiracy to defraud are out against Messrs. Oleson, Agatin, Swallow, Hopkins and Mahon, and to one of these indictments the name of E. F. Krelwitz is added. The conspiracy in which Mr. Krelwitz is included is supposed to have taken place in Duluth on June 24, 1901, and by it they are claimed to have secured possession of certain lands described as follows: Northeast quarter of the southeast quarter and the south half of the southeast quarter of section 33 and the southwest quarter of section 34, all in township 65-11.

The other indictment, which contains merely the first five names, is for a conspiracy which is claimed to have taken place on July 2, 1901, in Duluth. The land which is claimed to have been fraudulently obtained from the government is described as the northwest quarter of section 20-65-1.

Ten names in all are now included in the various indictments brought by the grand jury charged either with conspiracy to defraud the government or with subornation of perjury.

It is thought that this completes the list. The grand jury has adjourned and the district court also completed its work last evening, Judge Lochren taking the late train for St. Paul.

All of the men under indictment will probably be tried at the next term of the court, which will meet in Duluth in October. The majority of them have been arraigned and furnished bonds to appear. Joseph Couture was arraigned yesterday and bail fixed at $1000, which he has not yet furnished.

The activity displayed by the grand jury is causing no little comment, not only among those interested in government lands, but throughout the city, as the greater part of the men indicted are prominent in the business or professional circles in Duluth and are well known in the city and in other parts of the state.

BURNS CAUSE HER DEATH

Five-Year-Old Girl Fatally Burned Through Playing With Matches.

Playing with matches, a 5-year-old girl met a terrible death from burning last night.

The victim was Stefa Prot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Prot, of 14 West Tenth street.

According to the story of other children, the little Prot girl was playing with matches in front of her home at an early hour last evening.

The dry grass caught fire, and in trying to stamp it out the flames caught her cotton dress. In a moment the clothing was on fire from head to foot.

A 12-year-old sister heroically tried to extinguish the flames with her hands and was terribly burned before she gave up her efforts.

An unknown man, passing at the time, also used his hands in an effort to save the child's life, and he too received a severe burning.

Within a few minutes after the fire caught the dress the clothing was nearly all burned off and the girl's face and body was burned terribly.

The little one suffered the most intense pain until death relieved her agony at 11 o'clock last night.

The funeral service will be held in the Polish Catholic church at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

BY ARBITRATION

Will Strike of St. Paul Molders Be Settled.

St. Paul, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The strike of the iron molders, which was declared on Monday, will be settled by arbitration. International Vice President Campbell, who has been in St. Paul for two weeks, has announced to the men that arrangements had been made to appoint an arbitration board which would act within a week. The men voted unanimously to return to their places this morning. Mr. Campbell went to Minneapolis last night. He arrived at the meeting of the molders there just in time to prevent them ordering a strike to be declared this morning.

VERY LARGE DEFICIENCY

Must Be Provided For In Postoffice Department.

Washington, May 21.—Congress will be asked at the opening of its next session to make an appropriation to cover deficiencies in both the regular free delivery service and the rural free delivery service of the postoffice department. Postmaster General Payne today announced that this deficiency now aggregates exactly $227,467, of which $105,660 is in the free delivery branch and $121,590 in the rural free delivery service. The postmaster general said he very much regretted the existence of the deficit, and for the first time publicly criticised the administration of A. W. Machen, the general superintendent of the free delivery system, who is out on an indefinite leave of absence. That things to be the sense and perishes with them—is a dream and a delusion. But happiness on earth—blossoming in spiritual joy, fruiting in spiritual power—is a reality.

postmaster general said that part of the deficiency was discovered before Mr. Machen was given his leave of absence.

HIGHEST ON RECORD

Circulation of National Banks Has Reached Largest Amount.

Washington, May 21.—The circulation of national banks has passed the $100,000,000 mark, the largest amount ever achieved, and is still climbing in a most remarkable manner. The bureau of engraving and printing is turning out bank notes as fast as increased force and extra work will permit. The presses have been running night and day for two months, and the outlook is that they will continue under the same tension until July 1 at least.

It requires about twenty-five days to prepare new money so that it will be properly seasoned to go into the hands of patrons of national banks. The director of the bureau of printing and engraving, while he declines to give out exact figures, admits that he has on hand orders for many millions of dollars worth of currency. He is supplying the finished product of the presses to the comptroller's office as rapidly as he can, but he cannot keep pace with the demand of the banks. They want the new currency without delay.

The amount of bank circulation outstanding at the close of business last night was $100,161,256. Dec. 31 of last year it was $88,129,584 and that was considered a very high figure. The banks had taken some pains during October, November and December, of last year, to stimulate and increase their circulation, and when they attained the figures reported by the department on the last day of the year they thought they had done their full duty.

"LUCKY ED."

He Makes Freak Bets and Always Wins.

New York, May 21.—"Lucky Ed" McCormack, the curb broker who won a $500 diamond ring in a raffle on the curb on Thursday sent the ring to a jeweler's to have it made large enough to fit his finger. The jeweler's agent declared the ring would be delivered just before the market closed at 3 o'clock. A fellow broker offered to bet $50 the jeweler would not have the job done on time and McCormick took the chance. The ring came back three minutes before the last trade was made and curb brokers offered to pay a dollar apiece for luck in rubbing it after McCormack put it on.

After giving all his friends free rubs on the ring McCormack offered to bet $10 with every taker that the next cab to come along through the curb market would have an odd number on the lamp. Fifteen brokers bet $10 apiece on an even numbered rig and then along came cab No. 275. McCormack collected the $150 and took the cab for home.

"Lucky Ed" bets on the red head lines in the evening newspapers, and nobody has as yet succeeded in beating his system. As a rule he plays "Baffled" and "Women in Panic" for favorites three times a week and gets enough on other days with even money on "Assassin" and "Slaughter." Recently he brought $1675 away from the track as a result of an initial shoe-string bet of $5.

TWELVE HURT.

Chicago, May 21.—Twelve persons were severely injured, five of them dangerously and a score of other passengers thrown into a panic by a collision between electric cars at Thirty-fifth and Halstead streets today. One car was thrown up on the sidewalk by the force of the impact. Failure of the brakes on one of the cars is said to have caused the disaster.

SERMON BY VANDYKE

Opens the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Dr. Robert Coyle Likely to Be Selected Moderator.

Los Angeles, May 21.—The one hundred and fifteenth general assembly of the Presbyterian church convened this morning at Emmanuel church. But few of the 700 accredited commissioners were absent when the Rev. Dr. Henry an Dyke called the meeting to order, and the galleries were crowded by visitors. The campaign for moderator continued up to the hour of calling the assembly to order, when everything pointed to the election of Rev. Dr. Robert Coyle. Balloting will take place this afternoon. Dr. William Roberts, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Calvin Mather, of China, are the other candidates.

Dr. Van Dyke called the assembly to order at 11 o'clock and delivered his annual sermon.

Mr. Van Dyke said:

I want to speak to you today about the religion of Christ in its relation to happiness.

In the wish for happiness, all men are strangely alike. In their views of it, and in their ways of seeking it, they are singularly different. If we acknowledge Christ as our Master and Lord there are two questions that we must ask of Him. First, is it right to wish to be happy? Second, what are the chief conditions on which the fulfilment of that wish depends?

The desire for happiness is natural.

Now what does Christ say in regard to this natural human wish? Does He condemn and deny it? Would He have accepted Goethe's definition: "Religion is renunciation?"

Surely such a notion is far from the spirit of Jesus. There be nothing of the hardness of Stoicism, the coldness of Buddhism, in Christ's gospel. It is human, sympathetic, consoling. Unrest and weariness, the fever of passion and the chill of despair, sour-solitude and heart-trouble, are the very things that He comes to cure. He begins His great discourse with a series of beatitudes. "Blessed" is the word. "Happy" is the meaning. Nine times He rings the changes on that word, like a silver bell sounding from the campanile of His fair temple on the mountain-side, calling all who long for happiness to come to Him and find rest for their souls.

If we accept His teaching we must believe that men are not wrong in wishing for joy, but wrong in their ways of seeking it. Earthly happiness—pleasure that Christianity is not true, or appears worthy of my attention." That is the logical result of losing the knowledge of spiritual things—a life without real interest, without deep worth—a life with a broken spring.

But because Renan is mistaken. Suppose Christianity is true. Why, then the first thing that makes it precious, is that it answers our questions and tells us what we must know in order to be happy.

Christianity is a revealing religion, a teaching religion, a religion which conveys to the inquiring spirit certain positive solutions of the problems of life. It is not silent, nor ambiguous, nor incomprehensible in its utterance. It replies to our questions with a knowledge which, though limited, is definite and sufficient. It tells us that this "order of nature, which constitutes the world's experience, is only one portion of the total universe." That the ruler of both worlds, seen and unseen, is God, a Spirit, and the father of our spirits. That He is not distant from us nor indifferent to us, but has given His eternal Son, Jesus Christ, to be our Saviour. That His spirit is ever present with us to help us in our conflicts with evil, in our efforts towards goodness. That He is making all things work together for good to them that love Him. That through the sacrifice of Christ, everyone who will may obtain the forgiveness of sins and everlasting peace. That through the resurrection of Christ all who love Him and their fellowmen shall obtain the victory over death and live forever.

Now these are doctrines. And it is just because Christianity contains such doctrines that it satisfied the need of man. What shall we say, then, of the proposal to adapt Christianity to the needs of the world today by eliminating or ignoring its characteristic doctrines? You might as well propose to fit a ship for service by taking out its compass and its charts and cutting off its rudder. Make Christianity silent in regard to these great questions of spiritual existence and you destroy its power to satisfy the heart.

Try the experiment, if it may be done without irreverence. Read Christ's familiar discourses in the shadow of agnosticism.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is a helpless poverty. Blessed are the pure in heart, for they know not what they shall see. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you, for ye have no promise of a heavenly reward.

"God is unknown, and they that worship Him must worship Him in ignorance and doubt. That which is born of the flesh and that which is born of the spirit is a chimera. Men shall not live by bread alone, neither shall he look for any word from the mouth of God. Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe not in God, believe not in me. In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, for ye know not whether there is a world to come."

Is it conceivable that any suffering, sorrowing soul should be comforted and strengthened by such a message as this? Could it possibly be called a gospel, glad tidings of great joy to all people?

And yet what has been omitted here from the words of Christ? Nothing but what men call doctrines—the personality of God, the divinity of Christ, the atonement, the presence and power of the Holy Spirit, the sovereignty of the Heavenly Father, the truth of the Divine Revelation, the reality of the heavenly world, the assurance of immortal life.

But it is just from these doctrines that the teaching of Jesus draws its peculiar power to comfort and inspire.

What the world wants and waits for today is a strong, true, vital preaching of doctrine. The church must realize anew the precious value of the truths which Christ has given her. She must not conceal them or cast them away; she must bring them out into the light, press them home upon the minds of hearts of men. She must simplify her statement of them, so that men can understand what they mean. She must not be content with repeating them in the language of past centuries. She must translate them into the language of today. First century texts will never wear out because they are inspired, but seventeenth century sermons have worn out because they are not inspired. Texts from the Word of God, preaching in the words of living men—that is what we need.

Let not the church falter and blush for her doctrines. Let her not turn and go down the hill of knowledge to defend her position in the valley of ignorance. Let her go up the hill, welcoming every wider outlook, rejoicing in every new discovery, gathering from evidences of the truths which man must believe concerning God and new motives to the duties which God requires of man.

But in doing this we must be careful to put the emphasis of our preaching today where it belongs, where Christ puts it, on the doctrines that are most important to human life and happiness. We can afford to let the fine metaphysical distinctions of theology rest for a while, and threw all our force on the central, fundamental truths which give steadiness and courage and cheer to the hearts of men. I will not admit that it makes no difference to a man of this age whether or not he believes in the personal God and the Divine Christ. If he really believes, it makes all the difference between spiritual strength and spiritual weakness, between optimism and pessimism. I will not admit that it makes no difference to a learned scholar or a simple laborer today whether he accepts or ignores the doctrine of the atonement, the doctrine of personal immortality. If he knows that Christ died for him, that there is a future beyond the grave, it makes all the difference between despair and hope, between misery and consolation, between the helpless frailty of a being that is put out like a candle and the joyful power of an endless life.

My brethren we must work and pray for a true revival of Christian doctrine in our age. We must deepen our own hold upon the truths which Christ has taught us. But most of all we must keep them in close and living touch with the problems of daily duty and experience. For no doctrine, however high, however true, can make men happy until it is translated into life.

Here is the second if, on which the power of religion to confer happiness depends. If ye know, happy are ye; if ye do these things.

It is not a blessing to know the things that Christ teaches, and then go on living as if they were false or doubtful. It is a trouble, a torment, a secret misery.

But the right kind of knowing carries in its heart the doing of the truth. And the right kind of doing leads to a fuller and happier knowing. "If any man will do God's will," said Christ, "he shall know of the doctrine."

A revival of simplicity, a revival of sincerity, a revival of work; this will restore to us the joy of salvation. And with the joy of salvation will come a renewal and expansion of power.

The inconsistency of Christians is the stronghold of unbelief. The lack of vital joy in the church is the chief cause of indifference in the world. The feeble energy, the faltering and reluctant spirit, the weariness in well-doing with which too many believers impoverish and saddden their own hearts, make other men question the reality and value of religion and turn away from it in cool neglect.

What then is the duty of the church? What must she do to win the confidence of the world? What is the best way for her to "price her doctrine all divine?"

First, she must increase her labors in the love of men; second she must practice the simple life in the trust of God.

Suppose that a fresh flow of energy, brave, cheerful, joyous, should be poured into all the forms of Christian work. Suppose that foreign missions and home missions should no longer have to plead and beg for support, but that plenty of money should come flowing in to send out every missionary that wants to go, and that plenty of the strongest and best young men should dedicate their lives to the ministry of Christ, and that every household where this gospel is believed should find its highest honor and its greatest joy in helping to extend His kingdom.

And then suppose that the Christian life, in its daily manifestations, should come to be marked and known by simplicity and happiness. Suppose that the followers of Jesus should really escape from the bondage to the evil spirits of avarice and luxury which infect and torment so much of our complicated, tangled, artificial modern life.

Suppose they should truly find and clearly show their happiness in the knowledge that God loves them and Christ died for them and heaven is sure and so set their hearts free to rejoice in life's common mercies, the light of the sun, the blue of the sky, the splendor of the seas, the peace of the everlasting hills, the song of the birds, the sweetness of flowers, the wholesome savour of good food, the delight of action and motion, the refreshment of sleep, the charm of music, the blessings of human love and friendship—rejoice in all these without fear of misgiving, because they come from God and because Christ has sanctified them all by His presence and touch.

Suppose, I say, that such a revival of the joy of living in Christ and working for Christ should silently sweep over the church in the Twentieth century. What would happen? Great would be the peace of her children. Greater still would be their power.

This is the message which I have to bring to you, my brethren, in this general assembly of the Presbyterian church. You may think and say that it is "a message which could just as well be brought to any other church on any other occasion." With all my heart I hope that it is true. The things that I care for most in our church are not those which divide us from other Christians but are those which unite us to them. The things that I love most in Christianity are those which give it power to save and satisfy, to console and cheer, to inspire and bless human hearts and lives. The thing that I desire most for Presbyterianism is that it should prove its mission and extend its influence in the world by making men happy in the knowing and doing of the things which Christ teaches.

The church that the Twentieth century will hear most gladly and honor most sincerely will have two marks. It will be the church that preaches the central truths of christianity most clearly, strongly and joyfully. It will be the church that finds and shows most happiness in living the simple life and doing good in the world. May that church be ours.

GUEST OF SALEM.

President Roosevelt Is Entertained By Oregon City.

Salem, Ogn., May 21.—Salem presented a gala appearance this morning, when President Roosevelt and party arrived. He was met by Governor Chamberlain, George C. Brownell, president of the senate; Speaker Harris, Mayor Bishop and a citizens committee. The party were escorted to carriages, a local military company acting as guard of honor. The procession stopped at Marion square where 2000 school children were assembled. The president delivered a few words of greeting and encouragement to the children, who responded by singing "America." The party was then driven to the capitol, where the president was escorted through a double line of grand army veterans, with all of whom he shook hands and exchanged a few words. At the west entrance of the capitol the president delivered a 30 minute address. At the conclusion of his speech, the president was driven to the train again and the party left for Portland.
